Washington, May 30.—The military invasion of Cuba has begun, according to the orders of the War Department issued at an early hour this morning. The troops that have been gathered at the gulf ports began to break camp and march aboard transports waiting to carry them to the enemy's territory. About 25 of these transports—the biggest and fastest that could be obtained suitable for the purpose—had been gathered, ready to receive the troops. They will accommodate about 30,000 men for a short voyage like that from one of the gulf ports to Cbua. It is possible with safety and comfort to carry a much larger number of men aboard ship than would be admissable in the case of a cruise to the Philippines for instance. How many troops started this morning; where they took ship; and to where they are bound, are questions which the directing spirits of the campaign refuse positively to answer. They have no desire that the Spanish should have opportunity afforded them to gather forces to attack the United States soldiers as they land. Therefore, nothing of details of this first movement can be learned. There is a suspicion that the start will be made from Tampa and Mobile and it is probable that in such case the fleets of transports will converge at Key West to pass under the convoys of warships which Admiral Sampson has provided to insure the safety of troops during the passage across the Florida Straits to ensure them against attack at the hands of some stray Spanish cruiser or gunboat. It is probable that there will be no less than four separate military expeditions and that these will be landed at four different points. Whether Porto Rico is one of these points or not cannot be learned. Before the entire force which it is proposed to use in Cuba can be landed the transports must make four separate voyages across the Straits. Arrangements have been made to utilize the services of the insurgents to the largest possible extent. The Government already has sent expeditions to a large number of points on the Island and landed arms for insurgents. Most of parties succeeded perfectly in their object and it was said at the War Department to-day that a sufficient number of insurgents have been armed to constitute a very effective support for the troops as they land. A war conference was held at the White House at 3 o'clock this afternoon, between the President and his two war secretaries, Alger and Long, and Major-General Miles, in command of the army. Vice-President Hobart was present a part of the time and Secretary Day, who has just returned to Washington, also dropped in during conference. After entire situation, naval and military, had been gone over, Secretary Long retired and Secretary Alger and General Miles remained to discuss more in detail the military operations now about to be put into execution as a result of the definite official information that the Spanish squadron is securely held within Santiago harbor. Naturally these who participated in the conference observed strict silence regarding it. It was stated, however, in an authoritative quarter that the discussion had covered the entire range of naval and military operations with particular views to the active movements abouts to begin General Miles brought him a memorandum showing the exact disposition of military forces now concentrated at various points throughout country with number of men a Tampa and southern points of embarkation. He also made known that at one o'clock this morning, immediately following the receipt of definite information of presence of Spanish squadron at Santiago, he had gone to the War Department had issued telegraphic orders putting troops in motion and thus starting the forward movement of military aim of service. Further than this those attending the conference would not discuss their plans.

A BATTLE AT ONCE.

It has been thought that the campaign against Admiral Cervera might now be ended by demolishing the forts at the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, blockading the channel and isolating the Spanish fleet until the other problems of the war are worked out. This, however, is not in line with American policy and, simply accepting the view of the situation taken by the naval experts here, Admiral Cervera will have to accept battle at once. It is confidently expected that a hard blow will be struck within three or four days and that the result will be known to the world at large at the expiration of that time. It has not been disclosed whether Commodore Schley is to be reinforced, but it would not be surprising if some additional ships were sent to him.

SPANIARDS WANT PEACE.

Madrid, May 30.—The papers continue to talk of the possibilities of peace. El Globo publishes an article, supposed to be inspired by Senor Moret the late Minister of the Colonies, advocating peace, which has attracted great attention; but the discussion shows as yet no tangible results.

A SECOND EXPEDITION.

It is now generally known that the Florida, which left here last Monday had on board a small party of American regulars, some Cuban volunteers, and a quantity of arms and ammunition and supplies for Gomez's army, which were brought back by the Gussie last week.

The failure of the Gussie to make a landing was put down to the fact that the newspapers published a report of the contemplated expedition before it was fully organized, and as a result the Spaniards in Cuba got hold of the information and intercepted Gomez's men on their way to the coast to meet the Americans.

The army officers this time exerted themselves to prevent any report of the Florida's departure being published by establishing a strict censorship. They succeeded in their efforts to a great extent, but a journalist representing an Iowa press association, managed to get the news of the expedition and abled his paper from Key West.

The report was copied extensively throughout the country, much to the censor's disgust. Should there be any failure in the Florida's trip, the Iowa press representative's position will be an uncomfortable one.

THE COLUMBIA IN COLLISION.

Washington, May 30.—Secretary Long to-day received a despatch from Admiral Bunce, commander of the New York navy yard, stating that the cruiser Columbia had been in collision at sea and that one of her after compartments had a lot of water in it. The admiral said he had intended to dock her immediately in order that an examination might determine the extent of the repairs necessary. It is believed at the department that the nature of the collision makes it probable that the repairs will not have to be very expensive nor time-consuming.

THE HARBOR TO BE FORCED

No Time Will be Lost in Bringing Admiral Cervera to Battle

The Harvard Coals—It Is Said that the Spaniards Want Peace—Another Hospital Ship has been Purchased by the U.S.

Key West, May 30.—Any doubt remaining as to the exact location of Admiral Cervera's fleet was removed by reports brought in by naval scout ships and forwarded in the Associated Press despatches of Saturday night. The Spanish squadron is anchored in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba and the problem remains for the commanders of the American fleet to dispose of the enemy either by corking the bottle or by forcing the long and narrow passage and smashing the strong Spanish squadron at the anchorage it has chosen. It has been the opinion of Rear Admiral Simpson that Admiral Cervera would seek either Santiago de Cuba or Cienfuegos as a naval refuge base and the movement of the two American squadrons has proceeded upon this basis.

Strong and effective as are the Spanish ships, representing as they do the flower of the Spanish navy, every argument in naval strategy compelled Admiral Cervera to seek the shelter of the close harbor of Santiago de Cuba or return to Spain and he chose to make his stand at Santiago.

HAD NO ALTERNATIVE.

That he would court a fight in the open sea is an idea which has never been entertained in American naval circles although his ships, without exception, have high qualities, owing to their great speed, for such a contest. On the other hand, it was believed the Spanish Admiral would attempt to run into San Juan de Porto Rico but the fact of the recent bombardment of the forts of that harbor, coupled with the great possibility that Rear Admiral Simpson's fleet would be met if he attempted to enter that harbor, left the Spanish admiral only one alternative, and he adopted it by going to Santiago de Cuba, where, it is presumed, he has been able to coal, clean and repair, and is in a position to accept either the conditions imposed by the blockade or the issue of a fight in the inner harbor, after the American fleet has forced the passage.

THE HARVARD COALS.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 30. — The Harvard has finished coaling. Owing to the friendly feelings for America here, and because the coaling began before the British naval engineers had fixed the amount she could take at 750 tons it is believed by the townspeople that she filled her bunkers.

But such is not the case. She has enough now, with what she had, to last six days at half speed.

She sails this morning for a destination not disclosed. The strange vessel, seemingly a warship, sighted off Port Royal last night, is declared by the gossips to be a Spanish cruiser waiting for the Harvard.

ANOTHER HOSPITAL SHIPS.

The John Englis of the Maine Steamship Company, has been purchased for use as a hospital ship for the army. It will take about three weeks to fit her up. She will have a refrigerating plant, a distilling apparatus, and machinery for carbonating water, the latter presented by the Colonial Dames. There will be accommodation for five hundred patients. There will be twelve nurses on the ship. The name of the ship will be changed to the Relief.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY

Celebrated at Tampa by United States' Military Men

And Many Influential Business Men of the City—The Speeches All Expressed Great Regard for England's Queen

Tampa, Fla., May 24.—A correspondent writes: Tampa and Port Tampa got out her brightest bunting to-day and strung it aloft in honor of Queen Victoria's birthday.

The day was celebrated at Tampa by a magnificent dinner at Tampa Bay Hotel, in which all the United States officers and many influential business men oft he city and surrounding country took part. The speeches—and there were many of them—all expressed an unfathomable regard for England's Queen and her good subjects. Nearly every speaker eulogistically commented on the new friendship which the turn in the affairs of the world had brought about in the last twelve months.

It made you fancy you were very near home to hear the British national hymn sung with such gusto, and the outbursts of enthusiasm which greeted each speaker as he referred to England and her sympathy with the United States in the war with Spain.

At Port Tampa every craft, from the gunboat Helena to the fisherman's smack, had out its flags. The transports had each two rows of gay signal colors, which the Stars and Stripes on the stern masthead, and the flag of England floating near the bow.

Over the pier, on a huge flag staff, which could be plainly seen for miles, were displayed side by side the Union Jack, Old Glory, and the flag of Cuba.

DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND.

Many people on the docks did not know what all the display was about, unless it was that the long delayed order to embark had been received, and the boats were giving vent to the general approval by hanging out their banners. Fifteen or sixteen strangers appealed to me to know for what all the flags were flying, and I took a great deal of pride in being able to inform them that it was Queen Victoria's birthday, and that the great Republic was celebrating that event.

Clara Barton's hospital boat, the State of Texas was particularly well beflagged.

It was announced last night that the British warship which has been cruising on the north shore of Cuba would arrive at Port Tampa at noon and that the officers would come to Tampa and attend the dinner. With a view to meeting and escorting her into the harbor, the United States gunboat Bancroft took in anchor and passed out to sea at dawn, but at the hour of writing (8 p.m.) nothing has been heard from her, nor has the British warship put in an appearance.

FALSE ALARMS.

There were many false alarms. Sharp at noon the big pier vibrated with the shock of cannon, and simultaneously one's ears tingled with a noise like thunder. Everybody rushed in the direction from whence the report came, expecting to see the Bancroft with her British companion on the horizon. We were disappointed in this regard, though we had the pleasure of seeing one of Uncle Sam's guns at work, and observing for the first time what many there present may be forced to observe later, under more serious circumstances, the singing of a shell across the water, a splash two miles away, the sea belch up twenty feet or more, a pause, and then the sound of an explosion borne back on the breeze.

I askedt he captain in charge of the battery what he was making such a noise about. He laughingly replied, "I am firing a salute in honor of her Majesty." Of course he was not. It is most unusual to fire salutes with shells, and the position of the cannon, the captain's spoken orders and the spot where nearly all the shots struck, indicated that the gunners were practising to secure a proper range on the entrance of the harbor.

CADIZ FLEET STATIONARY.

New York, May 30.—A despatch to The Herald from Gibraltar says that it may be positively stated that there has been no movement from Cadiz of the Spanish reserve squadron.

INSPECTION OF TRANSPORTS.

General Joe Wheeler inspected all the transports this morning, in company with the officers of the regiments stationed at Port Tampa. He was apparently much pleased with the manner in which the boats have been remodded for the troops.

The last transports to arrive had a great deal of uncovered upper deck room. This is being rapidly partitioned and roofed, so as to afford a good shelter for the soldiers in rough weather.

The beach at Port Tampa is rapidly filling up with artillery. Eight cars of new guns for light artillery and nine dynamite seige guns were unloaded there to-day.

Seven Spanish fishermen came into Tampa last night from Anclote, having walked the entire distance. They deserted their fishing smacks at that place because they heard that a cutter would visit there in a few days and take off to Key West all the Spanish smacks found. The mosquito fleet has so far taken in about twenty-five of these smacks to Key West. The fishermen say they do not want to return to Havana as they would be pressed into the Spanish service, and they likewise objected to going to Key West because they would be made prisoners of war. Consequently they came here for protection and having professed no interest in the war they are at liberty to remain free at Tampa.

PANAMA TO BE SOLD.

Key West, May 30.—The prize steamer Panama, captured by the Mangrove soon after the opening of the war, was taken north by a cruiser this morning to be sold. Her cargo was released by the United States last week.

GOMEZ TAKES REMEDIOS

He Loots Towns and Captures Large Quantities of Supplies

And Kills 32 Spaniards—Recaptured in Two Hours—Cervera Lands 20,000 Rifles, 800 Artillerymen and Great Guns at Santiago

London, May 30.—A despatch to The Standard from Key West says: "Intelligence has been received from Cuba that a portion of the army of General Maximo Gomez, consisting of 300 cavalry and 500 infantry, on Saturday at daylight attacked, captured and held for two hours the town of Remedios in the Province of Santa Clara.

"The Cubans were under the command of Carillo, and the object of the attack was to capture a supply of provisions sent three days before for the Spanish troops, who numbered 3,000 men.

"General Carillo, hearing of their reinforcements and, having received 100 infantry and 200 cavalry, decided to attack at dawn. His camp was formed Friday night about three miles from Remedios; no fires were permitted and all orders were given by word of mouth instead of bugle.

"At 3.55 a.m. on Saturday the troops formed for attack, the cavalry under General Carillo being in front and the infantry, under Colorel Borra, constituting the second line. They were almost in the town before a sentry gave the warning. The cavalry charge practically decided the capture; and the infantry, following at double quick, lootedt he place of everything edible, which was sent to General Gomez, as well as 204 Mauser rifles and 60,000 rounds of ammunition, under an escort of 50 cavalry and 100 infantry.

"The loss of the Cubans was four killed and three wounded. The Spaniards lost 32 killed and 63 wounded. The Cuban troops had eaten nothing but fruit for weeks and had no bread or coffee. Consequently they are revelling in the canned beef, sardines, coffee and other edibles of the capture.

"Two hours after the town was taken the Spanish troops, who had been reinforced, returned and recaptured Remedios. Five Cubans were killed or wounded in the second engagement. The Spanish loss is unknown.

SUPPLIES LANDED.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, May 30.—Two Italians, who set out from Santiago de Cuba in a small boat on Thursday, May 19, and landed near Mole, St. Nicholas, on the 22nd, arrived her Sunday, bringing information as to the situation at Santiago.

The state of affairs there is critical, particularly so because of the lack of food. A great many of the unfortunate people, especially the reconcentrados are dying of starvation. The whole population is terribly discouraged and keenly desirous of peace.

The arrival of the squadron under Admiral Cervera without food supplies for the city deepened the general despondency. The squadron has disembarked 800 men, artillerymen and engineers, and landed twenty thousand Mauser rifles, a large quantity of ammunition and four big guns, destined fort he fortifications.

In spite of the strict silence maintained by the officers and crews, the general opinion was, when the Italians left, that the squadron would set out for San Juan de Porto Rico to land arms and ammunition there. For several days the rain had been falling in torrents and yellow fever had broken out among the Spanish troops.

If you are not feeling well, why don't you take Hood's Sarsaparilla? It will purify and enrich your blood and do you wonderful good.

EASY GAME FOR J. BULL

While Uncle Sam is struggling with the difficulties of his own little seven-by-nine war he might stop and reflect that the Spanish-American difficulty would seem like a trifling affair to his distinguished relative, John Bull.

There has scarcely been a day during any of the last fifty years when Great Britain has not had on its hands a bigger war than the conflict which is now such a tax upon the resources of the United States.

Uncle Sam struggling amid the burdensome responsibilities of one little war must envy and admire John Bull's capacity for calmly and comfortably carrying on two or three little wars and attending to his regular business at the same time.

PRONOUNCING SPANISH NAMES

A very simple rule to follow in pronouncing these Spanish names is to pronounce them any old way, and in a firm, unaltering tone, which defies correction and disarms suspicion. Ten to one the other fellow will give you the credit for being posted.—Council Bluffs Nonpariel.

Why not pronounce them any way you please as long as you convey the information you intend? To pronounce a foreign name differently from its own proper national pronunciation does not necessarily show ignorance. No man, no matter how well educated, is supposed to be a walking encyclopedia of the pronunciation of foreign names. In nineteen cases out of twenty if he did know the pronunciation he couldn't get his tongue in shape to do the pronouncing. The fact is the foreign names we use most frequently we have Anglicized phonetically. You do not hear people talking about Par-ee. Plain, straight Paris is good enough. So ought Cien-fu-e-gus to be for most of us, though if we wanted to be really Spanish we would call it See-en-fwa-gos, sounding the "a" in fwa long.

All the daily papers now are conducting puzzle departments.

The latest pest to reach this country is the spruce gall louse from Northern Europe. It attacks various kinds of spruce and is very injurious. The Ontario department of agriculture has issued a bulletin asking those owning spruce trees to watch for it, and immediately report its presence. They may easily detect it by observing galls coming on the twigs.

Some of the American newspapers have had long accounts of "Kit," all more or less ridiculous. The writers profess to describe her personal appearance, and some of the descriptions (including fake portraits) are annoyingly absurd to her friends. She is tall and of very attractive appearance, has a gracious and charming personality, and being one of the most-travelled and best-informed women on this continent, is a delightful conversationalist. Her pluck is vouched for by the expedition on which she is now engaged at her own initiative.—Galt Reporter.

"Kit" is all right, and no one who has ever met her will doubt her pluck or nerve. At the same time, it does not require a superfluity of pluck to go to Tampa, live at a first class hotel, and write letters. Even we could do it if we had to.

WALRUS LEATHER.

Used For Making Wheels For Polishing. Other Polishing Leathers.

Walrus leather is used for making buffer wheels for polishing brass, steel and silver. It has a peculiar, coarse grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to tan a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in this country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a cub walrus would be about half an inch thick. The hide of an old bull might be two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1¼ inches would be worth $1.40 a pound, and walrus leather from 1½ to 1¾ inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $2 a pound, and a side of such leather would cost about $300.

Walrus wheels are made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a flat face, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve packings.

Bull necks are used also for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of the sea lion is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Sea lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Built up wheels of any thickness are also made of sea lion and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Lost Purse.

"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle aged woman as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

"I can't say, sir. You see, it was this way: I came out to do some shopping. I put my purse in my pocket when I left home. When I went to pay for the goods, it was gone. I think I had about 30 shillings."

"Did any one have an opportunity to pick your pocket?"

"I suppose they did."

"Sure you brought the money with you?"

"Yes."

"Are you certain you did not lose it?"

"Do you think I'm a fool, sir?" she indignantly exclaimed. "When I say I had my pocket picked, I know what I'm talking about."

"I hope you do, ma'am, but"—

At this moment a boy entered the room with the purse in his hand and said:

"Here's your money, ma. We found it on the piano after you left the house, and Sarah sent me down to the shop after you."

The woman and the sergeant looked at each other for a few seconds. Then he smiled. Then she got red. Then he said he was glad she had found her money, and she retorted:

"I don't believe it! You wish I had lost it! I'll never come here for help again, never!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Help for the Hair

is what a great many men and women are looking for; help against approaching baldness; help against whitening locks; help to restore the lost gloss to the hair; help against fading tresses; help for the scalp attacked by dandruff. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR offers just such help. It restores gray or faded hair to its original color, gives it length, thickness and gloss, and removes dandruff.

"My hair was rough and broken and began to fall out. The use of but one bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR both checked the falling out and rendered my hair smooth, glossy and in splendid condition. It is the finest of dressings."—MRS. F. L. SMITH, Silver Creek, Miss.

and very soon my hair ceased to fall out and a new and vigorous growth made its appearance. My hair is now abundant and glossy."—THOS. DUNN, Rockville, Wis.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

"You are a keen observer and shrewd reader of character," said Derwent. "Now read mine."

He stepped beneath the street light and removing his hat, threw back his head, while a smile curled his beautiful lips beneath the golden beard, and the light of admiration shone in his bright evey. Was it love?

Surely not. As he had just confessed he did not even know her name.

Stella felt her color rise; the bright blue eyes seemed to blur, and shedropped her glance, for her own eyes had dimmed with unbidden tears.

She had been greatly tried; the past ten days of her life had been of a nature to almost change the whole system of existence; her very world seemed now an unknown sphere.

To be poor, alone, desolate, and now insulted, threatened, huniliated!

She stood silent in the moonlight, her queenly head bowed as the head bowed as the head of a tall lily in a storm.

Her pale lips quivered, a sob escaped them.

"O'h, madam," cried Walter Derwent, "have I pained you? Forgive me."

"No, no,' she said, putting away his hand, which had touched hers with tender reverence. "I am foolish; my nerves are unstrung."

"What wonder? Great Heaven, what a wretch I was to permit you to walk. You are ill; faint."

"No, no! Pray, Mr. Derwent, do not say any more. I shall be quite calm in a moment.'

She wiped her eyes when he leaned over her in painful solicitude.

"You are too kind, too thoughtful!" she murmured.

"No, I am not. I am blaming myself for myt houghtless folly in allowing you to walk after such a trying scene."

"Come, let us go on."

Stella forced back her tears bravely.

He drewt he slender hand, which still trembled, under his arm.

How noble he looked, in the claer moonlight, for the moon was shining over them, with her cold, pure light.

Walter Derwent was handsome as the Grecian dreams of beauty which were wrought in marble by artistic hands, to become types of physical lovliness for unborn generations.

His beauty was the beauty of true manhood, and therefore appealed all the more strongly to Stella, who was even then suffering from insult and humiliation at the hands of a human brute.

"I still am in ignorance of your name," he said playfully.

"My name is Stella Sterling."

"A noble name. Stella, a star—Sterling, true, genuine; a star of truth, purity and steadfastness. Stella, you will ever be true to your beautiful face and your noble name."

A star of truth.

Howt hose words came back to her in after years, when the memory of that night was all that she had left of the sweetest portion of her life.

After this Walter talked in a lighter strain; he wished to divert her mind from all that was trying and painful.

He succeeded. More than once, before they reached Mr. Jameson's door, she laughed, and he thought he had never heard a sweeter sound than the musical ripple of girlish mirth that fell from her lips.

"Love! What a millennium in a moment!—
A lightning in a touch,
A seventh heaven in a glance,
A whirlwind in a sigh."

Yes, love for the first time put forth his rosy fingers, and touched the hearts of Stella Sterling and Walter Derwent.

When they parted at the door of the old lawyer's huose, no word had been spoken.

Walter held her hand, and his deep blue eyes looked tenderly into the depths of the midnight orbs timidly uplifted to meet his gaze, and though no word was spoken vows were exchanged, and never again would either forget that meeting beneath the stars.

CHAPTER XII.

When Alwin Croft parted with his sister's son, Jeffrey Pettus, he thought he had said farwell to the last friend who cared to bid him good-by, and was somewhat surprised, soon after Pettus had taken his departure, when the cell door opened to admit Harold Dutton.

The young lawyer had never been an intimate friend of Croft, for there was little in common between the rich jeweler and the poor lawyer.

"How do you do, Mr. Croft?" said Dutton, holding out his hand.

"How do you do, Mr. Dutton?" replied the other, adding mentally, "What in the world has he come about?"

"I heard that you were leaving town to-day," Dutton resumed, "and I called because I hope to be useful to you."

Croft smiled somewhat grimly.

"Do you suppose for a moment that I expect to make capital out of your trouble, Mr. Croft?" said Dutton, hastily; "nothing could be further from my thoughts. I take an interest in interest in you. Well, I don't see why I shouldn't tell the truth. I love Stella Sterling; I have loved her since the first time I ever saw her; that was in church, the first Sunday I spent in Brandon."

"'Stella has gone to Chicago,' said Croft. He was astonished at this fresh complication, and was trying to determine which was the best way of turning it to his own advantage.

"I know; I called upon Edith Sloan and begged her to send me her address when she was settled. I never dared to hope that I could win Stella till that hound of a Van Cart deserted her at the first whisper of trouble. Then I made up my mind that I should try my fortune like a man."

"You are right; you are a fine looking fellow, and I have always liked you though I have never looked upon you in the light of a possible suitor for Stella."

"No, my position did not warrant such presumption."

"Why not? A lawyer is equal to any man living, there are such possibilities before him. Abraham Lincoln was once a poor country lawyer."

"And a genius, which I am not."

"Time will tell," said Croft, diplomatically.

"Now, Mr. Croft, I have not come here to bore you with the recital of my hopes and aspirations. I have come to offer my services in your behalf."

Croft shrugged his shoulders. He had very little faith in Harold Dutton's ability and felt that his case was hopeless.

"You mean, I presume, something in the shape of a petition."

"Just so. I do not think Mr. Dodd, though he is my senior, and no doubt my superior in everything else as well as legal experience, did the best that could be done for you.'

Croft looked thoughtful.

"What could you suggest as an improvement on his line of defense?"

"Well, I don't think sufficient stress was laid on the long years of honorable business dealing, your integrity, and earnest endeavors to retrieve your early misfortunes, or, harshly speaking, misdeeds.'

"He has appealed, but his demand for a new trial was refused."

"He is an able and an honest lawyer. No doubt he did his best; but I should have emphasized the fact your record in Brandon, your forming and holding inviolate sacred family ties, your moral life, all spoke of an earnest wish for thorough reformation. Then came the unfortunate speculation in the great and disastrous wheat deal in Chicago, which wrought the ruin of many others besides yourself. In desperation you seized upon any scheme however wild, to once more establish yourself. I should have called attention to the fact that you mortgaged your home, sought by every means to regain what you had lost. Then, at a moment when despair was numbing all your faculties, when your intellectual powers were clouded, and your mind perverted by anxiety, you unfortunately met Rusty Rube. He entrapped you at a moment when ideas of right and wrong were no longer clear to you, when the evil instincts dormant in every man's nature spring up with the strength of armed men. You were tempted at a moment when the moral force of your being was prostrate. You fell.

THE EXCITABLE FRENCH.

Scene In the Chamber of Deputies With the Members Enraged.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense usher called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant"—or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was—advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative halls of the world. At last M. Talandier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representatives' hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little locked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Lefts, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down lest he might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the desk or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'etat, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance how much profounder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles farther on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 25 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like, an she's willin an so'm I. Whur's the nighest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louis-

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

CERVERA'S FLEET ESCAPES

Port au Prince, May 28.—A despatch received here from Monte Cristi, on the north coast of Santo Domingo, reports that a Spanish squadron has been sighted near there. It is believed to be Admiral Cervera's fleet making its way to Porto Rico. This despatch, however, lacks confirmation.

REFORMS FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Madrid, May 28.—In the Chamber today one of the deputies questioned the Government respecting the submission of the rebels in the Philippine Islands. He urged reforms and amnesty and that the chiefs of the insurgents be deported to Spain. The Minister of the Colonies, Senor Romero Girca, said that an enquiry was proceeding with a view of granting amnesty to the most deserving of the rebel prisoners and that inquiry would also be necessary before reforms could be granted.

ESCAPED THE AMERICAN SHIPS

Port Au Prince, May 29.—The Spanish torpedo gunboat Terror, according to advices received here, has arrived safe at San Juan de Porto Rico, having escaped the American warships which have been on the lookout for her since she left Port De France Island off Martinique, where her boiler tubes were repaired.

RUN THE BLOCKADE

Madrid, May 29.—It was announced here to-day in a despatch from Havana that the warships of the United States which have been blockading Santiago de Cuba disappeared yesterday off that port, their destination being unknown to Spanish authorities. Advcies received here to-day from Havana say that a big sailing ship from Barcelona having on board a cargo of provisions and arms arrived yesterday at Newvitas. The northern part of the city of Porto Principe, capital of the Cuban province of that name after running the blockade.

NO RELIABLE NEWS OF CERVERA

London, May 29.—It is semi-officially announced that reliable news regarding the whereabouts of the squadron of Spanish ships commanded by Admiral Cervera is not obtainable. But it is rumored that the Spanish vessels left Santiago de Cuba yesterday. No official confirmation of this rumor can be had.

A HOT CHASE

St. Johns, Nfd., May 28.—The telegraph operator at Trepassy shortly after 7 o'clock this evening wired as follows: "Three strange vessels, apparently warships, have been manouevring off here since 5 o'clock. Two of them are large steamers, apparently cruisers, and the third is a smaller steamer, much faster than the others, probably a torpedo boat destroyer. The latter is within a couple of miles of shore, apparently keeping in neutral British waters. The others are two miles further off dodging smaller craft. Crowds of people witnessed the spectacle, until the fog closed down covering the ocean, but the whistles of three steamers are still heard in the offing."

The magistrate at Trepassy telegraphed later that three steamers were plainly visible off there. The vessels were sighted first about five o'clock crossing the horizon in a westerly direction at a rapid rate of speed. They remained in sight until about seven o'clock, when they ran into a fog bank and were lost to view.

THE CORRESPONDENTS RELEASED

Key West, May 28.—The U. S. gunboat Woodbury arrived here this morning, bringing Hayden Jones and Chas. Thrall, the newspaper correspondents captured by the Spaniards in Cuba and exchanged off Havana for Lieut.-Col. Vincette de Cortiji, Surgeon-Major Julian and two servants, Spanish prisoners, who have been confined at Fort McPherson, Atlanta.

WHAT THE WAR COSTS.

Washington, May 28.—The Secretary of War has sent to Congress an estimate of deficiencies in appropriations fort he Quartermaster's Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, and available until January 1, 1899, amounting to $11,000,000. The items of the estimate are: Regular supplies, $1,000,000; incidental expenses, $200,0..; barracks and quarters, $200,000; horses for cavalry and artillery, $1,000,000; army transportation, $9,000,000. This increases the total amount appropriated and asked for to date on account of the war to $312,285,000.

NEARLY 500 PRISONERS.

Key West, May 28.—Of the 446 persons captured on all the prizes of war, 444 attached to the Spanish navy in various capacities, will be held as prisoners under instructions from the Attorney-General to-day. The others will probably be paroled. All are to be treated with the fullest consideration and accorded every possible privilege. The ships held to be legitimate prizes will be sent north to be sold. The naval reserves who arrived from Chicago yesterday will be distributed among the ships of the fleet.

CADIZ FLEET SAILS.

Madrid, May 28.—9 a.m.—It is officially announced that the Spanish reserve squadron, commanded by Admiral Camara, has left Cadiz. But, it is added,t hat before going to its destination, the squadron will manoeuvre probably for several days in the open sea, afterwards sailing immediately "for the Philippine Islands, Cuba or the United States, as the Government may judge most opportune.

The squadron is understood to be composed of ten or twelve vessels.

IS SCHLEY A DEWEY?

Cape Haytien, Hayti, May 28.—A rumor has reached here of an important United States success, but no confirmation of the report can be obtained here.

Since the rumored arrival of the Spanish fleet at Santiago de Cuba, no news has been received, though the cable between this place and Santiago de Cuba is intact. The significence of this mysterious silence is not known, and excites great wonder. No explanation is furnished.

The theory that the Spanish admiral allowed himself to be bottled up in the bay of Santiago de Cuba is not entertained here. On the contrary, the Haytien officials say it is far from likely that such a thing has occurred.

It is hoped that the message from Commodore Schley will soon be received.

INSURGENT INFORMATION.

Tuesday evening the Cuban insurgents sent a boat with positive information that the Spanish fleet was not in Cienfuegos harbor, and just after sunset Commodore Schley's squadron sailed away southeast, bound for Santiago de Cuba. We followed in the Premier and despite a heavy gale from the southeast, kept in touch with the squadron until 4 o'clock Wednesday. A severe rain squall then hit the vessels, and when it cleared we found they had altered their course and disappeared. We stood along toward Santiago, but as the gale increased in severity and our supply of coal and water was dangerously low, the Premier was obliged to run for Kingston, where she arrived on Friday at 6 o'clock. After losing touch of the fleet we sighted the United States gunboat Hawk returning from Cienfuegos and Santiago de Cuba with the news that the Spanish fleet under Cervera was not at Santiago. I am afraid that there is little chance of meeting the Spanish fleet. The probabilities are that Cervera, after discharging ammunition and supplies for Blanco at Santiago, put out again, and ran down the Caribbean to Martinique and got out into the Atlantic by the same way he entered.

In this way it appears the Spanish fleet has completely outmanoeuvred the American commanders and has succeeded in concealing its movements, though the Americans have seventy war vessels patrolling the West Indian waters. It is reported that severe fighting took place between the insurgents and Spaniards near Cienfuegos on Sunday, in which the Spaniards lost 300 killed and wounded.

PROVISIONS WERE LANDED.

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, May 28.—The latest advices from Porto Rico say that freighters recently landed at San Juan considerable provisions. From the same authority it appears that war preparations continue.

It is reported that after the bombardment Spain offered to send warships to Porto Rico from Martinique, but the offer was refused because of the confidence of the military that they could successfully repulse the American fleet.

The Spaniards at San Juan declare that they will burn the city before they will surrender. It is impossible to ascertain which cable or cables the auxiliary cruiser St. Louis cut.

THE SUSPICION GROWING.

New York, May 28.—The suspicion that Cervera's fleet is not at Santiago is now growing to a conviction. It is probable that the Spanish fleet has not been there for four or five days. Cervera is probably on the high seas, but noting is known regarding her whereabouts.

250,000 CURED.

Thousands of young men are made nervous wrecks, unfit for business, social pleasures or home duties by evil habits in youth, later excess, or private disease. W. C. Andrews, of Akron, O., says: "I read this paper and have seen many reports of remarkable cures made by Drs. Kennedy and Kergan. I decided to treat with them. Indiscretion was the cause of my trouble. I was weak and nervous; no ambition; back weak. pimples on the face; thin and haggard; eyes sunken and cheeks hollow; dreams and drains at night; memory poor; varicocele and weak parts; irritable; sinking spells; specks before the eyes; lack of confidence; no energy; and many other complaints. I had tried fourteen doctors, bought four electric belts took scores of bottles of patent medicines—all failed. I tried the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, and it cured me. I am a Man Again. I have gained twenty-six pounds and am strong mentally, physically and sexually. It is a wonderful treatment."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE LIVELY LAKES

LAKEFIELD

The Sons of England

A very interesting, and from a historical standpoint, a very instructive sermon, was preached last Sunday to the members of this order by the Rev. Warren, of Lakefield. His text was from 17th chap. Acts of Apostles, 26 and 27 verses. He first compared them (the Sons of England) to other benevolent associations of a non-national character and then developed the early history of England through the invasions of the Romans, the Angles and Saxons, the Danes and the Normans with their richer culture—then on up through Magna Charta, with its statement of liberties; the War of the Roses with its suppression of the nobles; the Reformation and the establishment of a State Church; the Cromwellian era, with its establishment of the nation as a body opposed to the power of an individual; and the full ennunciation of the representative character of English institutions in the reigns succeeding George III.; and in his parviation called upon his hearers to guard faithfully the sacredness of the ballot, and warned them against the dangers of personal political usurpatine. The attendance was extremely large and the service from every standpoint a most satisfactory one.

Messrs. Hughes & Gerton, of Burleigh, were in Lakefield yesterday buying up everything in sight in the way of provisions for the Olympic Club picnic.

Court Lakefield, C. O. F., will meet in their Lodge room at 10.15 a. m., and attend as a body the Baptist church. They will be addressed by the pastor, the Rev. H. L. Erb.

The seniors of the Grove School played an interesting game of cricket with the veterans of the village yesterday evening, but the fact that they had to battle with such men as John Cooper, Geo. Hilliard and other old ones is sufficient statement of the result.

An especially long-felt want in Lakefield has been supplied by Mr. O. Bell, who has opened a bakery, confectionery and ice-cream parlor in the north end near the docks, where he will be able to cater to the many picnic parties going up the lakes. Mr. Bell will also, of course, be prepared to do business throughout the burg.

Fort Craig has been newly fortified by the addition of an impregnable wall with a vast number of loop-holes.

RIGHT REV. R. A. O'CONNOR

Interesting Sketch of the Life of the Bishop of Peterboro Diocese

Right Reverend Richard Alphonsus O'Connor was born at Listowel, county Kerry, Ireland, on May 1st, 1838. When he was three years old his parents emigrated and came to Canada, settling at Toronto. It was in the Separate schools of that city that the future Bishop received his primary education. In 1852 he entered St. Michael's College, Toronto, then but a very young institution, where he took a complete course in literature, mathematics, classics and philosophy, showing marked distinction and ability in all his studies. From there he went to the Grand Seminary, Montreal, for the study of theology and the sacred Scriptures.

He was ordained by Archbishop Lynch at Toronto in 1861, and the first ministry to which he was assigned was the Gore of Toronto. He afterwards had charge of Niagara Falls parish, and later of the old parish of Adjala, which has since been sub-divided.

In 1870 he received the appointment of Dean of Barrie, where he remained until promoted to his present position. During his incumbency of the parish of Barrie many changes and improvements were made there. He built a beautiful church and convent in the town, and extended the parish on all sides. Collingwood and Stayner were also made separate parishes.

After over twenty-five years of faithful services in the ministry Rev. Dr. O'Connor was appointed to the See of Peterborough in 1889, a position made vacant through the removal of Bishop Dowling to Hamilton. The new bishop was consecrated by the late lamented Archbishop Cleary, of Kingston. The tenure of office of Bishop O'Connor in Peterborough has been marked by great zeal, energy, prudence and administrative ability. He has been very constant in his diocesan visits to all parts of his large diocese, which includes the counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland, and the districts of Muskoka, Parry Sound, Algoma and Nipissing, west of North Bay.

The succes which has attended Bishop O'Connor's espiscopate in the town of Peterborough is too well known to require a detailed exemplification. It is only necessary to mention the completion and conducting of St. Joseph's hospital, the purchase of Mount St. Joseph as a Mother house for that order, the rebuilding and decoration of the cathedral, making it one of the handsomest edifices of its kind in the province, the enlargement and improvement of the Convent de Notre Dame, the great decrease in the church debt, and the successful school policy to stamp his tenure of office as of the most successful nature. Briefly put the following is the record of the nine years of Bishop O'Connor's episcopate:

Forty-two new churches built. Most of these are in the northern part of the diocese along the C.P.R., but some are large and costly edifices, such as at Douro, Cobourg and Sudbury.

Six churches, including the cathedral, have been enlarged and greatly improved.

Ten new presbyteries have been built.

Two hospitals have been erected and equipped.

Two orphanages have been built.

Eight new parishes have been formed, and many outside missions have been established, which are attended from central points.

Eight thousand, six hundred and seventy-eight persons have been confirmed.

Sixteen priests ordained for the diocese.

The Sisters of St. Joseph, Toronto, had a few missions in the diocese when Bishop O'Connor took charge. One of his first acts was to establish them as a diocesan institution, and Mount St. Joseph was purchased as a Mother house. They have now six houses in the diocese, and are engaged in conducting hospitals and caring for orphans.

Women Unjustly Treated

WHEN DEALERS SELL THEM COMMON AND DECEPTIVE DYES

There are thousands of women who have heard of the great saving that can be effected by home dyeing when the Diamond Dyes are used, and have decided to experiment for themselves.

Many of these women, thoughtlessly, will simply ask for a package of dye of the needed color when buying. This request will allow the wary dealer to foist on the unsuspecting customer some imitation or soap grease dye, worthless as coloring agents, but on which they realize a large profit.

Dealers who do this kind of business are treating and serving their customers unjustly. The dealer knows well that the Diamond Dyes are necessary for his customer to achieve success in her new work.

The Diamond Dyes are the only dyes that reputable dealers handle and sell. The wise merchant keeps a full stock of Diamond Dyes, because the daily demand is so great for these guaranteed and world-famed coloring agents.

The woman who uses Diamond Dyes for her first dyeing operation will never use other makes. Bright, strong, clear, lasting and fashionable colors are obtained only from the Diamond Dyes.

The Dewey Cocktail

New York Sun.

The Dewey cocktails, which are now served in Tenderloin cafes are picturesque in appearance and, according to experts who have investigated them as deadly in effect as the guns of the Admiral from whom they got their name. Patriotism runs high in the Tenderloin however, and the men who crook their elbows in its cafes are willing to make sacrifices to keep it running. The Dewey cocktail is now pushing the Martini and Manhattan hard for popular favor despite the fact that two of them in succession are warranted to make the drinker willing to change places with Spain's fleet at Manila, and, if followed by a third, his condition is likely to be about as animated as was the mule at Matanzas after the bombardment. Several bartenders are now claiming the exclusive credit of inventing this cocktail. The ingredients may vary in different cafes but the color effect, red, white and blue, is the same in each. One expert mixer of drinks said that he obtained his color by using raspberry juice, maraschino and creme yvette, and that he gave body to it with stronger liquors. One Dewey cocktail will make a rampant patriot out of a peace-at-any-price citizen.

Luxurious Traveling.

The height of luxurious traveling has been reached by the czar and czarina. The empress' private car is upholstered in pale blue satin. The electric lamps are all in the form of lilies, and it contains writing and tea tables made of mother of pearl. The nursery is the next apartment, and is as comfortable and handsome as the same rooms in any of the czar's palaces. There are dining rooms and drawing rooms and several sleeping apartments. In fact, this train is a miniature palace. The wheels are covered with india rubber tires.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Compressed Flour.

The British admiralty and the war department are testing, under various climatic conditions, the new method for preserving flour. One objection to the establishment of national granaries has been the difficulty of storing grain for any length of time. The grain germinates and is ruined, and to keep large quantities in sound condition has been pronounced impracticable. Experiments are being made with a system of compression into bricks by hydraulic pressure. The trials show that the flour so treated is not affected by damp, even under unfavorable conditions, and is free from mold. The compression destroys all forms of larval life and the flour is thus rendered safe from the attacks of the insects. The saving in storage is enormous, as the cubic space occupied by 100 pounds of loose flour will hold more than 300 pounds of the compressed article.—Scientific American.

High Flown.

Mrs. Minnie E. Leo says: "In a Paris cafe I asked the maid whether she did not think the name on the menu, 'demi tasse cafe au lait frappe a la glace,' was very inflated for such a small cup of cold coffee and milk. 'Yes, madame,' she replied, 'it occupies the mind as well as the stomach.'"

TIMES BOOKSTORE

MARKET BLOCK, PETERBOROUGH

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

An Interesting Lecture

Rev. P. K. Dayfoot, of Port Hope, delivered a very interesting and instructive lecture in the Murray street Baptist church last night. "Young People at Work," was the subject, and the able manner in which it was handled greatly pleased the large audience present.

Sporting Notes

The senior and junior lacrosse teams had a splendid practice last night in the P.A.A.A. grounds. There was quite a crowd of interested spectators. The match with Orillia on Thursday will be one of the best of the season. Orillia has a very strong team this season and the Peterboroughs will have to work hard to win.

The Caterpillar Plague

The caterpillar plague is bad enough in town, but people who drive along the country roads state that in many places it threatens to be even more serious than in the towns. The trees along the gravel road between here and Springfield are terribly infested with the pest, the wild cherry trees being literally covered with them.

For Sale or To Rent.

That valuable property situated on the corner of Bethune and Edinburgh streets, for sale or to rent. Parties intending to purchase or rent a handsome and commodious residence should not fail to inspect this place. The house is a four storey brick, 32 x 42, fitted up in modern style, with every convenience, such as city water, bath room, electric light, first class outbuildings, including stable for three horses, driving shed for six rigs, ice house, etc. There is a fine lawn and vegetable garden attached to the house, also a number of fruit trees and shrubbery. The above property will be sold cheap or leased for a term of years. For further particulars apply on the premises to J. R. Donell.

The greater includes the less. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, and may be depended upon to cure boils and pimples.

Fancy Belts' all kinds, colors and sizes. Prices ranging from 15 cents up, at Miss Melville's Hunter-st., town.

Railway Notes

The little son of Mr. Wm. Thompson, section forman of the C.P.R. at Kaladar, caught his hand in a derrick the other day and was severely injured. Three fingers had to be amputated.

The Ingenious Small Boy

Many ingenious minors have found a method to evade the cigarette law referring to minors. Instead of buying the cigarettes, they secure the tobacco and paper and roll them themselves. The law does not refer to this part of cigarette making. If there is any loop hole in the law the cigarette fiend will find it.

How to Cure all Skin Diseases

Simply apply "Swayne's Ointment." No internal medicine required. Cures tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the face, hands, nose, &c, leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for Swayne's Ointment. Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Avoid imitations.

Police Court

Jos. Aziz, an Armenian, charged a local tobacconist with assault, in the police court yesterday morning. The charge was dismissed.

The Chief had a citizen in court yesterday morning charged with neglecting to send his children to school. The prisoner was discharged with a warning.

A case of non-support, which was to have come up, was withdrawn.

Yesterday's Ball Games

Yesterday was Decoration Day across the border and double headers were played in the Eastern League.

At Buffalo Toronto was defeated by 6 to 5.

Williams pitched for Toronto.

The score was:

		R.	H.	E.
Toronto	...000140000—	5	12	2
Buffalo	......201200100—	6	15	3

The other scores were:

Montreal, 3 runs, 5 hits, 2 errors; Rochester, 8 runs, 8 hits, 4 errors.

Springfield, 1 run, 8 hits, 2 errors; Syracuse, 4 runs, 10 hits, 1 error.

Providence, 10 runs, 11 hits, 2 errors; Wilkesbarre, 4 runs, 6 hits, 1 error.

Bay of Quinte Conference

The Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist church will hold its session this week in the Cambridge street church, Lindsay. The stationing committee met yesterday to prepare the first list of stations, which will probably take them two days. To-morrow morning the ministerial part of the Conference will meet, to examine reports on ministerial character, on the standing of probationers for the ministry, and determine what shall be done with those who are candidates for work in the church. The whole conference will meet on Thursday and continue its meetings daily, until the conference business is transacted. The conference will probably end on the Wednesday following. Those wishing to visit the Conference will find Friday probably the most interesting day, as in the evening the young men who have finished their probation will be received into full connection with the conference. On Sunday morning they will be ordained.

Little Local Lines

—Bread is up to 16 cents in Lindsay.

—Mr. Myles Henry has three small imported Irish foxes in the window of his store.

—The stationery and fancy goods stores have decided to close at 7 p.m. during June, July and August.

—Watch for the "Omemee Mention," which will "mirror" its business interests. Everybody catch the same reflection.

—The secretary of the Wheelmen's Meet Committee is getting letters asking that board and lodging be reserved for visitors in private families and boarding houses.

—Mr. C. W. Turner, Campbellford, offers to pay the entire cost of train service, steamer, etc., for the teachers and scholars of the Methodist Sunday school there, numbering 350 or 400 persons, for their annual outing to any point on Rice Lake or the Bay of Quinte, Glenora or Lake on the Mountain, that is choice of the school.

—Sunday afternoon as Mr. A. E. Mosley was turning west on McDonel street from George the block crossing suddenly gave away beneath his horse's feet, throwing the animal to the ground, and skinning its legs badly, also breaking a shaft and portions of the harness. The crossing had been undermined when the sewer had been excavated, and as the blocks were never packed afterwards they had no support when the earth settled down beneath them and suddenly gave way as stated.

A Blasting Accident

Mr. John Pillar had a very narrow escape from death while drilling a huge boulder in the Nicholls' Park yesterday morning. It appears that he and others had drilled and inserted a heavy charge of blasting powder in the boulder in question on Saturday but that when the light was applied to the fuse no proper explosion took place and the work was discontinued. Yesterday morning drilling was again resumed on the boulder by Mr. Pillar and Mr. A. Furber. Shortly after work was begun, Mr. Furber retired, leaving Mr. Pillar to continue the work. Suddenly there was a tremendous explosion, the charge that failed to explode on Saturday being evidently intact, and set off by the action of the drill. Mr. Pillar was knocked insensible, but fortunately the force of the explosion was on the side opposite to where he stood, the portion of the boulder on his side being intact. The opposite side of the boulder, or the side where Mr. Furber had been standing, was blown into fragments, the drill bar and hammer were found fifty yards away, and the deep impression made in the soil showed that they must have been driven a great height. Mr. Edward Courtney, who was passing, heard the noise of the explosion and saw the man fall. He procured assistance at once, Mr. D. Kernegan's delivery waggon, which was opportunely passing, being willingly given for the purpose of removing Mr. Pillar to his home on Argyle street. He soon recovered consciousness and did not receive any injuries which will be serious or lasting—his hands were somewhat lacerated and his eyes made bloodshot, but nothing was suffered from which he will not in a few days, it is hoped, recover. If he had been standing on the opposite side of the boulder when the blast exploded he would have been blown into fragments. His escape was a very narrow one.

A Triumphal Entry

Victoria Warder: The Orillia Bicycle Club is arranging to join the Lindsay club at the latter town on June 30th, and on the morning of July 1st the combined clubs will wheel to the Peterborough meet, about thirty miles—and make a triumphal entry into the town. A strong contingent of Peterborough riders will go to meet the visitors and a brass band will herald their arrival.

THE DANGERS OF SPRING

Which arises from impurities in the blood and depleted condition of this vital fluid may be entirely averted by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine cures all spring humors, boils, eruptions and sores, and by enriching and vitalizing the blood, it overcomes that tired feeling and gives vitality and vigor.

HOOD'S PILLS cure nausea, sick headache, biliousness and all liver ills. Price 25 cents.

He Beats the World

From the London, Eng., Globe.

The war is not at all bad for trade. It has given a great impulse to the foreign manufacturers of cartoons representing Britain's attitude. But even in this the Anglo-Saxon beats the world, for what could be better than the following speech from The Toronto World of John Bull, as he watches the fight: "Sammy, my boy," says the anxious parent, with emotion, "I hoffers no opinions on the merits of this 'ere blooming row, but don't—don't go and disgrace yourself and hall the Hanglo-Saxon family by gettin' licked!"

Ennismore Pic-nic—June 8th

The annual picnic under the auspices of St. Martin's church, Ennismore will be held in Tara grove on Wednesday, June 8th—not the 15th as it appears on the posters, which was an error of the printers. There will be a splendid programme of athletic sports for valuable cash prizes. A prize of $1.00 for the best Irish jig. Grounds open at 9 o'clock; dinner will be served at 12 o'clock and supper at 5 o'clock. A fine dancing platform and excellent music provided. Admission to grounds, including dinner, 50c.; children under 13, 25c. Everybody invited to the best picnic in the district—Wednesday, June 8th.

Thanks Very Much

"Common Sense" writes to the Lindsay Warder in the following strain: "I notice that certain parties are making great efforts to launch a 1st of July celebration on the town. The idea at any other time would be a worthy one. We must remember, however, that Peterborough holds the big C. W. A. meet on that day. In face of that fact, knowing that the majority of our bicyclists (and they are many) together with very many other citizens and also hundreds of farmers from the district, will be in Peterborough on that day. I think that it is safe betting that a celebration in Lindsay on that day would be a failure. Out of justice to our sister town—and ourselves, let us wait till a more opportune time for holding a celebration."

Personal and Social

Mr. Bert Cox, of Toronto, is the guest of Mr. A. L. Davis.

Mr. W. Begley, of Lindsay, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. Chadwick, nee Miss M. Riley, of New York, is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. M. Riley, Stewart street.

Mrs. Frank Jones, of Kingston, is spending a few weeks in town, as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. D. W. Little.

Mr. John Kelly, of the Lindsay Warder, was in town yesterday on his way through to attend the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge, of which he is a life member.

Mr. W. J. Merrill, of Malita, Manitoba, Mrs. Ford, of Brandon, and Master Goldwin Smith, also of Brandon, have been guests at the residence of Mr. W. S. Merrill during the past week.

Millbrook Reporter: The Misses Morrow, of Peterborough, were the guests of Mrs. and Miss Needham on the 24th......Mr. Lumsden, of Keene, visited with Mr. T. H. Bryans during the 24th.

Mr. Will Potter, C.E., partner in the firm of A. Cunningham & Co., photographers, will leave this week, if business matters can be arranged, for Kingston, and from there intends going to the States.

Mr. T. Z. Webster, who has been a baker, confectioner and restauranter for the past ten years in Lakefield, has determined to place his business on a cash basis. He also wishes to do away with the delivery end of his trade, and as an inducement thereto he will sell the 14c loaf hereafter for 12c. The price, of course, is regulated by the present price of flour, and subject generally thereto; of course, if delivery is demanded the old price will have to be paid. All those who wish to call for their bread and pay cash can save 2c. a loaf.

The Watertown Trip

Nothing now stands in the way of the trip to Watertown, N.Y., outside the permission of the Governments of the Dominion and the United States to allow troops to land with arms. This permission will, as a matter of course, be granted. Last night over fifty men turned out for drill under Captain Miller, and the bugle band representatives turned out in full strength, and reported that they would be able to put at least twenty first-class men in working order for Independence Day. The following recruiting sergeants were authorized to secure enlistments: Color-Sergeants Edwards, Gaskins, Smith and Mathias; and Sergts. Layfield, Murphy, and Might. The next drill will be held

Badly Injured

Mrs. John Hill, nee Miss Martha Wolstenholme, formerly of town, met with a severe accident at Buffalo on the 24th inst. On the 18th inst. She wedded Mr. John Hill, of Moonstone, and the couple left for a wedding trip to the west and were in Buffalo on May 24th. While out wheeling with a party of friends on that day a collision occurred and Mrs. Hill was thrown from her wheel, her leg being broken in three places below the right knee by the fall. The accident occurred while the party was going down a hill about a mile out of the city. In consequence the wedding trip was interrupted and Mrs. Hill is still at Buffalo under medical attendance. Her husband is with her and it will be some time before she will be able to be moved.

Is He a Heretic?

Ever since the trouble in Victoria University, some time ago, when Prof. Workman was forced to withdraw, because some of his ideas were different from those of other leading members of the Methodist Church, there has been an agitation to have that decision reversed. In educational circles there has been a strong movement to have the learned professor back at work again. He is believed to be one of the ablest men in the Methodist Church, and his absence from active work is looked upon as weakening the Church. Some of those high up in the Church, and not so actively connected with educational affairs, are just as stuborn in resisting a reversal of the decision. They say that Dr. Workman has heretical ideas, and should not be in any position of authority. The question came up in the Victoria University Senate last week. Chancellor Burwash brought in a motion, advising the reinstatement of Dr. Workman. The reports of all these meetings are kept secret, but it is known that Dr. Burwash led the fight for Dr. Worman, and that Dr. Potts led the battle against him. The result was that Dr. Burwash's motion was defeated.

EXTREMLY HEAVY FIRING HEARD OFF CUBAN COAST

Heavy Firing Heard Off the Cuban Coast at Two O'clock Yesterday—Telegraphic Communication With Santiago Severed by the Cruiser St. Paul—No Immediate Movement of Troops at Yhor City

MORRO CASTLE FIRED ON

Cape Hayti, Hayti, May 31,—5.15 p. m.—Advices just received from Havana say that since 2 o'clock this afternoon the American fleet at Santiago de Cuba has been cannonading the batteries of Morro Castle, La Zocapa and Punta Gorda. At the same time it is added the American ships have been engaged with Spanish war ships. The firing was extremely heavy at 3.45 p. m. The cannonading became less heavy against the fortifications, but was more accentuated in the locality where the fleets were engaged. Morro Castle is at the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. La Zocapa also shown on the maps as La Zocapa Castle is a short distance inside the harbor entrance and Punta Gorda is situated on a point well inside the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, showing that the American fleet has entered the harbor, according to Havana advices via Cape Hayti and has engaged the Spanish fleet in these waters.

ORDERED TO LEAVE

London, May 31.—The owners of the British ship Genista which was loading at Manila have received a cable despatch dated May 24th, saing Rear Admiral Dewey has ordered the vessel to leave the port from which it is conjectured that the American Commander contemplated some action.

CABLE CUT

Key West, May 31.—News received here to-day from Santiago De Cuba says that the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul has cut the cable off that port.

SPANISH SHIP CAPTURED

Key West, May 31.—Another prize has been captured. She is the Spanish bark Maria Dolores, of Bilbao. She was overhauled by one of the American cruisers, six miles off Porto Rico. She was bround from Rio Janiero to San Juan De Porto Rico with coal, some cases, supposed to contain ammunition, were found under the coal.

NO IMMEDIATE MOVEMENT

Tampa, May 31.—There were no indications of an immediate movement of troops here to-day and orders for breaking camp are not expected until General Miles arrives. It is reported that orders have been issued to the four bitteries of heavy artillery at Yhor City to be ready to move at a moments notice, but nothing in the way of loading supplies on the transports was done to-day The report that heavy artillery is under orders rather lends color to the theory that Santiago De Cuba in which harbor the long sought for Spanish fleet is securely held by Schley's squadron is to be the objective point oft he expedition and that a regular seige is to be laid to the city. That the war department expects a protracted campaign is evident by the immense amount of commissary supplies that have been received here. Rations for an army of 70,000 men for three months are now stored in the Government's warehouses or wait unloading, while hundreds of carloads more are expected.

FRANCE STRICTLY NEUTRAL

Paris, May 31.—The Journal Des Debats to-day, commenting upon the commercial convention between France and the United States, says: "The war is undoubtedly causing much injury to our exporters, and our trade with the United States, if not entirely stopped, would certainly be materially diminished. The convention gives us advantages mainly for the future, which, we hope are near at hand. But at the same time it has special importance inasmuch as it proves Washington is aware that whatever may be the individual sympathies of many Frenchmen, France, as a country, is resolved to maintain strict neutrality.

"A RESURRECTION SHIP"

London, May 31.—A despatch to The Daily Chronicle from Barcelona, referring to the Spanish announcement of the formation of a third Spanish fleet, including the broad ship Numancia, under the heading "A Resurrection ship," her bulwarks battered, her anchors and chains thick with rust and her paint all gone. Apparently she does not carry a single gun. I am not sure whether she has engines. Beyond a few sentries she certainly has no crew. A small gang of men is hammering, swabbing and painting, and 50 marines from Carthagenia have been ordered here to do the work of patching up.

"Though official announcements say that the reserve fleet, including the Numancia, is to go to the Philippines, the 7,000 men who were to have gone with it, are now definitely countermanded. Beside the Numancia the armed cruiser Cardenal Cisneros and the cruiser Lepanto, now just out of the dock at Carthagena, with the Dona Maria de Molana, the Don Alvaro de Bazan and the Marques de la Vittoria will be included. The Peroz from Valencia has been ordered to Cadiz and will be transformed into an auxiliary cruiser. Similar orders are expected for the trans-Atlantic liner Jover Surra."

JOURNALISTS ARRESTED.

Madrid, May 31.—An official despatch from Havana says that two American correspondents from Key West named Widan and Robinson, probably Mr. Phil. Robinson, have been arrested near Matanzas.

Key West, May 31.—Messrs. Robinson and H. J. Whigham, British subjects, and well known newspaper correspondents, left Key West Thursday last on a steamer bound for the Cuban shore. On Saturday when some miles off shore at a convenient spot, they were lowered overboard in a small boat, rowing themselves ashore. With the aid of glasses it was seen from the steamer that they made a safe landing. Their intention was to get to Havana; but they expected some difficulty and possibly detention, until the real character of their undertaking was understood by the Spanish officials in Cuba. Mr. Robinson is an experienced English war correspondent and Mr. Whigham is the well known amateur golf player and author of "How to Play Golf."

THE ARMY CONTRACTOR

How They Get Rich with the Aid of Powerful Military Friends

By Delaying the Troops at Tampa—The Commissariat Department in Consequence Demand an Enquiry

Tampa, Fla., May 26.—A correspondent writes as follows: With Cervera and his Spanish warships apparently safe int he mine-planted harbor of Santiago de Cuba, with Commodore Schley steering an erratic course about the ocean in search of or to avoid adventures; with Commonodore Dewey, the hero of the campaign, lying helpless in Manila harbor; with a dozen transport vessels lying at the docks of Tampa and guarded by two gunboats and with twenty thousand troops lying here in idleness, the Administration will shortly have to admit that its hopes of a short and vigorous campaign are completely shattered. About the only people who are getting rich out of the war are the army contractors and influential military friends with a pull and a commission. In the corridors of the Tampa Bay. Hotel it has been freely hinted that certain prominent officers who are drawing big pay from the Government are also drawing big pay from army contractors. These hints have been repeated so broadly and so frequently, that members of the commissariat department have determined to ask for a commission of inquiry, which will probably be refused for fear of causing a big public scandal.

Major Miley is still, I find, performing the duties of press censor, and he has very materially lessened the work of the Western Union Telegraph office without interfering with the profits. When a correspondent hands in a couple of thousand words and the censor cuts it down to a couple of hundred, the newspaper man is the only sufferer, as the Government pays the company for every word the censor cuts out. One half of the New York World and Journal reporters have been recalled owing to the press censorship and the general dearth of news, and as a natural consequence Major Miley is not a favorite of theirs, although he certainly is a public necessity in Tampa. It is openly stated here by officers that it was the newspapers that caused the failure of the Gussie to land on the Cuban coast with supplies for the insurgents, they having published every movement, together with her date of sailing and other important information that kept the Spanish officers thoroughly posted. The Administration itself believes this story, and, acting on the experience, closed up the only telegraph office in Miami and established the press censor at Tampa.

The Bureau of Foreign Commerce of the State Department has issued advance sheets containing a large amount of information about Cuba which will be read with interest by those who have followed the present campaign. Cuba is 775 miles in length, 160 miles wide at her widest and 30 miles at her narrowest point. Although settled nearly two hundred years ago she has still over 13,000,000 acres of primeval forests. Her principal exports are, of course, sugar, tobacco and coffee. Of the first she has in a single year produced for export 1,000,000 tons. The tobacco crop on an average reaches 560,000 bales of 110 pounds each, nearly all of which is used in cigar and cigarette manufacture in Havana. In 1896 there were 186,914,000 cigars exported and about 80,000 of the inhabitants are engaged in the cultivation of the weed. Havana, the leading city in Cuba, has a population a little larger than Toronto, the last census placing it at 220,000, and from this place is exported tobacco, fruit, wax, honey, sugar, and molasses in great quantities. All kinds of bread stuffs are imported from the United States. There are two clearly defined seasons, the dry and the wet, the latter ranging from June to December, and September and October, being considered the hurricane months. Among other cities and harbors of importance on the island is Santiago de Cuba, where Cervera is now supposed to be bottled up, the oldest city in America, ofunded by Velasquez in 1514; Matanzas, sixty miles from Havana on the coast, where reconcentrados and insurgents have been mercilessly butchered; Cienfuegos, which is situated in the Bay of Jagua, six miles from the ocean; Cardenas, on the north coast and about 140 miles from Havana, with a population of 24,000. Cardenas is the gathering point of every fever and disease known to the Cubans, and to use a mild term, it is simply filthy, the inhabitants doing little or nothing in the way of sanitary measures; Trinidad de Cuba, which has not shown prominently in the war, is looked upon as the healthiest city of Cuba, being high up and built ont he apex of a vast hill sot hat the more it rains the cleaner the city becomes; the little island of Porto Rico contains not less than 300,000 negroes, with a total population of nearly 900,000. Then there is also San Juan, also a strategic point in the present campaign, with a population of 20,000 and fortifications that would surprise any modern beseiging party. The city is practically walled in with portcullis, moat, gates, battlements and all.

WILL NOT MOVE ON HAVANA.

Washington, May 31.—The President and Cabinet to-day practically decided not to move on Havana until the end of the rainy season. Havana is a pest hole and the American army would lose vastly more men from disease than from the enemy's bullets. The President and his advisers believe that Spain may be forced to surrender without sending a man to Havana.

NOT CONFIRMED.

Washington, May 31.—No advices of an engagement at Santiago have reached the Navy Department and officials discredit the reports.

DUFFERIN'S VIEW.

New York, May 31.—A special cable despatch to the World from London says:—The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, whose unique position and experience as a diplomat makes him the highest authority in such matters, said, touching an Anglo-American alliance: "I am sure there is no Englishman who does not earnestly desire the best possible understanding and close amity should exist between the United States and Great Britain, but the question of an alliance, using the term in its diplomatic and technical sense is one which involves various issues, which fort he moment it seems to me it would be premature to discuss."

CRUELTIES NOT HALF TOLD

A Newspaper Correspondent Interviews General Nunez

The Commander of the Cuban Contingent—Spanish Cruelties Have not been Half Described by the Newspapers

Tampa, May 26.—A correspondent says: The Cuban volunteers are housed in an old disused cigar factory in West Tampa. The building is a big barn-like structure of four stories, erected in a perfect desert. We had to wade for blocks through streets a foot deep with sand in the hot sun, before locating it. There was no sign of military occupation from the outside, but when we had climbed the broad stairs to the entrance and peeped within the doorway, we beheld an officer in a brown linen suit and a grey south hat armed extensively with a long sword, standing sternly at the inner passageway. He touched his hat respectfully and pointed to a room on the left of the entrance. This was the general's office, and the general himself rose from his rude chair on the far side of a large table to bid us welcome. The aides likewise ceased their writing, and stood beside their seats, looking from one to the other as if uncertain how to act. Everybody was made comfortable, however, by one of the staff coming forward and asking us for our cards. He then introduced us to Gen. Nunez and his aides four in number.

THE CUBAN COMMAANDER.

General Nunez, the commander of the Cuban volunteers is a man of fifty or more, tall and slim. A very black beard straggles over and partly conceals a pleasant face of marked Cuban features. He was attired in civilians' clothes, as very few of the volunteers have uniforms as yet. We were not able to have much conversation with the general, because, sad to say, he did not understand English, nor we Spanish. But with the aid of an interpreter, we were informed that the Cuban volunteers expected to leave for their native shores early next week; that there were three hundred and sixty in the party to leave, and that already four hundred have been sent from Tampa.

The general's office furniture consisted of a plain wooden table and six rudely constructed chairs covered with goat skins. A cupboard on which a collection of swords, rifles and pistols were arranged, stood on the uncarpeted floor near the doorway.

In one corner of the room some regulation Spanish cavalry carbines of the "Mauser" pattern leaned leaned against the pine walls. These guns, both carbines and rifles, were purchased by the insurgents some time ago and are considered equal to, if not better than the United States regular army rifle. The caliber of the Spanish gun is only thirty-two.

THE GUNS SUPPLIED.

The Cubans have but a few of these, and the United States authorities, who are now supplying Gomez's army with equipment, are giving them the "Springfields," which carry only a single shot. The regulation Spanish rifle carries five cartridges in the magazines and one in the locker. It has great penetrating powers, and the sighting apparatus is most reliable.

After a brief and unsatisfactory conversation with the general, Lieut. Fritot, one of his staff, informed us that we might go through the men's quarters if we so desired. So we passed out out of the commander's room into the apartment in which the officer of the day had hurriedly collected his guard for our inspection. They were ranged up in two lines, eight privates in each lines. Little man and slight boys, with narrow shoulders and of different heights with olive complexions small eyes and [illegible] mustaches, and all "fearfully and wonderfully" attired.

In a little room beyond where the guard was stationed, I noticed a dark complexioned young man of about eighteen years in a grey cadet uniform, and on asking, learned that he was Antonio Gomez, the second eldest son of General Gomez of the Cuban revolutionists.

Young Gomez has been attending school at Jacksonville, and came to Tampa about two weeks ago with the intention of accompanying the next expedition to Cuba.

NOT HALF DESCRIBED.

"In the course of a conversation he told me in very broken Cuban-English of the sad death of his brother Frank, who perished by the sword of the Spaniards along with General Maceo and the terrible sufferings the Cubans had gone through in the past three years. He said just what most Cubans will tell you; that though the papers have printed many stories of the horrible sufferings of the natives, they have not in any measure fully described the terrible cruelties of Spanish cruelty. He said in conclusion 'The hour for our return to our native shores, and the time when I may avenge my brother's death, is close at hand.'"

After showing us the guard room on the first floor we were escorted upstairs by the officer in charge, who, by the way, had his title, "Jefe de dia" worked in many much contorted letters on a red sash, which was passed over his shoulder and across his breast. At the top of the stairs we were met by Captain Agrimortie, who then took us in charge. The captain is a very fine looking young man, who was raised in New York. He went some three years ago to assist his fellow countrymen in their struggle for liberty, and was captured by the Spaniards near Havana and spent two years in the cells of Morro Castle. His father has lived in Toronto some years now, and is still here.

The second and third floors of the volunteers' building are devoted entirely to the men. They sleep in hammocks irregularly suspended from the ceilings and between the posts. These hammocks, by the way, are made of crude canvas and put together by the volunteers on the spot; they will be used exclusively in the coming campaign.

FINE FELLOWS.

The officers are a very fine looking lot of men and apparently familiar with their duties. They have their meals alone in a little room on the first floor, but sleep in the men's quarters.

The kitchen is situated in the sandy waste adjoining the establishment. The men are marched up here in single file, much the same as the United States troops and are given their daily allowance of food, which is supplied them by Uncle Sam and is the same as that which the regulars receive.

The Cuban volunteers are doing their best to get the few men who have volunteered for service familiar with the American army drill and regulations so that should they be attached to the regular army, they will be able to make a respectable showing.

The fact that they are "positively amateurs at modern soldiering" gives their little camp and their personal actions a "playing at soldiers" appearance, which is heightened in the memory by a fresh vision of the regular army camps.

POISONING THE FLEET.

Hong Kong, May 31.—The Spanish residents of Manila have been on the verge of a violent outbreak against all foreigners of the city. They are especially incensed at Englishmen. The Queen's portraits are spat upon, torn down and trampled upon. Hurried preparations are being made to transfer all foreigners to Cavite, where they will be under the protection of Dewey's fleet. It is expected they will be moved this week. There is much sickness aboard the cruiser Boston. It is stated that the illness is due to eating fish poisoned by the Spanish fishermen. A week ago the Spaniards were observed violating the pledge not to strengthen the fortifications, and Dewey fired a shot over their heads as a warning and the work stopped.

FREE INFORMATION

All the troops of the Yankees are in the far western part of the country, manyt housand miles from the Atlantic coast. There are only a few thousand men all told, and they are all ill paid and ill fed, and not willing to fight. To utilize this force it will be necessary to bring it to the eastern seaboard. There is but one railway by which it can be transported, and that is an old and poorly construtced affair. At one place this railroad passes over Niagara Falls, a cataract 1,00 0 feet high, near Labrador. At last accounts the bridge at this place was in a very dangerous condition. It need surprise no one to hear that some agency had made it still more so.—El Heraldo de Madrid.

Our esteemed Madrid contemporary has got matters somewhat mixed. Niagara Falls is not situated near Labrador. On the contrary, they are situated in the broad valley where Lake Ontario flows into the Otonabee River. The falls are not 1,000 feet high, they run up but 500 yards only. It is not true that there is only one railroad in the United States. There are two—the New York Central, and the Peterborough Street railway, while the Federal authorities at Tacoma are seriously consideringt he advisability of building a railway between Point Edward and Port Gratiot in order to connect the PState of Port Huron with the Island of Michigan. When this is completed it will be possible to travel in a vestibule train from New York to the Hudson River in fourteen hours, without changing cars at Chicago, as at present. Moreover, it is not true that there is a bridge at Niagara Falls. is a rope over which an ecrobat hired byt he government carries people across on his back, starting at Port Dalhousie, Ohio, and landing at Kalamazoo, Wisconsin. Our esteemed Spanish contemporary has evidently not learned the lesson that a newspaper that undertakes to instruct its readers should know what it is talking about.

The next report will probably show that Spain's fleet has gone inland.

Independent: Mr. White-Fraser, the electrical engineer, of Toronto, spent Wednesday evening with the gentlemen who are talking up some plan of connecting the outside world with Bobcaygeon by electric railway. How the dickens the world manages to get along as it does, isolated as it is from Bobcaygeon, is a mystery that even Mr. White-Fraser failed to satisfactorily explain.

The preparations to send 15,000 American troops from San Francisco to the Philippine Islands are no child's play. From San Francisco to Manila is at least four weeks' steaming under favorable conditions, and the provisions that a man will eat in four weeks take up rather more space than the man. Then there are weapons, field artillery, as well as muskets, horses and their subsistence, tents, bedding, hospital stores, and miscellaneous equipments. When Great Britain sent 8,000 men to the Zulu war in 1879, their transport to South Africa required 53,000 tons of shipping. This is an average of more than three tons of shipping to a man. If this proportion shall prove necessary on the Manila voyage, to move 15,000 men will take close on 150,000 tons. As few Pacific steamships are much over 3,000 tons, thirty or more of the big vessels must be got together and fitted for the voyage.

Tennyson's Praise of Burns.

Mr. Aubrey de Vere contributes to the biography of Lord Tennyson a report of some conversations with the poet, in which was disclosed his singular freedom from the spirit of rivalry.

In these conversations he never uttered a word that was disparaging or tainted with the spirit of rivalship. The only poet I heard him criticise roughly or unfairly was himself. "Compare," he once said to me, "compare the heavy handling of my workmanship with the exquisite lightness of touch in Keats."

Another time he read aloud a song by one of the chivalrous poets of Charles I's time, perhaps Lovelace's "Althea," which Wordsworth also used to croon in the woods, and said, "There, I would give all my poetry to have made one song like that."

Not less ardent was his enthusiasm for Burns. And here an incident with no small significance recurs to me. "Read the exquisite songs of Burns!" he exclaimed. "In shape each of them has the perfection of the berry, in light the radiance of the dewdrop. You forget for its sake those stupid things, his serious pieces."

The same day I met Wordsworth and named Burns to him. Wordsworth praised him even more vehemently than Tennyson had done as the great genius who had brought poetry back to nature, but ended: "Of course I refer to his serious efforts, such as the 'Cotter's Saturday Night.' Those foolish little amatory songs of his one has to forget."

I told the tale to Henry Taylor that evening, and his answer was, "Burns' exquisite songs and Burns' serious efforts are to me alike tedious and disagreeable reading."

So much for the infallibility of poets in their own art.

Toads In Rock.

Stories of toads inclosed in solid rock are not at all uncommon, but of all the reported cases not one has ever been substantiated. When investigated, it is found that they are made up stories or that there was no toad or no rock or that there was a way for him to get in or get out. People who find toads in solid rock must understand that it is an important matter. If ever there is one single case verified beyond dispute of finding a toad or any other living animal in an absolutely solid rock, the science of geology will be swept from the realms of belief. The doctrine of evolution will crumble to airy nothings. Half of the exact sciences will have to be reorganized on an entirely new basis. Accumulated human knowledge will have to be revised from the bottom, and most of what is so called rejected entirely. So the man that finds the toad had better be pretty sure that it is a toad in a solid rock, and while he is about it he had better have witnesses and photographs and everything possible to be had in proof of his assertion, for it will be doubted. If he proves his case, no man ever known will have such enduring fame. Just find the toad, gentlemen.—Milwaukee Journal.

The Black Cap.

There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the coif—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their wigs when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coif," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the coif, as Lord Campbell repeatedly states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to veil the coif on the only occasion when the coif was required to be hidden. By the ancient privileges of the sergeants the coif was not to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be so displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule seems always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death.

"The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of sorrow, by the black sentence cap. This cornered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, as it is sometimes termed, is a piece of limp black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Analogous Reasoning.

A poet proffering his work to an editor said:

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a smallish coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lay" Plates.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic plates for the "lay service." The scheme of providing does not permit the guest to be without a plate before him, and between the courses plates are laid at each cover, one laid down while the used plate is removed. Cauldon Copeland and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates."—Philadelphia Press.

Free Medical Advice

You need a doctor many times when you don't call one. You suffer pain in fifty forms and yet won't call the doctor, because you hope that the pain "will go away after a while." And, too, you know by experience, that that first visit of the doctor is generally followed by many others, with the inevitable consequence of a big bill "for professional services." You don't know what to do for yourself or what to take.

But suppose that you could get free, absolutely free, the advice of one of the most in the United States? You can. The physician is right here. He has an office in the building, he has a staff of correspondents to assist him, and anyone and everyone, who needs medical advice is invited to write to him. If it's baby's health or mother's or the health of any member of the family you may write about it, sure of a careful reading of your letter, sure of a conscientious diagnosis of your case,

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

Washington, May 30.—The military invasion of Cuba has begun, according to the orders of the War Department issued at an early hour this morning. The troops that have been gathered at the gulf ports begun to break camp and march aboard transports waiting to carry them to the enemy's territory. About 25 of these transports—the biggest and fastest that could be obtained suitable for the purpose—had been gathered, ready to receive the troops. They will accommodate about 30,000 men for a short voyage like that from one of the gulf ports to Cbua. It is possible with safety and comfort to carry a much larger number of men aboard ship than would be admissable in the case of a cruise to the Philippines for instance. How many troops started this morning; where they took ship; and to where they are bound, are questions which the directing spirits of the campaign refuse positively to answer. They have no desire that the Spanish should have opportnuity afforded them to gather forces to attack the United States soldiers as they land. Therefore, nothing of details of this first movement can be learned. There is a suspicion that the start will be made from Tampa and Mobile and it is probable that in such case the fleets of transports will converge at Key West to pass under the convoys of warships which Admiral Sampson has provided to insure the safety of troops during the passage across the Florida Straits to ensure them against attack at the hands of some stray Spanish cruiser or gunboat. It is probable that there will be no less than four separate military expeditions and that these will be landed at four different points. Whether Porto Rico is one of these points or not cannot be learned. Before the entire force which it is proposed to use in Cuba can be landed the transports must make four separate voyages across the Straits. Arrangements have been made to utilize the services of the insurgents to the largest possible extent. The Government already has sent expeditions to a large number of points on the Island and landed arms for insurgents. Most of parties succeeded perfectly in their object and it was said at the War Department to-day that a sufficient number of insurgents have been armed to constitute a very effective support for the troops as they land. A war conference was held at the White House at 3 o'clock this afternoon, between the President and his two war secretaries, Alger and Long, and Major-General Miles, in command of the army. Vice-President Hobart was present a part of the time and Secretary Day, who has just returned to Washington, also dropped in during conference. After entire situation, naval and military, had been gone over, Secretary Long retired and Secretary Alger and General Miles remained to discuss more in detail the military operations now about to be put into execution as a result of the definite official information that the Spanish squadron is securely held within Santiago harbor. Naturally these who participated in the conference observed strict silence regarding it. It was stated, however, in an authoritative quarter that the discussion had covered the entire range of naval and military operations with particular views to the active movements abouts to begin General Miles brought him a memorandum showing the exact disposition of military forces now concentrated at various points throughout country with number of men at Tampa and southern points of embarkation. He also made known that at one o'clock this morning, immediately following the receipt of definite information of presence of Spanish squadron at Santiago, he had gone to the War Department had issued telegraphic orders putting troops in motion and thus starting the forward movement of military aim of service. Further than this, those attending the conference would not discuss their plans.

A BATTLE AT ONCE.

It has been thought that the campaign against Admiral Cervera might now be ended by demolishing the forts at the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, blockading the channel and isolating the Spanish fleet until the other problems of the war are worked out. This, however, is not in line with American policy and, simply accepting the view of the situation taken by the naval experts here, Admiral Cervera will have to accept battle at once. It is confidently expected that a hard blow will be struck within three or four days and that the result will be known to the world at large at the expiration of that time. It has not been disclosed whether Commodore Schley is to be reinforced, but it would not be surprising if some additional ships were sent to him.

SPANIARDS WANT PEACE.

Madrid, May 30.—The papers continue to talk of the possibilities of peace. El Globo publishes an article, supposed to be inspired by Senor Moret, the late Minister of the Colonies, advocating peace, which has attracted great attention; but the discussion shows as yet no tangible results.

A SECOND EXPEDITION.

It is now generally known that the Florida, which left here last Monday had on board a small party of American regulars, some Cuban volunteers, and a quantity of arms and ammunition and supplies for Gomez's army, which were brought back by the Gussie last week.

The failure of the Gussie to make a landing was put down to the fact that the newspapers published a report of the contemplated expedition before it was fully organized, and as a result the Spaniards in Cuba got hold of the information and intercepted Gomez's men on their way to the coast to meet the Americans.

The army officers this time exerted themselves to prevent any report of the Florida's departure being published by establishing a strict censorship. They succeeded in their efforts to a great extent, but a journalist representing an Iowa press association, managed to get the news of the expedition and abled his paper from Key West.

The report was copied extensively throughout the country, much to the censor's disgust. Should there be any failure in the Florida's trip, the Iowa press representative's position will be an uncomfortable one.

THE COLUMBIA IN COLLISION.

Washington, May 30.—Secretary Long to-day received a despatch from Admiral Bunce, commander of the New York navy yard, stating that the cruiser Columbia had been in collision at sea and that one of her after compartments had a lot of water in it. The admiral said he had intended to dock her immediately in order that an examination might determine the extent of the repairs necessary. It is believed at the department that the nature of the collision makes it probable that the repairs will not have to be very expensive nor time-consuming.

HAD NO ALTERNATIVE.

That he would court a fight in the open sea is an idea which has never been entertained in American naval circles, although his ships, without exception, have high qualities, owing to their great speed, for such a contest. On the other hand, it was believed the Spanish Admiral would attempt to run into San Juan de Porto Rico, but the fact of the recent bombardment of the forts of that harbor, coupled with the great possibility that Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet would be met if he attempted to enter that harbor, left the Spanish admiral only one alternative, and he adopted it by going to Santiago de Cuba, where, it is presumed, he has been able to coal, clean and repair, and is in a position to accept either the conditions imposed by the blockade or the issue of a fight in the inner harbor, after the American fleet has forced the passage.

THE HARVARD COALS.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 30. — The Harvard has finished coaling. Owing to the friendly feelings for America here, and because the coaling began before the British naval engineers had fixed the amount she could take at 750 tons, it is believed by the townspeople that she filled her bunkers.

But such is not the case. She has enough now, with what she had, to last six days at half speed.

She sails this morning for a destination not disclosed. The strange vessel, seemingly a warship, sighted off Port Royal last night, is declared by the gossips to be a Spanish cruiser waiting for the Harvard.

For that tired feeling you must enrich and purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine you need.

250,000 CURED.

Thousands of young men are made nervous wrecks, unfit for business, social pleasures or home duties by evil habits in youth, later excesses, or private diseases. W. U. Andrews, of Akron, O., says: "I read this paper and have seen many reports of remarkable cures made by Drs. Kennedy and Kergan. I decided to treat with them. Indiscretion was the cause of my trouble. I was weak and nervous; no ambition; back weak. pimples on the face; thin and haggard; eyes sunken and cheeks hollow; dreams and drains at night; memory poor; varicocele and weak parts; irritable; sinking spells; specks before the eyes; lack of confidence; no energy; and many other complaints. I had tried fourteen doctors, bought four electric belts took scores of bottles of patent medicines—all failed. I tried the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, and it cured me. I am a Man Again. I have gained twenty-six pounds and am strong mentally, physically and sexually. It is a wonderful treatment."

Blood Disease—with the worst symptoms: Ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, blotches, eruptions, hair fallen out, bone pains, eyes red, stomach troubles, sore throat, etc., positively cured forever. You dare not marry until cured. Cures guaranteed or no pay.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

after seven years suffering.
GENTLEMEN: Having suffered with Rheumatism for the past seven years was recommended to use Walton's Rheumatic Pills, which gave me immediate relief, and am as well as ever and can follow my trade again. I have tried all different remedies that came to my hearing without any relief, and been to the mineral springs year after year, but with no such results as from Walton's Rheumatic Pills.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

Croft regarded Dutton in amazement.

"I had no idea that you had so much skill as a pleader," he said. "Why you make me feel like a deeply injured man How shall we account for the previous robberies?".

"By stating that you never had anything to do with any save the robbery of Amos Ballston's house."

Croft reflected.

"Well, Mr. Dutton," he said at length "if you can do anything go ahead and do it."

"And you will promise that you will use your influence with Stella to induce her to listen to my suit?"

Croft grinned. His "influence!"

"Yes, yes, I'll promise that."

Att his moment the so-called jailor trotted listlessly in.

"Well, Dutton," he said, with that healthy disregard of all formality and politeness so eminently characteristic of the country lout.

"Well, Sol, how are you?" replied Dutton, who did not enjoy such familiarity, but was too wise to resent it.

"Pretty well. Awful sorry to lose the guv'nor to-day."

"Yes; but I trust we shall soon see Mr. Croft back in Brandon, engaged in his business."

Sol Pears opened his faded eyes in amazement.

"Dutton, what air you givin' us?"

"Nothing much. Well Mr. Croft, I shall say good-bye. I shall do my best and you will remember your promise."

"Certainly. If you are successful, count upon me in the other matter."

The two men parted. Croft spent the time during his journey to Joliet in reflecting upon Dutton's new project. He was somewhat doubtful as to the result of the petition.

Such matters are so very uncertain. If public opinion was strong against him, there could be no hope of the clemency of the governor being exerted in his favor.

"It is a toss-up,' he muttered to himself, as the train rushed on, bearing him to the State prison.

"What's a toss-up?" growled Rusty Rube, who, of course, was one of his companions.

"Whether we'll ever live to travel this road again. I was thinking aloud Rube.'

"A bad habit."

"Yes, but one a man who lives alone much is apt to acquire."

"We'll both have a good chance to practice it for the next few stretches."

"Yes,t here isn't much doubt about that."

"Leave me alone. I haven't forgot some of my old games.'

"Well, count me in."

"See! Am I a cove to go back on a pal and furgit old times?"

"No Rube, you are not."

"Well,t hen, what reason have you got for makin' observations about countin' in?"

Rube was dejected and gloomy and Croft was not sorry when one of the officers took a seat so near his prisoners that all conversation came to an end.

So Alwin Croft, for the second time in his life arrived at the State prison and donned the striped dress which is the badge of shame and disgraceful servitude.

CHAPTER XIII.

Edith was soon thoroughly familiar with all the duties of her new home, and performed them so faithfully that Mrs. Rush soon regarded her as the best parlor maid Mrs. Derwent ever employed. So pleased was the grand old lady that she often invited the new-comer to sit with her in the evening, where, over their fancy work they enjoyed many pleasant chats.

Edith heard the histories of both Walter and Arthur Derwent, from their baby days up to date. She knew all about Walter's hasty temper, and stern sense of honor.

Arthur had no faults. He was simply perfect, and therefore more easily described.

The next person Mrs. Rush spoke of was, "My nephew, Captain Rush."

This hero, Edith soon learned, was the only son of her husband's brother, who had been lost at sea.

"I was nearly crazy when Frank would insist on being a sailor," said the old lady, "but the dear boy has promised me faithfully that he will never venture upon the salt ocean, and somehow that keeps my courage up. I've got more confidence in the lakes than that nasty, treacherous sea, that swallowed up his poor father. I went to Newport once with Mrs. Derwent and I just hated the place. The sea they brag so much about, kept coming up and going down again in such a senseless manner, and leaving all kinds of nasty, slimy dirt and things on the nice, clean sand. Then the taste of it! Mrs. Derwent just made me go in bathing once, and I got my mouth full of the water, and I could not help thinking that the taste was the taste of the dye coming out of the dead sailors' jackets."

Edith did not laugh, which proved how high in her estimation was this good lady.

"Frank is captain of one of the lake "boats, and I hope you will see him soon. He is a dear fellow. I've got another nephew. He is my sister's son, and he drives a milk wagon. He is so full of fun and nonsense that I don't believe he will ever settle down. He is coming to see me to-night."

These confidential chats went far to make Edith feel at home; the old lady reminded her of her mother.

Edith took very little interest in the milkman before she saw him, but the interest grew stronger after their first interview.

Harry Launders was a good-natured giant, whose frank blue eyes, and merry laugh won friendship from nearly every one who met him.

"Well, Miss Sloan," he said, "I am glad you are a girl who sits home with auntie once in a while. Most girls are crazy to go out every chance they get."

"I have no friends here, so I have nowhere to go.'

"You will soon have plenty if you want them,' said Harry, gallantly.

"Edith is a steady, sensible girl," the old lady said, "she is none of your fly-aways. It is just distressing the number of parlor-maids we have had in this house who go and get married to all sorts of wild, trifling young men, who are no more fit to marry than the monkeys in the park."

"Now, auntie, you are too severe on the young men,' cried Harry, his blue eyes dancing with suppressed amusement.

"Not a bit. A man has no right to marry till he owns a home.'

"Oh! when will I marry then?"

Harry put on such a face of comic anguish that Edith burst out laughing.

"When you have a nice house built on your lot at Hyde Park and a good milk route of your own," said the old lady, promptly.

"Now, auntie, you know that will be a long time. May I get engaged?"

"Yes, if you find any one goose enough to have you," Mrs. Rush replied, tartly.

Harry looked imploringly at Edith, who joined in the fun with much jest.

"Now, Miss Edith, you see how my auntie delights to belittle me. Do you suppose any young lady will ever feel any confidence in me if auntie gets hold of her."

"I am afraid not,' said Edith, merrily.

"Oh, I don't want to belittle you," Mrs. Rush hastened to say, contritely; "you are a good, steady boy at your work, but you are too fond of fun. I know you have no bad habits. He neither smokes nor drinks, Edith—not even a glass of beer. So many milkmen drink like fishes, and flirt with every girl who hands out a pitcher and milk ticket. Harry does not do that."

"So much to the good, you see, Edith. May I call you Edith?"

"Yes."

"Well, I shall live in hope of finding a goose; then I can become engaged, and, in time, even a married man."

He looked at Edtih so admiringly that she blushed, "celestial rosy red—love's proper hue."

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

An Incident In Brescia During the Italian Revolution of 1848.

The Count de Hubner tells in his "Memoirs" a thrilling story of an adventure in the Italian city of Brescia during the days of the revolution of 1848. When the trouble began in the streets, he contrived to get into a house, taking with him two or three other persons, including the wife of a minor official who had intrusted the lady for awhile to the count's care, but who was to have certain news of her as soon as possible.

The firing grew heavier, and the rebels soon had possession of almost every house in the street.

On the 19th of March, Count de Hubner decided that he must do something toward bettering his position in case of an assault, and he forced his only remaining servant to make a dash across the street to the palace where the Austrian general, Rath, was quartered, two blocks away and on the other side. The man was merely to let the general know that De Hubner himself was coming, and to ask that the gates be held ready for him.

"Myself, prudence and my honor had a long and heated argument," says Count de Hubner. "Finally I pulled myself together. I had to let Prince Metternich know about myself, to make a last report, and to keep my word about poor Mme. M. I undid the door, drew a long breath, and plunged down the street.

"The bullets flew all around me, spattering leaden showers from the stone pavement. As I arrived at the gates of the palace, they swung i[illegible]d, and in a second I was inside, u[illegible]hed. But only half my journey was done; I had still to go back again.

"A letter—my last report—was soon completed for Metternich and my message to the husband of Mme. M. was given. I had to return.

"Again the gates were opened and I bounded forth. A veritable fusillade followed. From every window and house top came [illegible] spurts of white smoke, and I tried to dodge 40 bullets at once. In a minute I had reached my own door, and as I did so I turned to look back.

"Another man left the palace gates at full speed, but before he had half crossed the street a puff of smoke shot out of a window, and he fell flat and was instantly lying like a log across the gutter. The fire stopped at once—what use would even an Italian see in shooting a dead man?

"But on the second that all became quiet to my great astonishment I saw this 'dead man' rise to his legs like a cat and dash across the street into the half open door waiting for him. The sharpshooters were taken by surprise and he escaped."

The Good Old Times.

"An increase of salary!" exclaimed the pompous manager of a small omnibus company to a clerk who had just made that request. "I am afraid, sir, that you are too extravagant."

He toyed with his heavy watch chain and looked severely at the young man, who returned his stare boldly. It was the set phrase on such occasions, and the applicant had heard it all before. He meant to have that rise or—go somewhere else.

"Excuse me, sir," he replied respectfully, "I haven't any chance to be extravagant on what I earn."

"Young man," continued the pompous gentleman, "I have risen from the monkey board. How? By being careful. When I was young, I made money by saving bus fares."

"Ah, that was in the old days," said the young man, with a knowing wink. "But with the bell punches and the present system of inspection you would find you couldn't save sixpence without being collared, however careful you were."

The manager nearly fainted, and the young man had to seek other employment. —Pearson's Weekly.

Rats In Siam.

The writer was astonished on visiting the house of the inhabitants of Siam (says a traveler) to see a huge rat walking quietly around the room and crawling up the master's legs in a cool, familiar manner. Instead of repulsing it or giving an alarm he took it up in his hand and caressed it and then we learned for the first time, to our utter astonishment, that it was a custom in Bangkok to keep pet rats. These are taken very young and carefully reared until they attain a monstrous size from good and plentiful feeding.

PE STEALS SPECTACLES.

Which Makes Nearsighted Admirers Indulge In Strong Language.

There is a monkey in Lincoln park with a penchant for snatching eyeglasses from the noses of the spectators, bending them double and stuffing them down into his pouch. The startled loser of the auxiliaries to sight then has the pleasure of watching the lump of expensive ground lenses and bent and twisted bows joggle about in the pocket that a monkey wears in the region of his Adam's apple and of occasionally being tantalised with the appearance of them in the paw of the purloiner and of learning that the more fuss he makes the less likely is he to recover his property soon.

If the losers at once begin begging for their glasses and expostulating with the wayward monk, he seems delighted and alternately sits in melancholy abstraction gazing at the faraway "keep off the grass" sign, apparently thinking of his old jungle home and the cocoanuts there, or he is restlessly active in performing an aerial act on the topmost perches. His countenance is fixed in the dolorous expression of recent bereavement, and he hasn't time anyway for minding the talk of the common, everyday sightseer.

"Come here, you naughty monkey! Give me those glasses! What am I going to do? Nice Jocko"—in bewitching, insidious tones—"give me back my glasses."

Mr. Jocko Monk, however, is unmindful until suddenly a great light seems to burst upon his heart and brain. He nervously drags out those shapeless eyeglasses holds them up and looks through them at the person outside the bars, red faced and stamping, in the serious, quizzical way of the dean of a medical college who believes he is discovering a new disease germ. Suddenly he looks up and begins chattering.

"Hello! You here?" he seems to twitter. "What's the matter? You're looking mad. Can I do anything for you? Say, got a peanut in your pocket? Just push it this way, will you? I'm feeling bad—really I am. I'm feeling tough. I need a light lunch. Oh, what you bothering about those old glasses of yours for? Let up, will you? Poor fellow, poor fellow! Can't you get along without those things? They ain't any good now anyway."

Then he flaunts the stolen property before the owner and puts it immediately back into the seclusion of the cavity at the roots of his tongue.

By the time the keeper has come to the rescue of the ill fated goggles the monkey has produced them and stowed them away again some three or four times, and the nearsighted individual whose nose they formerly graced is in rage and despair and swears that the monk is in collusion with some optician in the interest of the latter—Chicago Times-Herald.

Luxurious Traveling.

The height of luxurious traveling has been reached by the czar and czarina. The empress' private car is upholstered in pale blue satin. The electric lamps are all in the form of lilies, and it contains writing and tea tables made of mother of pearl. The nursery is the next apartment, and is as comfortable and handsome as the same rooms in any of the czar's palaces. There are dining rooms and drawing rooms and several sleeping apartments. In fact, this train is a miniature palace. The wheels are covered with india rubber tires.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE FIGHT AT LEXINGTON.

Senator Lodge's Account of the First Battle of the Revolution.

When Major Pitcairn got to Lexington green, about half past 4, thanks to Bowman's warning, there were some 60 or 70 men assembled to meet him. "Disperse, ye rebels, disperse!" cried Major Pitcairn, and rode toward them. There was much discussion then, and there has been much more since, as to who fired first. It matters not. It is certain that the British poured in a volley and followed it up with others. The minutemen, not yet realizing that the decisive moment had come, hesitated, some standing their ground, some scattering. They fired a few straggling shots, wounded a couple of British soldiers and drew off. Eight Americans were killed and ten wounded. One of the eight had carried the standard when American troops captured Louisburg, and thus redeemed for England an otherwise ineffective war. One was wounded and bayoneted afterward. One dragged himself to the door of his house and died on the threshold at his wife's feet.

What matters it who fired first? The first blow had been struck, the first blood shed. The people, in obedience to the orders of a provincial congress, had faced the soldiers of England in arms. They had been fired upon and had returned the fire. It was not a battle, hardly a skirmish; but it said to all the world that a people intended to govern themselves, and would die sooner than yield; a very pregnant fact, speaking much louder than words and charged with many meanings. A wholly new thing this was indeed to have people ready to die in battle for their rights, when a large part of the rulers of the civilised world did not recognize that they had any rights to either die or live for. A great example to be deeply considered, and destined to bear much fruit, was given by those brave men who died on Lexington green in the fair dawn of that April morning.—From "The Story of the Revolution," by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, in Scribner's.

MOST WHOLESOME MEALS.

Mrs. Rorer Tells the Best Foods For Different Times of Day.

In The Ladies' Home Journal Mrs. S. T. Rorer writes at length to show that Americans eat too much meat, but says she does not want to be understood as condemning meat entirely. Individually she uses "all (with the exception of pork and veal) in moderation and toward the close of the day. From long experience," she says, "I have found that a heavy morning's work can best be accomplished on a breakfast composed of a well cooked cereal and fruit, with perhaps a cup of French coffee or cereal coffee and a piece of well toasted whole wheat bread. The noonday meal, especially if work is to be continued in the afternoon, should be composed of a cream soup, with whole wheat bread, an omelet, some of the lighter forms of nitrogenous food, in the proportion of one-third to two-thirds carbonaceous food. Fruits, again, may be taken, if they agree—a baked banana, a baked apple, peaches, pears or any of the very ripe, subacid fruits.

"After the day's work is over and one can take time to rest and thoroughly digest a meal dinner should be served. A warm beef soup, stimulating rather than nitrogenous, should form the beginning of the meal. This may be followed by some light entree, either of fish or vegetable, then the red meat, either boiled, broiled or roasted (never fried), with its accompanying vegetable. With beef serve potatoes or macaroni as the starchy food, with mutton or chicken rice. A green vegetable should be added for its salts, and this may be onions or young peas, beans, cauliflower or spinach. The salad should follow, and with it a tiny bit of cheese, with a piece of whole wheat bread, a bread stick or a water biscuit. Then a simple, light dessert may be served."

The Chrysanthemum.

When the plant was introduced, about 1840, it was only the small daisylike flower, now only seen as a rule in cottage gardens, which was highly prized as a novelty. The taste for growing and showing it began early, and before 1860 there were many chrysanthemum societies in existence, among them the Stoke Newington, which formed the nucleus of the National society. Yet it was not until 1859, when the plants suffered severly from early frosts, that there was any idea of growing it under glass. The Japanese variety was noticed in 1864 as a novelty, "very curious and interesting, but scarcely ornamental." How little did the author of these remarks suspect what a future was before the plant he so summarily set aside! Three years later, however, we find Japanese varieties recommended with pompom and incurved, and since then they have ever increased in favor.

The gorgeously colored, mophike blooms now exhibited every autumn would certainly astonish that writer of 30 years ago. The golden and bronze shades of the chrysanthemum suited the taste of the promoters of the "high art" esthetic movement of a few years ago, which, if it had no other merit, helped to bring this flower more forward and revived the culture of sunflowers, which were fast becoming extinct in our gardens.—Longman's Magazine.

Egyptian Tombs.

These tombs, considered the oldest monuments of Egypt, are supposed to have been erected before or during the time of Joseph, and are profusely ornamented with a variety of colored figures, demonstrating ocularly that these ancient people were as gay and nimble as they were depicted, solemn and immovable in their usual sculpture. On some of the walls were hunting scenes, women playing the sackbut and dulcimer, or applying with cheerfulness the bastinado to those of either sex who stood in need of reformatory measures; glass blowers, brickmakers, barbers, plying their vocation and even a chiropodist attending to business. Over each picture was written what the artist intended to represent—an idea that might be employed to advantage by some of our fin de siecle painters.—Outing.

Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for Swayne's Ointment, Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Avoid imitations.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles

Symptoms—Moisture intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate and become very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia., Lyman Sons, & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Positively refuse all substitutes.

Police Court

Yesterday morning three boys named Nelson Smith, Edward VanCamp and Benjamin Curtis, all residents of Ashburnham, were before County Magistrate Edmison for having, Sunday before last, removed the blocks holding some cars on the Grand Trunk siding in Ashburnham, just above McAllister's flour mill and allowing them to run down the grade until brought to a stop by several others, which were fortunately firmly blocked between them and the end of the siding. But for these cars holding firm the entire lot might have been been precipitated down into the street from the end of the track and considerably damaged as the drop is quite high. As the boys are not of a class which usually appears in the police court they were allowed to go on payment of the costs and a small fine. Smith and Vancamp pay $4 each and Curtis $2.

"D" Company, 57th Batt.

"There was a sound of revelry by night,' in the Palace Restaurant last night, when the ex-members and members of "D" Company gathered around the festive board to partake of the annual dinner tendered by Capt. McGill, and Lieutenants Bell and Lefevre. There were about thirty members of the company present and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Captain McGill, the popular commanding officer of No. 4 Company occupied the seat of honor, and was ably assisted by Lieuts. Lefevre and Bell. The tables were laid out in grant shape, and were tastefully decorated. The bill-of-fare was up to date and represented all the delicacies of the season. All the courses of the menu were conscientiously and thoroughly disposed of, and then the fun began; Thet oats to the Queen was duly honored by the commanding officer and staff, and was replied to by the Company singing "God Save the Queen." The "non-commissioned officers, the back-bone of the army," was ingroduced by Col.-Sergt. Smith, and responded to by Sergts. Gordon, Sherwood, and Smith and Corporal Moore. "The Ladies,' was the next toast on the list and Private Hall and Col.-Sergts. Smith Sherwood and Gordon, and Lieuts Lefevre and Bell rose to their feet and made appropriate speeches. Songs were rendered by Harry Tidy, Wm. Lobber, Pte. Dillon, and Lieuts. Bell and Lefevre, which were loudly applauded. A most delightful evening was thus concluded at a seasonable hour.

A BIG BATTLE FOUGHT OFF SANTIAGO DE CUBA

The Spanish Senate Speak of the Battle As a Brilliant Victory for the Spanish Fleet—The American Fleet was Composed of Fourteen Vessels Under Admiral Sampson—Information Limited as Yet

CABLES NOT CUT

Kingston, Jamaica, June 1.—The West Indian and Panama Cable Company are still receiving messages from Santiago de Cuba, and the company avers that the cables are not cut.

A BATTLE HAS BEEN FOUGHT

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 1.—The Daily Bulletin issued by the French Cable Co. here to-day, apparently confirms the news of Spanish origin to the effect that a battle has been fouhgt before Santiago De Cuba. It says: Santiago De Cuba, May 31.—To-day at 2 o'clock, the American fleet, composed of 14 ships, of which one appeared to be the New York, and flew the flag of Admiral Sampson, and a few torpedo boats, opened fire on the forts and on the roadstead with heavy guns. The fire of the Americans appeared to be directed principally on the Roadstead and on the forts of El Morro, Socapa and Punta Gorda. The cannonade was very brisk up to 3.45. The shells fell into the bay but did not reach as far as the town. After 3.45 the cannonade weakened and the cannon shots were heard in the offing. The Americans completely ceased firing after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At 2 o'clock to-day the American steamer Fantia arrived at Cape Haytien from New York and Port De Paix. She reports that she did not see any warships.

A REPULSE

Madrid, June 1.—In the Senate to-day Count Casa Valencia asked if "The news of the American repulse at Santiago De Cuba was official." The Minister of Marine, Captain Aunon replied affirmatively, adding: "The news is a a good augury for further victories which the courage and high merit of our sailors give reason to hope for." The Senate then unanimously "noted with satisfaction the brilliant victory oft he Spanish fleet."

NO NEWS YET.

Washington, June 1.—The Navy Departemnt had no word at 9.30 this morning of the reported bombardment of defences of Santiago and is inclined to believe any firing was not of an important character.

ARRESTED A GERMAN.

Madrid, June 1.—The British Ambassador, Sir Henry Drummond-Wolff, had another long conference yesterday with Lieut.-General Correa, Minister of War.

A German who was caught sketching the fortifications at Ceuta, in Morocco, opposite Gibraltar, has been arrested.

General de Bourbon, who was arrested during the riots at Madrid prior to the outbreak of the war, has been liberated.

THE PASSENGERS SAFE.

Philadelphia, June 1.—The passengers and crew of the freight steamer Belvidere, which was wrecked off Cape Maysi, Cuba, are on the Norwegian steamer Kong Frode from Port Antonio which will reach this city at noon to-day. Belvidere sailed from Kingston for Boston on Wednesday last and was wrecked the following day. The Kong Frode passed Reedy Island in the Deleware this morning and signalled all well.

SHE CARRIES DESPATCHES.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 1.—2.45 a. m.—The United States torpedo boat Porter put into the harbor of the Mole St. Nicholas at one o'clock this morning in all probability with despatches for Washington, and left there again at two o'clock.

SHELLED THE BLOCKHOUSE

U. S. Gunboat Uncas Wrecks a Spanish Fort

Commodore Schley Discovers that the Entrance to Santiago is Much Better Protected Than He Thought

Key West, June 1.—The United States auxiliary gunboat Uncas arrived here this morning from the Cuban coast. She reports that on Monday last when about a mile and a half west of Matanzas lighthouse, she sighted a Spanish blockhouse on shore. Taking up a position about 600 yards off shore the Uncas fired two shots at the house and the two shells went clean through the building, which was wrecked.

FOUR ROWS OF MINES.

Key West, June 1.—The report reached here the Schley's ships have made examinations of the batteries and the channel, revealing much stronger guns and mines than were supposed to exist. Four rows of mines have been laid across the narrow entrance of the harbor.

Early this morning the Marblehead ventured to within two miles of the harbor and positively recognized the cruiser Cristobal Colon and two cruisers of the Viscaya type, and the dismantled cruiser Reina Mercedes, upon which guns have been mounted, making her a floating fort. This leaves only two ships of the Cape Verde fleet unaccounted for by Commodore Schley. All the ships were originally in such a position in the harbor that they could not be seen from the outside, but on the appearance of the American warships they betrayed their presence by moving across the entrance to sweep it with broadsides.

A CHECK BEFORE SANTIAGO.

Madrid, June 1.—11 a.m.—The Minister of Marine, Captain Aunon, has received a despatch saying the American squadron has suffered a check before Santiago de Cuba. The fire from the Spanish forts and the fleet of Admiral Cervera, is alleged to have repulsed the American ships, which retreated, damaged. The Spanish fleet did not suffer.

THE PRESIDENT DUBIOUS.

Washington, June 1.—President McKinley, at noon to-day had neither confirmation nor denial of the reported general engagement between Schley's fleet and the Spanish forts at Santiago. The absence of official information on the subject prompts the President to express the belief that there has been no such engagement. Whatever firing occurred off Santiago yesterday, was, he thinks, directed against some Spanish torpedo boats which may have tried to break through the blockade. His lack of official information is the President's sole reason for discrediting the report. Schley has a number of swift scouting craft with him and had there been the battle erported one of these would have been sent to a cable station in time to send the official news to the White House before daybreak.

SICKNESS IN CAMP.

Tampa, Fla., June 1.—There is considerable sickness among the soldiers of the 71st New York, volunteers, and although only one fatality has occurred so far, several members of the regiment are seriously ill. Seevnteen of them are now under the care of the physician. Most of the sickness is due to change of weather, although long hours of drilling in the intense heat to which the northerners are unaccustomed, have resulted in several prostrations.

CUBANS ARE POOR SOLDIERS

They Had to be Driven Ashore in the Face of the Enemy

Frank Miller, Who Claims to be a Canadian and a Native of Montreal, Arrested as a Spanish Spy

Tampa, Fla., May 25.—A correspondent writes: To a civilian the most remarkable thing about the regular soldiers is the rapidity with which they adapt themselves to their surroundings. Two or three days ago nothing but their tents could be seen on the camping fields. A look at the different regiments' quarters to-day conveys the impression that the troops had been some months on the ground. Every officer'st ent is surrounded with a shelter of palm and pine stalks, over which is spread the thick green foliage of these teees. This forrms a grand protection from the sun, and no doubt, should rainy weather set in, would be no less a shelter. Speaingk about rain most of the inhabitants must have forgotten by this time what real rain is like, for I am told they have not had a good shower in this vicinity in the last seven months.

SHADY BOWERS.

The regular infantry have converted their camps into a collection of shade bowers; one of these in the Twelfth Infantry's quarters is about fifty feet long and ten feet wide. Along each side fo this two comfortable benches runt he entire length and in the centre is a wooden table, on which the privates eat their meals, and collect and tell the funniest of real funny stories, or discuss, with many startling adjectives, the latest news from the sent of war.

Major-General Joe Wheeler to-day reviewed the cavalry troops stationed here. General Wheeler is the commander of the cavalry corps for the army of invasion. He seemed to be in his glory as he sat upon his big sprightly horse and watched the troops pass by, first slowly, then faster, then at a break-neck gallop. The general is an old man now, but though his hair is white, and his soldierly form shaken with years, his eye is clear and his step as firm as any trooper under his command.

The Ninth colored cavalry was brought in from Port Tampa and took part in the drill with the Third, Sixth and Second regiments. The review was held in the big field behind the Tampa Bay Hotel and was witnessed by a small party of citizens and a large delegation of newspaper correspondents.

SPLENDID HORSEMEN

Although a great deal has been said about the colored troops not behaving themselves out of camp, or in fact int he camp when off duty, there is onet hing that can be said in their favor, and that is that they carry themselves splendidly in the saddle, much better than the majority of the white troopers, and they have their collective drill down to a fine point. Whether they possess the fighting qualities of the white troops, will, in this instance, remain to be seen.

The more one sees of the Cuban volunteers, the more one is impressed with the unfortunate fact that they are an inferior lot from the soldier standpoint, and evidently quite unable to look after their own affairs. We all know now that the last expedition to Cuban shores, which had a number of native volunteers along with it, had some trouble in getting these gentlemen to leave the boat when they arrived at their destination. It is said that the captain gave the party five minutes to get ashore and threatened them that if they did not leave in that time he would use other means to persuade them. These Cubans were under the impression that they were going in company with the American soldiers and when they found they were to be landed alone their corage gave out andt hey refused to go ashore.

ARREST OF A SPY.

A young man of the name of Frank Miller, who claims to be a Canadian and a native of Montreal, was arrested heret o-day as a Spanish spy. It is said that the evidence against him is of the most damaging description. The police claim that the letters in their possession show that Miller was in the employ of Senor Polo's agents at Montreal. The secret service agents who report to Lieut.-Col. Wagner arrested the Canadian at his hotel this morning. The department refuse to give any information other than that they havet he strongest proofs against Miller. He will be tried by Court Martial and will probably be shot.

Five hundred new cavalry horses and about three hundred mules arrived in Tampa to-day and were taken to the camp of the Sixth Cavalry. Uncle Sam is now making rapid preparations for the invasion of Cuba, and any who may doubt that this event is not going to take place, at once should just take a trip here and to Port Tampa and observe the activity with which everything teems. Crowds of men are now engaged carrying goods on board the transports, of which there are twenty-two at Port Tampa.

In a trip over the cavalry camp today, I I discovered that a great many of the horses are sick with the distemper, and already quite a few of them have died from the epidemic. The veterinary employed by the Government thinks he can avert a serious epidemic but is fearful that it will kill a large number before it can be checked.

There is a rumor in the camp this evening that the Spanish spy, Jose Castellanos, who was arrested at the Palmetto Hotel a few days ago, and has been since confined in the guard house of the Sixth Cavalry, was secretly shot at daylight this morning.

Consternation still reigns in the newspaper fields at Tampa. The censor was yesterday istructed to disregard entirely two of the leading New York paper representatives, and as a result these gentlemen have been recalled and left for home to-day.

TWO GUNBOATS AT WORK

Uncas and Leydon Shell Batteries Along the Coast

Barcelona Manufacturers Say That if a Yankee Admiral Comes They Will Invite Him to Dinner

Key West, June 1.—The coast between Cardenas and Matanzas, twenty miles east of where the Florida expedition landed, has been shelled and cleared of Spaniards by the auxiliary gunboats Uncas and Leydon. The Spaniards erected numerous sand batteries and earthworks in that section, and the Spanish cavalry and infantry have often been seen moving up and down between the two points.

Perhaps this part of the coast has been selected for landing another expedition, or it may be a good point at which troops could be landed preparatory to a move upon Havana. The Uncas and Leydon blew all sand batteries to dust, throwing the earthworks into heaps of debris, and scattering Spaniards horse and foot. Several block houses were also demolished.

WILL INVITE HIM TO DINNER.

London, June 1.—Mail advices from Barcelona to the Daily Chronicle say: "Alongside the [illegible] Numancia, orders to hurry the preparations on which have just been received, lies the Covadonga, of the Compania Trans Atlantic Line. Her foremast and two funnels have been painted black, and she is ready to go to Cadiz for her armament.

"The Isle de Pany, which is unloading will be the next prepared; and after her will come the Juan Serra. As additional defences at Barcelona, the Spaniards are hastily erecting six large guns dated 1-81, which have just been mounted at Barcelona. Three hundred engineers are constructing new batteries at Badalona, just under Montjuch Fortress, in a corner unobserved from the harbor. Platforms for three enormous guns are being erected with all speed. The guns will cover the harbor mouth, with a range of 200 yards.

"All Barcelona is heartily sick of the war. The people regard it as a merely continuation of the Cuban war, which has paralyzed business for three years. Recently the Government called upon the manufactures of Barcelona voluntarily to contribute £12,000 for the defence of the town. They replied that they had already paid most of the expenses of the Government and of the defence of Spain, adding: 'If the Yankee admiral comes here, we shall invite him to dinner.'"

COMMAND THE BALLOONS.

New York, June 1.—Major J. E. Maxfield, of the signal corps, who has been assigned to command the balloon train which is being prepared at Tampa for use in connection with the work of the army in Cuba, has gone to Tampa.

There are two balloons at Tampa and two at Governor's Island. The latter are the ones purchased recently from Maurice Mallet, of Paris. M. Mallet together with Antony Vertele and M. Chenard, went to Governor's Island yesterday afternoon to arrange for giving the final coat of varnish to the balloons, which will be shipped to Tampa in about ten days. There will be two balloon trains arranged for the Cuban and Porto Rican invasions.

APSLEY

Queen's Birthday Celebration

The 79th anniversary of our Most Gracious Majecty's birth, was celebrated ont he 24th with great festivities. Awakening in the morning and looking over the village was a surprise party to a good many. It was really a very pretty sight, the village being decorated with evergreens and numbers of flags, mottoes, etc., which were furnished by J. J. Turner & Son, of Peterborough, the well known sail and tent makers. Apsley was never so profusely decorated with bunting before. I feel sure that if Her Majesty could have seen our little village, so far in the heart of the wild woods that day, with the smiling crowd, and happy children,t rying to do her homage on her natal day, she would have said, "I must be well loved by all my subjects in every part of my empire."

A "Feu de joie" was fired early in the morning, and about 10 o'clock a. m. the people commenced coming in from the country, and the visiting football players from Tasswade soon made their appearance. The match between Apsley and Tasswade commenced about 2 p.m., Mr. L. S. Hall acting as referee, the Apsley team being captained by J. J. Welhe, and the Tasswade team by Mr. McLean. It was a very exciting match all through, and both sides did their very best to win. The play lasted over an hour, and resulted in one goal for Apsley. The visitors failed to score.

A baseball match was then played, but owing to the rain coming on it put a stop to all further outside sports, the bicycle race not coming off as was anticipated.

The town hall was prettily decorated with evergreens, but the main attraction was three long tables heavily laden with the edibles, and entertainments

The tea was under the auspices of the Presbyterian congregation, and the ladies of that ilk were very much up to the mark in the way they had provided for and attended to the wants of the inner man. There was a continual stream to the tables from 5 o'clock until 7 p.m. At 8 p.m. an adjournment was made to the Temperance Hall, where a good entertainment was run off. Mr. L. S. Hall, Presbyterian student, occupied the chair. Mr. J. N. Clarry, Methodist missionary, and the Rev. C. Lord, Anglican missionary, also occupied seats on the platform. One of the prettiest pieces of the entertainment was the singing of "The Land oft he Maple," by the school children of S. S. No. 1, Anstruther. They had been well trained beforehand by their teacher, Miss Laura Tousley, who is to be greatly complimented on the way it was sung by the scholars. The entertainment closed by the singing of the National Anthem, thus closing one of the most successful days Apsley ever saw. God Save the Queen.

A Hint to Port Hope

Port Hope is to have a big celebration on July 1st. Would it not be wise, in view of the great wheelmen's meet in Peterborough this year, for our Port Hope friends to postpone their annual Dominion Day festivities to some subsequent date?

Yesterday the Times was shown a sample of gold-bearing quartz taken from a vein in the northern part of Peterborough county. The quartz is evidently very rich, as flakes of the precious metal can be seen with the naked eye. It is said, that other rich veins exist in the same locality.

Rats in Siam.

The writer was astonished on visiting the house of the inhabitants of Siam (says a traveler) to see a huge rat walking quietly around the room and crawling up the master's legs in a cool, familiar manner. Instead of repulsing it or giving an alarm he took it up in his hand and caressed it and then we learned for the first time, to our utter astonishment, that it was a custom in Bangkok to keep pet rats. These are taken very young and carefully reared until they attain a monstrous size from good and plentiful feeding.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 2, 1898

THE TIMES LEADS

Our two local boiler plate contemporaries are rubbing noses just now over the fact that they are both supporting the proposal to abolish the ward system. The Examiner last night starts off with the words, "Great minds run in the same channel,' and goes on to remark how pleased it is to find its evening contemporary supporting the proposed change. Our George street contemporary, as well as its Hunter street neighbor, must know that the Times originated the proposed scheme, and while the great (?) minds of the two local scribes may run in the same channel the Times usually has the job of making the groove. The Times is always in the lead.

THE SEWER EXTENSIONS

Complaints have come to us about way which some parties who are circulating petitions for the extension of the sewers misrepresent matters in order to secure signatures. The petitions must bear the signatures of a majority of the freehold ratepayers on the street where the sewer is proposed to be constructed. In some cases signatures have been obtained from parties on the assurance that it would cost practically nothing—the whole being paid by the corporation in the way of a general tax.

Property owners ought to be sure that they are acting on their own judgment and not allow themselves to be duped into sacrificing their own and their neighbor's money by the a tive jaws of parties interested in securing only their own ends.

People have also been told that they were only liable on one street, where they occupied a corner property facing on the streets. This is not true, as the property will pay full rates on one street and half rates on the other.

The extension of the sewers into the suburbs is not popular, and we will be surprised if the ratepayers fail to resent it when the time comes.

EMPHASIZE THE NAVY

In the case of nations separated from each other by an expanse of water the only means of getting at each other in war is through floating batteries. Neither can cross the water and land soldiers because the battleships which would attack the transports and either take the men prisoners or doom them to a watery grave by sinking their unprotected vessels. Though six weeks have now elapsed since war was begun between Spain and the United States, not a soldier of either belligerent has been landed on the other's soil. Between the shores of each are the ships fitted for destruction. And any attempt on the part of the United States to place soldiers in Spain, or even in Cuba, would be attended with so much risk from Spain's floating batteries, that no attempt of the kind, other than the troops on the way to Manila, has been made. For the same reason there has been no effort by the Spanish authorities to disturb America by the presence and destructive activity of Spanish soldiers. The fleets of one party to the contest must first have been rendered powerless to inflict injury upon vessels carrying troops before these vessels will set out on this undertaking.

It is because of this feature that civilized nations having harbors on the sea coast will emphasize the importance of a navy. We may expect then to find that we shall soon enter on a period of unprecedented activity in shipbuilding for offensive and defensive purposes. The nations that are likely to devote money and labor to this work are Russia, France, Italy Germany, Japan, England and the United States.

In addition to the making of powerful vessels will be their equipment with weapons of the most destructive character. Quite as much depends on the quality of the weapons a battleship carries as upon the ship itself. And side by side with the development of the knowledge in the construction of large vessels with armor of great power of resistance has been the knowledge in the making of projectiles of great force. There is no reason to suppose that the inventive genius of man has exhausted itself in either direction. On the contrary we may look for a rapid development in both directions in years to come, till the present largest battleship shall be as far removed from them as the ships of Nelson are from the foremost fighting vessels afloat to-day.

Now that the military weakness of the United States is so manifest, it must be clear to all the world that Grover Cleveland was drunk when he penned that celebrated Venezuela message.

"Mobilize' was the word sent across the Atlantic cable to the garrison at Halifax, and in less than half an hour every man was at his point, ready to meet any enemy that might appear. It looks as though the British troops are not much further than the next township when needed.

At the Canadian negotiations just concluded at Washington, the spirit of goodwill toward this country has been most marked. A definite agreement has been reached for the creation of a commission to consider all matters in dispute between Canada and the States and as soon as the agreement has been ratified by the British Government, work will begin. The first meeting of the commission it is understood, will be held at Quebec.

In speaking of the Hundreth Regiment in the Senate. Senator Boulton remarked that if the United States had been prepared for war, Spain would have backed down. Senator Belleros of Bellechasse rose up for the Spaniard, and affirmed that even if the United States had had a naval power equal to that of Great Britain Spain would not have submitted to injustice. It was true that the weaker country usually had to submit to the stronger, but a country with the pride of Spain would not submit until forced to do so. A nation might be beaten, but still retain its honor. He believed that Spain would have fought any power rather than tamely submit to the action of the United States, which was in contravention of all law and international usage. If this Monroe doctrine was to be acknowledged, then Canada's time might come soon. The Senate heard him out. paid no attention to his outburst.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing thes musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Ayer's Pills Are a Sure Cure for Constipation

Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills are a specific for all diseases of the liver, stomach, and bowels.

"I suffered from constipation which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. After vainly trying various remedies, I began to take Ayer's Pills. Two boxes effected a complete cure."

D. BURKE, Saco, Me.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural action."

TRENT VALLEY CANAL

The Appropriation Discussed in the House on Tuesday

The Globe says: This evening the House was in supply. Mr. Osler protested against the vote of $650,000 on construction account of the Trent Valley Canal, which he described as a sixfoot ditch which would never pay the wages of the men who operate it. He hoped that the Government would cease sinking money in that useless work.

Mr. Bennett protested against Mr. Osler's hostility, and asked the Minister what the proposed expenditure was for.

Mr. Blair stated that $3,000,000 of the amount was required to complete work already under contract, and the remainder would be employed to construct a hydraulic lift lock on the model of some locks in Belgium, which cost no more to build and would be cheaper to operate than the other locks. The work is on the Peterborough and Lakefield sections.

Mr. Hughes resented Mr. Osler's interference in a matter about which he knew nothing, and criticized the duct of the authorities at Toronto. He said that they had quarreled with the C. P. R., and drove 20,000 people to the city of Montreal by the bungling stupidity and incapacity of the authorities of the city of Toronto. Then when the Ottawa, Arnprior & Parry Sound applied for a charter, the gentlemen from the city of Toronto put on their silk hats and came down, and asked for a charter to be given to that road, simply to take away the trade from the back door of the city of Toronto. Every move that the gentlemen in connection with the city had made recently had been calculated to reduce it to the standing of a village, and unless the sensible people of the city interfered and put an end to such management on the part of the Board of Trade and the City Council, the city would depreciate to the level of a country town or village.

Mr. Blair in answer to Mr. Britton, said it was estimated that to complete the canal would take about $1,000,000 in addition to the present appropriation.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

"Now, Harry, you know I don't want you to marry a goose. Find a nice, sensible girl, who does not powder her face, and want sealskin sacks when her husband hasn't shoes to his feet."

"Do the powdered face and seal-skin go together?"

"Oh, go along with you! You know a girl that paints her face can't have good sense; a girl with no sense is extravagant."

Edith had not quite forgotten Harold Dutton; she had never told Stella of his parting interview with her, and declaration of his love for her friend. She intended calling on Stella the next day, and having received a short note from Dutton, which was so evidently for Stella's eyes, that she felt she must see it; so she put it in her shopping-bag, and took it with her, thinking this would be a good way to inform Stella of Dutton's passion, which Edith felt convinced was a hopeless one.

Stella expected Edith, and wished to see her alone; they had so much to talk over which would not be pleasant to discuss in the presence of strangers.

"When my friend comes, Nina,' she said to her pupil, "I shall go for a walk with her. How shall you amuse yourself?"

Nina looked rather vexed.

"Your friend is tiresome,' she said. "I shall hate her if she takes you away from me."

"Nina! I am sorry to hear such nonsense. Miss Sloan has been my friend for many years. We came to Chicago together. Must I shut myself up in this house, and never speak to any one but you?

"No, no—don't mind me! I felt jealous. All creoles are jealous.'

"It is a silly thing for a grown young lady to act like a child, Nina, and I felt sure you had left all such nonsense behind you when you made up your mind to be done with childish things."

"So I have. Kiss me, and forget all about it."

"Now answer the question. How will you amuse yourself?'

"Oh, I'll read adn practive my music."

Edith felt delighted to be with Stella once more, and they took the Cottage Grove avenue car to go to Jackson Park, where they sat by the lakeside and talked on all sorts of subjects.

"Do you know, Stella,' said Edith, "I saw that yellow-faced fellow who followed us about the day we were at the Boston Oyster House, just outside your door as we came out?'

"Don't you think you are mistaken?"

"No; I knew him, and he turned away, as though to keep me from getting a good look at him."

Stella was reflecting. She had a vague recollection of having seen the same face on more than one occasion, when she rode or drove with Nina, and a tantalizing, haunting idea that she ought to remember who the owner of it was. She had a vague, puzzling memory of it, of seeing it under painful circumstances.

Of course Stella told Edith of her advneture with Waddy Marshall, and the way Walter Derwent had come to the rescue.

"Ah,' said Edith, "that accounts for Mr. Walter coming home and telling Mrs. Waddy Marshall that Waddy felt indisposed, and begged her to excuse him from escorting her home.

"What did she say?"

"I was in the parlor serving tea, which is carried around with coffee, too, on silver trays; though what on earth they want with it after eating such a hearty dinner and drinking so much wine, I do not know."

"Well, what did she say? She is deserving of pity."

"I don't think so, judging from her remark. She said, "I guess your wine is too good, Mrs. Derwent.' The old lady looked fairly horrified."

"I should think so. I suppose she is used to her charming husband."

"Yes and cares nothing for him. Mrs. Rush says she was head-over heels in love with Walter Derwent, but he never cared for her."

"Is she pretty,' asked Stella, with all a woman's curiosity on the subject of the man she loves.

"Yes, she is like a French doll, and about as natural."

"Edith,' Stella said, suddenly, "I have reason to think Mr. Derwent will visit Mr. Jameson often, and as I am always in the parlor and dining room I shall form his acquaintance. He knows you are my friend, and may speak of me to you."

"Very likely; he is too much of a gentleman to be afraid of hurting his dignity by being polite to the help int he house."

"Well, if he does, I wish you would be silent about the past.'

Edith looked grave. She was herself frank and candid to a fault. She realized that with Stella's beauty and accomplishments, Walter Derwent might easily learn to love her. Under such circumstances, was it honorable to conceal the sad past?

"I shall, of course, respect your wish, Stella; but I do not think it is ever wise to conceal anything."

"Now, Edith, you are making mountains out of mole-hills, as our gardner at Oakdean used to say. There is a vast difference between concealing things and merely exercising a little reserve."

"A distinction without a difference. Stella, you shall do as you please; but, if I were in your place, I should tell Walter Derwent the truth."

Stella flushed, and looked rather haughty.

"Why should I?" she asked, coldly.

"Because he could so easily learn to love you; and if he did, see what a network of deception you would find yourself involved in."

"I do not see it."

"Stella, you must know that Brandon is too near Chicago for such a story to long remain a secret. At any time you may meet some one from there; perhaps the past might even be alluded to in his presence.

"If anything should ever— I mean. If I should ever—love—or marry Walter Derwent, I should be in a position to encounter people who might visit Chicago from Brandon. Besides, the whole affair was only a nine days' wonder. It will die out."

"But Stella, that wretched man, your father, will be at liberty some day."

Stella sprang from her feet. Her face had grown cold and angry.

"He is not my father, and you know it,' she said, haughtily, and began to walk away so fast that Edith had difficulty in keeping near to her.

"Forgive me, Stella; I did not mean to wound or offend you," said poor Edith, pleadingly.

"Well, you contrived to do both. Never, under any circumstances, allude to this subject again."

"Stella, you know I love you, and am a faithful friend. Believe me, if Walter Derwent ever loves you it will be far better to tell him the whole truth. He cannot blame you for another's fault. You are blameless. But I think he is a man who would be bitterly unforgiving if he ever met with falsehood and deception. You cannot tell what complications may arise."

NOT EASY TO ESCAPE.

AVERAGE CRIMINAL PRACTICALLY SURE TO BE CAUGHT.

Conscience the First and Greatest Aid of the Detectives—Letters, Indiscretions, Carelessness, Any or All of These May Cause Betrayal.

On the evening after the capture of a man for whom the police had been hunting for several months a party of men who had met by chance in a cafe began to discuss the case, and one of them said that he was positive that, under similar circumstances, he would have fooled the detectives and escaped.

"Maybe you'll tell us how you would escape if you had committed a crime," said the first speaker. "We'll make up the crime, and you'll tell what you would do. Let's take a robbery and an easy one. Suppose you went from your office to Jones' here. Jones knows you as a respectable man. You see on his desk a bundle of bank notes. Say there is $20,000 in the package. Lots of people are entering the office and walking past the desk. Jones' attention is diverted. You pick up the bank notes and slip them into your pocket. No one sees you do it. You chat with Jones for a few minutes, bid him good day and walk out of the office. We'll give Jones 15 minutes to discover his loss. You know that 50 people have had a chance to steal the money, and that you are one of the last who will be suspected. Now, what would you do?"

"It seems to me that the case you make out is altogether too easy," said the self offered criminal. "I should do absolutely nothing except attend to my everyday business in my everyday way. On leaving Jones I would walk out of his office, speaking to the men whom I knew, and then I would go to my own office, put the money in an envelope and lay the envelope on my desk as though it was of no particular value. I would work until my usual hour to go home came, and then, after dinner, I would come down here and see you fellows. I would not vary the routine of my business or social life. Probably the newspapers of the next day would contain long accounts of the mysterious theft of $20,000, with a hundred guesses as to the identity of the robber. If they did, I would drop in on Jones, tell him I was sorry for his loss and ask him if I could help him in any way. He would bewail his loss and maybe might borrow a few thousand of me to tide him over.

"I would leave the $20,000 in my desk. I would not touch it. I would let it kick around. I would talk of the robbery with my friends, but not too much. I would say that I hoped the robber would be caught, but I would be careful not to be too talkative about the case. Jones would send for the police and all of his clerks would be examined. The detectives would look wise, talk about outside and inside jobs, round up a few well known sneak thieves and have Jones look at them. The matter would die out after awhile. After a few months had passed I could spend the money and my theft would never be suspected."

"Your theory is all right except for one thing," said a man who had listened attentively to the conversation. "You forget that you are made of flesh and blood. If you were cut out of a block of wood, you'd get away splendidly. But the moment you got that money in your pocket your fear of detection would become so great that your knees would knock together. Even if you controlled yourself until you had finished that chat with Jones you speak about so lightly, which I don't think you would be able to do, the strain would exhaust you so that you would go to pieces when you got to your own office. You also speak of letting the money kick around. You couldn't do it. That little package of bills would grow to a mountain. Your nerve would fail you if it lay on your desk. Knowing it was there, you would be in a panic lest some one should find it. If you put it away in a vault, the whole thing would weigh on you. You'd dream of the stuff. Your nerve would give way. You would betray yourself in a fortnight."

"All that you say about self betrayal is true," said the man who started the conversation, "and there are other things to be considered. Jones would have talks with the detectives. He is now a healthy minded man who believes all his friends are honest, but in his conversations with the policemen he would hear about robberies of mothers by their children, of husbands by their wives and of dozens of cases where intimate friends had stolen from the houses of their associates. His mind troubled by his loss, he would be constantly on the lookout for a plausible explanation of the mystery. At first he would declare that neither you nor any other friend could have taken his money. Then, as he thought of the stories he would hear from the detectives, he would begin to think it possible that some one he trusted as a friend had committed the theft.

"He would get into a condition in which he would suspect every one, and after awhile he would give your name with those of all the other men he saw on the day of the robbery. Then a detective would call on you. He wouldn't take into account that you were a respectable man or anything of that kind. Unless you have more nerve than any one I know, his interview would shake you some, and you can be sure that he would see any break you made. Then the rest would be easy. You would be caught either by a blunder of your own or by the work of one of the detectives you think so useless now."

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

MORRO CASTLE FIRED ON

Cape Hayti, Hayti, May 31,—5.15 p. m.—Advices just received from Havana say that since 2 o'clock this afternoon the American fleet at Santiago de Cuba has been cannonading the batteries of Morro Castle, La Zocapa and Punta Gorda. At the same time it is added the American ships have been engaged with Spanish war ships. The firing was extremely heavy at 3.45 p. m. The cannonading became less heavy against the fortifications, but was more accentuated in the locality where the fleets were engaged. Morro Castle is at the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. La Zocapa also shown on the maps as La Zocapa Castle is a short distance inside the harbor entrance and Punta Gorda is situated on a point well inside the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, showing that the American fleet has entered the harbor, according to Havana advices via Cape Hayti and has engaged the Spanish fleet in these waters.

ORDERED TO LEAVE

London, May 31.—The owners of the British ship Genista which was loading at Manila have received a cable despatch dated May 24th, saing Rear Admiral Dewey has ordered the vessel to leave the port from which it is conjectured that the American Commander contemplated some action.

CABLE CUT

Key West, May 31.—News received here to-day from Santiago De Cuba says that the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul has cut the cable off that port.

SPANISH SHIP CAPTURED

Key West, May 31.—Another prize has been captured. She is the Spanish bark Maria Dolores, of Bilbao. She was overhauled by one of the American cruisers, six miles off Porto Rico. She was bround from Rio Janiero to San Juan De Porto Rico with coal, some cases, supposed to contain ammunition, were found under the coal.

NO IMMEDIATE MOVEMENT

Tampa, May 31.—There were no indications of an immediate movement of troops here to-day and orders for breaking camp are not expected until General Miles arrives. It is reported that orders have been issued to the four batteries of heavy artillery at Ybor City to be ready to move at a moments notice, but nothing in the way of loading supplies on the transports was done to-day The report that heavy artillery is under orders rather lends color to the theory that Santiago De Cuba in which harbor the long sought for Spanish fleet is securely held by Schley's squadron is to be the objective point oft he expedition and that a regular seige is to be laid to the city. That the war department expects a protracted campaign is evident by the immense amount of commissary supplies that have been received here. Rations for an army of 70,000 men for three months are now stored in the Government's warehouses or wait unloading, while hundreds of carloads more are expected.

FRANCE STRICTLY NEUTRAL

Paris, May 31.—The Journal Des Debats to-day, commenting upon the commercial convention between France and the United States, says: "The war is undoubtedly causing much injury to our exporters, and our trade with the United States, if not entirely stopped,would certainly be materially diminished. The convention gives us advantages mainly for the future, which, we hope are near at hand. But at the same time it has special importance inasmuch as it proves Washington is aware that whatever may be the individual sympathies of many Frenchmen, France, as a country, is resolved to maintain strict neutrality.

"A RESURRECTION SHIP."

London, May 31.—A despatch to The Daily Chronicle from Barcelona, referring to the Spanish announcement of the formation of a third Spanish fleet, including the broad ship Numancia, under the heading "A Resurrection ship," her bulwarks battered, her anchors and chains thick with rust and her paint all gone. Apparently she does not carry a single gun. I am not sure whether she has engines. Beyond a few sentries she certainly has no crew. A small gang of men is hammering, swabbing and painting, and 50 marines from Carthagenia have been ordered here to do the work of patching up.

"Though official announcements say that the reserve fleet, including the Numancia, is to go to the Philippines, the 7,000 men who were to have gone with it, are now definitely countermanded. Beside the Numancia "the armed cruiser Cardenal Cisneros and the cruiser Lepanto, now just out of the dock at Carthagenin, with "the Dona Maria de Molana, the Don Alvaro de Bazan and the Marques de la Vittoria will be included. The Peroz from Valencia has been ordered to Cadiz and will be transformed into an auxiliary cruiser. Similar orders are expected for the trans-Atlantic liner Jover Surra."

THE CUBAN COMMAANDER.

General Nunez, the commander of the Cuban volunteers is a man of fifty or more, tall and slim. A very black beard straggles over and partly conceals a pleasant face of marked Cuban features. He was attired in civilians' clothes, as very few of the volunteers have uniforms as yet. We were not able to have much conversation with the general, because, sad to say, he did not understand English, nor we Spanish. But, with the aid of an interpreter, we were informed that the Cuban volunteers expected to leave for their native shores early next week; that there were three hundred and sixty in the party to leave, and that already four hundred have been sent from Tampa.

The general's office furniture consisted of a plain wooden table and six rudely constructed chairs covered with goat skins. A cupboard on which a collection of swords, rifles and pistols were arranged, stood on the uncarpeted floor near the doorway.

In one corner of the room some regulation Spanish cavalry carbines of the "Mauser" pattern leaned leaned against the pine walls. These guns, both carbines and rifles, were purchased by the insurgents some time ago, and are considered equal to, if not better than, the United States regular army rifle. The caliber of the Spanish gun is only thirty-two.

THE GUNS SUPPLIED.

The Cubans have but a few of these, and the United States authorities, who are now supplying Gomez's army with equipment, are giving them the "Springfields," which carry only a single shot. The regulation Spanish rifle carries five cartridges in the magazines, and one in the locker. It has great penetrating powers, and the sighting apparatus is most reliable.

After a brief and unsatisfactory conversation with the general, Lieut. Fritot, one of his staff, informed us that we might go through the men's quarters, if we so desired. So we passed out out of the commander's room into the apartment in which the officer of the day had hurriedly collected his guard for our inspection. They were ranged up in two lines, eight privates in each lines. Little man and slight boys, with narrow shoulders and of different heights, with olive complexions, small eyes and minature mustaches, and all "fearfully and wonderfully" attired.

In a little room beyond where the guard was stationed, I noticed a dark complexioned young man of about eighteen years, in a grey cadet uniform, and on asking, learned that he was Antonio Gomez, the second eldest son of General Gomez of the Cuban revolutionists.

Young Gomez has been attending school at Jacksonville, and came to Tampa about two weeks ago with the intention of accompanying the next expedition to Cuba.

FINE FELLOWS.

The officers are a very fine looking lot of men and apparently familiar with their duties. They have their meals alone in a little room on the first floor, but sleep in the men's quarters.

The kitchen is situated in the sandy waste adjoining the establishment. The men are marched up here in single file, much the same as the United States troops and are given their daily allowance of food, which is supplied them by Uncle Sam, and is the same as that which the regulars receive.

The Cuban volunteers are doing their best to get the few men who have volunteered for service familiar with the American army drill and regulations, so that should they be attached to the regular army, they will be able to make a respectable showing.

The fact that they are positively amateurs at modern soldiering gives their little camp and their personal actions a "playing at soldiers" appearance, which is heightened in the memory by a fresh vision of the regular army camps.

Thousands of young men are made nervous wrecks, unfit for business, social pleasures or home duties by evil habits in youth, later excesses, or private diseases. W. C. Andrews, of Akron, O., says: "I read this paper and have seen many reports of remarkable cures made by Drs. Kennedy and Kergan. I decided to treat with them. Indiscretion was the cause of my trouble. I was weak and nervous; no ambition; back weak. pimples on the face; thin and haggard; eyes sunken and cheeks hollow; dreams and drains at night; memory poor; varicocele and weak parts; irritable; sinking spells; specks before the eyes; lack of confidence; no energy; and many other complaints. I had tried fourteen doctors, bought four electric belts took scores of bottles of patent medicines—all failed. I tried the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, and it cured me. I am a Man Again. I have gained twenty-six pounds and am strong mentally, physically and sexually. It is a wonderful treatment."

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

ROMANTIC OMEMEE.

Its Beauties Unfolded—Its Necessities Noticed—Its Development Described.

INTERVIEWS WITH ITS BUSINESS MEN.

Somewhere in the neighborhood of 1820 Wm. Cottingham settled in Omemee, which was then a part of the united counties of Peterborough and Victoria. He was soon joined by the founders of such families as the Bradburns, the Thorntons, the Grandys, the McQuades, the Currys, the Nosons and the Mills. Omemee is situated on Pigeon River—the word 'Omemee' being Indian for "pigeon"—and is twelve miles east from Lindsay, fifteen miles west from Peterborough and thirty-three miles north of Port Hope. It is surrounded by a fertile agricultural country, rolling and rustically beautiful, and is the home of a large number of wealthy people. It is an incorporated village of about seven hundred inhabitants, its reeve being T. Stevenson, and its councillors being Messrs. Evans, Skuce, Beatty and T. C. Stevenson. It has six miles of streets, four miles of sidewalks, a fine opera house—the Bradburn; four churches—Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist and Salvationist, but unlike what usually happens in other towns, the different denominations have co-operated to found a PUBLIC CEMETERY.

Omemee possesses in its cemetery, owned in conjunction with Emily township, one of the most beautiful cemeteries in Eastern Canada. It contains a larger number of elegant monuments than any of its size perhaps in the world, conspicuous among the names read are such well known ones as Bradburn, Thornton, Grandy, Clark, Lamb, Bailey, Miller, Walker. Nearly all of these monuments were furnished by Bennett Bros., whose reputation is more than local. It is remarkable that nearly all of those buried in this cemetery died of old age, and were it not for this fact, speaking of cemeteries would naturally suggest doctors. However, the best recommendation Omemee doctors can possibly receive came from the undertaker, Mr. McCrea, when he said that he had only buried one child in over twelve months, and that undertaking was not his winning card. The medical profession is represented by three members, Drs. Cornwall, Cameron and Thompson. Perhaps this would be the best place to say that there is a good opening in Omemee for a druggist, who would not let his agency for Toronto papers interfere with his opinion about the welfare of the community.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES

are well represented, and in one particular instance—that of the Chosen Friends—very strong. Only the other day they paid a death claim of $2,000 to Mrs. Thos. Robinson.

Viewed musically Omemee has always stood near the head, and in the son of Mr. H. Sherwood, has possessed a musician and band leader of much more than ordinary talent. Under his leadership the Omemee band has played in Peterborough and other large places. The mention of Mr. Sherwood brings to mind the question of the

of which his brother, Mr. Joseph Sherwood, is custodian. Ten minutes conversation with Joe makes one think of Pope's celebrated line, "The mind's the standard of the man." Omemee made no mistake in placing in his charge its library, which contains 900 assorted volumes. The fact that 2,500 entries were made on the circulating books shows that reading is not neglected in Omemee. What part of this is due to its really remarkable is perhaps indeterminable. This school (then known as a Grammar school) was organized about forty years ago by the pioneers Cottingham and Stevenson. The fire fiend is no respector of buildings, and the school suffered in Omemee's well known conflagration. The present commodious building cost $3,000. This school has been presided over successfully by Messrs. Hood, Cowan, Shaw, Lumsden, Hunt (whose unfortunate death last year was a matter of public grief) and Jardine, the present principal, who is assisted by Mr. Morgan. A number of noted men look upon Omemee's High School as their Alma Mater. Omemee is proud of its High School and so is the chairman of the board, Mr. McCrea, and columns might be filled in eulogy of its standing and of its benefit to the burg, but space forbids; and only stopping to notice that Omemee has no park, although there are many fine sights for one, attention should next be called to its lack of a

VOLUNTEER FIRE BRIGADE.

Omemee has had several large fires, and it is said experience teaches, but like all old sayings it is not always true. Omemee has not yet learned its fire lesson. It has a good hand engine (manufactured, by the way, in its own foundry) and should have a properly drilled company to operate it and the hook and ladder outfit. There was a uniformed company, but it disbanded some four years ago through lack of interest. The Times, which is ever on the lookout for chances to advance the interests of the Midland towns interviewed the business men of Omemee as to their desire to see a properly equipped volunteer fire brigade, organized and supported by a grant from the council of fifty dollars a year, and with one exception—that of Mr. Mulligan, the druggist and the agent for the Toronto dailies—they all favored the proposition. The following are the names of the gentlemen who concurred: H. Bradburn, W. G. Stevenson, E. C. C. Williamson, J. D. Thornton, S. F. Spellman, J. J. Lamb, R. J. Weir, Eli Dancy, James Evans, J. F. Beatty, W. Calvin, T. J. Parsons, C. Laidley, H. Kennedy, J. E. Adams, Samuel Lamb, Jno. McCrea, Geo. English, G. Griffin, W. Curry and T. Ivory & Sons. Any one acquainted with Omemee will find in this a wonderful unanimity of opinion among the business men.

Considering the beauty of its surroundings, the ozonic nature of its atmosphere, and the fact of its location on a tributary to the Midland lake region, the Times was of the opinion that if properly advertised there was no reason why Omemee should not be a

SUMMER RESORT,

It was met with the argument that until a boat was put upon Pigeon River to carry excursions all advertising would be useless. The question was discussed with a number of public men, and it was finally suggested that a boat built on the co-operative plan, the citizens subscribing for stock, would be the most feasible plan. The Times then interviewed the leading business men, with a view to secure their feeling in the matter, and the following individuals and firms advocated the proposition, in many instances volunteering to take stock: T. Ivory & Son, W. Curry, Geo. English, Jno. McCrea, Samuel Lamb, J. E. Adams, W. H. Kennedy, W. Bradburn, T. J. Parsons, W. Calvin, J. T. Beatty, James Evans, R. J. Weir, J. J. Lamb, S. F. Spellman. It will be seen that Mr. Mulligan and his Toronto dailies are again conspicuous by their absence. It is konwn that if the river was navigated, one of the impediments, the weeds, would cease; a very little dredging would be needed, and goob authority has stated the Government would change the present bridge to a draw.

The chief industries are:—

of Mr. John J. Lamb, established in 1852 by his father, Geo. Lamb, with an output of $20,000 worth a year, and employing 12 hands. Its shipments are made chiefly to Chicago and Liverpool.

THE GRIST MILL.

of Stevenson Bros., with a roller capacity of fifty barrels a day, employing 3 hands and doing a very large local business. Mr. T. C. Stevenson, the older partner, is at present making a tour of the world, and the business is in charge of W. G. The grain market of Omemee is closely in touch with that of Lindsay.

THE CHEESE FACTORY.

of Mr. R. J. Weir, who became proprietor in May. Mr. Weir is a graduate of Kingston Dairy School, and is an expert. The factory has a practically unlimited capacity, and is supplied with all the latest machinery. Mr. Weir's success in the past fully warrants the prophecy that he will be up at the head of the class when the Provincial roll is called.

THE FOUNDRY

operated and owned by Mr. Evans. The building is 90 x 40, with a 40 square wing, and is one of the best equipped in the Province. It has a fine transmitted water power, which is practically inexhaustible. Mr. Evans manufactures hand fire engines and cheese making apparatus, as well as performing all regular foundry work and doing repairing.

THE CARRIAGE SHOP

of George English, who has been in business for 20 years, should not be overlooked. Mr. English is an expert at his business, and has supplied most oft he farmers of the surrounding territory with their lumber wagons and carriages.

No account of the manufactures of Omemee would be complete without noticing Mr. Williamson's Honey Factory. This gentleman has been in the business 25 years, and has it built to the point where he can produce three tons of honey per year.

When the commercial interests of Omemee are being discussed, no firm stands out more prominently than

T. IVORY & SONS.

This firm operate on the cash system and carry a stock of over $15,000 in Omemee, and $10,000 in Bethany, but that is another story, as Kipling would say. They deal in millinery, dry goods, boots and shoes, hats and caps, and groceries, and are advertising many special bargains in all these lines. A visit to their store makes a city man think he has got back home.

Another firm, started 13 years ago by W. Curry, sr., is now operated by W. Curry, Jr., and is known in commercial circles as

W. CURRY & Co.

Although Mr. Curry lost heavily in the fire of '90, he, Phoenix-like, emerged from the ashes stronger than ever, and to-day carries a stock of $15,000, consisting of hardware, shelf and heavy, groceries, canned goods a specialty, boots and shoes, hats and caps. This firm operate along the old lines, and this no doubt, accounts for their large sales. Mr. W. Curry is so much trusted that he is treasurer of almost every organization in the town.

Before leaving hardware, Mr.

W. D. STINSON

must be mentioned. Mr. Stinson carries a complete line of stoves, tinware, enamelled ware, lamps, lamp goods, mixed paints, woodenware, brushes and brooms, washing machines, haying outfits, farmers' scales, Daisy churns, and farming implements of all kinds.

While discussing implement dealers, who is agent for the Deering Harvesting Co., and who is putting up a new ware room on the Main street, is suggested. Mr. Dancey represents also the Mann Manufacturing Co., and handles seeders, cultivators, &c., as well as threshers.

And in this connection, and though last not least, must be noticed Mr.

W. H. KENNEDY

who has been in the business for 20 years. Mr. Kennedy, who handles Hamilton's machinery, also runs a large coal and wood yard. He thoroughly understands his business, and in the handling of lumber, is the representative of Kennedy, Davis & Co. Mr. Kennedy is very anxious to see a boat on the Pigeon River.

While discussing lumber and its products, attention should be called to the popular furniture man. Mr. McCrea started in business in 1859, and although burned out in '91, was up and at it again. His loss was a large one, but his high commercial credit enabled him to go in afresh. Mr. McCrea ist he undertaker of the village. He is also chairman of the High and Public School Board.

Mention has already been made of the honey factory of

MR. E. C. WILLIAMSON.

Attention will now be called to his harness and saddlery business. Mr. Williamson has been in the business for 35 years Omemee, and carries a large line of made up goods. He also handles J. D. King's celebrated boots and shoes, and, in fact, his stock covers everything in the line of leather goods.

The fact that in discussing the hardware lines, omission was made of the name of who handles two lines—hardware and groceries—is the best reason for placing his name at the head of the groceries. Mr. Parsons commenced business in 1872. He handles wall papers, paints, oils, glass, shelf hardware, and carries as well a complete line of groceries and canned goods.

Where all are equally good there can be no order of merit, still as the People's grocer, owns the Opera House, he will come next. Mr. Bradburn makes a specialty of nearly everything he handles, and especially teas and sugars. He keeps an exceptionally fine line of canned goods of all kinds.

It will be noticed that in every town each merchant maeks a specialty of something. Omemee is no exception.

MR. J. E; ADAMS,

the popular grocer, makes a specialty of provisions and smoekd meats. His lines in these goods are very full. He has had 16 years' experience, and is today one of the largest shippers of potatoes and local fruits in the town. His assortment of canned goods is exceptionally large. Mr. Adams is a public-spirited citizen.

An account of the provision dealers of Omemee would be incomplete if it left out who, for 11 years has conducted a flour, feed and seed store in the town. He also handles coal, salt, and land plaster and lumber. Mr. Beatty is one of the large grain dealers of the town and is recognized as one of its foremost citizens.

Fromt he provision dealer to the baker' is a material sequence of thought, and in

Mr. T. A. McPHERSON.

Omemee posses a baker of more than local reputation. He supplies all the surrounding towns, which is the best recommendation that could be given him.

Omemee has in

a most excellent barber. Mr. Calvin also deals extensively in pipes, tobacco and smokers' goods, and withal runs an excellent bicycle livery and repair shop attached, in change of an efficient workman.

MR. C. LAIDLEY.

who runs a merchant tailoring establishment, employing two coatmakers, does a large and lucrative business. He finished his trade in Chicago, as did also his competitor, who carries $1,000 of goods and employs three hands. Mr. Griffin has had 10 years' experience and guarantees satisfaction.

MR. G. GRIFFIN.

A business career of 28 years in one town, is something to be proud of, especially when the person going through the experience has made no enemies except an odd individual who is constitutionally the enemy of everybody. This is the record of as his friends call him. He ran a butcher shop for years and is now operating a livery. He has ten horses and a fine lot of rigs. He also runs the bus to the station and has just put on a handsome new one, built in the town and a credit to any shop.

Mr. Lamb is as good as they make them.

The bus naturally carries one to the hotel, and all travelers who come to Omemee the second time ask for and for S. T. Spellman, its proprietor. His geniality, coupled with his experience, enables him to run a first class house and keep it full. Spellman is all right.

It is always fortunate for any town when it can possess in one of its citizens as public spirited and progressive a man as Omemee posseses in the Clerk of the Division Court. Mr. Thornton also acts as a general agent, representing several of the best fire and life insurance companies. He handles real estate and is prepared to make loans at a low rate of interest. Through his connection with military bands he has also handled all sorts of musical instruments and represents the leading makers.

YOUNG'S POINTERS.

In the ticket selling contest at the Lakefield and Young's Point picnic for special prizes donated by Misses Cahill, Miss Rudkins, Miss Annie Simons and Mr. Martin McFadden, there were five contestants, but the struggle narrowed down between Miss McFarlane and Miss Lottie Kearney, of Young's Point. The finish was very close, and the two came down the home stretch neck and neck, but Miss McFarlane forged ahead and came under the wire a winner of the $5, with Miss Kearney a good second. The drawing has not yet been decided, nor the prizes given by Messrs. Gough Bros. and Mr. James Lynch for the largest family on the grounds, the census not having yet been completed.—Examiner.

How proud these two young ladies must have felt as they "came down the home stretch neck and neck.' The Times wants to say that both the young ladies are energetic, intelligent and good looking, and that the contest was consequently a close one; but it will also ask in the name of Peterborough journalism when this kind of descriptive alliance will cease.

THE LAKEVIEW HOUSE.

Mr. J. E. Kearney, who is a constant reader of the Times, has just added an addition to his commodious hotel, containing ten bedrooms and a parlor finished in the natural colors, and with all modern appliances. The Lakeview has now, with this addition, 30 bedrooms. There is also a picnic ground attached, located on a beautiful island just across from the hotel, which is one of the most picturesque places in Canada. It is needless to add that the fishing at Young's Point is as good as any in the Dominion. It might be added that the Lakeview is within a few yards of an elegant pine grove, and invalids need no recommendation as to an opportunity of this kind. Parties leaving Rochester in the morning can reach Young's Point same evening via Lakefield. It should be needless to say, considering that Mr. Kearney has been in business here for twenty years, that he is not thoroughly familiar with its courtesies and duties.

T. V. C. ASSOCIATION

A Big and Representative Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon

A large and representative gathering of delegates from municipalities along the entire route of the Trent Valley Canal and adjoining districts assembled int he Town Council chamber yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. Mr. John Carnegie, who has been an energetic and indefatigable worker in the Trent Valley Canal scheme from its incipiency, occupied the chair, while Mr. H. S. Macdonald, officiated as secretary.

The chairman, in opening the proceedings, explained that the meeting had been called with a view to reauscitating the Trent Valley Canal Association, and to give fresh impetus to the matter of construction. He read many letters from influential men throughout the interested districts, apologizing for their enforced absence, and all of whom expressed their sympathy with the objects of the association, excepting perhaps the Reeve of Burleigh, who wrote, "you had much better be engaged in securing a railway from Peterborough to Burleigh."

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., thought it hardly necessary to go into details as to the benefits to be derived from the canal, etc., as the delegates were assembled more for the purpose of concentrating their forces than anything else. He would just add, however, that the scheme had received the sanction of a royal commission, and is also approved of by the Minister of Railways and Canals. He could conceive of no reason why the work should not be pushed on to completion as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Stratton here moved that the delegates assembled be organized as an association, to be known as the Trent Valley Canal Association, and that they urge upon the Government the expediency of pushing the work forward with as little delay as possible.—Carried.

Mr. D. W. Dumble thought there seemed to be a dead set made against this scheme by Toronto. Torontonians appear to have an idea that the whole country should be subservient to them. He felt convinced that had deputations not awaited upon the Government, we should not have the canal in its present advanced condition. But things are moving too slowly, and our present aim is to urge that contracts be let for the remaining sections. We consider this not merely a local scheme, but one of national importance. In England there are over five thousand miles of internal navigation, while in Belgium and France canals are still able to compete with railroads in carrying frieght. Continuing, the speaker said he believed that all the grain from the Northwest could be brought through this canal at a cheaper rate than the present cost of transition. Mr. Blair says it will only cost a million and a half dollars to complete the whole canal from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, in addition to the present appropriations. Now we are not going to get this thing pushed through by our present apathy, but must urge its immediate completion.

Mr. Dumble here moved, seconded by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., that the Executive Committee of the Trent Valley Canal Association be composed of the Wardens of all counties through which the canal will run, reeves of townships and villages, mayors of towns, members of Boards of Trade and members of both houses of Parliament.—Carried.

OFFICERS ELECTED

President,—J. R. Stratton, M.P.P.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mayor Morrison, of Trenton.

2nd. Vice-Pres.—Wm. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon.

Secretary-Treas.—S. R. Armstrong, Town Clerk.

Mayor Davis here moved that the association reiterate the opinion expressed by the people of the Midland counties, this this scheme is one of national importance, which will do much towards keeping the carrying trade in our own country, and urge upon the Government the necessity of letting other contracts immediately.—Carried.

Mr. D. M. Dumble moved that several municipalities be invited to contribute towards a fund to enable the association to present its claims to the country, and that the amount required be fixed at $2,000.—Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE

Fifteenth Annual Meeting Now Being Held at Lindsay Statistical and Stationing Committees in Session

The majority of the ministers connected with the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist church have arrived at Lindsay. The general sessions will open this morning at ten o'clock, while the ministerial session opened yesterday at 10 a. m. for the consideration of the characters of the young men to be received into the ministry. The report of the billeting committee does not yet appear owing to the non-arrival of a few of the brethren.

The Statistical Committee met at the Cambridge street Methodist church at 8 o'clock. Rev. J. S. McMullen is the appointed chairman, while Rev. N. D. Drew was elected secretary. Following are the members of the committee:

Belleville—Rev. M. E. Sexsmith.
Napanee—Rev. W. Limbert.
Picton—Rev. H. V. Mounteer.
Brighton—Rev. H. B. Kenny.
Cobourg—Rev. W. Elliott.
Bowmanville—Rev. W. H. Adams.
Whitby—Rev. J. C. Anderson.
Cannington—Rev. W. B. Tucker.
Lindsay—Rev. J. Barnes.
Peterborough—Rev. N. D. Drew.
Campbellford—Rev. F. W. White.
Madoc—Rev. G. Nickle.
Tamworth—Rev. M. W. Leigh.

The Stationing Committee will probably affirm the principle of sending ministers back to where they have been invited a fourth year. In fact, it is stated that practically this has been done. It is reported that the following appointments will be in print for the view of the Conference Thursday morning, subject, of course, to possible change later: Rev. Caleb Parker, appointed to Cobourg, left vacant by the death of Rev. Jas. Kines; Rev. D. N. McCamus to Napanee West; Rev. C. W. Watch to Port Perry; Rev. Leonard Phelps to Metcalfe street church, Oshawa; Rev. J. C. Wilson, Brighton; Rev. D. S. Houck, Tweed; Rev. G. W. Houck, to Belleville West. A full list of appointments will be given later. Two ministers are receiving each large support for the presidency, Rev. W. R. Young, B. A., and T. W. Jolliffe. Both are good men and true and perhaps evenly divide Conference support. There are peculiarities in this Conference that make it an interesting study. Its territory was the scene in 1884 of the union of a hirtherto divided Methodism. At least three of the joining bodies were very largely and almost equally represented. Since then peace with a few local irritations has brought a continuous increasing prosperity, indicated, after a decade and a half of trial, by good reports and by the great interest taken in and about Lindsay by the advent of the fifteenth session of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Dr. Carman, venerable but splendidly able, was given to the church from this Conference. His absence in Japan will no doubt be felt as his presidency for a few hours or a day has been a feature of the sessions of other years.

Prohibition Buttons

A great chance for those little children who collect buttons is to be provided by the prohibitionists, who will distribute 50,000 campaign buttons among the Sunday school children before the plebiscite campaign. Each child will be asked to wear conspicuously a button with the words: "Vote for prohibition and save me." It is a queer thing that these buttons should be given to little children and not to drunkards with whom they would be applicable.

The Olympic Excursion

The Olympic excursion, under the auspices of the club of that name, takes place to-day to Stoney Lake. For days and even weeks, the proprietor of the Burleigh Falls hotel has been scouring the country for table luxuries—for the boys dine there. Dinner will be served on arrival at Burleigh, and it is more than probable that the party will spend the greater part of the day in the dining room. A run around the lake in the afternoon and return to town on the regular evening train, will terminate the excursion which has always been one of the most enjoyable parties of the season.

For Sale or to Rent

That valuable property situated on the corner of Bethune and Edinburgh streets, for sale or to rent. Parties intending to purchase or rent a handsome and commodious residence should not fail to inspect this place. The house is a four-storey brick, 32 x 42, fitted up in modern style, with every convenience, such as city water, bath room, electric light, first class outbuildings, including stable for three horses, driving shed for six rigs, ice house, etc., There is a fine lawn and vegetable garden attached to the house also a number of fruit trees and shrubbery. The above property will be sold cheap or leased for a term of years. For further particulars apply on the premises to J. R. Donell.

The evidence in the case proves Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, boils, humors and all eruptions.

Little Local Lines

—Look out for the news from Independent Bobcaygeon.

—A pork-packing industry is to be established at Bowmanville, on the co-operative plan.

—There is no truth in the rumor that Mr. B. B. Osler is to be appointed solicitor of the Grand Trunk railway.

—A man named Joseph Bandy was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison by Police Magistrate McIntyre, of Lindsay, on Monday.

—The Times Bookstore will close at seven p.m. every evening during June, July and August. The front door will be open, however, till 8.30, for the transaction of business connected with the newspaper and printing business.

The summer term of the Toronto College of Music, 12 and 14 Pembroke St., Toronto, will begin Friday, July 1st, and last for five weeks. Mr. F. H. Torrington will personally supervise all departments.

—The Elementary Theory examinations of the Toronto College of Music are announced to be held in Toronto on Saturday next, June 4th—they will also be held in Peterborough, for the surrounding district. For particulars apply to Mrs. R. A. Howsen, 583 Water street, Peterborough.

—A horticulturist remarks a mistake is made in cutting the grass with a lawn mower and raking the grass off. He claims that the small pieces left on the lawn after it is cut serves not only to protect the tender roots from the sun, but protects them from the frost int he winter, and return to the earth the substance which has been given up in vegetation.

—Lindsay Post: As there is an agitation on foot in many townships for the passing of a by-law enforcing the use of wide tires on all heavy wagons, we would recommend any of our readers who doubt their superiority over the narrow tire to inspect one in use on the farm of Robert Pogue, who lives near Glandine, Mariposa township. He has, in our opinion the best farm waggon in use in Ontario today, and was built by local manufacturers at about one-half the cost of the ordinary waggon.

A BLOODY BATTLE IN PROGRESS

New York, June 2.—A World despatch from Port Au Prince says: The American fleet has renewed the attack at Santiago, and it is reported that the rebels from Signano camp have attacked the city in three columns. A bloody fight is now raging.

DETAILS OF THE FIGHT AT SANTIAGO

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, Port Antonio, Jamaica, June 1.—7 a.m.—For an hour yesterday afternoon, the Massachusetts, Iowa, New Orleans, and Vixen, of Commodore Schley's squadron exchanged shots with the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera and with the land batteries guarding the harbor of Santiago De Cuba behind which the Spanish fleet is hiding. The engagement was the first which has occurred between the two naval forces and was but a prelude to serious work in the latter part of the week. No attempt was made by the American commander to bring on a general engagement, it being merely his desire to locate the batteries on the hills above the harbor andt o determine the location of the Spanish forts. Shortly before 1 o'clock Commodore Schley left the Brooklyn for the Massachusetts, on board of which battleship he remained during the fighting. At 1 o'clock the signal to form column was hoisted on the Massachusetts and the New Orleans, Iowa and Vixen fell in the order named.

The Massachusetts steamed slowly until about five miles west of the harbor entrance, when she turned in toward the shore, and when about 5,000 yards off, turned east again and bore down on the harbor, the New Orleans being close up and the Iowa half a mile behind. The flagship gradually increased her speed and she was soon running through the water at the rate of ten knots an hour. She drew closer and closer to the batteries and when she passed the harbor entrance by 500 yards a great cloud of white and yellow smoke burst from two 13-inch guns in her after turret, and two shells rose over the hill, one of them striking the Spanish flagship Cristobal Colon full and fair as she lay at anchorage and the other falling close alongside. The two guns in the forward turret were then fired and their shells in exploding threw up great jets of spray close to the Colon. All the shore batteries thereupon turned their guns on the New Orleans. This cruiser had been directed to pay attention to the batteries. She had been ordered to draw their fire as much as possible, and she obeyed her instructions to the letter. Her first shot located a large battery on the hill above the Morro. It flew straight into the fort and must have caused much damage as a great cloud of dust and debris rose as the shell burst. A couple more shots sent part of the walls of Morro flying into the air and then the New Orleans confined herself to the batteries, her fire being rapid and extremely accurate, every shot she fired maikng trouble for Spain. The Iowa came next, and like the Massachusetts, devoted her attention to the ships lying within the harbor. Her 12-inch shells made the water fly all around that part of the harbor in which the Cristobal Colon lay, the latter however, was not seriously damaged and kept up her fire until long after all the American ships had steamed out of range. After the Iowa came the little Vixen, which, apparently had no business in a fight where battleships were engaged, but she scudded along after the Iowa like a fox terrier following a mastiff and when at the proper point she let fly with her one six-pounder, and glided away, proudly conscious of having done her best. After the Vixen had passed the Fort the Massachusetts turned again to the westward, followed by the other ships in the same order with the exception of the Vixen, formerlyt he Yacht, which was ordered to keep out of trouble. The ironclads then bore down on the harbor once more. The flagship kept in until less than four thousand yards from the shore and then her shells again began to heave up the waters of Santiago harbor. This time the shore batteries were better served and the Spaniard replied to the warship's fire in energetic fashion. But nearly all the shots from the batteries fell short. Then came the New Orleans once more her long, black guns diong fearful work and tearing up the ground all around the batteries in the most savage manner.

VIOLENT NEGRO TROOPS

They Murder a Banker in Mistake for a Sheriff Whom they Disliked

His Body Was Simply Perforated with Gun and Revolver Bullets and Horribly Mutilated—A Sudden Descent

Tampa, May 26.—A correspondent writes as follows: It is only before the sun has made its appearance, or after it has gone to bed, that one lives in Florida. While the big King Orb is about, the best thing to do is to secure a large fan and hide in some out-of-the-way corner where his majesty cannot get his hot eye on you, and remain there quietly.

The soldiers now follow this program very carefully. At first they did not, but experience has taught them that it does not pay to interfere with the supreme reign of the sun.

The officers likewise have made their hours of leisure coincide with the hot hours of the day, and consequently the men are only drilled in the early morning and at about five in the afternoon. During the balance of the time they lie within the shady shelter of their tents and take things easy; but after supper, when the white sands begin to cool off and the dewey night breezes come up from the sea they steal out of their canvas homes and make merry.

NIGHTLY CONCERTS.

The bands of the different regiments hold nightly concerts in their camps and a goodly crowd of soldiers are generally collected round them, lying on the ground, amid palm shrubbery, and vacantly gazing at the stars listening.

Have you ever observed how very sentimental the average soldier is, and how especially sentimental he becomes when on his way to the wars? This sentimentality is no inspired by fear—these men do not know what fear is—but is the outcome of an inborn religious feeling, which will surely make itself more evident under circumstances as the present.

A big, burly trooper from Nebraska was reclining on the ground listening to the band of the Sixth Cavalry which was giving a concert near the camp. I have known him some days now, and have heard of many of his daredevil, reckless tricks. I had been talking to him in the intervals between the selections, and when the band had commenced playing some old Irish airs we both lapsed again into silence. The light of one of the torches squeezed itself between the stalks of two palmetto trees and shone upon the trooper's upturned face. I watched him from my position in the shadow and marvelled how this usually stern face softened and the steel grey eyes filled with tears as he listened. When the music ceased I could see him glance carefully in my direction and then wipe his eyes with the sleeve of his blouse. He waited a few moments as if to linger on the echoes and then turned lazily to me and said: "Them there songs make me think of home. I ain't been thar for seven year now. Maybe I'll never see it again."

A SUDDEN DESCENT.

About half an hour after I saw my trooper friend from Nebraska riding a bucking horse around a campfire. Each fresh manoeuvre of the steed was accompanied by a wild howl of laughter from the bystanders, and a string of original and terrible oaths oaths from the rider. Soldier-like, he had now quite forgotten everything in his efforts to subdue an unmanageable horse.

The troops have gotten over the idea that there is going to be an immediate move on Cuba, and are settling down to a quiet summer at Tampa. At first everybody was of the opinion that the Government would make the move at once, but from the statements made by the big generals at the Tampa Bay Hotel, it would appear that neither have they enough ammunition in stock or sufficient trained men enlisted to carry on the proposed campaign. Whether the Washington authorities are of the same opinion remains, at the present, to be seen. Every day, of course, brings the army for the occupation of Cuba nearer completion. New guns for heavy and light artillery continue to arrive from day to day. Every train coming from the North brings in hundreds of recruits, and yet the regular army has not its complement of men. The cavalry are nearly completed enlisting, because most recruits prefer riding on horseback to walking, so that the regular infantry regiments are far behind the required number as yet.

Uncle Sam could get all the colored troops he wanted, but he seems to have some objection to bringing in any more than the four colored regiments now in service. There are the Ninth and Tenth Colored Cavalry, and the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Infantry. They all have their complement of men.

TROUBLE AMONG BLACKS.

The Twenty-fourth Colored Infantry, stationed at Ybor City, is still causing trouble, and it looks as if General Shafter is going to be forced to move them, and, if that does not prove effective, disband the regiment. It is most probable that the latter course will be adopted. Because the sheriff of Ybor arrested one of the drunken privates of the Twenty-fourth the men threatened to take his life in payment for the supposed insult to their dignity, and from appearances they intend to carry out their threat. Nightly large gangs of these soldiers post themselves around his residence and the other evening a banker from St. Petersburg, who bore a striikng resemblance to the sheriff, was found near Ybor City, lying on the railroad track, dead. His body was simply perforated with gun and revolver bullets and horribly mutilated. In the absence of any reasonable motive for the murder of the visiting banker, it is supposed that the remarkable likeness between him and the sheriff led the murderers to suppose that they had their victim. The citizens claim that there will be a repetition of the New Orleans afair of some years ago if General Shafter does not remove these troops at once and the general is at his wits' end to know what to do.

GENERAL LEE'S HORSE.

General Fitzhugh Lee, another big, fat soldier, is in town, and has rooms at the Tampa Bay Hotel, along with Generals Shafter and Wheeler. General Fitzhugh Lee is the commander of the volunteer forces for the invasion of Cuba. On his way south he was presented with a blooded charger by some admirers. It is a thoroughbred bay horse, and cost the party who presented it two thousand dollars.

Everything is much the same at Port Tampa to-day, except that there appears to be some uneasiness on account of a report that some Spanish vessels have been seen off the coast of Florida. The news was brought by the Bancroft on her return to port last night from a short cruise off the north coast of Cuba. I spoke to some fisherman who had just returned from a fishing expedition off the west coast, and they claimt hat they positively saw two Spanish cruisers of a small type on three occasions. By what they say, these boats came in at nightfall and at dawn put out further to sea. They were sighted by the Bancroft and a sister gunboat day before yesterday and given chase, but, being much more speedy than the Americans, they were soon out of sight. I noticed that the Bancroft and Helena, and all the twenty-three transports, have been taken farther up the harbor, and that the vessels use their searchlights constantly, through the night. The artillery stationed on the wharves keep a sharp lookout. None of the men are allowed out of their camps without special permission.

The Yucatan, the last of the transports chartered by the Government, which are known to be coming here, arrived at Port Tampa last night. She is one of the largest of the transports. All the vessels for the transportation oft he army to Cuba are being repainted a leaden grey.

Six dynamite gun and six smooth bore guns from Sandy Hook arrived in Tampa this morning.

SPAIN AND INTERVENTION

Senor Leony Castillo Will Ask the Powers to Intervene

San Iago Is in Straits—Filling Up the Harbor—Camera May Have Sailed—Spending Much Money on Both Sides.

London, June 2.—The Madrid correspondent of The Morning Post says: "Senor Leon y Castillo, the Spanish ambassador to France, at his recent conference with the Queen Regent and Senor Sagasta was officially charged to ask the powers to intervene to obtain peace on such terms as would protect the honor of Spain.

"The ambassador will urge as a reason for such intervention the danger of a loss of trade to the powers themselves in the event of the continuance of the war. Political and diplomatic circles in Madrid believes that Castillo will succeed."

SANTIAGO IS IN STRAITS

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 2.—The condition of the population of Santiago since the beginning of the blockade has grown rapidly worse, and is now said to be nearly desperate. Food is very scarce and the poor people are finding it almost impossible to obtain any, because of the enormous prices. The expectation is general that Santiago must soon fall into the hands of the Americans.

WARNING TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Key West, June 2.—The following cablegram has been received by Mr. W. H. J. Taylor, British Vice-Consul here, from the British Consul-General at Havana:

"Please warn the British correspondents of newspapers who may be in Key West with the intention of coming to Cuba to avoid attempting to do so, especially by the means adopted by him, who were all arrested and are now in prison. Needless to say, this recommendation applies with greater stringency to correspondents who are American citizens. Give all possible publicity to this."

FILLING UP THE HARBOR

Key West, Fla., June 2.—The tug Leyden, which has been scouting along the northern coast of Cuba, reports that the Spaniards are filling Cardenas harbor with old hulks, boilers and other ostructions in order to prevent any effective entrance of the American ships.

London, June 2.—Amid the conflicting accounts of what has happened at Santiago de Cuba, it appears that there were two separate incidents—the Spanish torpedo boat attempt on Sunday night, and the American bombardment or reconnoisance, on Tuesday afternoon. Probably neither will turn out of great importance, except as proving that the entrance to the harbor is better protected by mines and guns than might have been anticipated from Admiral Dewey's experience at Manila.

It is believed here that this is all Admiral Sampson desired to discover, and that the Spanish Senate had little to exult over.

Admiral Cervera is expected to repeat the torpedo boat attempts, with a view of keeping the American squadron as distant as possible in order to facilitate his escape. Unless he can do this the Americans are almost certain eventually to capture the three or four Spanish cruisers now known to be inside Santiago.

CAMARA ON THE WAY.

The anxiety, too, that the Spaniards betray in publishing reports as to evolutions of a squadron outside of Cadiz leads to the surmise that Admiral Camara is already on the way. This, as the Daily News suggests, may explain Admiral Cervera's torpedo movement on Sunday and also Commodore Schley's tardy action.

"Therefore," as The Daily News argues, "if Admiral Camara is nearing Cuba, another complication has arisen; and Admiral Sampson will have to take care to prevent him joining Cervera."

The Daily News also suggests that Commodore Schley's bombardment may have covered counter-mining operations with a view of forcing the channel and that if his vessels were damaged, a fresh attempt will probably be postponed."

The Times says that little seems to have been done on either side except to consume gunpowder remarking also that there is one thing at least the admirals and generals on both sides are accomplishing with great steadiness—"they are spending large sums of money, which thier governments must provide."

Apparently Spain's note complaining of America's conduct in the war has not yet been sent to the powers. Certainly, it has not arrived at Berlin, where it may be mentioned, there is no belief in the alleged Franco-Spanish entente, is being argued that French trade relations with the United States and the desire to have America represented at the coming Paris exposition will suffice to prevent France from offending the United States.

FORTY-NINE LIVES LOST

Details of the Foundering of the Maitland and Marksworth in a Terrific Gale off Australia

San Francisco, June 2.—The Australian steamer Moana, which arrived here from Australian points, brings the first details of the wreck of the staemers Maitland and Marksworth off the New South Wales coast, with a loss of 37 lives.

A terrific gale swept the coast on the night of May 7. The passenger steamer Maitland, soon after leaving Sydney harbor, was struck by huge seas and all hands were forced to throw overboard the cargo to keep her from foundering. Heavy seas were hsipped and soon the engine fires were extinguished. Immediately after the vessel struck on a rock and the waves began to break over her. Soon she parted amidships and the crew and steerage passengers who were forward went down and were lost.

THE WOMEN SAVED.

Those left on the after part of the vessel were near the shore. A line was gotten ashore and the women and children were passed first, hand over hand. A man accompanied each woman to catch her should her strength fail. Finally, when three men and the stewardess were on the rope, it broke and all except the third engineer were drowned. The captain, three firemen, boatswain Johnson, and a baby two years old, were left on the wreck. The baby's mother had been saved.

The men wrapped themsleves in blankets and the captain and boatswain took turns in caring for the baby. The next morning a life boat crew got a line to the vessel and all crossed in safety. The mother stood on the shore while her baby was being taken across on the boatswain's back. When the child was safely landed the crowd set up a big cheer.

A SECOND WRECK.

The steam collier Marskworth was wrecked the same night, near Newcastle, and nine out of twelve men perished. The vessel foundered suddenly, but the captain and crew escaped in a lifeboat. The sea was so terrible that the boat was capsized again and again and four men were drowned. Five others, including the captain, died of exhaustion in the boat. The survivors after being fifteen hours in an open boat were washed ashore and rescued.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL STATISTICS

The Trent Valley Canal, under construction, is intended to make navigable for light draught vessels, by connecting various water stretches, about 200 miles of a very circuitous route between the mouths of the Trent River, Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario, and the Severn River, Georgian Bay. As it can only be used for local purposes, and the tract of country through which it passes is well supplied with railways, there is no reason to expect it to be a more profitable investment than the Rideau has been. Over $1,500,000 has already been expended on construction, and the results from this are anything but favorable. For the year 1895 there were 32,000 tons transported on the Trent canal, which chiefly consisted of firewood, floats and saw logs—probably not worth more than $20,000. The revenue for this year was $1,287, andt he cost of maintenance, including interest on investment, $50,000; renewals, repairs and staff, $13,930—$63,930. Sot he cost to the country of transporting this $20,000 worth of freight was $62,643. When the additional millions that are required to complete this work are expended the yearly charge on our country for its maintenance will amount to a considerable sum.

RAILWAY ENTERPRISE

The Yukon fever has subsided somewhat, but to those who still look with longing eyes to the far off gold fields, wheret he shining metal is scooped up by the pailful, the following information about the new steamers on the Stikine route may be interesting:—

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co.'s steamer Ogilvie, one of the twelve new river steamers, which the company is placing in service, has just made her maiden trip on the Stikine river between Wrangel and Glenora. The time taken for this round trip was 61 hours, steaming time on the up river trip being 25 hours, and for the down river trip 10 hours and 45 minutes. It is expected that this time will be considerably improved in future trips. The Ogilvie is 145 feet long, 30 broad and 5 feet deep. She has 38 first cabin berths, fitted with all the latest improvements. The dining saloon will seat 30 people. The steamer is electric lighted throughout and is fitted with a powerful searchlight to admit of river navigation at all hours. These river steamers will run between Wrangle and Glenora in connection with the C.P.R. Co.'s steamships Tartar and Athenian, plying between Vancouver and Victoria and Wrangle. Glenora ist he starting point on the Stikine of the wagon road at present under construction for Lake Teslin, the head waters of the Yukon. By this route there are no mountain passes. The scenery on the Stikine river is said to surpass that of any of the numerous and awe-inspiring inlets on the Alaskan coast.

SHORTAGE IN WHEAT

It is claimed by some United States journals that the high price of wheat is not due to the manipulation of the market by Leiter, nor the war with Spain. They say that it is due entirely to the law of supply and demand, and that Mr. Leiter's success was the result of the scarcity having been underestimated by the statisticians. However this may be, the fact does not lessen the iniquity of Mr. Leiter's efforts to corner the wheat market of the world and to extort the last cent from the teeming masses who require bread and have little money with which to buy it.

There is no doubt now in the minds of careful statisticians that there is a large shortage in the crop that was not suspected six months ago, and that the crop of 1898 will command a high figure. It is estimated that on May 1st there were but thirty-four millions bushels of wheat available in the United States and Canada. A year ago fifty million bushels were available. In 1896 there were nearly one hundred million bushels to be had.

In Europe the conditions are much more stringent. France has thrown off her tariff on wheat, so has Italy and so has Spain. The London Statist says that London, which generally carries 2,460,000 bushels, has but 680,00 in store. In Germany there is a greater scarcity than there has been for thirty years.

This was not realized by the market in general until very lately. It was thought the supply from Argentine produced about half an ordinary crop and India fell short as well. When this was realized, up went prices with a jump. And the end is not yet.

The following table shows how the law of supply and demand governs the wheat market as well as any other market:

Year	Bushels
1873	1,800,000,000
1874	1,800,000,000
1875	1,800,000,000
1876	1,808,000,000
Average	1,821,000,000
1877	1,960,000,000
1878	2,000,000,000
1879	1,856,000,000
1880	1,960,000,000
Average	1,944,000,000
1881	1,960,000,000
1882	2,200,000,000
1883	2,040,000,000
1884	2,240,000,000
1885	2,080,000,000
1886	2,160,000,000
1887	2,280,000,000
1888	2,224,000,000
Average	2,184,000,000
1889	2,144,000,000
1890	2,264,000,000
1891	2,376,000,000
1892	2,408,000,000
Average	2,296,000,000
1893	2,472,000,000
1894	2,560,000,000
1895	2,496,000,000
1896	2,496,000,000
1897	2,280,000,000

Last year's crop was the smallest in eight years. The demand was larger than usual. The inference is too plain to require comment.

How would it do for "Schley" to take one of the fleet's "cuttres" and slide into Santiago harbor and let 'snow for a face whether or not Cervera is there?

The Health of the Hair is indicated by its condition. When the natural secretions decrease; when the hair becomes dry, splits at the ends and comes out in combing; when the gloss disappears and the hair becomes gray or faded, the ill health of the hair is indicated. The success of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is due to the fact that it restores the hair-producing organs to their natural vigor. It encourages and promotes the secretions of the hair follicles, and thus gray or faded hair regains its original color, new growth begins, and lost lustre is restored.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for fifteen years. It causes the hair to keep its natural color and is a positive cure for baldness."—T. B. WEYANT, Weyant, Pa.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing thee musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N.Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the E. & D. BICYCLE are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this. The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

"I shall be able to meet them. You have promised to respect my wishes. Let us drop the subject."

Edith's pleasure in the day was all gone. She felt unhappy, and knew that Stella was in the wrong and would surely repent her own short-sighted conduct.

"I shall not allude to the subject after to-day," she said, and her voice sounded cold and unnatural even to herself; "but I must tell you of an interview I had with Harold Dutton before I left Brandon. We have had so many other matters to occupy our thoughts that I never troubled you about it; now I have received a letter from him which I shall reply to. Here is the letter from him, and the next time we meet you can tell me what you can tell me what you wish me to say in response."

"Harold Dutton! What interest do I take in the man? Who is he?—the long, lank lawyer, who always sat staring with big, white-looking eyes Mr. Kent's church?"

"The same. If you read his letter, which is certainly intended more for your eyes than mine, you will see what he says."

She handed it to her friend, and the conversation came to an end, for the girls were now on the car, which was crowded.

They parted with less cordiality than they ever had before.

Edith was disappointed and sad, though she felt that Stella, and not herself, had been in fault.

"She is not the girl I thought her," she said, sadly. "I have been mistaken in her. Well, it is only one more disappointment in this world of delusions."

She sighed, for she thought of Harold Dutton.

"He is a noble fellow, and I could have loved him dearly," she said; "but he never bestowed one thought on me. His heart is given to Stella, who speaks of him as the 'long, lanky lawyer, with big, white-looking eyes.'"

CHAPTER XIV.

Walter Derwent was in some respects a remarkable man. He had been reared in luxury, and his mother had never exercised any authority over her eldest son, of whom she was extremely proud. He was of an intense nature; whatever he did was thoroughly done. He had been high in his class, at school and college, and graduated with honors; and still he belonged to the athletic clubs, and was the leading spirit among boating men, kept fine horses, and played baseball with enthusiasm.

His faults, as Mrs. Rush termed them, were pride and intolerance of all weakness in others, mental and physical, and a sense of justice which was almost cruel in its severity.

"Walt never forgives," his school-fellows were wont to remark, so any one who wished to retain his favor was careful never to offend him.

Such was the character of the man who had learned to love Stella Sterling the first time he ever saw her. He had never cared for any woman before, had indulged in no youthful follies or fancies, and had often been chaffed by his college mates as a "woman-hater."

Stella had won him as much by her proud, independent nature as by her beauty. He had been attracted by her fearless conduct during the distressing scene with Waddy Marshall and the policeman.

"She looked like a queen!" he said, as he strolled home, after seeing her safe inside Mr. Jameson's house. "Her eyes were full of fire, and her lips curled. She is as frank and brave as she is lovely. A noble nature! A pearl among women!"

Ah, if Stella had only known that the safest course was to fully confide in the man who had won her heart!

But her eyes were blinded. She justified herself by saying, "The criminal is not my father."

Short-sighted policy, but she lived to rue bitterly.

When she returned home from the park, Nina met her with a sort of mysterious look upon her face, which, unfortunately, Stella was too absorbed to remark.

The creole was delighted; she had a secret and a secret, too, which concerned the new governess.

Dearly as she loved Stella, Nina was not yet averse to plotting a little without informing her new friend.

The thought had been suggested to her by no less a person than Jeffrey Pettus.

Edith had not been mistaken when she said that the sallow-faced schemer had watched them as they left Mr. Jameson's house.

He had returned from Brandon in rather low spirits. He had intended to cut adrift from Croft, and found that if he did so he could never secure Stella's fortune, which was, it is needless to say, the chief attraction in his opinion.

He wanted to obtain an interview with her, and ascertain whether she was aware of her position as a prospective heiress.

To accomplish this was not easy. The first step was to have a talk with Sandy Bayne.

A note addressed to the worthy coachman speedily brought him to Clem Nugent's saloon.

After some desultory conversation, Jeffrey said, carelessly.

"I saw two fine-looking girls riding up to your door the other day."

"Yes; it's likely they were the governess and the lass I call the blackamoor."

"They were both dark, only one of them was as handsome as a picture."

"Yes, that's Miss Sterling; she has two black een that could pierce a hole in a brick wall."

"So your blackamoor has a governess?"

"And muckle need, for the lass is as ignorant as 'the brutes that perish.'"

"What sort of a young lady is the governess?"

"Weel, I hear she is a high and mighty lass, that cannot put up with any pompous ways. She took the measure of the creole in less than no time."

"Does she get angry so easy?"

"So they say; I have no knowledge of her myself. I just bring the horses around and ride behind the lasses. She is always civil enough to me."

Jeffrey Pettus pondered over what he had heard. He also remembered very well the interview Stella had with her step-father in the jail at Brandon.

"I guess I'll reconnoiter a bit," he said. "What's the matter with getting acquainted with the black amoor as Sandy calls her?"

He waited and watched his opportunity. It soon came. Stella started for the park with Edith; then Jeffrey Pettus boldly rang the bell and inquired for Miss Dunlap.

Nina felt flattered; she had never entertained a gentleman caller; it made her feel like a grown-up lady, and she entered the reception-room with great dignity.

"Good afternoon, Miss Dunlap," said Jeffrey, bowing deeply. "I called to inquire about Miss Sterling."

"Oh," said Nina, in a disappointed tone, "she is out."

Jeffrey was, as he termed it, "sizing up" the West Indian girl.

"She is as conceited as an ape," he said to himself. "I am not sorry that she is not at home," he said aloud, trying to look as fascinating as he could, "for her absence has been the means of forming your acquaintance."

Nina smiled approvingly. This was the ikna of talk she appreciated.

"I am not a friend of Miss Sterling," Jeffrey resumed, in a friendly, conversational tone. "In fact, I am not even acquainted with her; but I have heard something which will be a great advantage to her, and I want to inform her of it; but I hear she is a very unapproachable sort of a lady."

Blacking.

Liquid blacking, such as is now used, was invented early in the present century. Previously various mixtures were used. There are many allusions in last century literature to shoeblacks and blacking. In the London World of Jan. 31, 1754, Edward Moore, describing the miseries of an author, says that he would rather have started in life as a shoeblack had he but had the money to buy or credit to procure "a stool, brushes and blackball." An old kind of blacking consisted of ivory black, very coarse moist sugar and water, with a little vinegar. A mixture of whale oil and soot was used in Gay's time. The author of "Trivia" has several allusions to the "black youth" who stood at street corners then, as now:

Hark! The boy calls thee to his destin'd stand,
And the shoe shines beneath his oily hand.

Do Foe makes his Colonel Jack describe himself when a boy as a dirty vagabond, "like a 'Black your shoes, your honor?' a beggar boy, a blackguard boy or what you please, despicable and miserable to the last degree."

Here is another quotation from "Trivia" (1715?):

His treble voice resounds along the mews,
And Whitehall echoes, "Clean your honor's shoes!"

—Notes and Queries.

Quick Journeys Made Now.

A French statistician has just drawn up an interesting document showing at various periods in what time certain frontier towns could be reached from Paris. The years chosen are 1650, 1782, 1834, 1854 and 1897. In 1650 it took five days to go from Paris to Calais. One hundred and thirty-two years later, in 1782, the duration of the journey had been reduced to 60 hours. In 1834 it had fallen to 28 hours and in 1854 to 6 hours 40 minutes. Today one of the boat expresses takes 3 hours 42 minutes.

The journey to Strassburg took 218 hours in 1650, 108 hours in 1792, 10 hours 40 minutes in 1854 and today a matter of 8 hours 20 minutes.

The difference for Marseilles is still more phenomenal. From 15 days in 1650 the duration of the journey was reduced to 80 hours in 1834, and today it takes 12½ hours. The distance from Paris to Bayonne two centuries ago took 388 hours. Today it occupies 11 hours 11 minutes. Brest can be reached in 13 hours 37 minutes, while in 1650 it took 270 hours. Finally, for Havre, 97 hours was considered quick traveling in 1650. It took 15 hours in 1782 and 17 hours in 1834. Today it is a matter of 3 hours 15 minutes.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

New Way to Catch Rabbits.

Will Brooks was in town the other day, and told us of a new way of catching rabbits. A lighted lantern placed on the frozen surface of a pond attracts the rabbits. They gather around the unfamiliar object and sit and gaze upon the light until the tears drop from their eyes and freeze to the ice, and the next morning one only has to take a sack and gather them in.—Savannah (Mo.) Republican.

Hebrew Texts of the Old Testament.

The most ancient Hebrew manuscript of any part of the Bible is in St. Petersburg and dates no earlier than the tenth century. More than 2,000 copies of the Hebrew Old Testament have been compared, and very few variations have been found. This is accounted for by the fact that from the time when the Hebrew canon was formed, and even before that time, very strict rules were laid down for the scribes who copied the Bible. The lines and letters were counted, and each copy had to correspond precisely with the one from which it was taken. They calculated, for instance, that there were 5,245 verses in the Pentateuch, 22,206 in the whole Bible and 78,100 letters in Genesis. All of these rules and calculations were called the Massorah tradition, and about the tenth century the college of rabbis of Tiberias, on the Euphrates, decided upon a standard Bible, or "authorized version."

The Hebrew consonants alone had been written down up to that time, the pronunciation being a matter of tradition. Now a system of vowel signs was devised, fixing the sense in many instances. The vowels are just as important in Hebrew as in English so it is easy to see how necessary this reform was. The English consonants b r d may be read board or bread, or bored or braid, and if they occurred in a sentence without the vowels we should have to guess by the connection which vowels were necessary. It is possible that after a text had been adopted all older manuscripts were destroyed, or more probably were neglected because of their defects, and hence they have altogether disappeared.—Review of Reviews.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

CABLES NOT CUT

Kingston, Jamaica, June 1.—The West Indian and Panama Cable Company are still receiving messages from Santiago de Cuba, and the company avers that the cables are not cut.

A BATTLE HAS BEEN FOUGHT

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 1.—The Daily Bulletin issued by the French Cable Co. here to-day, apparently confirms the news of Spanish origin to the effect that a battle has been fouhgt before Santiago De Cuba. It says: Santiago De Cuba, May 31.—To-day at 2 o'clock, the American fleet, composed of 14 ships, of which one appeared to be the New York, and flew the flag of Admiral Sampson, and a few torpedo boats, opened fire on the forts and on the roadstead with heavy guns. The fire of the Americans appeared to be directed principally on the Roadstead and on the forts of El Morro, Socapa and Punta Gorda. The cannonade was very brisk up to 3.45. The shells fell into the bay but did not reach as far as the town. After 3.45 the cannonade weakened and the cannon shots were heard in the offing. The Americans completely ceased firing after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At 2 o'clock to-day the American steamer Fantia arrived at Cape Haytien from New York and Port De Paix. She reports that she did not see any warships.

A REPULSE

Madrid, June 1.—In the Senate today Count Casa Valencia asked if "The news of the American repulse at Santiago De Cuba was official." The Minister of Marine, Captain Aunon replied affirmatively, adding: "The news is a a good augury for further victories which the courage and high merit of our sailors give reason to hope for." The Senate then unanimously "noted with satisfaction the brilliant victory oft he Spanish fleet."

NO NEWS YET.

Washington, June 1.—The Navy Departemnt had no word at 9.30 this morning of the reported bombardment of defences of Santiago and is inclined to believe any firing was not of au important character.

ARRESTED A GERMAN.

Madrid, June 1.—The British Ambassador, Sir Henry Drummond-Wolff, had another long conference yesterday with Lieut.-General Correa, Minister of War.

A German who was caught sketching the fortifications at Ceuta, in Morocco, opposite Gibraltar, has been arrested.

General de Bourbon, who was arrested during the riots at Madrid prior to the outbreak of the war, has been liberated.

THE PASSENGERS SAFE.

Philadelphia, June 1.—The passengers and crew of the freight steamer Belvidere, which was wrecked off Cape Mayai, Cuba, are on the Norwegian steamer Kong Frode from Port Antonio which will reach this city at noon to-day. Belvidere sailed from Kingston for Boston on Wednesday last and was wrecked the following day. The Kong Frode passed Reedy Island in the Deleware this morning and signalled all well.

SHE CARRIES DESPATCHES.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 1.—3.45 a. m.—The United States torpedo boat Porter put into the harbor of the Mole St. Nicholas at one o'clock this morning in all probability with despatches for Washington, and left there again at two o'clock.

FOUR ROWS OF MINES.

Key West, June 1.—The report reached here the Schley's ships have made examinations of the batteries and the channel, revealing much stronger guns and mines than were supposed to exist. Four rows of mines have been laid across the narrow entrance of the harbor.

Early this morning the Marblehead ventured to within two miles of the harbor and positively recognized the cruiser Cristobal Colon and two cruisers of the Viscaya type, and the dismantled cruiser Reina Mercedes, upon which guns have been mounted, making her a floating fort. This leaves only two ships of the Cape Verde fleet unaccounted for by Commodore Schley. All the ships were originally in such a position in the harbor that they could not be seen from the outside, but on the appearance of the American warships they betrayed their presence by moving across the entrance to sweep it with broadsides.

A CHECK BEFORE SANTIAGO.

Madrid, June 1.—11 a.m.—The Minister of Marine, Captain Aunon, has received a despatch saying the American squadron has suffered a check before Santiago de Cuba. The fire from the Spanish forts and the fleet of Admiral Cervera, is alleged to have repulsed the American ships, which retreated, damaged. The Spanish fleet did not suffer.

THE PRESIDENT DUBIOUS.

Washington, June 1.—President McKinley, at noon to-day had neither confirmation nor denial of the reported general engagement between Schley's fleet and the Spanish forts at Santiago. The absence of official information on the subject prompts the President to express the belief that there has been no such engagement. Whatever firing occurred off Santiago yesterday, was, he thinks, directed against some Spanish torpedo boats which may have tried to break through the blockade. His lack of official information is the President's sole reason for discrediting the report. Schley has a number of swift scouting craft with him and had there been the battle reported one of these would have been sent to a cable station in time to send the official news to the White House before daybreak.

SICKNESS IN CAMP.

Tampa, Fla., June 1.—There is considerable sickness among the soldiers of the 71st New York volunteers, and although only one fatality has occurred so far, several members of the regiment are seriously ill. Seevnteen of them are now under the care of the physician. Most of the sickness is due to change of weather, although long hours of drilling in the intense heat to which the northerners are unaccustomed, have resulted in several prostrations.

SHADY BOWERS.

The regular infantry have converted their camps into a collection of shade bowers; one of these in the Twelfth Infantry's quarters is about fifty feet long and ten feet wide. Along each side fo this two comfortable benches runt he entire length; and in the centre is a wooden table, on which the privates eat their meals, and collect and tell the funniest of real funny stories, or discuss, with many startling adjectives, the latest news from the sent of war.

Major-General Joe Wheeler to-day reviewed the cavalry troops stationed here. General Wheeler is the commander of the cavalry corps for the army of invasion. He seemed to be in his glory as he sat upon his big sprightly horse and watched the troops pass by, first slowly, then faster, then at a break-neck gallop. The general is an old man now, but though his hair is white, and his soldierly form shaken with years, his eye is clear and his step as firm as any trooper under his command.

The Ninth colored cavalry was brought in from Port Tampa and took part in the drill with the Third, Sixth and Second regiments. The review was held in the big field behind the Tampa Bay Hotel and was witnessed by a small party of citizens and a large delegation of newspaper correspondents.

SPLENDID HORSEMEN

Although a great deal has been said about the colored troops not behaving themselves out of camp, or in fact int he camp when off duty, there is onet hing that can be said in their favor, and that is that they carry themselves splendidly in the saddle, much better than the majority of the white troopers, and they have their collective drill down to a fine point. Whether they possess the fighting qualities of the white troops, will, in this instance, remain to be seen.

The more one sees of the Cuban volunteers, the more one is impressed with the unfortunate fact that they are an inferior lot from the soldier standpoint, and evidently quite unable to look after their own affairs. We all know now that the last expedition to Cuban shores, which had a number of native volunteers along with it, had some trouble in getting these gentlemen to leave the boat when they arrived at their destination. It is said that the captain gave the party five minutes to get ashore and threatened them that if they did not leave in that time he would use other means to persuade them. These Cubans were under the impression that they were going in company with the American soldiers and when they found they were to be landed alone their corage gave out andt hey refused to go ashore.

Tampa, Fla., May 25.—A correspondent writes: To a civilian the most remarkable thing about the regular soldiers is the rapidity with which they adapt themselves to their surroundings. Two or three days ago nothing but their tents could be seen on the camping fields. A look at the different regiments' quarters to-day conveys the impression that the troops had been some months on the ground. Every officer'st ent is surrounded with a shelter of palm and pine stalks, over which is spread the thick green foliage of these teees. This forrms a grand protection from the sun, and no doubt, should rainy weather set in, would be no less a shelter. Speaingk about rain most of the inhabitants must have forgotten by this time what real rain is like, for I am told they have not had a good shower in this vicinity in the last seven months.

Thousands of young men are made nervous wrecks, unfit for business, social pleasures or home duties by evil habits in youth, later excesses, or private diseases. W. O. Andrews, of Akron, O., says: "I read this paper and have seen many reports of remarkable cures made by Drs. Kennedy and Kergan. I decided to treat with them. Indiscretion was the cause of my trouble. I was weak and nervous; no ambition; back weak; pimples on the face; thin and haggard; eyes sunken and cheeks hollow; dreams and drains at night; memory poor; varicocele and weak parts; irritable; sinking spells; specks before the eyes; lack of confidence; no energy; and many other complaints. I had tried fourteen doctors, bought four electric belts took scores of bottles of patent medicines—all failed. I tried the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, and it cured me. I am a Man Again. I have gained twenty-six pounds and am strong mentally, physically and sexually. It is a wonderful treatment."

THE REFORMED FAKIR.

He Had a Great Graft the Winter He Spent In Albany.

"I've earned an honest living in many ways," said the reformed fakir, when he was raking over the dead leaves of his past the other night, "but I never struck such a graft as I was up against the year I wintered in Albany. A friend got me a little job there that paid me a couple of dollars a day. Besides that, I was entitled to a pass down to New York and back every week. I might have starved if I had been so exclusive as to try to live on this alone. So I set my wits to ferreting.

"I hadn't been there long before all the pretty girls in town were after me. No, as I don't pose as a handsome man I did not take it to heart. They didn't want me, but they wanted the autographs of the statesmen. I'd sing 'em a song like this:

"'Why, cert, girls, I'd be delighted to oblige you. Nothing would give me greater pleasure. But you know I can't go on the floor. My friend the doorkeeper, however, can get just what you want, but it will be some trouble to him, and he may charge 10 or 15 cents, and'—

"'Oh, that's all right,' the girls would say, and nearly every one would put down a quarter a sig. And every quarter went into my pocket, for that guff about not being allowed to go on the floor was all a blind. So's they wouldn't see me, I'd just tackle the statesmen somewhere else.

"Then I got on to the money to be made in strikes. Every time a bill was introduced that would hurt some one or some interest in New York, I learned all I could about the matter there and wrote to a friend in New York who looked up the other end. Then I would write to the parties something like this:

"'A bill detrimental to your interests has been introduced here. Better come up and see about it.'

"When they reached Albany, I never failed to get my reward for putting them on.

"There was another way of coining an honest plunk—I worked all the boys I could for passes. Those who didn't go home over Sunday were willing to give up, and those who could get more than one I jollied into turning the extras over to me. Then I sold them to fellows who couldn't get even one pass, or who wanted two or three.

"By these grafts I managed to live well, and save every cent of my salary."—New York Press.

A THOROUGH ARTIST.

Sir Edward J. Poynter's Great Care For Minute Details.

It may almost be said that it is impossible to appreciate the finished work of this artist without some knowledge of the contents of those portfolios which contain his drawings. It at all events increases our respect for the man and his art to know how much thought and labor and thorough craftsmanship have gone to the making of his more important compositions. For the figure of St. George, for instance, which we see clothed in a complete suit of Maximilian armor, gleaming through the dusk of the lobby of "the house," he thought it necessary to draw the figure nude, and not only nude, but ecorche, and it was not unusual for him about this time to make a study even of the skeleton in the attitude required for a figure. Such a drawing I have before me now—a drawing for one of the men, who is stooping to pick up a stone to hurl at St. Stephen, on one side the figure nude, but fully fleshed; on the other, trunk and legs and arms "in the bones."

Contrasted with such studies there are others of great completeness and finish, but still preparations—one, for example, of the same St. George, but fully armed, with his attendant figures of Purity and Fortitude fully draped and underneath the shield of the United Kingdom, with naked children on either side holding a festoon. The work is bordered with a band of roses conventionally treated and executed in water colors with the utmost care, yet so broadly that when photographed it looks like a fresco. This little drawing, almost as beautiful in color as in design, was experimental only. The shield and the children were replaced by a more formal design for the mosaic.—"Sir Edward J. Ponyter, P. R. A.," by Cosmo Monkhouse, in Scribner's.

English Jacobite Societies.

To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar For 1895," which includes the order of the White Roses, the Devon White Rose club, the Legitimist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (ponderous title!), the Eastern Counties' (shade of Cromwell!) White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Grimsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club, the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hunts) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration league, the Surrey White Rose league, the Mary Stuart club of Lanark, the Legitimist Registration union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemingford Grey Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to put several hundred adherents in the field (or even Ludgate circus) if they so decide.—London Mail.

PLUCKING THE INNOCENT.

One Fakir Who Was "Done" by the Farmers.

"No," said the soap fakir to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no use talking to me about the innocence of the countryman. He may buy a gold brick occasionally or sign a blank check and lose his farm, but, as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the next one and generally a little better. If I knew as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in this business, and you can gamble on that.

"Why, say, do you know what happened to me the last time I was down in the country? I got pinched, that's what I done. I got my satchel out in front of the hotel in a little town about thirty miles east of here and began to do a few tricks to draw a crowd.

"After I'd made an egg disappear and pulled a few knots up in for them, I says: 'Now, gentlemen, I'm goin' to show you a trick that nobody else on earth has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time bein' to a flower pot. Out of that hat I'm goin' to make a bush grow up, and when I've done that I'll make every leaf on it turn into a $5 note.'

"What? Did I do it? Of course I did. But, say, do you know what came of it? Blamed if they didn't arrest me and fine me $15 for raisin' bills, which the justice of the peace said was contrary to the statoots made and provided.

"Well, I sort of had a hankerin' to know whether they done it in good faith or just because they thought I was easy pickin', and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town hadn't paid any taxes for eight years. They'd actually been runnin' things by pluckin' just such innocent fellows as me.

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill in one of these little packages. Who will give me 10 cents for the first choice?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Curiosity.

"I hear that Jenkins, the politician was found in his flat in a starving condition."

"Poor fellow! He must have been honest."

A Neat Evasion.

"Yes, Miss Agnes, those are the customs officers waiting for us."

"And is it true that returning tourists are only allowed $100 worth of baggage?"

"It is too true. The law is imperative. How much baggage have you, Miss Agnes?"

"Fully $175 worth."

"And I have $25."

"Must I pay?"

"There is— there is but one way to avoid it. Miss Agnes, dear Miss Agnes, let us share our lives and—and our baggage! Be my wife!"

"Why, Mr. Littlebait, how you have startled me!"

"See, they are looking this way! Quick, your answer!"

"How can I——"

"Here they come! Yes or no?"

"Yes, but——"

"Yes, Mr. Inspector, it is just a hundred apiece."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ambiguous.

The following rather ambiguous advertisement appeared in the "Personal" column of a western newspaper a short time ago:

"Wanted—Information regarding the whereabouts of Ebenezer Jones, who is supposed to have died in this city last year."

A still more ambiguous personal appeared in a Chicago paper a year or two ago. It was as follows:

"If this should meet the eye of Lewis Smith and he will send his present address to his old home he will hear something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

Compressed Flour.

The British admiralty and the war department are testing, under various climatic conditions, the new method for preserving flour. One objection to the establishment of national granaries has been the difficulty of storing grain for any length of time. The grain germinates and is ruined, and to keep large quantities in sound condition has been pronounced impracticable. Experiments are being made with a system of compression into bricks by hydraulic pressure. The trials show that the flour so treated is not affected by damp, even under unfavorable conditions, and is free from mold. The compression destroys all forms of larval life and the flour is thus rendered safe from the attacks of the insects. The saving in storage is enormous, as the cubic space occupied by 100 pounds of loose flour will hold more than 800 pounds of the compressed article.—Scientific American.

High Flown.

Mrs. Minnie E. Leo says: "In a Paris cafe I asked the maid whether she did not think the name on the menu, 'demi tasse cafe au lait frappe a la glace,' was very inflated for such a small cup of cold coffee and milk. 'Yes, madame,' she replied, 'it occupies the mind as well as the stomach.'"

THE TIMES' ROBBERY

Harry Ross, the Accused, Receives a Preliminary Hearing Yesterday Morning

Harry Ross, who is accused of having robbed the gas metre in the basement of the Times office on Wednesday, April 6th, appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning for his preliminary hearing.

Mr. Harry Beal, of the Light and Power Co., was the first witness called. He testified as to the locality of the metre, the principles upon which it worked and as to the amount of money it contained at the time of the robbery. There was $6.00 missing, 50 cents of this amount being found on the floor in the vicinity, and this tallied with amount shown by the the automatic registering apparatus in connection with the metre.

J. McQuoid, a machine operator in the Times, was the next witness. He corroborated the evidence of Mr. Beal as to the locality of the metre and stated that he had put 25c. in the metre about 1 o'clock on the morning of the robbery. At that time the metre was apparently all right, and the prisoner was in the machine room. To Mr. Stone, counsel for the defence, he said that the metre was in the cellar in rear of the press-room, and accessible to other employees. The first intimation he had of the robbery was about 11 o'clock Wednesday forenoon. He met the prisoner shortly afterwards and in the course of a conversation with him the robbery was mentioned, but could not say who spoke of it first. He knew nothing of the prisoner's finances, but understood that he had drawn his salary the day previous. He was positive the accused had not left the composing room after his (witness's) visit to the metre. He understood that the prisoner had, at the suggestion of Mr. W. Fleming, handed his money over to Mr. Hulbert, the reporter, to keep for him, as he (the prisoner) was under the influence of liquor. He did not see the money, but heard it jingle, and thus formed the opinion that it was in coin and not in bank notes.

Mr. Edward Hulbert, journalist, formerly on the Times staff, was the next witness. He swore that Ross was in the composing room on the first floor at 12.30 a. m., Wednesday, April 6th, and to the best of his knowledge remained there until about 3 o'clock. The prisoner was somewhat under the influence of liquor and was persuaded by W. Fleming to give his money to witness for safe keeping. The amount thus given him was all in quarters, and amounted to $5.50. He did not think that Ross had been in the basement where the metre was located between the hours of 12.30 and 3 a. m., when he (witness) left for his hotel. When handing the money to witness the prisoner expressed surprise at the amount, saying: "How the devil did I come with all that?"

W. Ingle, Lindsay, formerly of Times staff, corroborated the evidence of the other witnesses as to the time the prisoner was in the composing room, and also testified to having heard the jingle of money as it was placed on the proof press when handing it to Mr. Hulbert. He (witness) had placed money in the gas metre on several occasions, but had not been near it on the night in question. He first heard of the robbery at 11 o'clock that morning.

At this juncture, County Crown Attorney Wood asked for an adjournment, owing to Chief Roszel having to leave for Windsor to secure McDonald and Fobes—the two prisoners who broke jail last week.

The prisoner's counsel, Mr. Stone, asked the magistrate for the acquittal of Ross, claiming that there was no evidence to hold him on. Mr. Stone said that it had been already proven by the testimony of three witnesses that the prisoner had not left the composing room between the hours of 12 and 3 o'clock, a. m., and that McQuoid had sworn that on his visit to the metre at 1 o'clock he had not noticed that it had been tampered with, therefore, in his opinion, the prisoner should be acquitted.

County Crown Attorney Wood insisted upon a remand until the return of Chief Roszel from Windsor, when the remaining witnesses could be examined.

The magistrate remanded the prisoner until Tuesday next.

CAUGHT AT WINDSOR

McDonald and Fobes, the Gaol Breakers, Captured Yesterday at Windsor

The Chief of Police received a telegram from Windsor yesterday morning which delighted him greatly. It announced the capture there of James McDonald and Fobes, the two Peterborough gaol breakers. The message read as follows:

James McDonald and Fobes arrested here.

E. WILLIS,
Chief Constable.

In the afternoon Chief Roszel left on the 1.18 C. P. R. express for the west to bring the prisoners to Peterborough.

Mr. H. Nesbitt, gaoler, was even more pleased than the chief by the news, and it is safe to predict that when once the pair of gaolbreakers are lodged in limbo again it will have to be by some other means than breaking out that they will regain their liberty.

PETERBORO' DEFEATS ORILLIA

In One of the Best Games of Lacrosse Played Here in Years

The lacrosse match played on the P. A. A. A. grounds yesterday between Orillia and Peterborough was easily one of the best games played in Peterborough in recent years.

It was clean, swift lacrosse from start to finish, and the spectators were mightily pleased—not because Peterborough won altogether, but on account of the clean, scientific style of the play and the beautiful combination work of both teams.

Peterborough won the match by 8 goals to 5, but it was anybody's game all the way through.

The teams were comprised as follows:

Peterborough		Orillia
	Goal
Dobbin		Watson
	Point
Lynch		Quinn
	Cover Point
Brown		Frank
	1st Defence
Mein		O'Connor
	2nd. Defence
McCabe, Jas.		Hammond
	3rd Defence
McDonough, M.		Thompson
	Centre
King		Dunn
	3rd. Home
Rubidge		Bayer
	2nd. Home
Glover		Armstrong
	1st. Home
McCabe, Jack		Wilkinson
	Outside Home
Lipsett		Grant
	Inside Home
Rickey		Connors
	Field Captain
B. Dolan		M. J. Yeats
	Umpires
E. Wasson		B. Kean

Mr. H. O'Loughlin, of St. Catharines, acted as referee, and his decisions gave entire satisfaction to both teams. In fact, it is doubtful whether a referee ever gave better satisfaction in Peterborough than did Mr. O'Loughlin.

The games were won as follows:—

1st game, Orillia, 6 minutes.
2nd game, Peterborough, 2 minutes.
3rd game, Peterborough, 2 minutes.
4th game, Orillia, 3 1-2 minutes.
5th game Peterborough, 5 minutes.
6th game, Peterborough, 9 minutes.
7th game, Orillia, 4 minutes.
8th game, Peterborough, 8 minutes.
9th game, Peterborough, 3 minutes.
10th game, Orillia, 1 minute.
11th game, Orillia, 4 minutes.
12th game, Peterborough, 5 minutes.
13th game, Peterborough, 3 minutes.

By the above it will be seen that the score stood 8 to 5 in favor of Peterborough.

NOTES.

Myles McDonough played his first senior match yesterday and right well did he acquit himself. He is a coming man.

At times the local home combination was brilliant.

"Rolly' Glover played a fine game on home. "Rolly" should never be changed from the home field.

"Jim" McCabe, on defence, is in his right place, and should be kept there.

"Denny" Dobbin, in goal, played his old-time game. Some of his stops were marvellous.

The goal net supplies a long felt want. It does away with all disputes.

The return match will be played in Orillia on the 16th. inst., and the boys here will have to get in some good work if they want to win on Orillia's big field.

The game was clean, swift, and scientific throughout.

There was a fair attendance, considering the counter attractions.

Referee O'Loughlin's decisions were satisfactory.

Bruce Rickey showed marked improvement in yesterday's game.

Lynch also showed much better form—especially toward the latter part of the game.

M. Connors, for Orillia, played a star game.

'Bobbie' Watson yesterday played his first game for Orillia this year.

The Peterboroughs will have to get in some good solid practice between now and the 16th, if they wish to win in the return match.

DELIGHTFUL GARDEN PARTY

Held Last Evening at the Residence of Mrs Dennistoun, George St.

A most delightful garden party was held last evening under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association at the residence of Mrs. Dennistoun, George street, north.

The beautiful grounds were brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns and incandescent electric lights, and presented a splendid appearance.

The attendance was large and the finances of the Association must have been very materially benefited.

Light refreshments were served during the evening, and the 57th Batt. band contributed a choice programme.

The committee who had charge of this pleasing event are certainly to be congratulated on its success.

Moonlight Excursion

The Salvation Army will run their first moonlight excursion of the season down the river on the evening of Wednesday, June 8th, per steamer City of Peterborough. Refreshments for sale on board the boat. Brass band in attendance. Boat will leave the wharf between 7.30 and 8 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Entitled to Half the Road

Many farmers and other drivers of vehicles have an idea that a bicyclist has no right to half the road, and therefore think it their bounden duty to crowd every wheelman they meet off into the ditch. All drivers should be careful, as a cyclist is entitled by law to half the "road," and the man who runs him into the ditch is liable for damages. But outside of law it will pay to treat a cyclist courteously and if farmers would do this there would not be so many frightened horses upset rigs, and runaways as there are at present.

OLYMPHIC CLUB

Annual Outing to Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn Yesterday

The members and friends of the Olympic Club, to the number of seventy, including most of the prominent business men of the town, excurted to Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn yesterday.

This excursion is an annual affair, and one which is always looked forward to with pleasure by the privileged ones.

Yesterday's outing was no exception to the rule. The weather was deightful, as well as all the other conditions necessary to enjoyment.

The party dined at the Burleigh Falls Inn, and Mine Hosts—Messrs. Gretton and Hewes—certainly seen to it that the dining was of the most sumptuous order.

After dinner the party sailed up Deer Bay to Buckhorn where a pleasant hour was spent, and then started for home by way of Burleigh Falls.

The 57th Batt band, which was present, contributed not a little to the day's enjoyment.

To Mr. W. E. Lech, the energetic secretary, is due in a great measure the success of yesterday's outing. On his shoulders fell the brunt of the work and nobly did he perform it.

The party reached home about 10.30 p.m.

For Sale or To Rent

That valuable property situated on the corner of Bethune and Edinburgh streets, for sale or to rent. Parties intending to purchase or rent a handsome and commodious residence should not fail to inspect this place. The house is a four-storey brick, 32 x 42, fitted up in modern style, with every convenience, such as city water, bath room, electric light, first class outbuildings, including stable for three horses, driving shed for six rigs, ise house, etc., There is a fine lawn and vegetable garden attached to the house also a number of fruit trees and shrubbery. The above property will be sold cheap or leased for a term of years For further particulars apply on the premises to J. R. Donell.

Little Local Lines

—The Fire, Water and Light, and Finance Committees of the Council will meet to-night.

—The steamer Eclipse took an excursion from Goodfellow's Landing to Jubilee Point yesterday.

—A special drill for those intending to take in the Watertown trip was held at the drill shed last night.

—The Woman's Auxiliary and the King's Daughters, of St. Johns, intend holding their annual strawberry festival on the church grounds on or about the 20th of this month.

—The tenth annual Sabbath School Convention of the Township of Dummer, will be held in the Presbyterian church, Warsaw, on Tuesday, June 21st. An interesting programme has been prepared.

The First Draft

Following is the first draft of the Stationing Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference for Peterborough district, as compiled at Lindsay Tuesday evening:

Peterborough, George St.—S. J. Shorey, A. W. Mallett, G. H. H. Davis, left without stations at their own request.
Peterborough, Charlotte St.—D. O. Crossley.
Peterborough, Mark St.—J. E. Moore.

UNITED STATES' CRUISER SANK OFF SANTIAGO DE CUBA

In An Attempt to Force a Passage Into the Harbor—The Spanish Allowed the Cruiser to Cross the First Line of Torpedoes but Instantly Sank Her Before She Reached the Second Line

AN AMERICAN CRUISER SANK

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 3.—Santiago advices say that the American fleet again attacked fortifications and warships at 3 a. m. The fire was well sustained until 4 o'clock. An auxiliary American cruiser attempted to force a passage, but was sunk by a torpedo. Eight Americans were made prisoners by the Spaniards.

SCHLEY'S REPORT OF THE BOMBARDMENT

Washington, D. C., June 3. — The Navy Department has bulletined the following report from Commodore Schley: "Secretary of Navy, Washington: Made reconnoisance this afternoon, May 31st, with the Massachusetts, Iowa and New Orleans, to develop fortifications with their character. The fire was returned without delay by the heavy batteries to the east and to the west—large calibre at long range. The range was 7,000 yards. Reconnoisance developed satisfactorily the presence of the Spanish squadron lying behind the land, near the upper fort, as they fired over the hill at random. Quite satisfied the Spanish fleet is here. (Signed(Schley."

LOSS OF CRUISER CORROBORATED

New York, June 3.—The Journal prints the following under Cape Haytien date, declaring that it went over the cable from Santiago to Europe to-day: "This morning there was heavy cannonading from 3 to 4 o'clock. An armed American Trans-Atlantic steamer tried to run over the first line of torpedo defences. The Spaniards let her do so, but when the American ship, which had already got into the pass, attempted to run over the second line of torpedoes, the Spaniards set fire to one of these and the American ship sank right down immediately. After the explosion of the torpedo, an officer, an engineer and six seamen, were made prisoners. The name of the American ship is unknown, as well as the number of victims who have perished."

URGED TO ACCEPT AUTONOMY

Madrid, June 3.—A despatch received here from Havana says that in the Chamber of Representatives there Senor Gibaraja, the Autonomist leader, has presented a motion urging the Government of Cuba to request the insurgents of that Island to accept autonomy on the ground that the insurgents themselves must be aware that the country was not yet ripe for independence. The President of the Chamber declared, in a patriotic speech, that the Government would entertain such a motion.

OPENED FIRE AGAIN AT 3 O'CLOCK

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 3.3.15 p. m.—The American fleet, according to advices received by cable from Santiago de Cuba,t he cable being under Spanish control, opened fire again at three oc'clock this morning on the fortifications and warships. The cannonade was well sustained until four o'clock a. m. A United States auxiliary cruiser, well-armed, attempted to force the passage into the harbor. The Spanish allowed the cruiser to cross the first line of torpedoes. but before she arrived at the second line they discharged at her a torpedo. which broke a great hole through her side and caused hen to sink almost instantly—bow first. The name of the vessel is not known, nor is the number of victims reported. One officer, one engineer and six sailors were made prisoners by the Spaniards.

SANTIAGO IMPREGNABLE

Minister of Marine States tnat Bombardment Inflicted No Damage

And Was Foiled in the Real Object Heavy Guns which Were not Brought Into Use

Madrid, June 2.—It was officially announced this morning by Senor Aunon, Minister of Marine, that the accounts of the recent bombardment of Santiago de Cuba by the American fleet have been grossly exaggerated, and that, as a matter of fact, no damage whatever was done to the more important fortifications of the Cuban port. The batteries which received the few shots directed from the American squadron were Morro Castle and Lo Zocapa, one at each side of the harbor's mouth, and Punta Gorda, which is situated on a promontory jutting out into the channel about a mile within the entrance. These three forts are all old and constructed of solid masonry, notwithstanding which the guns oft he American squadron did very little damage, only loosening a few stones from the walls and injuring none of the defences.

MOST IMPORTANT DEFENCES.

The most important of the defences of Santiago, said the Minister of Marine, took no part in the engagement, which was merely an attempt on the part of the Americans to ascertain their own ranges and find out the strength of the Spanish batteries. Int he latter object they were foiled, as they were only allowed to engage with the forts which were well in sight. As a matter of fact, there are numerous earthworks in rear of the hills upon which Morro and Zocapa are placed, which could not be sighted from the sea. These really form the impregnable part of the defences of Santiago, as they are mounted with heavy Krupp and Armstrong guns of modern pattern, carrying shot which will pierce the thickest armor afloat. The eartworks have been thrown up since the arrival of Admiral Cervera, who carried a large quantity of heavy artillery from Cadiz for the especial purpose of being mountedt here. The result has been to render Santiago perfectly safe from an attack by sea. Even if the American vessels could pass the narrow channel affording entrance to the harbor and escape the numerous mines, which could not be done without a skilful pilot, they would be compelled to run the gauntlet of tremendously strong batteries, firing almost almost point-blank at their hulls, and in the attempt would be simply annihilated.

FACTS BORNE OUT.

These facts, says Senor Aunon, are fully borne out by the reporteed forming of expeditions to invest Santiago de Cuba by land, the Washington Administration recognizing that it is utterly impossible to effect an entrance fromt he sea.

THE HOSPITAL QUARTERS.

They have three tents, when the regiment is in camp. one for the steward, one in which the instruments and medicines are kept, and the third is an emergency hospital. The surgeon occupies a separate tent close by.

I was shown through the hospital quarters of the Thirteenth by Steward F. Fitts, of that regiment. The equipment for field work is contained in two iron-bound oak cases, which are so arranged that they can be easily packed on one mule. Number one case contains all the surgical instruments,

ENGLISHMEN FOR THE WAR

Show Their Sympathy with United States by Joining the Army

A Sunday Service in the Big Infantry Camp at Tampa Addressed by Messrs. Sankey and Burk

Tampa, May 29.—A correspondent at Tampa writes as follows: Sunday is always very well observed in the different camps here, better than at Chickamauga, because of the inviting nature of the services held on the grounds at Tampa.

Such men as Ira D. Sankey and Prof. Burk are sure to draw big audiences, and their common-sense sermons and touching hymns will surely have a marked effect on the men. I attendedt he soldiers' service which Messrs. Sankey and Burk gave in the big regular infantry camp, on Tampa Heights this morning. There were fullyt wo thousand soldiers in the large pavillion, which has been erected specially for this purpose.

Hymn and prayer-books were distributed among the men and a special war service was then given.

A STARTLING STILLNESS.

Professor Burk gave his sermon in a stillness that was almost startling. Within the pavillion the men sat and eagerly listened to the preacher as he touched with force on the cause oft he present war between America and Spain; on the noble attitude of the United States towards Cuba; on the duties of the soldiers towards their country and their God. He brought vividly before the men a picture of future battle-fields in the lowlands of Cuba, and concluded by telling them that they were even now on the eve of a series of bloody battles, in which many of them seated before him "would bite the dust." He knew they would die like soldiers, and prayedt hat they would go to their God prepared.

As his last words fell on the still air, I looked around at the men about me,t o whom these forcible words had sucht ruthful meaning, and although the atmosphere of the place had something about it akin to that which generally pervades a hanging scene in a jail-yard, yet patriots, and not guilty prisoners, were here, and though they looked as if they appreciated the preacher's words, yet over all their mournful airs there appeared to be a broad expression of bravery and pride.

The hospital department is one of the most interesting of all the different sections of the United States army. Each regimental hospital corps is made up of the surgeon, a steward, one nurse, an orderly and an ambulance driver.

INDIGNATION AGAINST CASTELAR.

Public indignation and abuse, especially from the monarchists, is being directed against Senor Castelar, the great Republican leader, who, in an article in the Petite Revue Internationale, draws a parallel between Marie Antoinette and the present Queen Regent of Spain, suggesting that the latter contemplates abdication in favor of her sister-in-law, the Infanta Isabel, in preference to becoming a party to peace at the price of surrender.

Senor Castelar is accused by the Royalists of lack of tact and good breeding, and of a weak-minded attempt to echo court gossip against the Queen Regent.

The article has been turned into capital by the Carlists, the Republicans, and Generals Weyler and Robledo. All newspapers which have reproduced it are being prosecuted in a court martial. The only real grievance the Spaniards have against the Queen Regent ist hat she is forever courting the support of the generals of the army, of Vatican prelates, Jesuit monks and nuns, simply to try and prevent their going over to the pretender, Don Carlos.

bandages and bottles of chloroform; in fact everything necessary to conduct an operation on the field of battle. Number two chest carries the medicines required for the hurried treatment of cases of exhaustion, and ordinary sickness, all in pellet form.

The duty of these men when the army is in action is to go on the field over which their regiment has passed and attend to the wounded, after whicht hey attach a cardboard tag stating the nature of the wound, and what treatment has been employed, and send them to the rear to the general army hospital.

ENGLISHMEN ENLIST.

A great many Englishmen who have previously served in the English regulars have travelled to this country at their own expense to join the American army, and thereby show their sympathy with the United States in the war with Spain. Mr. Andrew E. Wynter, a well known English gentleman, is one of these. Mr. Wynter is a thorough Britisher, his response to the toast of the Queen at the 24th of May banquet here will long be remembered in these districts as voicing the sentiments of the English people in regard tot he war between these two big nations. Mr. Wynter will be attached to Surgeon-General Pope's staff, and will accompany the first expedition of the American army to Cuba.

Sunday is the great time for the residents of Tampa to visit the port, andt o-day was a record-breaker in the way of numbers. The guards on the piers had their hands full keepingt he sightseers away from the positions ruled off for the occupation of the batteries. A great crowd collected out he west side of the wharf, where a gang of men were loading one of the new coast guns, which weighs two hundred and fifty thousand pounds, on a schooner for Key West.

PHANTOM SPANISH FLEET

Admiral Cervera Has Manoeuvered so as to Deceive the Americans

After Leaving the Cape Verde and is now on His Way for the Philippine Islands where He is Expected to Arrive To day or To morrow

Paris, June 3.—There is a persistent belief here and at Madrid that Admiral Cervera is not at Santiago de Cuba.

The correspondent of The Gaulois at Madrid telegraphs from there saying he has learned from the highest authority that Admiral Cervera has never been in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, and the the Spanish ships there belong to Captain Villamil's torpedo squadron.

It appears from the information gathered by The Gaulois correspondent that Admiral Cervera, after leaving the Cape Verde Islands "manoeuvred so as to deceive, the Americans, and then started for the Philippine Islands, where the fleet is to arrive on Saturday or Sunday. His orders are to destroy Admiral Dewey's fleet and then intercept, capture or destroy the American transports on their way to the Philippine Islands from San Francisco."

POPE'S LATEST PRAYER.

Rome, June 3.—Until to-day the Pope had not made any proposition towards a settlement of the Cuban question. On Wednesday the Pope received a telegram from the Queen Regent announcing an alleged victory at Santiago. As a result of this telegram the Pope conferred three hours with Cardinal Rampolla discussingt he opportunity of taking new steps to prevent a continuation of the War. The Pope afterwards sent at elegram to the Queen praying her to be contented with the success obtained and to abandon the idea of continuing the war to an extreme which would not profit Spain. The Pope seriously fears some real Spanish success which will not only prolong the war but entail complicatoins. The Pope has not sent any telegram to President McKinley. He considers it useless to take steps in Washington before having accomplished something at Madrid.

$700,000,000 FOR A YEAR.

Washington, June 3.—In the Senate to-day consideration of the war revenue measure was resumed. In speaking of the measure Mr. Hale, Rep., Maine, gave it as his opinion that if this war lasts a year it will cost the United States Government between seven and eight hundred millions of dollars.

"That is my prediction and I put myself on record to that effect."

Mr. Jones said that no such money might be spent, but he did not think so. He was satisfied at all events that an issue of bonds was unnecessary. "I do not believe," said he, "that the war will last one year, six months or anything like that time. Andt he cost will certainly be much less than stated by Senator Hale. The Secretary of War and the Navy each made an estimate of the expenses for one year, and their aggregate estimates were only about half the estimates of the Senator from Maine."

Mr. Hale pointed out that no war was so expensive as an expeditionary war. He said he had examined all the estimates made upon the expenses of the war, and he was satisfied they would reach certainly $700,000,000.

MERELY A RECONNAISSANCE

Washington, June 3.— Commodore Schley's official report on the Santiago fight was read at the Cabinet meeting to-day. He says he had no reasonable doubt that Cervera's fleet is inside the harbor, that his firing was to develop the enemy's batteries, and was in that respect entirely satisfactory. None of his vessels were hit and there were no casualties on the American side.

SAILING FOR PHILIPPINES.

Madrid, June 3.—The Madrid newspapers maintain that Admiral Cervera's fleet is sailing in the direction of the Philippine Islands.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No instrument pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Tennyson's Praise of Burns.

Mr. Aubrey de Vere contributes to the biography of Lord Tennyson a report of some conversations with the poet, in which was disclosed his singular freedom from the spirit of rivalry.

In these conversations he never uttered a word that was disparaging or tainted with the spirit of rivalship. The only poet I heard him criticise roughly or unfairly was himself. "Compare," he once said to me, "compare the heavy handling of my workmanship with the exquisite lightness of touch in Keats."

Another time he read aloud a song by one of the chivalrous poets of Charles I's time, perhaps Lovelace's "Althea," which Wordsworth also used to croon in the woods, and said, "There, I would give all my poetry to have made one song like that."

Not less ardent was his enthusiasm for Burns. And here an incident with no small significance recurs to me. "Read the exquisite songs of Burns!" he exclaimed. "In shape each of them has the perfection of the berry, in light the radiance of the dewdrop. You forget for its sake those stupid things, his serious pieces."

The same day I met Wordsworth and named Burns to him. Wordsworth praised him even more vehemently than Tennyson had done as the great genius who had brought poetry back to nature, but ended: "Of course I refer to his serious efforts, such as the 'Cotter's Saturday Night.' Those foolish little amatory songs of his one has to forget."

I told the tale to Henry Taylor that evening, and his answer was, "Burns' exquisite songs and Burns' serious efforts are to me alike tedious and disagreeable reading."

So much for the infallibility of poets in their own art.

Toads in Rock.

Stories of toads inclosed in solid rock are not at all uncommon, but of all the reported cases not one has ever been substantiated. When investigated, it is found that they are made up stories or that there was no toad or no rock or that there was a way for him to get in or get out. People who find toads in solid rock must understand that it is an important matter. If ever there is one single case verified beyond dispute of finding a toad or any other living animal in an absolutely solid rock, the science of geology will be swept from the realms of belief. The doctrine of evolution will crumble to airy nothings. Half of the exact sciences will have to be reorganized on an entirely new basis. Accumulated human knowledge will have to be revised from the bottom, and most of what is so called rejected entirely. So the man that finds the toad had better be pretty sure that it is a toad in a solid rock and while he is about it he had better have witnesses and photographs and everything possible to be had in proof of his assertion, for it will be doubted. If he proves his case, no man ever known will have such enduring fame. Just find the toad gentlemen — Milwaukee Journal.

PROUD AND HONORABLE LIARS

Spanish honor and Spanish pride are peculiar virtues. The Dons crow much of both their honor and their pride, and the world has begun to be curious as to where these qualities lie. So far, the matter has been wrapped in mystery. Where Spanish honor and pride has been sought, nothing but pure Spanish lying has been found.

Regarding the battle of Manila the Dons caused false reports to be sent out, claiming a Spanish victory, whereas the affair was one of the cleanest knock-outs in history. Now they are trying the same thing at Santiago, but with less success, their statements being discredited by their previous lying.

Pride and honor do not prevent wholesale falsehoods, with the proud and honorable Dons.

THE TRENT VALLEV CANAL

An item appeared in these columns yesterday which was taken from an exchange without being credited. Our purpose was to insert it and the reply to the statements therein contained, but through an error the clipping appeared without the credit and without additional comment.

The Times has always been an enthusiastic supporter of the canal scheme, and believes that the Trent Valley Canal is destined to become the main artery for the carrying of the produce of the great west to tide water. The efforts now being put forth by Toronto to bring discredit on the scheme is having the effect of stirring up the friends of the canal to such a pitch that they will at the next session demand of the Government the immediate completion of this great national highway.

CANADA'S SINK HOLE

The Toronto Telegram, under the caption, prints an article condemning the Trent Valley Canal, in the following terms:—

Toronto's fear, is not, as Col. Samuel Hughes supposes, that the Trent Valley Canal will divert trade from this city.

Toronto's solemn belief is that the Trent Valley canal will never divert anything but dollars from the national treasury.

It is easier even for Col. Samuel Hughes to question Toronto's motives than to prove the usefulness of the majestic waterway which has absorbed so much of this country's money.

When the usefulness of the project is called in question the warmest upholder of the Trent Valley Canal scheme seems to be incapable of offering as a reason for a continuance of the work anything more convincing than a splutter of imputations upon the representatives of every city which protests against a shameful waste of public money.

This exhibition of temper only goes to show what Hogtown newspapers will do in order to defeat the great national undertaking. But the Toronto press is too late in beginning their war against the Canal. The late Government appointed a royal commission to go into the whole matter, and the result was that it was conclusively proven that the completion of the canal would bring all the advantages claimed by its friends. The only drawback to the scheme is that the canal does not touch Toronto, and this is why Hogtown is kicking.

Now the Cuban insurgents have drawn the United States into the melee they sit on the fence and enjoy the fun.

It is said that the sound of somebody breaking a bottle was distinctly heard in the vicinity of Santiago last night.

The Examiner puts the query: "How can the American fleet that is guarding Santiago be taken?" The Times would humbly suggest that if the Spaniards want to take Schley's fleet they should send to Cadiz for a Camera and a Kodac.

In Santiago de Cuba, owing to the blockade, chickens are selling at ten shillings each, and, says the London Globe, there is money therefore in the bursting of shells. Not content with that flippancy, it adds, "should the American proceedings be described as in-Cubation?" We might answer that it is not only in-Cubation, but that it looks as if Uncle Sam might hatch the bird of freedom out of this same Spanish yoke.

IMPORTANT SALE

—OF—

LANDS

IN PETERBOROUGH AND ASHBURNHAM

Pursuant to the Administration Order made by the High Court of Justice in the matter of the Estate of the late JOHN BURNHAM, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, with the approbation of the Master at Peterborough, AT THE MORGAN HOUSE, in the Town of Peterborough on,

Monday, 27th day of June, 1898

at 2 p.m., by CHARLES STAPLETON, Auctioneer, the lands following namely:—

IN THE VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM

PARCEL 1.—Block "1" according to the Village Plan, and Lot "B" North of Douro Street and West of Grand Trunk Railway track according to Plan 15 of said Village. Upon this property is a two-storey brick dwelling about 32x42, with a two story kitchen and shed, with cellar under the whole house and kitchen. Dwelling is heated with hot air. The land contains about two acres. The property is occupied by a tenant whose lease is determinable on 2 months notice.

PARCEL 2.—Lot "A" on Plan 15 Ashubrnham, situated on the North side of Douro street and facing Brown Street. On the property is a two story brick house. The property is occupied by a monthly tenant at a rental of $10 per month.

PARCEL 3.—Part of Lot 3, South of Elizabeth Street and East of Mark Street described as follows:—Commencing at a point on the northern limit of Lot 86 1-2 links East from the North West corner of the Lot, thence Southerly (along a line drawn from the said point to a point in the Southern limit of the Lot, distant one chain twenty-one and one-half links from the South West corner of the Lot) to where the Northern boundary of a portion of the said Lot belonging to one Dawson being produced would strike the said described line, thence West along the said Northern boundary produced to the Eastern boundary of the land owned by the said Dawson, thence, South along the Eastern limit of said land, to the Southern limit of said Lot 8, thence Easterly along such Eastern limit to the South East corner of the Lot, thence Northerly along the Eastern limit thereof to the North East corner thereof, thence West to the place of beginning. Upon this Parcel is a two story 8 roomed brick dwelling. The property is now rented at $100.00 per annum by lease terminable in 6 months notice. There is a stable, etc., on the property belonging to the tenant which could be acquired by the purchaser if required, for $125.00

PARCEL 4.—The South West part of Lot 136 North of Robinson Street containing about one third of an acre on which there is a small frame house.

IN THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

PARCEL 5.—Park Lots 1 and 2 in Township Lot 14 in the 12th Concession of the Township of North Monaghan containing about 19 acres. This land is within the limits of the Town and is immediately North of the Driving Park. Upon the property is a dwelling house and stable, etc. Full possession to be given on 1st of October. The North 33 feet of Park Lot 2 is subject to an agreement with the owner of Park Lot 3 for the opening of a road from George Street to Park Street across said Lot. Park Lot 2 has been sub-divided into small Lots as shown by Plan registered which may be altered or entirely dispensed with by the purchaser.

PARCEL 6.—Lot Number 45 South of Crescent Street. On this Lot is a frame dwelling house (Street Number 17). The property is held by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 7.—Lot No. 51 North of Ware Street. There is on the Lot a frame dwelling house (Street Number 32) occupied by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 8.—Part of Lot Number 1 South of Sherbrook Street and West of George Street described as the North 48 feet thereof. Upon this Parcel is a two-storey frame building occupied as a store and dwelling by a monthly tenant.

PARCELS 9 and 10.—Building Lots 18 and 19 South of Sherbrooke Street and West of Park Street. These lots have each a frontage on Sherbrooke Street of 71 links and a depth of 3 chains and 33 links.

PARCEL 11.—Building Lot 46 South of Crescent Street, having a frontage thereon of about 90 links and a depth of about 2 chains and 90 links.

PARCELS 12, 13, 14 and 15.—Building Lots Numbers 52, 53 (except the West 35 feet) 55 and 57 north of Ware Street. These lots have each a frontage of 80 1-2 links, and a depth of 2 chains and 80 links.

PARCELS 16, 17, 18 and 19.—Lots 3, 4, 9 and 10 South of Ware Street on Plan 62. These lots are 75 links wide and 2 chains 28 links deep.

PARCELS 20 and 21.—The South half of Lot "D" and all Lot "E" in Plan 37. These lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street and are 1 chain, 12 1-2 links wide, by 3 chains 41 links deep.

PARCEL 22.—Lot "F" and that part of Lot "G" not conveyed to Midland Railway on said Plan 37.—. The Lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street.

PARCEL 23.—30 Building Lots situated on Gladstone Avenue between Lock Street and Haggart Street to be sold en bloc.

TERMS OF SALE.—10 per cent down and the balance in one month thereafter without interest.

There will be a reserved bid upon each Parcel. In other respects the conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Court.

Further particulars can be obtained from MESSRS. HALL & HAYES, Solicitors, or from the undersigned.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

E. & D. BICYCLE

are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this. The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

FRENCH SUSPICION.

IT HAS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN THE COUNTRY'S HISTORY.

In France the Element of Suspicion Has Reached the Preternatural and Is No New Thing—How It Influenced the Actions of Robespierre.

At all the great crises of French life the element of preternatural suspicion has played an important part. Like some mischievous Puck it hovers over the land, whispering doubts here, misgivings there, converting the whole nation into mouchards, whose business it is to set a watch on their neighbors day and night. We have such a profound admiration for many qualities of the French people, such a sincere belief in the necessity of a powerful French factor in the complex mesh of modern civilization, that we can afford to bring this charge of undue suspicion against France as a whole. No student of French history can fail to see the confusion it has wrought. It is not the growth of yesterday, but it is almost as evident in the memoirs of the France of the seventeenth century as on the Paris boulevards at the present moment.

It pervaded the court and the official classes in the time of Richelieu, it was constantly present in the mind of Mazarin when negotiating with Cromwell, and it is visible all through the pages of the memoirs of De Retz. This spirit of preternatural suspicion naturally attained its climax in the French revolution, when, for the first time, the monarchy was involved in its infinite entanglements.

From the moment when the national assembly met at Versailles to the day when Napoleon was banished to Elba universal suspicion filled the air and dictated the cruel aspect of French policy. The queen was, of course, suspected, and justly, in political matters, and perhaps it was not altogether unreasonable that the suspicion in which she was enveloped should have attached to her weak but perfectly honest husband, who was assumed to be absolutely under her fatal influence.

The attack on the Bastille was animated not merely by memories of the past, not in the least because of actual cruelties at the time, for there was none, but mainly because it was suspected that the Bastille was to be utilized as an armed fortress to overawe Paris. The day of the "black cockades" and the march of the Maenads (to use Carlyle's graphic phraseology) were due to excited suspicion. The assembly had scarcely organized itself before the demon of suspicion spread its dusky wings over that body, and Mirabeau and Barnave, at first popular idols, became suspected of intrigue with the court. The vigorous personalities who came to the front all suspected one another. To them the famous warning which Benjamin Franklin addressed to the founders of the American republic, "Gentlemen, we must hang together or we shall hang separately," would have been useless. They could not hang together, and they did hang, or were guillotined, separately. It was Danton's suspicion of an aristocratic plot which caused the September massacres. It was pure suspicion that created the most revolting and unjust of all the revolutionary excesses, the tribunal of Fouquier-Tinville. Danton in his turn was suspected and fell.

We may, of course, justify the suspicion of Dumouriez, but what possible explanation can be given of the suspicion of the harmless astronomer Bailly, with his precisian virtues, who paid with his head for the dangerous folly of meddling with things he did not understand? It was obviously a question of war to the knife between Jacobin and Girondin, for each took an absolutely different view of both foreign and internal politics; but why could not the struggle have been confined to party warfare within the walls of the convention? Why was it necessary to decimate the Girondin chiefs? The only answer that can be made is that suspicion had grown to such a pitch that the very existence of Girondism was considered incompatible with the security of the republic. Men had become frenzied, insane, through constant spying on one another's actions and perpetual attempts to fathom one another's inward thoughts, and the "law of suspects" was simply a formal expression of national craziness. That way madness lies. In the person of Robespierre preternatural suspicion attained its most complete incarnation. His feline nature was ever on the dart for its prey. He could not bear a good word said of any man but he instantly began to revolve in his mind the question as to whether there were not some concealed motive in the praise. The shout of triumphant relief which reverberated over France when Robespierre's head fell into the basket marked the break of the straining point of that suspicion which had created and sustained the terror. When we remember that but for an accident Carnot would have fallen a victim to Robespierre's suspicions and that this suspicious disposition had led a man of sentimental virtue to become a wholesale murderer, we can understand that feeling of relief.—London Spectator.

Nothing to Work On.

"Fellows, I tried to get that blooming mind readah, don't you know, to come up to the club some evening and give us one of his deuced queeah entertainments. By Jove, he said he couldn't come."

"Did he give any reason, deah boy?"

"Why, he said he couldn't make a success of his efforts where there wasn't any material to work on."

"I wonder what the deuce he meant by that?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SANTIAGO IS IN STRAITS

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 2.—The condition of the population of Santiago since the beginning of the blockade has grown rapidly worse, and is now said to be nearly desperate. Food is very scarce and the poor people are finding it almost impossible to obtain any, because of the enormous prices. The expectation is general that Santiago must soon fall into the hands of the Americans.

WARNING TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Key West, June 2.—The following cablegram has been received by Mr. W. H. J. Taylor, British Vice-Consul here, from the British Consul-General at Havana:

"Please warn the British correspondents of newspapers who may be in Key West with the intention of coming to Cuab to avoid attempting to do so, especially by the means adopted by ham, who were all arrested and are now in prison. Needless to say, this recommendation applies with greater stringency to correspondents who are American citizens. Give all possible publicity to this."

FILLING UP THE HARBOR

Key West, Fla., June 2.—The tug Leyden, which has been scouting along the northern coast of Cuba, reports that the Spaniards are filling Cardenas harbor with old hulks, boilers and other ostructions in order to prevent any effective entrance of the American ships.

London, June 2.—Amid the conflicting accounts of what has happened at Santiago de Cuba, it appears that there were two separate incidents—the Spanish torpedo boat attempt on Sunday night, and the American bombardment or reconnoisance, on Tuesday afternoon. Probably neither will turn out of great importance, except as proving that the entrance to the harbor is better protected by mines and guns than might have been anticipated from Admiral Dewey's experience at Manila.

It is believed here that this is all Admiral Sampson desired to discover, and that the Spanish Senate had little to exult over.

Admiral Cervera is expected to repeat the torpedo boat attempts, with a view of keeping the American squadron as distant as possible in order to facilitate his escape. Unless he can do this the Americans are almost certain eventually to capture the three or four Spanish cruisers now known to be inside Santiago.

CAMARA ON THE WAY.

The anxiety, too, that the Spaniards betray in publishing reports as to evolutions of a squadron outside of Cadiz leads to the surmise that Admiral Camara is already on the way. This, as the Daily News suggests, may explain Admiral Cervera's torpedo movement on Sunday and also Commodore Schley's tardy action.

"Therefore," as The Daily News argues, "if Admiral Camara is nearing Cuba, another complication has arisen; and Admiral Sampson will have to take care to prevent him joining Cervera."

The Daily News also suggests that Commodore Schley's bombardment may have covered counter-mining operations with a view of forcing the channel and that if his vessels were damaged, a fresh attempt will probably be postponed."

The Times says that little seems to have been done on either side except to consume gunpowder remarking also that there is one thing at least the admirals and generals on both sides are accomplishing with great steadiness—"they are spending large sums of money, which thier governments must provide."

Apparently Spain's note complaining of America's conduct in the war has not yet been sent to the powers. Certainly, it has not arrived at Berlin, where it may be mentioned, there is no belief in the alleged Franco-Spanish entente, is being argued that French trade relations with the United States and the desire to have America represented at the coming Paris exposition will suffice to prevent France from offending the United States.

YOU ARE A VICTIM!

Medical Statistics Prove that Eighty Out of Every Hundred are Tainted With Catarrh.

Are you one of the eighty? Foul breath, pains over the eyes, dropping in the throat and headaches denote it. Have you these symptoms? Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder never disappoints in a cure.

"For years I was a victim of coronic catarrh. I had tried all kinds of cures, and had been treated by numbers of physicians, but no cure was effected until I had procured and used Dr Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave me almost instant relief and in an incredibly short time I was absolutely cured from this distressing malady," James Headley, Dundee, N, Y.

For Sale or To Rent

The Farmers Pic-nic.

The big farmers pic-nic, under the auspices of the Agricultural Society, will take place on Thursday next to Jubilee Point per Peterborough, Navigation Company's Steamers. The City of Peterborough will leave the Wolfe street wharf at 7.30 a. m. with palace barge attached. Other steamers will connect with the lower parts. The public are requested not to get the pic-nic confounded with another so-called "farmers" pic-nic, which is advertised to take place. The members of the Farmers' Institute of East Peterborough, will be in attendance and some good speaking may be expected. This promises to be the most successful farmers pic-nic ever held. All are welcome.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

A BLOODY BATTLE IN PROGRESS

New York, June 2.—A World despatch from Port Au Prince says: The American fleet has renewed the attack at Santiago, and it is reported that the rebels from Signano camp have attacked the city in three columns. A bloody fight is now raging.

DETAILS OF THE FIGHT AT SANTIAGO

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, Port Antonio, Jamaica, June 1.—7 a.m.—For an hour yesterday afternoon, the Massachusetts, Iowa, New Orleans, and Vixen, of Commodore Schley's squadron exchanged shots with the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera and with the land batteries guarding the harbor of Santiago De Cuba behind which the Spanish fleet is hiding. The engagement was the first which has occurred between the two naval forces and was but a prelude to serious work in the latter part of the week. No attempt was made by the American commander to bring on a general engagement, it being merely his desire to locate the batteries on the hills above the harbor andt o determine the location of the Spanish forts. Shortly before 1 o'clock Commodore Schley left the Brooklyn for the Massachusetts, on board of which battleship he remained during the fighting. At 1 o'clock the signal to form column was hoisted on the Massachusetts and the New Orleans, Iowa and Vixen fell in the order named.

The Massachusetts steamed slowly until about five miles west of the harbor entrance, when she turned in toward the shore, and when about 5,000 yards off, turned east again and bore down on the harbor, the New Orleans being close up and the Iowa half a mile behind. The flagship gradually increased her speed and she was soon running through the water at the rate of ten knots an hour She drew closer and closer to the batteries and when she passed the harbor entrance by 500 yards a great cloud of white and yellow smoke burst from two 13-inch guns in her after turret, and two shells rose over the hill, one of them striking the Spanish flagship Cristobol Colon full and fair as she lay at anchorage and the other falling close alongside. The two guns in the forward turret were then fired and their shells in exploding threw up great jets of spray close to the Colon. All the shore batteries thereupon turned their guns on the New Orleans. This cruiser had been directed to pay attention to the batteries. She had been ordered to draw their fire as much as possible, and she obeyed her instructions to the letter. Her first shot located a large battery on the hill above the Morro. It flew straight into the fort and must have caused much damage as a great cloud of dust and debris rose as the shell burst. A couple more shots sent part of the walls of Morro flying into the air and then the New Orleans confined herself to the batteries, her fire being rapid and extremely accurate, every shot she fired maikng trouble for Spain. The Iowa came next, and like the Massachusetts, devoted her attention to the ships lying within the harbor. Her 12-inch shells made the water fly all around t hat part of the harbor in which the Cristobol Colon lay, the latter however, was not seriously damaged and kept up her fire until long after all the American ships had steamed out of range. After the Iowa came the little Vixen, which, apparently had no business in a fight where battleships were engaged, but she scudded along after the Iowa like a fox terrier following a mastiff and when at the proper point she let fly with her one six-pounder, and glided away, proudly, conscious of having done her best. After the Vixen had passed the Fort the Massachusetts turned again to the westward, followed by the other ships in the same order with the exception of the Vixen, formerlyt he Yacht, which was ordered to keep out of trouble. The ironclads then bore down on the harbor once more. The flagship kept in until less than four thousand yards from the shore and then her shells again began to heave up the waters of Santiago harbor. This time the shore batteries were better served and the Spaniard replied to the warship's fire in energetic fashion. But nearly all the shots from the batteries fell short. Then came the New Orleans, once more her long, black guns diong fearful work and tearing up the ground all around the batteries in the most savage manner.

A SUDDEN DESCENT.

About half an hour after I saw my trooper friend from Nebraska riding a bucking horse around a camp fire. Each fresh manœuvre of the steed was accompanied by a wild howl of laughter from the bystanders, and a string of original and terrible oaths oaths from the rider. Soldier-like, he had now quite forgotten everything in his efforts to subdue an unmanageable horse.

The troops have gotten over the idea that there is going to be an immediate move on Cuba, and are settling down to a quiet summer of it Tampa. At first everybody was of the opinion that the Government would make the move at once, but from the statements made by the big generals at the Tampa Bay Hotel, it would appear that neither have they enough ammunition in stock or sufficient trained men enlisted to carry on the proposed campaign. Whether the Washington authorities are of the same opinion remains, at the present, to be seen. Every day, of course, brings the army for the occupation of Cuba nearer completion. New guns for heavy and light artillery continue to arrive from day to day. Every train coming from the North brings in hundreds of recruits, and yet the regular army has not its complement of men. The cavalry are nearly completed enlisting, because most recruits prefer riding on horseback to walking, so that the regular infantry regiments are far behind the required number, as yet.

Uncle Sam could get all the colored troops he wanted, but he seems to have some objection to bringing in any more than the four colored regiments now in service. These are the Ninth and Tenth Colored Cavalry, and the Twenty-fouth and Twenty-fifth Infantry. They all have their complement of men.

TROUBLE AMONG BLACKS.

The Twenty-fourth Colored Infantry, stationed at Ybor City, is still causing trouble, and it seems as if General Shafter is going to be forced to move them, and, if that does not prove effective, disband the regiment. It is most probable that the latter course will be adopted. Because the sheriff of Ybor arrested one of the drunken privates of the Twenty-fourth the men threatened to take his life in payment for the supposed insult to their dignity, and from appearances they intend to carry out their threat. Nightly large gangs of these soldiers post themselves around his residence and the other evening a banker from St. Petersburg, who bore a striikng resemblance to the sheriff, was found near Ybor City, lying on the railroad track, dead. His body was simply perforated with gun and revolver bullets and horribly mutilated. In the absence of any reasonable motive for the murder of the visiting banker, it is supposed that the remarkable likeness between him and the sheriff led the murderers to suppose that they had their victim. The citizens claim that there will be a repetition of the New Orleans afair of some years ago if General Shafter does not remove these troops at once and the general is at his wits' end to know what to do.

GENERAL LEE'S HORSE.

General Fitzhugh Lee, another big, fat soldier, is in town, and has rooms at the Tampa Bay Hotel, along with Generals Shafter and Wheeler. General Fitzhugh Lee is the commander of the volunteer forces for the invasion of Cuba. On his way south he was presented with a blooded charger by some admirers. It is a thoroughbred bay horse, and cost the party who presented it two thousand dollars.

Everything is much the same at Port Tampa to-day, except that there appears to be some uneasiness on account of a report that some Spanish vessels have been seen off the coast of Florida. The news was brought by the Bancroft on her return to port last night from a short cruise off the north coast of Cuba. I spoke to some fisherman who had just returned from a fishing expedition off the west coast, and they claimt hat they positively saw two Spanish cruisers of a small type on three occasions. By what they say, these boats came in at nightfall and at dawn put out further to sea. They were sighted by the Bancroft and a sister gunboat day before yesterday and given chase, but, being much more speedy than the Americans, they were soon out of sight. I noticed that the Bancroft and Helena, and all the twenty-three transports, have been taken farther up the harbor, and that the vessels use their searchlights constantly through the night. The artillery stationed on the wharves keep a sharp lookout. None of the men are allowed out of their camps without special permission.

The Yucatan, the last of the transports chartered by the Government, which are known to be coming here, arrived at Port Tampa last night. She is one of the largest of the transports. All the vessels for the transportation oft he army to Cuba are being repainted a leaden grey.

Six dynamite gun and six smooth bore guns from Sandy Hook arrived in Tampa this morning.

250,000 CURED.

Thousands of young men are made nervous wrecks, unfit for business, social pleasures or home duties by evil habits in youth, later excesses, or private diseases. W. U. Andrews, of Akron. O., says: "I read this paper and have seen many reports of remarkable cures made by Drs. Kennedy and Kergan. I decided to treat with them. Indiscretion was the cause of my trouble. I was weak and nervous; no ambition; back weak. pimples on the face; thin and haggard; eyes sunken and cheeks hollow; dreams and drains at night; memory poor; varicocele and weak parts; irritable; sinking spells; specks before the eyes; lack of confidence; no energy; and many other complaints. I had tried fourteen doctors, bought four electric belts took scores of bottles of patent medicines—all failed. I tried the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, and it cured me. I am a Man Again. I have gained twenty-six pounds and am strong mentally, physically and sexually. It is a wonderful treatment."

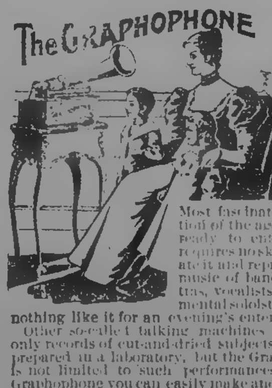
ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES



Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

BRIDAL BELLS.

St. John's church was crowded on Thursday morning, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Isabel May Bloomfield, daughter of C.J. Bloomfield, Esq., of Cedar Bank, to Mr. Richard Nowell Bealey, of New Zealand. The church was profusely decorated with flowers, and the service was impressively rendered by the Rev. G. Warren, the Incumbent. The bride was charmingly costumed in cream with chip hat with ostrich feathers, and was attended by Misses Tate, E. and K. Bloomfield, in pale green costumes with Leghorn hats. Bride and bridesmaids carried shower bouquets of bridal roses, and the bridesmaids also wore diamond and pearl brooches, presented by the bridegroom. The groomsmen were Messrs. E. R. Tate and R. Bloomfield. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, where refreshments were served and congratulations and good wishes were showered on the happy pair. Tangible evidence of these good wishes was shown by the numerous presents sent by friends. Shortly after 1 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Bealey drove away to Peterborough en route for Ottawa, whence they will go to Montreal and embark on the S. S. Scotsman for a wedding tour in England, previous to taking up residence in New Zealand.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND the Great Health-giving Prescription.

The Weak and Run-down Secure Wonderful Vitality from the Great Medicine in the Summer Time

Paine's Celery Compound is the grandest and most wonderful medical prescription of the age. That able, noble and christian physician, Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL. D., gave it to the world for the curing of those terrible diseases that are so common and prevalent in our modern life. Nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, dyspepsia, constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, kidney and liver troubles, and blood diseases, are banished forever by the use of Dr. Phelp's Paine's Celery Compound.

In summer time when strength fails —when that tired, listless feeling is experienced from day to day —when the digestive organs are not doing their work properly—when constipation is poisoning the blood—when disease with iron hand has taken possession of the body—then it is that Paine's Celery Compound shows its marvellous health-giving powers.

Thousands who have met with failures and disappointments in the use of the common medicines of the day, and who at last found health, strength and happiness in Paine's Celery Compound, have given strong testimony fort he benefit of all sick men and women.

Mrs. J. J. Dawson, 906 Sanguinet Street, Montreal, writes as follows:

"Having suffered for ten years with general debility, dyspepsia and indigestion, that made life almost a continued misery, and having used a great many medicines without any satisfactory results. I was induced to try your Paine's Celery Compound. The first bottle I used seemed to strike at the very root of my trouble. Thus encouraged, I used two bottles more, with the result that I am cured of all my troubles. Your medicine has done for me what the doctors could not accomplish. Now I eat well and enjoy my food, something that formerly was impossible. I cheerfully recommend your Paine's Celery Compound to all who suffer as I did; it certainly is the best medicine in the world."

The Black Cap.

There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the coif—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their wigs when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coif," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the coif, as Lord Campbell repeatedly states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to veil the coif on the only occasion when the coif was required to be hidden. By the ancient privileges of the sergeants the coif was not to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be so displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule seems always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death.

"The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of sorrow, by the black sentence cap. This cornered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, as it is sometimes termed, is a piece of limp black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Analogous Reasoning.

A poet proffering his work to an editor said:

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a smallish coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lay" Plates.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic plates for the "lay service." The scheme of providing does not permit the guest to be without a plate before him, and between the courses plates are laid at each cover, one laid down while the used plate is removed. Cauldon Copeland and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates."—Philadelphia Press.

A Diagnosis.

Maude—Do you know, I really believe that Tom is going to propose.

Bertha—I noticed that he was looking terribly sad about something or other, but then, you know, dear, it may not be that. Perhaps his mother is sick, or possibly he isn't feeling well himself.—Boston Transcript.

The Germans and Saxons drank their wine and beer from horns unprovided with handles or feet, so that the horn had to be emptied by each drinker.

Luxurious Traveling.

The height of luxurious traveling has been reached by the czar and czarina. The empress' private car is upholstered in pale blue satin. The electric lamps are all in the form of lilies, and it contains writing and tea tables made of mother of pearl. The nursery is the next apartment, and is as comfortable and handsome as the same rooms in any of the czar's palaces. There are dining rooms and drawing rooms and several sleeping apartments. In fact, this train is a miniature palace. The wheels are covered with india rubber tires.—Philadelphia Ledger.

John Sherman was Discharged

The Madoc Review says:—Before A. F. Wood, J.P., John Sherman was charged with theft by David Ward in removing a wagon from the county without paying or intending to pay for it. The prisoner was arrested in Peterborough and brought to Madoc for his preliminary examination. After hearing the evidence the prisoner was discharged.

A Kick About Steamboat Whistles

Bobcaygeon Independent:— Unless there is some Government regulation all steamboats in these waters to have the same tone of whistle, it would be a public convenience if some of them would swap off their double B. flats in the basement clef, for chimes, soprano, screamers, gongs, canons, or bugles. The Crandella is about the boat trading with this port that is distinguishable with any certainty.

Rifle Matches To-day

The second match in the Military Rifle League will be fired on the ranges this afternoon by the second team of the 57th Batt. This team made a good showing in the first match and expect to do even better to-day. The third and fourth matches will be decided on the 18th and 25th inst. respectively.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles

Symptoms—Moisture intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate and become very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia., Lyman Sons, & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Positively refuse all substitutes.

A Match for $200

Thos. Doyle, the wrestler, has returned to town, having arranged a match for $200 which it is expected will be brought off at the opera house here next Tuesday evening. When Doyle challenged Harrison, of Toronto, recently, the latter refused to meet him except at Graeco-Roman style, but offered to produce a 150-lb man, an "unknown" to wrestle him at catch-as-catch-can style. Doyle accepted and the match will likely be held here next week.

Badly Burned by Electricity

Mr. Robt. Baker, jr., of Brown street, Ashburnham, was badly burned by electricity while operating the dynamo in the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co.'s machine shop last night. It is surmised that the belt slipped, but however it happened the unfortunate man was almost blinded by a sudden flash of electric fluid, which scorched both hands and his right arm so severely as to incapacitate him from work for a week or so.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

The Finance, and Fire, Water and Light Committees Meet Last Night

The Finance Committee of the town council met in the clerk's office last night.

There were present: Chairman Denne, Mayor Davis and Councillors McWilliams, J. M. White and Cobb.

The following business was transacted:

Geo Benton's request for remission of taxes on a property recently purchased by him was granted.

John Spence's request for compensation for building a drain was not granted.

The Children's Aid Society's request for a grant was complied with—same to be paid in six annual instalments.

A grant of $250 was made to the Fire Brigade Band, and one of $100 was recommended for the Sons of England band—conditional on their playing in one of the town parks one night a week. This latter recommendation was made on motion of Councillor McWilliams.

A communication in reference to Whyte's dam, from Mr. Henry Owens, will be referred to a special committee.

The payment of Mr. R. W. Errett's account was confirmed.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met immediately after the Finance Committee.

There were present: Chairman J. M. White, Mayor Davis and Councillors W. H. White and Robertson.

Mr. Frank Sandy appeared before the committee and asked for street lights at the corners of King and Bethune and Charlotte and Bethune. It was decided to recommend lights for these localities.

The committee decided to recommend the purchase of 300 feet of Paragon hose from the Gutta Percha Mfg. Co., for use of the Fire Brigade.

The Chairman was authorized to accept the use of Mr. McKibbon's horse for the Fire Department.

The salary of Driver John Montgomery, of the Fire Brigade, was increased to $375 per annum, commencing June 1st, inst.

The drinking fountain at the Brown Memorial, Central Park, will be put in working order and the Water Co. instructed to furnish water for the same.

Seventy-five feet of one-inch hose will be purchased for use at the town buildings.

IN LIMBO AGAIN

McDonald and Fobes Hustled Up to the Gaol in a Cab at Midnight

Chief Roszel and Gaoler Nesbitt reached town last night by the midnight C. P. R. express, having in charge McDonald and Fobes, who recently broke gaol here. They were hustled up to the gaol in a cab and will be likely to remain there until the courts otherwise dispose of them.

The cab made good time going up George street, and the prisoners, it is needless to say, were carrying all the iron the law allows in the shape of handcuffs, etc.

When they leave the gaol again it will be to stand their trial.

Either One

The Kingston Times says: The 14th P.W.O.R. have picked upon Ottawa and Watertown as the most desirable places they would like to visit on July 1. They also want a three days' trip. One of these places will be decided upon later.

A Huge Bear

A young man named William Cole, says the Norwood Register, a few days ago trapped a bear one mile east of Mud Turtle Lake, Hastings County. Bruin broke the logging chain which held the trap and made off with it. Cole procured a rifle and started in pursuit. A mile and a half away from the spot he came onto the bear and fired a couple of shots and killed him. He removed the hide which measured 7 feet 6 inches from the point of the nose to the root of the tail, and it looked as large as the hide of a cow. It was a monstrous bear, as it would no doubt be nine feet high when standing on its hind legs.

WORSE THAN A BRUTE

The Horribly Shocking Crime of the Marmora Child Murderess

The result of the coroner's inquest held in Marmora on Thursday, which resulted in a verdict of wilful murder against Ellen Darrah, shows one of the most shocking and repulsive crimes that have ever been perpetrated in the annals of Hastings county.

It appears that the mother of the infant, after its birth, inserted her fingers down the baby's throat and partly tore its tongue out by the roots and severed its windpipe. She then stuffed its throat full of filth and buried it in an outhouse.

Although the woman is reported to be of weak mind, Marmora people are greatly shocked and declare that an outraged humanity demands that such an exhibition of brutal depravity be most severely dealt with.

Particulars of McDonald's Capture

The following are the particulars received from Windsor regarding the capture of James McDonald alias Mart Marshall and Frank Fobes in that city on Wednesday last:

"Mart Marshall and Frank Fobes, who broke jail at Peterborough, have been arrested at Windsor. Wednesday night Sergt. Nash and Officer Reid arrested a man who answered to the description given of Fobe, and after some questioning he confessed. He said that they were beating their way, and that, as he was not so well known to the police as Marshall, and about 3 o'clock Thursday morning they found him at the Tecumseh road. Marshall is awaiting trial on a charge of burglarizing the Norwood postoffice and Fobes was serving a sentence for theft."

Did He Commit Suicide?

A one-armed man called at the residence of Mr. Wm. Guy, Lake street, Ashburnham, Thursday night, and stating that he had been three days coming from Toronto, and had eaten nothing for two days, asked for something to eat and a night's lodging. Mr. Guy offered him food, and although he would not keep him in his house for the night, generously stated that he would pay for his bed in a hotel. This didn't suit the old man however, and he retired under an apple tree and drawing a knife stated that he was going to end his life.

Mr. Guy promptly told him he wasn't going to end it there, and taking him by the arm walked him down to Hogan's hotel. He would not stay there, however, and left with the statement that his body would be found in the river in the morning. As nothing more was seen of him many are under the impression that a suicide may have been committed.

RAILWAY NOTES

Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway Paragraphs of Interest

The C.P.R. are preparing a large addition to their rolling stock at the Perth workshops. There are 250 flat cars, 200 box cars, and 50 coal cars now in course of construction there, for use generally over the road.

The management of the Grand Trunk Railway announces that the new "Rules and Regulations of the Transportation Department," which were to have gone into effect on the first of July, will not take effect until a later date, due notice of which will be given by the company. The delay, it is stated, is owing to unexpected delay in the printing of the new rules. The management state that in the meantime it is desired and expected that every employee required to be familiar with the rules will study them carefully, embrace every opportunity to attend the schools of instruction established at the several terminals and spare no effort to familiarize themselves with the rules so that they will be prepared for the examination which they must pass satisfactory before the rules become effective. In reply to a question it was stated that no protest whatever was received by the management from any of the men on any part of the system in reference to the new rules, the only information on that point being received from newspaper sources, and the delay in enforcing the new rules had nothing whatever to do with such reports. Nevertheless there are not a few of the railway men who are strongly opposed to the new rules.

That Tired Feeling

An exceedingly common and dangerously significant condition.

A warning which must be heeded, or, as with the express train which fails to regard the danger signal, disaster must follow.

A sure indication of thin, weak, impoverished blood. A certain admonition that the blood is not properly feeding the nerves, tissues and organs of the body.

An imperative demand for the tonic, vitalizing effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon the blood.

Weak, nervous, tired men and women are found everywhere. Men strive too hard to "keep their ends up," women too anxiously work "on their nerves" to meet the demands of home and society, all have too little sleep, and the excessive drain on strength and nervous energy will soon completely ruin health.

The strength must be built up by pure blood, and the nerves must also find in pure blood the proper nerve food. For this purpose nothing equals Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The thousands of wonderful cures it has accomplished, the like of which no other medicine and no combination of medicines can show, prove its curative merit; prove that it has never been equalled as a blood medicine; prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla is indeed the ideal spring medicine, the best nerve and stomach tonic, the one true blood purifier.

"I was feeling tired all the time, as tired in the morning as I was at night. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has helped me so that I have no such feelings now. My little girl suffered with pain in her stomach, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured her." JAMES T. MANN, Hubbardston, Mass.

Weakness and Loss of Appetite.

"Last spring my little girl had no appetite and was weak. I gave her one-half bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which cured her. We will now take no other medicine but Hood's Sarsaparilla, and recommend it to everyone for weakness and loss of appetite." WM. F. HANES, Brysonia, Pa.

All Tired Out.

"My husband was all tired out and run down in health. He felt the need of something to build him up, and he began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills and the result was very satisfactory. We regard Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills as excellent medicines." MRS. H. L. MOWRY, Towanda, Pa.

Tired and Worn Out Feeling.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and cannot say too much in its favor. It has done me more good than any medicine I have ever tried. I have advised my friends to use it for a tired and worn out feeling, as I know that it gives relief." WILLIAM T. HURDLE, Hollyville, Del.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is sold by all druggists. Price $1, six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. It is the One True Blood Purifier.

THE U. S. FLEET RESUMES ITS ATTACK ON SANTIAGO

The Cannonade Commenced at 10.30 o'clock Friday Night—Details are Lacking—Emmersohn, the German Newspaper Correspondent, on Whose Head a Price was Set Has Succeeded in Making His Escape

AN UNKNOWN FLEET

St. Pierre, Martinique, June 4.—A report is current here to the effect that a fleet, the nationality of which is not known, was seen off the west point of the island by fishermen. Firing was heard last night.

FIRING AGAIN RESUMED

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 4.—11.50 a.m.—Firing was resumed by the American squadron off Santiago de Cuba at half past ten Friday night. Details are lacking. It is reported at Santiago that three warships have been detached from the American fleet to convey a fresh supply of munitions and arms to the Cuban coast.

MADE HIS ESCAPE

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, June 3rd.—delayed in transmission.—Mr. Emerasohn, the German newspaper correspondent, who was arrested in Porto Rico, but who succeeded in escaping to Santa Cruz and upon whose head a price was set by the Alcade of Caguas, who declared him to be a spy, arrived at St. Thomas on the evening of June 2nd, and proceeded to New York. Mr. Emersshon was assisted in escaping by American sympathizers. He said he went to Porto Rico as aide to Lieut. Whitney, of the United States Government secret service. Lieut. Whitney and Mr. Emersshon intended to meet at Porto Rico, but failed, owing to Emersshon's arrest. Mr. Emersshon states that Porto Rico is panic stricken. The rebel party there is large in numbers and strong and is hopefully awaiting an American invasion. When this occurs, its members will rise and aid the United States. Spain,—Mr. Emersshon declares—is is afraid to arm all the volunteers, fearing that they will revolt. Lieut. Whitney reached St. Thomas on June 2nd. on his way to New York. He visited Porto Rico on the British steamer Ardenrose. He asserts that a strong American sentiment prevails there and that the volunteers and regulars are discontented and are deserting in considerable numbers. The pay of the soldiers is in arrears and there is much sickness, for food is scarce and expensive and if the United States Government does not act soon the inhabitants will revolt against Spain.

PEACE SENTIMENT GROWS

The War Has no Foundation Beyond a Defence of Outraged Dignity

English Blockade Runners Carry Supplies to the Spaniards under the Noses of American Warships

Madrid, June 4.—Except among jingo papers like The Imparcial a sentiment in favor of peace is growing. The correspondent of the Associated Press has sounded several politicians and financiers on the subject, and finds unanimity as to the desirability of a prompt and honorable peace. The pluck of Admiral Cervera's fleet against odds and the failure of the Americans in their attempts to land in Cuba and Porto Rico are regarded as balancing the Cavite disaster; while evidence of the lack of sympathy for America on the part of the natives of the Spanish colonies, as the Spaniards argue here, should convince the United States that the motives for going to war are completely changed. These are the arguments heard in Madrid and fostered by recent articles in The Temps of Paris which The Epoca welcomes and endorses, believing them sincere. Similar sentiments have appeared in the Paris edition of The New York Herald.

The Epoca says: "A nation grand and powerful like the United States loses nothing by rectifying an error. We go further, confessing that the same inclination in favor of peace is predominant in Spain. We are equally convinced that the war has no foundation beyond a defence of outraged dignity."

Military men, however, raise no voice for peace. They are convinced that the Spanish position at Santiago de Cuba is strong enough to repel the Americans both by land and sea.

CASE OF SENOR CAASTELAR.

Madrid, June 4.—In the Chamber of Deputies last night Lieut.-General Correa, Minister of War, in reply to an inquiry as to whether a Spanish expedition would be sent to the Philippines, said the Government was deliberating on the matter and that troops would be prepared ready to depart the moment they were required.

Senor Azcarate, Republican, spoke against the proposal that the House should authorize a prosecution of Senor Emilio Castelar, the distinguished Republican statesman, for his article in Petite Revue Internationale attacking the Queen Regent. He contended that the Queen Regent was not inviolable like a monarch, and he recalled the conduct of previous regents which had been criticized without causing scandal.

Senor Sagasta replied: "Parliamentary immunity is worthy of respect; but the inviolability of the crown ought to be defended with the utmost energy. Parliamentary immunity does not extend to acts outside the Chambers of Parliament; and it is a pity that precious time should be wasted in such a discussion."

The House then decided to pass the order of the day and the discussion of the budget was resumed.

Senor Castelar, who is now at Alicante, has declared to an interviewer that he will not come to Madrid to defend himself, observing at the same time that the article in question does not attack the Queen Regent, but the courtiers and this has been permitted under absolute monarchs.

The debate was indefinitely postponed.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE.

London, June 4.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: After consulting with the law officers, Senor Sagasta has arrived at the conclusion that there are no grounds to prosecute Senor Castelar for the article attacking the Queen Regent.

El Tiempo, the organ of Senor Silvela, leader of the dissident Conservatives, warns the French press not to indulge the illusion that Spain will purchase the assistance of France against the United States by any alliance implying Spain's assent to a cession of Ceuta and Melilla, and the development of French preponderance in Morocco.

TOO LATE TO SEND HELP.

New York, June 4.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: Great pressure is being put upon the Government by the press to send to Manila either Admiral Cervera's squadron or the reserve fleet at Cadiz. Eight thousand men and six batteries could be embarked within 24 hours at ports in the south of Spain. But the Government hesitates to send an expedition so late, when the American reinforcements from California are likely to forestall any Spanish relief. The Government expects that events in and about Cuba will soon give a decisive turn to the course of the war. It looks for either a landing and defeat of the Americans—this is confidently counted upon—or a signal reverse to the Spanish troops or Admiral Cervera's squadron, which will make it easier for America to adopt tactics most disastrous for Spain—a blockade of Cuba and Porto Rico—while waiting for the end of the rainy season. By that time both islands would be short of provisions.

The only drawback to this plan of campaign for the Americans would be the fact that this waiting game would increase the great sufferings of the reconcentrados and insurgents. Spain hopes that knowledge of this distress will drive the United States to premature action with insufficient organized forces.

PLENTY OF FOOD IN CUBA.

Madrid, June 4.—A Spaniard from Cuba who has returned here since the blockade of certain ports of the island, said to-day he had heard that plenty of food had been received in Cuba through the blockade runners chiefly English "under the very noses of the American ships," at various points along the coast, from which it was carted to the railway, thus reaching Havana.

The Spaniard asserts, also, that there is sufficient food in the island for the next eight months; that the greatest enthusiasm prevails among the Spaniards there, and that all the population is under arms. Private despatches from Cuba say that the rainy season has begun, and that the insurgents do not dare to attack Santiago de Cuba.

SINKING OF THE MERRIMAC.

Washington, June 4.—The President has received a cipher despatch stating that the Merrimac was sunk at the mouth of Santiago harbor and that eight of the crew were captured.

The message does not state that she was sunk intentionally, but the President is said to believe that she had been so as to effectually cork up the harbor.

IS BLANCO CUT OFF?

Last Cable Strands Binding Cuba to the Outside World Cut

Cut by American Warships Friday Afternoon—Cuba is now Totally Isolated from the World

Off Santiago de Cuba, June 3.—5 p. m., per the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 4.—The last cable strands binding Cuba to the outside world were cut this afternoon by a cable vessel convoyed here by the United States despatch boat Dolphin. The black sea crab delved all day along the coast hour by hour, and its powerful claws at length brought up the barnacle-clustered cable strands and snapped them, and to-night Cuba is wholly isolated.

The first cable picked up was that running to Kingston. It was found early this morning. The coast loop connecting Santiago de Cuba and Gauntanamo was then cut. Proceeding to Gauntanamo the cable vessel finally grappled and severed the Haytian cable.

This ends the cable cutting operations began a month ago, when the Marblehead and the Windom lost five men in a fight off Cienfuegos, where three cables were crippled and several hundred Spaniards were killed by shells from the American warships.

FINAL CUTS.

Afterwards the St. Louis and the Wampatuck cut the San Juan de Porto Rico cable at Santiago de Cuba. The strands cut to-day were the only ones remaining except a few coast loops, and these will probably be severed in a short time. The cutting of these cables is almost as serious for the Spaniards in coast towns as the cutting of foreign cables, the land wires connecting the coast towns being wholly at the mercy of the insurgents. Therefore, in the event of American troops landing in Cuba, the absence of the coast loops will seriously interfere with the hasty mobilization of the Spanish troops.

The United States and Hayti Cable Company and the Commercial Cable Company have not been notified of any interruption of the service, and they were still accepting business this morning for Cuba. There is a possibility that the workers on the cable vessel missed one of the cables.

A BROKENDOWN BOAT.

Washington, June 4.—Naval officers are absolutely satisfied that the Merrimac was sent in by order of Admiral Sampson to close the channel and prevent the escape of the Spanish squadron. One of the reasons for the conviction that the Merrimac was purposely sunk in the channel is the fact that the ship was of little value as a naval vessel. She had broken down in her machinery and was kept at work with difficulty. She is just the kind of craft that would be selected to block up the channel. She is of iron and therefore not likely to be easily removed by the Spaniards. She was empty and no further immediate value to the fleet.

ROAD TO PERDITION.

London, June 4.—According to a despatch from Madrid, El Heraldo, with regard to the situation at Santiago de Cuba, says: It is one more disenchantment which proves that there is no remedy for Spain's misfortunes. Cervera's squadron at Santiago is of little advantage either to itself or for what it represents. It can neither hinder the Yankee expedition no strengthen the defence of Havana. Spain never before led through such a straight road to perdition.

A SPANISH VERSION N

Madrid, June 4.—The version of the sinking of the Merrimac which has reached the Minister of Marine here, Captain Aunon, from Santiago de Cuba, is as follows:—A Spanish vessel in front of Santiago de Cuba, has sunk an American auxiliary crusier. All the members of the crew of the latter have bene imprisoned. The rest of the enemy's squadron immediately retired.

WHERE IS CERVERA.

London, June 4.—The Daily News continues to discuss the chances that Cervera is elsewhere. It says: "So long as he can dodge about undefeated, just so long will an invasion of Cuba be deferred. If he should be well on his way to Manilla, which is not impossible it would be a brilliant stroke of strategy. One American squadron must follow him, leaving the way open for another Spanish commander to play Cervera's game with a difference." With regard to the reports of peace proposals from Madrid and Paris, no great importance is attached to them in London, where it is recognized that until a decisive action has been fought ort he Spanish navy crushed there is little likelihood that the powers will interfere.

The peace statement is mainly connected with business and commercial

THE FLORIDA'S RETURN.

The Florida has returned to Port Tampa. She has unloaded the Cuban volunteers and the supplies at some point, but according to best and most reliable reports that point was Key West. It is supposed that she received the same reception as that given to the Gussie on her attempt to land the expedition on Cuban shores. This time the failure cannot be ascribed to the newspapers giving the world notice of her departure. The American Government is fast learning that General Blanco is very much awake, and that any attempt to land an expedition without first bombarding the coast and driving the Spanish inland will fail.

The New York papers in order to get even with the army officials for employing censorship over their telegraphic reports, are making some statements in their papers as to the condition of the army here as regards food, equipment and clothing, which are to a great extent now untrue.

While a great many of the volunteer regiments here are badly off for uniforms of any nature, and have really no equipment, and the whole regular and volunteer army have no summer clothing whatever, yet there is no cause for complaint as far as the food and water supply is concerned. Each day regularly a whole train of fresh beef from Armour's Chicago packing house arrives at Tampa for the exclusive supply of the men. Vegetables bread and water are here in abundance.

NO MEAT IN FLORIDA.

There is practically no meat of any description to be found in Florida. At one time there were great quantities of game, but since the Cubans have taken possession of the district, everything in this line has disappeared. Florida beef cannot be eaten. The residents have always depended on Chicago for their supply.

All the regiments are supplied with ice daily. It is manufactured in the city. They also receive many other luxuries in the shape of fruits etc. As for water, and good drinking water at that, the superintendent of the water plant claims that he could supply the whole United States army without the slightest difficulty.

One unfortunate thing is that the long promised canvas fatigue uniforms have not appeared, and the men are obliged to wear their heavy uniforms, which they brought from the North. But this has been made bearable by the commander issuing orders that the men need not wear their coats at any time. They are therefore drilled and reviewed in their shirtsleeves. That is one thing about the American army; everything is done to meet the necessities of the case, regardless of appearances. Fancy, if you can, a big general in the British army reviewing his troops in their shirtsleeves, with his own coat under his arm.

To-day was Decoration Day, but outside of the colors flying on the boats at the port, there was no notice given to it.

The balance of the guns to constitute the siege regimen have arrived, and are now being unloaded at Tampa. They are eight-inch dynamite guns, mounted on very high carriages of solid steel. Ten horses will be required to handle each gun, and they will be manned from the regiments of light artillery now in camp at Palmetto beach.

REAL HEROES OF THE WAR

The Men who Sank the Merrimac at Santiago are Thus Spoken of

She Was an Old and Vessel and was Sunk to Block the Harbor—The Bombardment Confirmed.

Washington June 4.—The Washington Post this morning says: There is absolutely no doubt in the minds of the naval officials at Washington that the sending of the collier into the harbor was all a prearranged move on the part of Admiral Sampson. The use of a collier, the unusual hour of the morning, the necessity of blockading the channel so as to relieve some of the ships of the squadron from remaining stationed off Santiago, the importance of discovering whether the mines were effective—all these reasons make it certain that the Merrimac was deliberately guided to her destruction. It was not a Spanish victory. It was a cleverly arranged scheme on the part of the American Admiral and it was successful. The eight men in Spanish prison are the real heroes of the war."

It is expected that reports will be received to-day from Admiral Sampson which will give details of the Merrimac's destruction and the names of the eight men who have been captured.

A USELESS VESSEL.

Washington June 4.—Up to 9.30 o'clock there was no news at the Navy Department concerning the sinking of the Merrimac. She was an old, useless vessel, and the department thinks was sent in to block the channel and thus bottle up Cervera. The fact that the crew was only eight men instead of forty confirms this. The department does not believe a fight has occurred.

A BRILLIAANT VICTORY.

Madrid, June 4.—The Spanish version of the sinking of the Merrimac in the channel leading into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba yesterday, says: "Two American ironclads were seriously damaged during the engagement." The Spaniards also describe the affair as "a brilliant Spanish victory."

THE BOMBARDMENT CONFIRMED.

Cape Haytien Hayti, June 4.—Information received here direct from Santiago de Cuba confirms the report that the bombardment began at three o'clock in the morning.

It is rumored here that the insurgents in Santo Domingo have captured the town of Santiago de Los Caballeros on the Yaque river, 10[illegible] miles east of this place.

THE CHANNEL WRECK.

Port Au Prince, June 4.—2.30 a. m.—Further news received here from Santiago de Cuba confirms the reports that the bombardment of that place commenced at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, and that after the action the Spaniards blew up with dynamite

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 6. 1898

HOW NELSON DID IT

As a matter of memory and school history, Lord Nelson was the greatest and most successful admiral the world produced, down to the days of steam power, yet on more than one occasion he let his enemy slip past and lead him a heart-rending chase for months before a blow could be struck. Bonaparte's expedition for the conquest of Egypt and the Orient had been organized for many months at Toulon. On May 9, 1798, Nelson sailed with a flying squadron from Gibraltar to scout off the French port and ascertain the mission of the French fleet. But the enemy eluded him completely, left Toulon with Bonaparte's army, and disappeared at sea with Nelson none the wiser for having appeared in the Gulf of Lyons. Reinforced by ten ships of the line, Nelson started in pursuit. But he kept missing the French fleet. He called at Alexandria in Egypt, but no French ship was there. Then he chased off to Syracuse, but still no enemy. Finally, after about three months of vain pursuit, he appeared on August 1 off AAlexandria again, and there he beheld the object of his search anchored in Aboukir Bay. The army of Bonaparte had been safely landed. The complete destruction of the French fleet followed, however, and the ultimate ruin of the Egyptian campaign was assured. The campaign of Trafulger, perhaps the most memorable in naval history, was infinitely more trying to the patience of both Nelson and the English people than any before it. Americans will grow restless if Cervera's squadron is not overhauled and destroyed within another week, yet it took Lord Nelson over two years to get within striking distance of the combined French and Spanish fleets, which he sent to eternal smash at Trafalgar. The British admiral blockaded Toulon, where the French fleet was fitting for sea, a full year and a half, and in all that time not once did he set foot on the land. And how were his perseverance and vigilance rewarded? On January 18, 1805, the enemy broke away and swept off to sea. It effected a junction with the Spanish fleet at Cadiz, which Nelson had determined to prevent. Then the allied force sailed to the West Indies, with Nelson in pursuit. The chase continued back to Europe again, without success, and Nelson thereupon left his ship and returned temporarily to England. It was not until October 5, 1805, over eight months after the French force had escaped from Toulon harbor, that Nelson finally met it and the Spanish allies in battle off Cape Trafalgar.

the sunken American collier Merrimac. It is said they have since been at work clearing the channel so as to permit Admiral Cervera's fleet to put to sea when the Cadiz fleet appears. The Spaniards pay tribute to the audacity of the Americans in so cleverly attempting to block the channel. They say it would be foolishness upon the part of the Americans to attempt to force the entrance, which is long and narrow and thoroughly mined, seemingly forming an insurmountable barrier.

MULVANEY OF THE 1ST.

Tampa, May 30.—A correspondent writes: I met "Mr. Mulvaney" to-day on my way to Port Tampa. "Mr. Mulvaney," belongs to the First Infantry, and was one of the party of that regiment which accompanied the Gussie on its unsuccessful expedition to land supplies for the insurgent army on Cuban shores.

He described in good Kipling style just how the whole affair happened, and how near his own brave self was to crossing the Rubicon.

Mr. Mulvaney was born in Ireland, of course, but for the past seventeen years has been doing his level best to look after the interests of Uncle Sam in his far west Indian Territory. He has the same idea of the Cubans as his namesake had of the natives of India.

This man from the Emerald Isle told me, with many oaths on the ethereal part of him which has been oilled through to Jericho, what a very foolish thing it was for Jonathan to send "a handful of min in a leaky old tub to land a whole houseful of supplies under the very nose of the Spanish army."

Mr. Mulvaney was fifteen feet from the Spanish lieutenant when he fell, and I asked him out of curiosity how the poor fellow looked. "Will," said he, "that fiftenen' looked kind o' three ways at once, and thin curled up like a shnake and nevir said a darned word.'

RATHER STAAY AT HOME.

My Irish friend does n't want to accompany any more expeditions like that one to Cuba. The Spaniards, by what he could make out, have a complete system of heliographing along the entire coast. It is now known that the news of the Gussie's arrival was at General Blanco's headquarters in Havana before the boats had attempted a landing. If the Spanish cavalry had only waited ten minutes longer, Mr. Mulvaney assured me, that there would not have been an American left to tell the tale. The expedition, it appears landed only two Cubans, who carried important despatches from Washington. At first they did not wish to attempt the journey, seeing that the Spanish soldiers were there before them, out on the commander of the gunboats promising that they should remain off the land for three hours they started. It is not at all probable that they escaped the Spanish steel, as the Spaniards had not scattered, but merely withdrawn quietly out of the range of the gunboats and could be plainly seen on the hills watching the landing of the two despatch bearers

Grounds open at 9 o'clock; dinner will be served at 12 o'clock and supper at 5 o'clock. A fine dancing platform and excellent music provided. Admission to grounds, including dinner, 50c.; children under 13, 25c. Everybody invited to the best picnic in the district— Wednesday, June 8th.

IMPORTANT SALE
—OF—
LANDS
IN PETERBOROUGH AND ASHBURNHAM

Pursuant to the Administration Order made by the High Court of Justice in the matter of the Estate of the late JOHN BURNHAM, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, with the approbation of the Master at Peterborough, AT THE MORGAN HOUSE, in the Town of Peterborough on

Monday, 27th day of June, 1898

at 2 p.m., by CHARLES STAPLETON, Auctioneer, the lands following namely:—

IN THE VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM

PARCEL 1.—Block "I" according to the Village Plan, and Lot "B" North of Douro Street and West of Grand Trunk Railway track according to Plan 15 of said Village. Upon this property is a two-storey brick dwelling about 32x42, with a two story kitchen and shed, with cellar under the whole house and kitchen. Dwelling is heated with hot air. The land contains about two acres. The property is occupied by a tenant whose lease is determinable on 2 months notice.

PARCEL 2.—Lot "A" on Plan 15 Ashubrnham, situated on the North side of Douro street and facing Brown Street. On the property is a two story brick house. The property is occupied by a monthly tenant at a rental of $10 per month.

PARCEL 3.—Part of Lot 3, South of Elizabeth Street and East of Mark Street described as follows:—Commencing at a point on the northern limit of Lot 86 1-2 links East from the North West corner of the Lot, thence Southerly (along a line drawn from the said point to a point in the Southern limit oft he Lot, distant one chain twenty-one and one-half links from the South West corner of the Lot) to where the Northern boundary of a portion of the said Lot belonging to one Dawson being produced would strike the said described line, thence West along the said Northern boundary produced to the Eastern boundary of the land owned by the said Dawson, thence, South along the Eastern limit of said land to the Southern limit of said Lot 8, thence Easterly along such Eastern limit to the South East corner of the Lot, thence Northerly along the Eastern limit thereof to the North East corner thereof, thence West to the place of beginning. Upon this Parcel is a two story 8 roomed brick dwelling. The property is now rented at $100.00 per annum by lease terminable in 6 months notice. There is a stable, etc., on the property belonging to the tenant which could be acquired by the purchaser if required, for $125.00

PARCEL 4.—The South West part of Lot 136 North of Robinson Street containing about one third of an acre on which there is a small frame house.

IN THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

PARCEL 5.—Park Lots 1 and 2 in Township Lot 14 in the 12th Concession of the Township of North Monaghan containing about 19 acres. This land is within the limits of the Town and is immediately North of the Driving Park. Upon the property is a dwelling house and stable, etc. Full possession to be given on 1st of October. The North 33 feet of Park Lot 2 is subject to an agreement with the owner of Park Lot 3 for the opening of a road from George Street to Park Street across said Lot. Park Lot 2 has been sub-divided into small Lots as shown by Plan registered which may be altered or entirely dispensed with by the purchaser.

PARCEL 6.—Lot Number 45 South of Crescent Street. On this Lot is a frame dwelling house (Street Number 17). The property is held by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 7.—Lot No. 51 North of Ware Street. There is on the Lot a frame dwelling house (Street Number 32) occupied by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 8.—Part of Lot Number 1 South of Sherbrook Street and West of George Street described as the North 48 feet thereof. Upon this Parcel is a two-storey frame building occupied as a store and dwelling by a monthly tenant.

PARCELS 9 and 10.—Building Lots 18 and 19 South of Sherbrooke Street and West of Park Street. These lots have each a frontage on Sherbrooke Street of 74 links and a depth of 3 chains and 33 links.

PARCEL 11.—Building Lot 46 South of Crescent Street, having a frontage thereon of about 90 links and a depth of about 2 chains and 90 links.

PARCELS 12, 13, 14 and 15.—Building Lots Numbers 52, 53 (except the West 35 feet) 55 and 57 north of Ware Street. These lots have each a frontage of 80 1-2 links, and a depth of 2 chains and 80 links.

PARCELS 16, 17, 18 and 19.—Lots 3, 4, 9 and 10 South of Ware Street on Plan 62. These lots are 75 links wide and 2 chains 28 links deep.

PARCELS 20 and 21.—The South half of Lot "D" and all Lot "E" in Plan 37. These lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street and are 1 chain, 12 1-2 links wide, by 3 chains 41 links deep.

PARCEL 22.—Lot "F" and that part of Lot "G" not conveyed to Midland Railway on said Plan 37.—. The Lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street.

PARCEL 23.—30 Building Lots situated on Gladstone Avenue between Lock Street and Haggart Street to be sold en bloc.

TERMS OF SALE.—10 per cent down and the balance in one month thereafter without interest.

There will be a reserved bid upon each Parcel. In other respects the conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Court.

Further particulars can be obtained from MESSRS. HALL & HAYES, Solicitors, or from the undersigned.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

E. & D. BICYCLE

are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this. The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

She is very proud and very high-tempered," said Nina, in her soft creole drawl. She remembered Stella's determined method in regard to herself, and was not sorry to have an opportunity of expressing her opinion. She loved the teacher with all her heart, but, like all creatures that have been subdued and conquered, felt once in a while a sting of resentment over the recollection of that conquest.

"Ah,t hat is what I heard. Now I do not know what do do on the subject."

"Why, what is your business with Miss Sterling."

"I'llt ell you, Miss Dunlap, and you can give me your advice. Miss Sterling is the heiress to a large fortune, if she is the young lady I think she is."

"I do not know what you mean," said Mina, with a puzzled look.

"Why, this is what I mean. I am in search of a Miss Sterling, and I think the young lady who is your governess is the one, but I am not certain till I know more about her. I should not like to tell the lady she was an heiress, and then find out that the fortune belonged to some one else. If she is so proud and haughty she might be very angry."

"That is very true; but how can you find out without asking her?"

"Do you know who her parents were?"

"No, She did tell me that her father and mother were both dead, and I do not think I ever heard her mention any relations; but she said one day she never had any brothers and sisters.'

"Well, the young lady I am looking for is an only child, and an orphan."

"Then it may be Stella. If she has a fortune she will go away and leave me."

"Perhaps not. I should think she would be too much attached to you to do so."

Jeffrey Pettus looked very tenderly at the West Indian, whose sallow cheek flushed, and her dark eyes sank consciously.

"Now, Miss Dunlap, if you could find out about Miss Stella, if, for instance, you could find out what her father's first name was, what city he lived in or came from, what her mother's maiden name was and the like of that—I could then tell you whether she is the lady who is entitled to the money?"

"But how could I find out such things without asking her?"

"Well, I think you might ask her in a way that she wouldn't notice. You might start a conversation about names Mention the names of your father and mother. Tell her you have heard some names are lucky, or something like that.'

Nina looked at Jeffrey admiringly.

"I'll try," she said. "But hon can I let you know what I do find out?"

"Can I call here?"

"Well, you see I amy not out in society; so, if you did call, Miss Sterling would see you.'

"Oh, I don't care anything about seeing Miss Sterling, but I should like to see you again."

eH threw as much tender emphasis in his voice as he knew how. He had already seen how vain Nina was, and how ignorant of the ways of the world.

"I don't know how we can manage it,' Nine said, reflectively. "You see, Miss Stella goes with me when I drive or ride. Do you know Mr. Jameson? If he asked you to dinner I'd get a chance to speak to you during the evening."

With difficulty Jeffrey suppressed a smile. The idea of a wealthy lawyer whose social standing was of the highest, inviting Jeffrey Pettus, the housebreaker, bronco-steerer, and general crack, to dinner, was irresistably comic.

"I should not like to meet you in that way," be said, "because it would not seem half as pleasant as meeting you alone."

By a few adroit questions he learned the church she was in the habit of attending, and then coolly remarked:

"Couldn't you say you were going to church some morning, and I'll meet you, and we'll go for a ride?"

"Yes—next Sunday."

"Well, if it is fine, I'll look for you; if it is stormy, I suppose you won't go.'

"Then, the next Sunday I'll go. Where will you meet me?"

"Two blocks from here. I'll wait on the corner of Thirty-ninth street."

"Very well, I'll be there."

Jeffrey pressed her hand and took his departure. He was afraid that Stella might return, which would upset all his schemes.

Nina was delighted. She must be grown up, or this fascinating stranger would not be so anxious to cultivate her acquaintance.

Stella did not observe the unusual color on Nina's cheek, or the brightness of her eyes.

She was preoccupied and thoughtful. Edith's warning words had made an impression on her. She felt interested,t oo, in Harold Dutton, for the first time since she had met him.

"What a mysterious manner Edith put on!" said Stella, as she drew the letter out of her shopping bag and unfolded it.

Just as she perused the opening words, Chisholm the butler, knocked at the door.

Stella opened it and the man handed her a card on which was inscribed the name of "Mr. Walter Derwent.'

CHAPTER XV.

Walter Derwent was too deeply interested in Stella Sterling to wait for another opportunity to meet her until Mr. Jameson might chance to invite him to dine with him.

He felt that he was justified in paying a special visit to inqure for her health.

Stella tripped down the stairs and stood before him looking lovelier than ever. She wore a black lace dress, and had carelessly arranged a knot of pale yellow rosebuds at her throat.

"I called to ask you how you were after your fright the other evening," said Walter Derwent.

"Think you. Take a seat. I am well and have just returned from the park."

They were soon conversing on all sorts of subjects and found that they had many congenial tastes. Walter was a fine musician and Stella played brilliantly, and possessed a rich soprano voice, which was well trained and of unusual compass.

Walter was convinced before he parted from her that day, that Stella was the woman of all the women in the world, who was worthy to become his wife.

That was how he regarded the matter.

"She is worthy of the position," he said. "I shall feel proud of her. I must, of course, ascertain all about her family; but I am certain good blood runs in those blue veins which appear in such delicate tracery on her white temples and slender wrists. She is a lady, refined and cultivated, and her beauty is marvellous. A gem, a pearl among women!"

AN INQUIRING LAD.

Personal Adornment Which Appeared to Be Unnecessary.

"When I was down in the Tennessee mountains doing my turn in that peculiar and primitive section," observed the special pension agent, "I had at various times such glimpses of life as you pampered children of the luxurious capital never get. I remember one June morning I arose from my simple bed of clapboards on the loft floor of a log cabin and proceeded down a ladder to the earth, thence a hundred yards down to the creek, where I was afforded ample opportunity for my matutinal ablutions, as the stream was big enough to run a sawmill with.

"As I splashed my face in the clear water and splttered over it after the usual fashion of a man who likes to wash his face I was joined by the 10-year-old son of the family with which I was stopping. He stood on the shore watching me with much interest, which I am glad to say I returned with zest, for he was a picture boy. He was sandy and freckled and didn't look as if he had had a bath in the memory of man. His clothes were simple enough, consisting of a cotton shirt, and there was no hat to hide a head of hair which I am positive never felt the penetrating and persuading influence of a comb. He was too much interested in the mysteries of my toilet to say anything until I took out a comb and began to use it on my tangled locks. After a tug or two at it, looking at him meanwhile, he spoke.

"'Say, mister,' he said curiously, 'have yer got to do that there?'

"'Do what there?' I smiled in reply.

"'That there that yer doin.'

"'You mean combing my hair?'

"'Yes.'

"'Of course it has to be done.'

"'Every mornin this erway?'

"'Certainly.'

"'Well, geewhillerkins, mister,' he said, with much feeling, 'yer must be a heap of trouble to yerself.'"—Washington Star.

A STORY OF NAPOLEON.

He Liberated a Scotchman at Oberkampf's Request.

Napoleon had at one time many admirers in England, especially among the commercial classes, who suffered deeply from the war, but he alienated the sympathies of all such by his cruel arrest of the English who were in France at the time of the rupture of the peace of Amiens, in 1803. Some 12,000 English of both sexes were thus detained in irksome captivity till the close of the war, and hardly a family in the middle and upper classes but had to bewail the absence of some friend or connection.

Yet in individual cases Napoleon showed some magnanimity. A young Scotchman, one Robert Hendry, from Glasgow, a scientific dyer and chemist, had taken advantage of the peace to visit the great manufacturing houses of France, and he was staying at Jouy, where Oberkampf has established a huge cotton printing factory, when war suddenly broke out. Hendry was thereupon constituted a prisoner by the authorities, but allowed to remain on parole at Jouy.

Napoleon one day visited the factory unexpectedly, accompanied by Josephine. He made a rapid progress through the works. Villagers and work people, the latter numbering 1,400, assembled to witness his departure, cheering the cortege, and cheering still louder when the emperor was seen to take the cross from his own breast and affix it to that of the modest Oberkampf. Isabey painted the scene, and the picture is still to be found upon the walls of Versailles. But Oberkampf had still something to ask. Napoleon smiled propitiously, but made a wry face when he heard the petition, which was for the release of the prisoner. "An Englishman!" "No, sire, a Scotchman! His mother—his sisters depend on his labors." "Well, he shall be free, then!" said the emperor.—Household World.

Hebrew Texts of the Old Testament.

The most ancient Hebrew manuscript of any part of the Bible is in St. Petersburg and dates no earlier than the tenth century. More than 2,000 copies of the Hebrew Old Testament have been compared, and very few variations have been found. This is accounted for by the fact that from the time when the Hebrew canon was formed, and even before that time, very strict rules were laid down for the scribes who copied the Bible. The lines and letters were counted, and each copy had to correspond precisely with the one from which it was taken. They calculated, for instance, that there were 5,245 verses in the Pentateuch, 22,206 in the whole Bible and 78,100 letters in Genesis. All of these rules and calculations were called the Massorah tradition, and about the tenth century the college of rabbis of Tiberias, on the Euphrates, decided upon a standard Bible, or "authorized version."

The Hebrew consonants alone had been written down up to that time, the pronunciation being a matter of tradition. Now a system of vowel signs was devised, fixing the sense in many instances. The vowels are just as important in Hebrew as in English so it is easy to see how necessary this reform was. The English consonants b r d may be read board or bread, or bored or braid, and if they occurred in a sentence without the vowels we should have to guess by the connection which vowels were necessary. It is possible that after a text had been adopted all older manuscripts were destroyed, or more probably were neglected because of their defects, and hence they have altogether disappeared.—Review of Reviews.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

AN AMERICAN CRUISER SANK

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 3.—Santiago advices say that the American fleet again attacked fortifications and warships at 3 a. m. The fire was well sustained until 4 o'clock. An auxiliary American cruiser attempted to force a passage, but was sunk by a torpedo. Eight Americans were made prisoners by the Spaniards.

SCHLEY'S REPORT OF THE BOMBARDMENT

Washington, D. C., June 3. — The Navy Department has bulletined the following report from Commodore Schley: "Secretary of Navy, Washington: Made reconnoisance this afternoon, May 31st, with the Massachusetts, Iowa and New Orleans, to develop fortifications with their character. The fire was returned without delay by the heavy batteries to the east and to the west—large calibre at long range. The range was 7,000 yards. Reconnoisance developed satisfactorily the presence of the Spanish squadron lying behind the land, near the upper fort, as they fired over the hill at random. Quite satisfied the Spanish fleet is here. (Signed(Schley."

LOSS OF CRUISER CORROBORATED

New York, June 3.—The Journal prints the following under Cape Haytien date, declaring that it went over the cable from Santiago to Europe to-day: "This morning there was heavy cannonading from 3 to 4 o'clock. An armed American Trans-Atlantic steamer tried to run over the first line of torpedo defences. The Spaniards let her do so, but when the American ship, which had already got into the pass, attempted to run over the second line of torpedoes, the Spaniards set fire to one of these and the American ship sank right down immediately. After the explosion of the torpedo, an officer, an engineer and six seamen, were made prisoners. The name of the American ship is unknown, as well as the number of victims who have perished."

URGED TO ACCEPT AUTONOMY

Madrid, June 3.—A despatch received here from Havana says that in the Chamber of Representatives there Senor Gibaraja, the Autonomist leader, has presented a motion urging the Government of Cuba to request the insurgents of that Island to accept autonomy on the ground that the insurgents themselves must be aware that the country was not yet ripe for independence. 'The President of the Chamber declared, in a patriotic speech, that the Government would entertain such a motion.'

OPENED FIRE AGAIN AT 3 O'CLOCK

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 3.3.15 p. m.—The American fleet, according to advices received by cable from Santiago de Cuba,t he cable being under Spanish control, opened fire again at three oc'clock this morning on the fortifications and warships. The cannonade was well sustained until four o'clock a. m. A United States auxiliary cruiser, well-armed, attempted to force the passage into the harbor. The Spanish allowed the cruiser to cross the first line of torpedoes, but before she arrived at the second line they discharged at her a torpedo, which broke a great hole through her side and caused her to sink almost instantly—bow first. The name of the vessel is not known, nor is the number of victims reported. One officer, one engineer and six sailors were made prisoners by the Spaniards.

MOST IMPORTANT DEFENCES.

The most important of the defences of Santiago, said the Minister of Marine, took no part in the engagement, which was merely an attempt on the part of the Americans to ascertain their own ranges and find out the strength of the Spanish batteries. Int he latter object they were foiled, as they were only allowed to engage with the forts which were well in sight. As a matter of fact, there are numerous earthworks in rear of the hills upon which Morro and Zocapa are placed, which could not be sighted from the sea. These really form the impregnable part of the defences of Santiago, as they are mounted with heavy Krupp and Armstrong guns of modern pattern, carrying shot which will pierce the thickest armor afloat. The eartworks have been thrown up since the arrival of Admiral Cervera, who carried a large quantity of heavy artillery from Cadiz for the especial purpose of being mountedt here. The result has been to render Santiago perfectly safe from an attack by sea. Even if the American vessels could pass the narrow channel affording entrance to the harbor and escape the numerous mines, which could not be done without a skilful pilot, they would be compelled to run the gauntlet of tremendously strong batteries, firing almost almost point-blank at their hulls, and in the attempt would be simply annihilated.

FACTS BORNE OUT.

These facts, says Senor Aunon, are fully borne out by the reporteed forming of expeditions to invest Santiago de Cuba by land, the Washington Administration recognizing that it is utterly impossible to effect an entrance fromt he sea.

A STARTLING STILLNESS.

Professor Burk gave his sermon in a stillness that was almost startling. Within the pavillion the men sat and eagerly listened to the preacher as he touched with force on the cause oft he present war between America and Spain; on the noble attitude of the United States towards Cuba; on the duties of the soldiers towards their country and their God. He brought vividly before the men a picture of future battle-fields in the lowlands of Cuba, and concluded by telling them that they were even now on the eve of a series of bloody battles, in which many of them seated before him "would bite the dust." He knew they would die like soldiers, and prayedt hat they would go to their God prepared.

As his last words fell on the still air, I looked around at the men about me,t o whom these forcible words had sucht ruthful meaning, and although the atmosphere of the place had something about it akin to that which generally pervades a hanging scene in a jail-yard, yet patriots, a nd not guilty prisoners, were here, and though they looked as if they appreciated the preacher's words, yet over all their mournful airs there appeared to be a broad expression of bravery and pride.

The hospital department is one of the most interesting of all the different sections of the United States army. Each regimental hospital corps is made up of the surgeon, a steward, one nurse, an orderly and an ambulance driver.

INDIGNATION AGAINST CASTELAR.

Public indignation and abuse, especially from the monarchists, is being directed against Senor Castelar, the great Republican leader, who, in an article in the Petite Revue Internationale, draws a parallel between Marie Antoinette and the present Queen Regent of Spain, suggesting that the latter contemplates abdication in favor of her sister-in-law, the Infanta Isabel, in preference to becoming a party to peace at the price of surrender.

Senor Castelar is accused by the Royalists of a lack of tact and good breeding, and of a weak-minded attempt to echo court gossip against the Queen Regent.

The article has been turned into capitalby the Carlists, the Republicans, and Generals Weyler and Robledo. All newspapers which have reproduced it are being prosecuted in a court martial. The only real grievance the Spaniards have against the Queen Regent ist hat she is forever courting the support of the generals of the army, of Vatican prelates, Jesuit monks and nuns, simply to try and prevent their going over to the pretender, Don Carlos.

bandages and bottles of chloroform; in fact everything necessary to conduct an operation on the field of battle. Number two chest carries the medicines required for the hurried treatment of cases of exhaustion, and ordinary sickness, all in pellet form.

The duty of these men when the army is in action is to go on the field over which their regiment has passed and attend to the wounded, after whicht hey attach a cardboard tag stating the nature of the wound, and what treatment has been employed, and send them to the rear to the general army hospital.

$700,000,000 FOR A YEAR.

Washington, June 3.—In the Senate to-day consideration of the war revenue measure was resumed. In speaking of the measure Mr. Hale, Rep., Maine, gave it as his opinion that if this war lasts a year it will cost the United States Government between seven and eight hundred millions of dollars.

"That is my prediction and I put myself on record to that effect."

Mr. Jones said that no such money might be spent, but he did not think so. He was satisfied at all events that an issue of bonds was unnecessary. "I do not believe," said he, "that the war will last one year, six months or anything like that time. Andt he cost will certainly be much less than stated by Senator Hale. The Secretary of War and the Navy each made an estimate of the expenses for one year, and their aggregate estimates were only about half the estimates of the Senator from Maine."

Mr. Hale pointed out that no war was so expensive as an expeditionary war. He said he had examined all the estimates made upon the expenses of the war, and he was satisfied they would reach certainly $700,000,000.

ROMANTIC OMEMEE

A Fiery Tale—Seen by Half the Town—But no Counsel

In June, 1890, a fire, starting in the Blackwell House—then unoccupied—swept away Williamson's, Ivory's and Miller's stores and outbuildings. Ugly rumors were spread as to its cause. In August of '91 a second large fire occurred, this time cleaning out the centre of the town, and originating as before in a hotel—the Clark House—This fire burned the Windsor House, Sam English, proprietor, Tisdale's grocery and dwelling, Menzie's harness shop, Curry's store and dwelling, McCraes' furniture factory and dwelling, Calder's printing office, (Herald) and dwelling, Mulligan's drug store and dwelling, and caught Mr. Ivory a second time. Again ugly rumors were circulated, not only as to the origin of the fire, but as to what became of the goods carried into the street. Mrs. English claims to have lost a lot of her table line, bed spreads, &c., as well as personal clothing, and accused Thos. Henderson of having part in his possession. The accusation which led to the trial on Saturday last was made to Mr. and Mrs. Henderson while on their way home from church and was to the effect as sworn by Mr. Henderson that since he and his wife were good enough to go to church they had better return the stolen goods they had. Mrs. Sam English admitted all except the use of the word stolen. Geo. English was not sure that this word was used. Mrs. English was on her own premises and Mr. and Mrs. Henderson on the sidewalk. After the evidence was all in Col. Deacon, of Lindsay, the presiding magistrate, entered at some length into the history of these accusations, and of the litigation to which they had led, and explained fully to Mrs. English that if she believed them she had a proper remedy. He then found her guilty, but deferred sentence to give her an opportunity to present her charges in a legal form, which she did, swearing out an information against Mr. Henderson. No witness fees were allowed but Mrs. English must pay the other costs. Mrs. English and Mr. Hopkins, of Lindsay, who represented Mr. Henderson had several set-toos which afforded considerable merriment to the large crowd in attendance. Later developments are looked for eagerly, and the Times will be on hand to chronicle them.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing thee musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

The Black Cap.

There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the coif—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their wigs when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coif," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the coif, as Lord Campbell repeatedly states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to veil the coif on the only occasion when the coif was required to be hidden. By the ancient privileges of the sergeants the coif was not to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be so displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule seems always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death.

"The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of sorrow, by the black sentence cap. This cornered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, as it is sometimes termed, is a piece of limp black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Analogous Reasoning.

A poet proffering his work to an editor said:

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a smallish coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lay" Plates.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic plates for the "lay service." The scheme of providing does not permit the guest to be without a plate before him, and between the courses plates are laid at each cover, one laid down while the used plate is removed. Cauldon Copeland and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates."—Philadelphia Press.

WOMEN IN FRENCH FICTION.

Distorted Portraitures of French Wives and Mothers Presented by Novelists.

Miss Anna L. Bicknell, who lived for some years in the Tuileries as a governess in the household of Napoleon III, contributes to The Century an article on "French Wives and Mothers." This is richly illustrated by drawings by Boutet de Monvel. Miss Bicknell says:

Those who have gathered their opinions as to the real character of the average Frenchwoman from the romantic literature of the present century, more especially that of the last few years, would necessarily bear a severe judgment, tinged with a considerable amount of contempt. Such an opinion would, however, be unjust and wholly undeserved, as any impartial observer, having been privileged to share French home life, could truly tell them. The average English woman is very graphically depicted in English novels, and a foreigner can form a fair estimate of her merits and demerits from the descriptions of English domestic life presented by popular writers. But it is not so in France or in French literature. The real French gentlewoman deserves to be better understood, for she is totally unlike the heroines of modern novels, whose writers know about as much of aristocratic life as the author of "The Lady Flabella" in "Nicholas Nickleby." The pictures presented in Octave Feuillet's writings are perhaps the truest to nature as it is seen in some melancholy cases. But he himself certainly would have been ready to admit that the women he met in daily life had nothing in common with his morbid heroines. As he belonged to a good old family of the upper bourgeoisie, he had better opportunities of knowing the society which he depicted so powerfully in his novels of fashionable life than have the upstarts who describe salons of which they have never crossed the threshold.

But even in the works of Feuillet, although the frame is accurate, the portraits are those of exceptionally diseased minds. Women like Mme. de Champallon in "M. de Camors" or the dreadful Julia de Trecoeur may exist in France or elsewhere, but those who know French society will certainly recognize more readily women like Mme. de Camors and her charming mother or the Suzanne of "La Clef d'Or," with the home of Sibylle and the dear old people so delightfully described there. Many examples might be quoted equally sweet and pure among the heroines of Feuillet's impassioned narratives, and one is convinced that these have been more faithfully copied from nature than the others.

The fact is that the great majority of French novelists belong to the Bohemia of literature and are not admitted within the precincts either of aristocratic circles or of the less refined but equally strict burgeois homes. They know only the borderland, peopled in general by the wealthy and adventurous foreign set which budded and expanded during the second empire and has now taken its place by the side of French society, but not within its pale.

A Realistic Scene.

"Realism is the thing," insisted the garrulous actor while they were taking their night lunch after the show. "Nothing takes like the real sawmill, the cotton mill, train of cars, fire engine, burning block, genuine horse and all that sort of thing.

"I discovered that when I was a kid getting up amateur performances. That's where I learned human nature before we youngsters knew anything about the ways of the world and had a comb with a piece of paper over it and a jew's harp and a mouth organ for the orchestra. I'll never forget when we gave 'Red Handed Antonius' in the barn—3 cents for adults, 1 cent for children over 5 and free seats for the balance. Everything was real. I had a corn knife for a sword, and there wasn't a soldier in the squad that didn't have a musket longer than himself. When we fought, the anger of battle flamed from our eyes, and when one fell he went down so hard that it took weeks to remove the bruises. The audience would get on their feet to cheer, and it took half a dozen husky marshals to keep them from going after the villain with pitchforks.

"When it came time to behead Antonius, the excitement was intense. The music of the orchestra was slow and dismal. The children had to be carried out, and they whooped as they went. The people held their breath as I ground the corn knife on a real grindstone and hissed my vow of vengeance. When I removed my coat and rolled up my sleeves, the breathing stopped. Just here my father entered by way of a granary door and carried me kicking off the stage. If he had not, I would have decapitated the youngster who was playing Antonius as sure as I am alive. If the whole thing hadn't been so realistic, we couldn't have held our audience for ten minutes. It's the same way the world over."—Detroit Free Press.

Laughed Himself to Death.

Among the historical incidents connected with the rathhaus is one relating to an old judge who laughed himself to death. One sultry day, reads the record, during a recess of the council the members were leaning from the windows of the rathhaus in the hope to catch any stray wind. It was the period of hoops and voluminous skirts, and maid shared with mistress the mania for distended attire. On this pulseless summer day a pretty servant girl in a wide hooped skirt and a gay bodice made her way through the loitering groups up to the fountain. She filled her tub and lifted it to her head, but in this movement, lo, the wonderful skirt was wrested from its fastenings and it dropped to the ground. The judge had seen the maid approach the fountain like a ship under full sail, and when he now beheld her, collapsed and abashed, he was filled with such humor that upon the spot he laughed himself to death.—"Stuttgart," by Elsie J. Allen, in Harper's Magazine.

Clerk Worm Turns on Shopper.

She wanted to look at baskets, and for that purpose the clerk took from the shelves a large assortment until all but two were scattered over the counter. The woman did not want to buy, so she turned away, making the excuse, "I only came in to look for one of my friends." The clerk felt rather exasperated and replied, "Madam, if you have the slightest idea that your friends are in either of these two baskets on the shelves, I shall be pleased to take them down for you to examine."—Springfield Republican.

The Rabbit Industry.

It doesn't take much to start the rabbit industry—a few rabbits and a turnip patch or some other pasture—but it takes a mighty hustling to check it after it gets a good start. We kill about 14,000,000 of them in North Carolina every winter, but there are more here now than there were when Mr. Raleigh brought his immigrants over.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

Drowned at Parry Sound

A telegram was received by the Chief of Police Saturday afternoon stating that James Fox, said to be of Peterborough, or to have relatives here, was found drowned at Parry Sound Saturday morning. Coroner John R. Stone of that place wanted to know what disposition would be made of the body. It could not be ascertained in town who this James Fox was. None of the families of that name have a relative at Parry Sound.

Cut His Foot With an Adze

Mr. John McWilliams, of Ashburnham, was the victim of a severe accident Friday afternoon. He was working on a G. T. R. bridge near Rearboro and was cutting with an adze when the tool slipped and made an ugly gash in Mr. McWilliams' foot. The unfortunate man was brought to Peterborough, where Dr. Clarke dressed the wound, which was about two inches in length and which had occasioned the loss of a great deal of blood.

The Farmers' Pic nic

The ninth annual Farmers' Picnic will take place on Thursday next to Jubilee Point as usual. The public are warned that the excursion advertised to take place to-day has no connection with the regular Farmers' Excursion. THE GAOL BREAKERS

Travelled by Night and Slept in the Woods During the Daytime

The Times on Saturday noted the arrival in town of the gaol breakers—Marshall (alias McDonald) and Fobes—in charge of Chief Roszel and Gaoler Nesbitt.

The story of their wanderings, as related by Marshall, is interesting.

When the two got outside of the gaol here they knew that every means would be taken to secure their arrest. They took no chances and stuck to the plan of travelling by night and sleeping in the woods during the daytime, avoiding all towns and keeping in the most lonely country parts. The morning of their escape they got as far as Omemee and slept in a woods not far off. They continued their journey going westward, intending to strike for Marshall's old home at Elyria, Ohio. They kept this up for four days and they say that during that time they were hardly seen by a human being. They endured great privations, going with very little food for the whole of the four days. They were nearly eaten up by mosquitos in the woods during the daytime. Once while this side of Toronto, they came on to the railroad track and immediately went north again and skirted round the city.

On the Monday morning after their escape they reached Streetsville and began to follow the C.P.R. track to the west, riding on freight trains or walking as they found best. At Woodstock they got on the wrong track and were carried down to St. Thomas. Here they struck the Michigan Central track and boarded a freight train arriving in Windsor at three o'clock in the morning of last Thursday, just a week after their escape. Windsor is a little over 300 miles from Peterborough and Marshall says that of that distance they walked at least 150 miles.

The police at Windsor were on the lookout for tramps on the trains. They were not after these two in particular, but, happening to see them get off the train, they took the wanderers in. Sergt. Nash and Officer Reid made the arrest. Then came the strange part of the discovery. Marshall has all along been under the delusion that no photograph existed of him. He did not know that one was ever taken in his old home at Elyria. Yet Chief Roszel received one from there on the morning of the escape. He immediately had copies made which he sent out through the country, Mr. R. M. Roy taking the copy and producing a better likeness than even the one received from Elyria. Marshall knew nothing of this and having never allowed his face to be photographed here he felt quite confident that he could not be recognized from a description. He was, therefore, quite willing to be arrested as a tramp for he expected to be let out in the morning, and entered the cell without the slightest fear. Had he known that the police at Windsor had a photograph of him he says he would never have gone near the town.

The two were placed in cells but one of the officers became somewhat suspicious and Marshall was brought out again. The policeman turned up his whisker and felt the scar on his left cheek. He became a little nervous but when a moment after they produced an excellent likeness, which he had not the slightest idea was in existence at all, accompanied by a circular from Chief Roszel giving an exact description of him, and making his identity known, he was completely dumfounded. The photograph so staggered him that he gave up all hope at once. Had he known that there was any such photograph he would never have gone near Windsor, or, at least, would never have been taken without a hard chase. But, confident in his ignorance, and suffering as they were with exhaustion and privation, he was quite willing to go to the station that morning to get a rest as he was to go anywhere else.

Marshall talked freely about their escape, but the authorities refuse to make public some of the circumstances in connection with the event. Marshall, however, takes the blame for the whole occurrence. The instrument used to saw the iron bar which let him pass through the door of his cell was an old knife, which he says he secured through the man who acted as cook for the gaol previous to Fobes. No explanation is made as to the wrench.

Mart. Marshall belongs to Elyria, Ohio. He was a member of the Blinkey Morgan gang of burglars. He has travelled under the aliases of Frank Blackburn and Jas. McDonald.

Must Keep Out of Victoria Park

The directors of the Horticultural Society have decided to make it a rule that no bicyclist shall allowed on Victoria park with wheels either on bind night or during the rest of the week, on account of the injury that is done to the grounds and the tendency of the cyclists to use the paths for scorching. As there are plenty of other places for wheeling the directors have instructed Caretaker Cobb to enforce the rule strictly.

Maybees' Restaurant

This is Peterborough's best known eating house, and Maybee's fifteen cent meal is justly celebrated. A specialty will be made of ice cream this season; this department being under the direction of Mr. A. Morris, whose well known connection with Nasmith, of Toronto is a sufficient guarantee. Mr. Maybee is not only a caterer, for he also deals in all lines of table provisions—pickles, canned goods, and especially and most extensively in pies and cakes, and carries with it a very full line of confectionery and chewing gums.

Danny Simons—Opera House—Wednesday, June 29th

On Wednesday, June 29th, Danny Simons's great vaudeville show will be put on in the Opera House. It will be a big treat to see Dan in his own original tramp act—"Dusty Roads"—and a dozen other specialties. Dan brought down the house with these great hits during the past season in the Eastern States. He will be assisted by his clever sister, Miss Lily Simons in her own original comedietta, "Stage-struck, of Cora the Frivolous." He will also be assisted by the best local talent, including little Carrie White, Miss Ellis, Toronto, Miss McCabe and others, in presenting a splendid bill of vaudeville fun. Remember the date—Wednesday, June 29th. Popular prices—15c and 25c.

FORESTERS AT CHURCH

Over 150 Foresters Attend Divine Service at the George St. Methodist Church

The members of the different Courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters in town to the number of 150, met at the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, last evening and paraded to the George street Methodist church, where the annual church service of the Order was held.

Rev. S. J. Shorey preached an able and impressive sermon. The discourse was listened to with marked attention by the large congregation present.

The musical part of the service was specially prepared for the occasion and the manner of its rendition was faultless.

The Foresters, on their return to the hall, passed a vote of thanks to Rev. S. J. Shorey for the eloquent sermon delivered, and to the officers of the congregation for so kindly placing the church at their disposal.

The Foresters looked well and marched well on parade.

DROWNING ACCIDENT

Little Willie Kenneally Drowned Last Night at Lakefield

A sad drowning accident occurred about nine o'clock last night at Lakefield.

Willie Kenneally, aged nine years, son of Mr. William Kenneally, of Lakefield, while playing with a number of other lads on the town dock, accidentally fell off and was drowned.

Had his companions given the alarm promptly the unfortunate lad's life might have been saved, but the boys were so terror-stricken that considerable time elapsed before it occurred to them to call for assistance.

The body was recovered about fifteen minutes afterwards. All attempts to resuscitate the lad proved unavailing although Dr. Fraser worked hard for fully an hour.

The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

RAILWAY NOTES

Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway Paragraphs of Interest

—Mr. Geo. Layng has been appointed yardmaster at Havelock.

—Freight traffic on the G. T. R. still continues much above the average.

—The Grand Trunk earnings for the period May 22nd to May 31st show an increase of $3,460 over the same time last year. The week's earnings in 1898 was $586,132, and in 1897 $582,672.

—Havelock Standard: The C. P. R. freight train, No. 56, which arrives here on its way east at 11.05 p.m., met with an accident, on Thursday morning which considerably delayed traffic on the road. It was a long freight, drawn by one of the new four wheelers, and when between Ardendale and Kaladar, about forty miles east, the train broke down from some cause and a bad wreck resulted and several cars were ditched. The 3.30 west bound train did not get in till after ten o'clock, while the 1.30 p. m. train was fifty minutes late. The express which passes through here at midnight and the early morning train could not pass and the passengers had to be transhipped. Brakesman Ed. Oldrie, of this place met with a number of injuries chief among them being a compound fracture of the left ankle. He was taken to St. Michael's hospital, Toronto, where he is doing very nicely.

Destroyed by Fire

"The Bungalow," the summer cottage owned by Mr. Chas. Wynn at Sandy Point, at the head of Clear Lake, was destroyed by fire Friday night. The cottage was one of the first summer residences built at Stony Lake or Clear Lake, and was one of the best. Mr. Wynn had another cottage close at hand, but this was not burned. The fire must have been of an incendiary origin. It was furnished, and the loss on cottage and furnishings would be about four or five hundred dollars.

TROOPS LAND AT SANTIAGO

One Battalion of Engineers, Three Batteries of Artillery, Three Regiments of Infantry and Heavy Seige Guns

TROOPS LANDED

New York, June 6.—The ticker service at 2.55 this afternoon sent out the following:

Mole St. Nicholas, June 6.—United States cruiser St. Louis arrived here this morning with despatches for Washington. She brought news that troops were successfully landed west of Santiago de Cuba on Saturday. The troops were one battalion of engineers, three batteries of artillery, three regiments of infantry and heavy seige guns, which were easily disembarked by use of pontoons.

SPANISH FLEET REPORTED AT CADIZ

Gibraltar, June 6.—It is reported here to-day that the Spanish fleet commanded by Admiral Cervera has returned to Cadiz after completing the series of manoeuvres which formed the programme of the cruise.

LIEUT. HOBSON TO BE PROMOTED

Washington, June 6.—The promotion in store for Lieut. Hobson, the hero of Santiago, is under consideration by the Navy Department. Allen and Commodore Hidsborn, Chief of the Bureau of Naval Construction, talked it over in a general way to-day, but no conclusions were reached. The Department is desirous of knowing what would be most acceptable to Hobson himself and when this is learned a recommendation will be made to Congress, which that body will doubtless carry into effect without delay. The present indications are that Hobson will be taken out of the Staff and be made a Line Officer, as that ensures not only an increase of pay but an opportunity to the more conspicuous line position of admiral at present. Hobson is an Assistant Constructor with the relative rank of Lieut., junior grade.

DEFENCES ARE BEING STRENGTHENED

Havana, May 60, via Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 6.—Havana and the rest of the Island of Cuba, so far as heard from, is officially pronounced to be entirely quiet preparations for defence are being pushed night and day, and work is going on without ceasing on the fortifications all over the Island. The Spanish officials here claim that if 50,000 men were needed to attack Havana by land and sea when the war broke out at least 100,000 will be required now in view of the strengthened fortifications and also because the so-called "Cultivation Zone" has been extended to Rivcon, Calabara and Cejucal, which are inside of the line of defences now. This will, it is asserted, support the inhabitants with food for a long time to come. In spite of this outwardly cheerful aspect of affairs bitterly anxious feelings exist. People go so far as to charge Senor Moret, the former Minister of the Colonies of Spain of being a traitor and of having "Sold Cuba to the United States." This causes discontent to prevail and if the Spanish fleet does not arrive here before food becomes really scarce, rioting may be reported.

CREW OF THE MERRIMAC

Received on Board Cervera's Flagship and Offered in Exchange

How Lieut. Hobson and Seven Other Volunteers Blocked the Channel of Santiago and Closed Up the Fleet

Santiago de Cuba, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 5.—In the small hours of Friday morning, eight brave men, chosen from among several hundred volunteers, silently embarked on the collier ship Merrimac, dismantled, unlighted, garnished with torpedoes, a half head of steam sending her slowly through the waters towards deadly peril, most probably death, within the narrow canal leading to Santiago. But the crew of the Merrimac thought little of this. In their minds was present more than any other thing the thought of duty to be performed, the channel to be blocked, and national honor to be showered upon the one or two of them who might escape scatheless the Spanish mine fields and the frowning batteries of Morro, La Zocapa, and Punta Gorda. So eager were they for the task that three of them had come in defiance of orders and clung tenaciously to the coveted danger and chance of death.

The night had been well chosen for the purpose. The moon had gone down, the brilliant southern constellations were obscured by rain clouds about to break over Cuba; the black darkness usually preceding tropical daybreak wrapped itself around everything, so that Lieut. Hobson, standing on the bridge of the doomed vessel, could not even see the outline of the steam launch which was accompanying him to the mouth of the trap, so as to await with all necessary succor the return of the bedraggled survivors—should there be any.

APPROACHED THE HARBOR

Silently the Merrimac approached the shore until the black outlines of El Morro and La Zocapa loomed out ahead. Then her consort hove to and was left in the rear. Gradually the collier stole forward; she neared the harbor mouth; she was passing within. But the beating of her screw upon the water, suppressed as it was, betrayed her. Suddenly from Morro flashed out a dazzling searchlight like a streak of burnished silver upon a sombre garment. Immediately the Merrimac was discovered, and upon her rained shells from heavy ordnance, fired almost pointblank. La Zocapa and Punta Gorda took up the tale and added to the pandemonium so suddenly aroused. Struck repeatedly in her upper works her hull pierced in numerous places, the Merrimac put on a full head of steam and dashed forward. Lieut. Hobson and his men were ready in their underclothing with revolvers strapped to their waists in watertight material, to retreat to the dingy towing astern, so soon as the desired place had been reached and the work accomplished. With his finger upon the button which would explode the line of torpedoes placed below the waterline on the port side, Lieut. Hobson stood on the bridge, amid hurtling missiles, until the Estrella battery had been passed. Then he stopped the engines, and a man stationed forward cut with an ax the lashings of the forward anchor. Part of the programme had been for this man to leap overboard, swim to the dingy and bring her alongside; but it was found that the boat had been rendered useless by Spanish shot, so that the four deck hands had to launch hastily a catamaran, which had been carried to meet the emergency. Then the quartermaster left the wheel, lashing it hard a-port, the two men in the engine room broke open the sea connections with a sledge hammer, and Hobson touched the torpedo button.

SUNK IN THE CHANNEL.

Stretched across the channel the Merrimac began to rapidly sink, and the seven heroes had only time to push off the raft before she went down. Being unable to put to sea in so rough a craft they were compelled to row into the bay, where they were picked up by a Spanish boat and taken to Admiral Cervera's flagship, only two of them having been injured.

So struck was the Spanish Admiral with their bravery that he immediately sent a boat with a flag of truce offering to exchange them, thus showing that Spaniards, notwithstanding the many slanders against them, can appreciate a deed of heroism. As for Lieut. Hobson he treated the affair very coolly, and only asked for permission to use the Santiago cable to send word to his mother that he was safe, a request which the Spanish admiral readily granted.

PREPARED FOR THE ATTACK.

London, June 6.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "At the time of the attack by the Americans the La Zocapa guns were served by sailors from the Cristobal Colon while she was anchored in a position to sweep the entrance to the harbor. The Spanish staff had connected with the shore works several lines of submarine torpedoes. The torpedo boat destroyers Pluton and Furor, with steam up, were on the watch, several steam launches had been detailed as scouts in the navigable channel and outside the entrance of the bay, and the Almirante Quendo and the Cristobal Colon were ready to support the forts the former flying the pennant of the admiral.

"Between 3 and 3.30 in the morning the scouts noticed two vessels rapidly advancing towards the mouth of the channel. The forts about the same time, opened fire, just as the Merrimac was well inside the passage. The Spanish officers having allowed her to pass the first submarine defences unmolested, gave the signal to the land batteries, the marine battery at La Zocapa and the destroyers and launches to fire on the Merrimac, which was sunk, without completely blocking the channel, just as Admiral Cervera appeared on the scene with the Almirante Quendo. The cruiser's boat saved the Americans.

"The affair is said to have caused much enthusiasm at Santiago where several thousand regulars are expected, having succeeded in crossing the river Cauta at the beginning of the week. They are now advancing by forced marches in spite of the rains.

"When the result of the Merrimac affair was known at Madrid the money market became animated, while in political and financial circles curiously conflicting impressions prevailed, some fancying that the successive failures of the Americans might have the result of making the United States favorable to peace. Financiers on the other hand, are divided between patriotic satisfaction and the feeling that the drift of the war means its prolongation and pecuniary sacrifices detrimental to Spanish credit."

HARD TRAINING AT TAMPA

Gen. Wheeler Works Hard to Get the Cavalry in Shape

Great Activity in Military Circles at Tampa—Chasing Rumors—Cuban Guides Attached to the Army

Tampa, May 31.—One thousand recruits arrived by special train from the north via Atlanta to-day. They have just passed under my window. A whole regiment of young men walking two by two, ununiformed, undrilled, fresh from their father's freisides on the farms, and from the highways and byways of big northern cities; some with satchels, some with their few clothes done up in a cotton handkerchief; not a few with carrying-bags from which peeped articles that could only have been placed there by a feminine hand—and only one feminine hand at that—a mother's.

Food for powder; they trotted along like a lot of sheep; the recruiting officers on either side directing the way and calling now and then in strong language for them to keep in some kind of respectable line. Recruits are usually treated pretty roughly by the enlisted men in times of peace, but not at such a time as this. The regulars who passed these men on the road did so without a murmur, and with rather compassionate expressions on their sunburned faces. The happy ones were apparently the recruits. As most uninformed young men, they no doubt thought that a soldier's life was "all beer and skittles," and that battles were national hunting expeditions with brass band accompaniments.

CHASING RUMORS.

The war correspondents were the business men of Tampa yesterday and to-day. They spent the entire time in chasing down rumors which had been picked up in Washington and wired here, as to the arrival of Sampson's fleet at Key West, and his order to come to Tampa and escort the transports to Cuba.

If General Shafter has any such order nothing has been made public. There is a good deal of activity around

From the directors of the Cemetery Co., calling attention to the condition of Crescent street, which is in need of repairs, and asking that the necessary work be performed.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From the Fire Underwriters Association in reference to fire appliances.—Received.

From the Laurentian Granite Co., in reference to street paving and enclosing a letter from Dean H. D. Bovey, of the Faculty of Applied Science, Montreal, giving strength of the Co's paving blocks.—Received.

Messrs. Rush and A. Mercer appeared before the council and asked that the drain on Homeward Avenue be extended sufficiently to benefit their own and the property of others living in the vicinity, as they were paying a frontage tax for the drain and receiving no benefit.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Mr. Ward appeared before the Council in reference to extending the sewer on Stewart street so as to connect with his property.—It was decided to grant the request as soon as Mr. Ward presents an amended petition.

A petition asking for the extension of the sewer on McDonnel street was referred to the Sewerage Committee.

FINANCE.

Peterborough, June 6th, 1898.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:—

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

1. That the application of George Benton for the remission of interest on arrears of taxes be granted.
2. That the application for compensation for constructing a drain received from John Spence be not granted.
3. That a grant of $100 be made to the Childrens' Aid Society, $50 to be paid at once, and the balance in six equal monthly instalments from July 31st.
4. That the Bell Telephone Co. be notified that their franchise expires in September next, and that they be asked if they wish it renewed.
5. That a grant of $250 be made to the Fire Brigade band on the usual condition that they give open concerts in the park.
6. That a grant of $100 be given the Sons of England band on condition that they give park concerts during the season as directed by the Mayor.
7. That a committee of three be appointed to consult with Mr. H. Owens to see what arrangements can be made for the purchase of his property at Whyte's dam, or for the removal of the dam.
8. That the payment to R. W. Errett of $7.65 for inspecting the Market scales be confirmed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

HENRY DENNE,
Chairman.

Councillor Denne moved that the report be adopted.

Councillor Langford objected to the grant of $100 to the Sons of Englanc band. The estimates provided for $5 for the S.O.E. band and $50 for the Salvation Army band, and if a gran was to be made at all, it would hav to be made as laid down in the estimates.

Councillor McWilliams was in favo of the grant. The S.O.E. band was entitled to a grant because they had remained in town on Jubilee Day, when the town was in bad need of a banc

Councillor Meldrum proposed—if grant was to be made at all—that th $100 be divided between the Sons c England and the Salvation Army. H believed, however, that the town shoul support only one band and that ban was the Fire Brigade band. Societ bands should not expect assistanc from the town.

Councillor Langford was also of th opinion that society bands should b self-supporting. Peterborough had good town band—one that they ha every reason to be proud of and on which held its own wherever it wen Such an organization deserved the support of the town.

Councillor Dawson was in favor c dividing the $100 between the Sons c England and Salvation Army, an moved an amendment to that effec

Considerable crossfiring took plac over the latter proposition and the following motion resulted:

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Councillor W. H. White, seconded by Councillor Robertson, that the Fire Brigade Band receive $200, th Sons of England $100, and the Salvation Army $50.

Councillor McWilliams said he coul not support Councillor White's motion. The Fire Brigade Band deserve every cent of the amount named i the report. They were a credit t the town and held their own with th best bands in the Dominion. H wouldn't support any reduction i the amount specified for the Fire Brigade Band.

Councillor Dawson's amendment—dividing the $100 between the Sons c England and the Salvation Army, an allowing the $250 grant to the Fire Brigade Band to remain as it was—was after much discussion, agreed t and the report as thus amended, w adopted.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

The secretary of the Toronto Board of Trade, has addressed a letter to the secretary of the Peterborough Board of Trade, in which the former endeavors to show that the action of the Toronto organization in passing a resolution condemning the Trent Valley Canal scheme, is consistent. Our Toronto friends are evidently afraid that they have gone too far in their hostility to everything that does not live, move and have its being in Toronto. Mr. Willis, the secretary of the Toronto Board of Trade, states that his Board fails to see that the Trent canal, if completed, would be an important factor in regulating freight rates. He then goes on to say that the Georgian Bay Ship canal is what the country needs and what Toronto is after. This scheme would cost the country many millions of dollars, but as it has its lower entrance at Toronto, the cost would cut no ice.

The fact is, the Toronto hog is not satisfied with half, or even three-fourths of everything—he wants it all.

CANADA AND THE STATES

A Washington despatch announces that there exists at the United States capital a conviction of the probability that the Behring Sea question will be settled by an agreement for the complete termination of pelagic sealing. That is to say, the Washington people expect that the Canadian and British Governments will yield the very point for which they have contended most vigorously from the very outset of the controversy.

The British Government and perhaps more especially the Canadian Government should take warning from this early announcement of the fact that the United States expects to get much and give little in the approaching conference. This new-grown Anglo-Saxon amity is an inspiring sentiment and there is every reason why the strongest efforts should be made to remove all obstacles to its maintenance and expansion. But the Canadian Government should take care to see that the feeling is not one-sided. The present Government has been actuated by a very commendable and a very active desire that all grounds of controversy between the Dominion and the States should be removed. But it should not allow this desire to blind its eyes to the purely material nature of the matters under discussion. These are business matters. They were business matters in the past, and they are not the less business matters now that exterior circumstances are drawing the British and the "Americans" closer together. In a game of give and take the United States must be made to do something of the giving.

If the British and Canadian contention in respect of pelagic sealing has been right all along, it is right yet. In point of fact the unprejudiced observer would invariably decide that pelagic sealing has been infinitely more humane than the Yankee method of wholesale butchery on land and has done infinitely less in the way of devastating the seal herds. In that view, the British and Canadian Governments should insist on the maintenance of the principle for which they have so long contended.

Perhaps, after all, the approaching battle at Santiago may not be as Cervera some people anticipate.

The horrors of war are not confined to shot and shell, to forts and battleships. General Fitzhugh Lee has written a book.

It is reported that a British warship has been sent from Kingston to carry provisions to a single English family at Santiago. That's the way Great Britain takes care of her subjects.

Old Sigsbee
Said: "You may go
'Way down there
To Santiago."

Old Cervera
Wire—in doubt:
"Here I am;
Please get me out!"

It is not likely that any election trials will take place until next autumn at the earliest. The judges of the High Court receive no remuneration for election trials in connection with the Provincial elections, although in the Federal cases they receive an extra fee of $100 per trial. Under the circumstances the judiciary can hardly be expected to devote the summer vacation to the tedious business of election trials.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

the camps, though nothing that could bet aken as idnicating that any important order had been issued so far, at 6 p.m.

General Joe Wheeler, the veteran cavalry leader, is going about his work in a true, business-like way. Unlike the other commander generals, he has his tent on the field, and does not even dine at the "Tampa Bay," as the others do. He is working hard to get the cavalry into order for Cuba. It is conceded that most of the fighting will be done by the cavalry, and as it will be the first ordered forward, General Wheeler is going to have it in good shape.

To-day was muster day at the camp and all the troops were reviewed at nine o'clock. The muster roll was called shortly after that hour.

CUBAN GUIDES.

Several experienced Cuban guides have been attached to each division of the army, and have already rendered valuable services to the commanders in advising them the condtiions that will be met with in Cuba during the rainy season. One thing which is evidently due to their advice, is that the United States authorities have decided to use pack mules entirely in the coming campaign. At first they had made arrangements to use waggon trains for the transportation of army supplies, but have given up the idea. Three thousand pack mules have been secured for the work, and they are now being trained here to carry their loads quietly. It is a usual occurrence to see a half-mile of mules jogging along the streets of Tampa, each with a bale of hay on either side of them and a sack of some kind of grain between the bales.

News has just this minute leaked out that another expedition will start for

BY-LAW No.

A By-law respecting the Council of the Town of Peterborough.

Passed the day of 1898.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by the Council thereof enacts as follows:—

(1) The Council of the Town of Peterborough shall be composed of a mayor and one alderman for each one thousand of the population of the said Town as determined by the last census of the Dominion of Canada, to be elected by general vote.

(2) The votes of the electors of the Town of Peterborough shall be taken upon this By-law on the 30th day of June, 1898, commencing at the hour of 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and closing at the hour of 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, at the following polling places and before the following Deputy Returning Officers, that is to say:—

For Ward No. One,—The shop of Thos Eynon, George street; Joseph Lundy to be Deputy Returning Officer.

For Ward No. Two,—The Town Council Chamber; Charles Cameron to be Deputy Returning Officer.

For Ward No. Three,—The shop of J. & W. Metheral, Aylmer street; John Irwin to be Deputy Returning Officer.

For Ward No. Four,—The shop of Wm. Lee, Smith street; George W. Powell to be Deputy Returning Officer.

The 30th Day of June, 1898, at the hour of 12 o'clock, and the office of the Town Clerk are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk of the Court will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

(3) The 28th of June, 1898, at the hour of 12 o'clock noon and the office of the Town Clerk are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk, respectively on behalf of the persons interested in and promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

NOTICE !

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law which has been taken into consideration and which will be finally passed by the Council of the Town of Peterborough (in the event of the assent of the electors being obtained thereto) after one month from the first publication hereof in the Morning Times newspaper, the day of which first publication is the 7th day of June, 1898, and that at the hour, day and places therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Town Clerk.

Cuba on Thursday morning without fail.

ANOTHER EXPEDITION

The ten transports now loaded will be used to convey the American cavalry, some infantry, and artillery, signal and engineer corps, also the Cuban volunteers which are now here. It transpires that this arrangement was known several days ago through a Cuban—General Nunez—telling some newspaper men. These correspondents attempted to wire the news to their papers in sypher, but the censor stopped them, and when he found out what the despatches meant, he deprived the correspondents of their war passes and ordered them home. One of these men is a Mr. Taylor, the head of the Scripps-McRae league of newspapers. The rumor that the first expedition will leave here on Thursday is probably true, because General Shafter has to-night put on another censor and issued orders that telegraphic newspaper despatches which are not plainly comprehensible must not be allowed out. So that even if the expedition does leave on Thursday, no news of it will reach the northern cities. It is understood that Admiral Simpson, with part of his fleet will take the expedition direct from Port Tampa to Cuba without touching at Key West.

CAVALRY ACTIVE

At the hour of writing—midnight—the cavalry camps appear to be unusually active. No officers are down town except those in charge of picket divisions. General Shafter is busy in his room at the Tampa Bay hotel with his aides and the generals commanding the different regiments. The Cuban volunteers are all in their quarters at West Tampa.

The censorship is now so strict that there is little probability of the news of the departure of the transports getting out by wire.

A good story is told on the war correspondent of the New York Mail and Express, who tried to get ahead of the press censor. He filed a telegram reading, 'The press fleet left this morning for Cardenas.' The censor said it was all right as it did not refer to the warships. A couple of hours afterwards he filed another telegram reading, "Strike out the word 'press' in my last despatch." Again the press censor said it was all right, and the delighted correspondent went away, chuckling to himself over the way he had scooped the boys and outwitted the Government. When he called later to see if there were any messages for him the censor handed him an envelope which contained his two messages. Across them was written in the censor's bold hand, "All fleets look alike to me.' The correspondent is denied the use of the wires, and any news from Key West.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done; and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

E. & D. BICYCLE

are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this: The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

CONDITIONS OF SALE.

No limit will be adjudged at less then the minimum price fixed by the department.

The limits will be adjudged to the highest bidder on payment of the purchase price in cash or by cheque accepted by a duly incorporated bank. Failing payment, they will be immediately re-offered for sale.

The annual ground rent of three dollars per mile, with fire tax, is also payable immediately.

Those timber limits, when adjudged, will be subject to the provisions of all timber regulations now in force or which may be enacted hereafter.

Plans of limits offered for sale are opened for inspection in the Department of Lands, Forests and Fisheries, in this city, and at the office of the Crown Lands and Timber Agents in the different agencies in which said limits are situated, up to the day of sale.

N. B.—No account for publication of this notice will be recognized, if such publication has not been expressly authorized by the department.

S. N. PARENT,
Commissioner of Lands,
Forests and Fisheries.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

AN UNKNOWN FLEET

St. Pierre, Martinique, June 4.—A report is current here to the effect that a fleet, the nationality of which is not known, was seen off the west point of the island by fishermen. Firing was heard last night.

FIRING AGAIN RESUMED

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 4.—11.50 a.m.—Firing was resumed by the American squadron off Santiago de Cuba at half past ten Friday night. Details are lacking. It is reported at Santiago that three warships have been detached from the American fleet to convey a fresh supply of munitions and arms to the Cuban coast.

MADE HIS ESCAPE

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, June 3rd.—delayed in transmission.—Mr. Emerssohn, the German newspaper correspondent, who was arrested in Porto Rico, but who succeeded in escaping to Santa Cruz and upon whose head a price was set by the Alcade of Caguas, who declared him to be a spy, arrived at St. Thomas on the evening of June 2nd, and proceeded to New York. Mr. Emerssohn was assisted in escaping by American sympathizers. He said he went to Porto Rico as aide to Lieut. Whitney, of the United States Government secret service. Lieut. Whitney and Mr. Emersshon intended to meet at Porto Rico, but failed, owing to Emersshon's arrest. Mr. Emersshon states that Porto Rico is panic stricken. The rebel party there is large in numbers and strong and is hopefully awaiting an American invasion. When this occurs, its members will rise and aid the United States. Spain,—Mr. Emersshon declares—is is afraid to arm all the volunteers, fearing that they will revolt. Lieut. Whitney reached St. Thomas on June 2nd. on his way to New York. He visited Porto Rico on the British steamer Ardenrose. He asserts that a strong American sentiment prevalis there and that the volunteers and regulars are discontented and are deserting in considerable numbers. The pay of the soldiers is in arrears and there is much sickness, for food is scarce and expensive and if the United States Government does not act soon the inhabitants will revolt against Spain.

WAR NEWS SLACK

Port Au Prince, Hayti, June 5.—No further war news reached here during the early part of the day.

SPANISH WARSHIPS AT SAN JUAN

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 5.—The steamer St. Simon, which arrived here this morning from Havre, reports that one Spanish cruiser and two or three Spanish torpedo boats were at San Juan de Porto Rico on Friday at noon. She saw no warships elsewhere.

NO NEWS FROM SANTIAGO

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 5.—No news has been received here from Santiago de Cuba since yesterday.

WHERE IS CERVERA.

London, June 4.—The Daily News continues to discuss the chances that Cervera is elsewhere. It says: "So long as he can dodge about undefeated, just so long will an invasion of Cuba be deferred. If he should be well on his way to Manilla, which is not impossible it would be a brilliant stroke of strategy. One American squadron must follow him, leaving the way open for another Spanish commander to play Cervera's game with a difference." With regard to the reports of peace proopsals from Madrid and Paris, no great importance is attached to them in London, where it is recognized that until a decisive action has been fought ort he Spanish navy crushed there is little likelihood that the powers will interfere.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

Stella meanwhile was sitting in a sort of dreamy mood; the past seemed fading away, and the future stretched a glowing vision bathed in rosy light before her.

She saw herself the honored wife of the most magnificent specimen of man she had ever known.

"He is crowned with every blessing!" she murmured. "He is handsome, he is wealthy, cultured, and endowed, mentally and physically, with splendid gifts. How happy I am, for he loves me! I am thankful that trouble and misfortune came to me, for they have brought me the greatest blessing of my life."

She thought of Algernon Van Cart with a shudder! What an escape hers had been! This reflection suggested others. The horror and shame which she had suffered when Croft was arrested and his infamy became a matter of public discussion.

With this painful reflection came the warning words Edith had spoken; she felt that she was wronging Walter Derwent by concealing the past; but she told herself that she dared not run the risk of a disclosure.

"He looks so proud!" she said. "I cannot picture his face under the clouded look it would wear under a sense of disgrace and degradation. Oh, he would turn from me as Van Cart did. If he could not bear dishonor how can such a man as Walter Derwent?"

Mr. Jameson frequently brought a friend home to dine with him. That evening an elderly gentleman walked into the parlor, where Stella sat with Nina, who was feeling happy and important over her secret.

The gentleman was introduced to the ladies there as "My friend, Judge Orlin," by Mr. Jameson, for the old lawyer was punctilious in the extreme, and kept up old-fashioned ceremony.

Judge Orlin was a tall, silver-haired gentleman, with a pale, high-bred face, and large, piercing black eyes.

He fixed his eyes on Stella with a strange expression of eagerness.

"Pardon me, young lady; what name did Mr. Jameson say?"

As he stood before her, Stella was conscious of a curious sensation, which almost every one has experienced at times. She felt that this scene had taken place before. She was conscious of a vague, unsatisfactory sense of familiarity with what is really unknown.

"My name," she said, "is Stella Sterling."

A disappointed look came over the judge's face.

"Stella Sterling?"

"Yes sir. May I ask why you express surprise?"

"Pardon me," said the judge, again; "but for fifteen years—yes, for nearly twenty years—I have been searching for a lady; I have been trying to remedy a great wrong."

"Ah, I knew you were not the lady; but I thought—I may say I hoped my dear—that you might be her daughter."

"My mother has been dead since I was ten years old."

"Dead?"

"Yes sir."

"May I ask if your name is the name of your own father? Is he living?"

"No sir; my father died when I was a baby."

The eager look came over the judge's face.

"Ah! Then perhaps his widow married again?"

Stella's eyes fell; she flushed, and for a moment felt angry with this persistent old gentleman.

"Yes she did, sir," was her reply.

She spoke in such a cold, dignified manner, that the judge realized that she felt offended.

"I am a tiresome old man, dear young lady," he said, with a sigh. "Forgive me; you look so like a dear, very dear friend, whom I lost sight of many years ago, that the sight of your face awakened old recollections."

He held out his hand, which was white and delicately formed, with taper fingers and perfect nails, which a youthful belle might envy.

"And your face, too, sir—or your voice, I know not which—appears to me to recall some vision of the past."

Again his face lighted up, and his eyes glistened hopefully.

"Do they really?" he said. "Come, my child, let us sit down and talk quietly. You say your mother married again. I presume the name you bear is that of your step-father."

This was an unfortunate question; Stella could not answer it immediately. Did this puzzling old gentleman know or guess something akin to the truth?

Was he trying to catch her by cross-examination.

She drew herself up haughtily. A doubt crossed her mind; had Walter Derwent sent him to pry into her antecedents.

"No; the name I bear is my own. My father was an artist of some reputation. He was a Scotchman, and his name was Norman Sterling."

"An artist! The lady whom I am seeking married an artist, but his name was Leslie Carstairs. He belonged to a noble Scottish family."

"My father's family was a good one, but very much impoverished."

"Yes, yes; it seems well, all but the name," murmured Judge Orlin.

"I really do not know what you are thinking of," Stella began.

The judge interrupted her with a wave of that aristocratic old hand. He drew a locket from his vest-pocket and touching a spring placed it open in Stella's hand.

The beautiful face of a young lady smiled up at her, an exquisite face, skillfully depicted by an artistic hand on ivory, set around with small diamonds of great fire and brilliancy.

Again the feeling that she had seen the face before came over Stella with puzzling force; then she realized that it resembled her mother.

"Now, my dear young lady, do you wonder that I hoped I had at length met the one I have so long sought in vain?"

"I do not understand," said Stella in bewilderment.

"Is it possible that you do not see the resemblance between that portrait and yourself?"

"Is it like me?"

"Like enough to be yourself. See the curve of oval cheek and dainty chin; see the gleam in those starry, dark eyes!"

Nina who had been seated at a little distance, drew near when she saw the judge examining the portrait in the locket, and Mr. Jameson also entered the room at that moment so Judge Orlin replaced the minature in his pocket, and the conversation began at once to flow in other channels.

Nina was curious to know on what subject Stella had been conversing so earnestly with the stranger, but she had no opportunity of asking.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE.

London, June 4.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: After consulting with the law officers, Senor Sagasta has arrived at the conclusion that there are no grounds to prosecute Senor Chatelar for the article attacking the Queen Regent.

El Tiempo the organ of Senor Silvela leader of the dissident Conservatives warns the French press not to indulge the illusion that Spain will purchase the assistance of France against the United States by any alliance implying Spain's assent to a cession of Ceuta and Melilla, and the development of French preponderance in Morocco.

TOO LATE TO SEND HELP.

New York June 4.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: Great pressure is being put upon the Government by the press to send to Manila either Admiral Cervera's squadron or the reserve fleet at Cadiz. Eight thousand men and six batteries could be embarked within 24 hours at ports in the south of Spain. But the Government hesitates to send an expedition so late when the American reinforcements from California are likely to forestall any Spanish relief. The Government expects that events in and about Cuba will soon give a decisive turn to the course of the war. It looks for either a landing and defeat of the Americans—this is confidently counted upon—or a signal reverse to the Spanish troops or Admiral Cervera's squadron, which will make it easier for America to adopt tactics most disastrous for Spain—a blockade of Cuba and Porto Rico—while waiting for the end of the rainy season. By that time both islands would be short of provisions.

The only drawback to this plan of campaign for the Americans would be the fact that this waiting game would increase the great sufferings of the reconcentrados and insurgents. Spain hopes that knowledge of this distress will drive the United States to premature action with insufficient organized forces.

PLENTY OF FOOD IN CUBA.

Madrid, June 4.—A Spaniard from Cuba who has returned here since the blockade of certain ports of the island, said to-day he had heard that plenty of food had been received in Cuba through the blockade runners chiefly English "under the very noses of the American ships," at various points along the coast from which it was carted to the railway, thus reaching Havana.

The Spaniard asserts, also, that there is sufficient food in the island for the next eight months: that the greatest enthusiasm prevails among the Spaniards there, and that all the population is under arms. Private despatches from Cuba say that the rainy season has begun, and that the insurgents do not dare to attack Santiago de Cuba.

SINKING OF THE MERRIMAC.

Washington, June 4.—The President has received a cipher despatch stating that the Merrimac was sunk at the mouth of Santiago harbor and that eight of the crew were captured.

The message does not state that she was sunk intentionally, but the President is said to believe that she had been, so as to effectually cork up the harbor.

FINAL CUTS.

Afterwards the St. Louis and the Wampatuck cut the San Juan de Porto Rico cable at Santiago de Cuba. The strands cut to-day were the only ones remaining except a few coast loops, and these will probably be severed in a short time. The cutting of these cables is almost as serious for the Spaniards in coast towns as the cutting of foreign cables, the land wires connecting the coast towns being wholly at the mercy of the insurgents. Therefore, in the event of American troops landing in Cuba, the absence of the coast loops will seriously interfere with the hasty mobilization of the Spanish troops.

The United States and Hayti Cable Company and the Commercial Cable Company have not been notified of any interruption of the service, and they were still accepting business this morning for Cuba. There is a possibility that the workers on the cable vessel missed one of the cables.

A BROKENDOWN BOAT.

Washington, June 4.—Naval officers are absolutely satisfied that the Merrimac was sent in by order of Admiral Simpson to close the channel and prevent the escape of the Spanish squadron. One of the reasons for the conviction that the Merrimac was purposely sunk in the channel is the fact that the ship was of little value as a naval vessel. She had broken down in her machinery and was kept at work with difficulty. She is just the kind of craft

A USELESS VESSEL.

Washington, June 4.—Up to 9.30 o'clock there was no news at the Navy Department concerning the sinking of the Merrimac. She was an old, useless vessel, and the department thinks was sent in to block the channel and thus bottle up Cervera. The fact that the crew was only eight men instead of forty confirms this. The department does not believe a fight has occurred.

A BRILLIAANT VICTORY

Madrid, June 4.—The Spanish version of the sinking of the Merrimac in the channel leading into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba yesterday, says: "Two American ironclads were seriously damaged during the engagement." The Spaniards also describe the affair as "a brilliant Spanish victory."

BY-LAWS.

A By-law making better regulations for sewerage and drainage and sewer connection on George street between Brock and Charlotte streets, was introduced by Councillor Best, and received its several readings and was passed.

Councillors Langford and McWilliams introduced a by-law providing for the reduction of the number of councillors and the abolition of the ward system.

This piece of legislation caused considerable opposition and

On the second reading of the By-law Councillor Dawson moved, seconded by Councillor Robertson, that the By-law receive a six months' hoist.

Councillors Dawson Denne, Robertson and W. H. White were in favor of having the vote deferred until the municipal elections in January.

Councillors McWilliams, Meldrum, Langford and Best were in favor of the By-law, and of having it submitted at the same time as the steam roller and bridges by-law.

The arguments advanced by these councillors have appeared in these columns already and as no new ground was covered their remarks would not interest our readers.

Mr. Dawson's motion was put and declared lost.

The By-law then received its second reading and was passed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Application for a sidewalk from Mrs. Curtain, was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

The Clerk was given permission to act as secretary of the Trent Valley Canal Association.

Councillors W. H. White and Robertson had a number of street improvements for No. 1 ward referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Councillor Langford also had some minor street improvements referred to the same committee.

Moved by Councillor Best, seconded by Councillor Robertson, that a committee be appointed to wait on the Ontario Government with reference to the transfer of the water front between Hunter and Sherbrooke streets, and that J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., be a member of the committee when appointed.

The Mayor reminded Councillor Best that it was nearly midnight and that he didn't consider it wise to the further prolong the session.

Councillor Best agreed with the Mayor and the motion was allowed to stand.

The Council then adjourned.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 7, 1898

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

For the Temiscamingue

Yesterday Mr. John Smith and his son, William, of Harvey, leave for the Temiscamingue district, North Ontario where they will settle in Kerns township. Mr. Smith will return in the fall to remove his family to their new home, which he will prepare during the summer. Mr. Smith's many friends in Harvey will regret to lose him and his family as neighbors, and many wishes of success follow them.

Police Court

At yesterday morning's police court Michael Licet was charged with being a vagrant. He was sentenced to two months in gaol. Mr. Licet considered the term unnecessarily long.

Reginald Watt, a member of the 57th Battalion, was charged with non-attendance at drill yesterday. Irregularity comes high, for he was fined $5 by the Magistrate.

Decoration Day

The Oddfellows of the town have decided to celebrate Decoration Day on June 28th, and a petition has been circulated, asking the Mayor to proclaim that day a public holiday after five o'clock in the evening. The Oddfellows will go to the cemetery in the early evening and the ceremony will take place after the heat of the day. A committee from the two local lodges is looking after the arrangements.

An Olympic Club Joke

While the Olympic Club was "putting in time" at Burleigh the other day, one of the practical jokers present sprung the following on an American visitor who accompanied the boys:

Joker—Did you know that Tom. Eastwood, the Mayor of Buckhorn, won't allow the band to play through the streets?

Visitor—No; how is that?

Joker—They have to play through their instruments.

The boys all went in and had a lemonade at Mr. Taylor's expense.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

Storekeepers Ask for a Reduction in Rent and are Refused—The Water Works Scheme

Ashburnham Council met last night in regular session.

There were present Reeve Adams, and Councillors Morgan, Rutherford and Craig.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

ACCOUNTS.

The following certified accounts were presented, and payment of the same authorized:

MONTHLY STATEMENT.

Treasurer Peck presented his monthly financial statement, showing the total receipts from May 2nd to June 1st to have been $364.67, and the total expenditure $355.31, leaving a cash balance in hand of $64.16.

CHILDRENS' AID.

Coun. Morgan moved, seconded by Coun. Rutherford, that an order be drawn to the amount of $10 in favor of Miss Clark, secretary of the Childrens' Aid Society.—Carried.

WATERWORKS SCHEME.

Coun. Rutherford moved, seconded by Coun. Morgan, that this council meet Tuesday evening, the 7th inst., to take into consideration the question of waterworks.—Carried.

WANT A REDUCTION.

Messrs. Maniece, Hamilton and Pue, tenants of the Town Hall stores, waited upon the council and asked for a reduction in their rents, on the plea that $75 a year is more than the stores are worth. The council, after carefully discussing the matter, came to the conclusion that $75 a year is little enough for the stores in question, and refused to grant a reduction.

STREET REPAIRS.

Coun. Rutherford moved, seconded by Coun. Morgan, that the chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee instruct the street inspector to have Driscoll terrace graded and turntabled, and also to put the street in proper shape.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

DRAGOONS AND INFANTRY

Leave Town this Morning for the Camp of Instruction at Belleville

The Prince of Wales Dragoons will leave for brigade camp at Belleville this morning. Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers will be in command. The local troop will leave here on a special and the other troops will be picked up at Millbrook and Colborne, while the Picton troop will come on from Picton. The local troop will be 42 strong, under command of Capt. Johnston and Lieuts. Bradburn, Tait and Hall.

The 46th Batt. will also leave to-day for the same destination. Many local men will be in Capt. Johnston's company.

Right up To Date

Give McQuay & Collins your next cake or pastry order. Their baker is direct from Harry Webb's, Toronto, and of course is right up to date. George street, opposite Adam Hall's.

Railway Notes

Lindsay Post: We understand that President Pusey, of the I.B. & O.R.R. has at last succeeded, in making a definite arrangement with the Grand Trunk management, and that under the new arrangement on or about the 18th inst. a special train will leave Lindsay daily about 11 o'clock for the I.B. & O. Jct., returning before the departure of the 6 o'clock express for Toronto. Passengers leaving Baptiste lake terminus in the morning will thus be able to reach Toronto the same night. The train will also prove a great convenience to Lindsay business men.

Newspapers and Magazines

Two articles in the June number of The Engineering Magazine possess a vivid interest for the engineering world at the present time. On both sides of the Atlantic the ultimate result of the war between Spain and the United States is clearly foreseen to be the opening of Cuba to a great industrial development, under an enlightened and stable government, inspired by Anglo-Saxon energy and progressiveness. Mr. Skaife's long residence in the island and his intimate acquaintance, as an engineer, with its resources and needs, give him commanding authority in the treatment of his topic of Future Industrial Opportunities in Cuba. Engineers and industrial managers will welcome his able review of the actual situation and the municipal, railroad, mining, and electrical work which is to be done, and the machinery imports which will follow the opening of the island.

Mr. Prindle's splendidly illustrated account of the building of a 13-inch gun is also a timely contribution as well as a magnificent example of the development of machine-tool work in large units.

Shop-owners and shop-managers will find extreme satisfaction in the practical, concrete way in which Henry Roland exhibits effective methods of finding and keeping shop-costs in typical works. Other illustrated papers are the review of Milling the Ores of the Rand, by Messrs. H. H. Webb and Pope Yeatman; the discussion of dredging operations and dredging machinery employed on the Mississippi river, by H. St. L. Coppe; and the exposition of house-heating apparatus, by Mr. J. J. Blackmore.

Beyond these are the five other leading articles of parallel importance, and also the Review and Index of the Engineering Press, which affords a complete summary of the industrial literature of the month. The Engineering Magazine, 120-122 Liberty St., N.Y., 30 cts. a number.

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

CYCLING.

Chairman R. J. Wilson, of the Transportation Committee of the C. W. A., has issued this information regarding rates to the provincial meets of the association on July 1st and following days:

The Grand Trunk, Canadian Pacific, Central Ontario, Bay of Quinte, and Kingston and Pembroke Railways have named round trip rate to Peterborough meet, July 1st, on the following basis, from all stations in Canada, Montreal and west: Seventy cents for the first 20 miles added to one cent per mile each way, for the mileage over and above 20 miles. Example:

Kingston to Peterborough, 115 miles.
First 20 miles ... 70
95 miles each way one cent per mile ... 1 90
Kingston to Peterborough and return ... 2 60

All tickets will be good to go June 30th and July 1st. Good to return until July 4th.

Racing men will be issued round trip tickets at single fare from June 27th, providing their names and the station they wish to travel from are furnished the Chairman of Transportation Committee in reasonable time.

Cheap side trips will be arranged from Peterborough and return to the following points: Kingston, Alexandria Bay, N. Y., 1,000 Islands, Rochester, N. Y., Sturgeon Lake, Burleigh Falls, Stony Lake and Rice Lake. Time tables and return fares will appear in the issue of the Canadian Wheelman of June 16th.

LACROSSE

Mr. Hogarth, late of the Metropolitans, of Ottawa, is the latest addition to the senior team. He was over at practice last night and will be a valuable addition to the local team.

The Shamrocks defeated the Torontos at Montreal on Saturday by a score of 5 to 0.

The Athletics, of St. Catharines, gave the Tecumseh-Elms, of Toronto, a bad drubbing at the former place on Saturday. The score stood 8 to 0 in favor of the St. Catharines team.

The Nationals of Montreal won from the Cornwalls at Cornwall, on Saturday by 2 games to 1.

Streetsville defaulted to Paris on Saturday, but Streetsville junior team met and defeated the Brampton juniors by 7 goals to 1.

On Saturday the Orangeville Dufferins defeated the Georgetown Thistles at Georgetown by 6 goals to 3.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Strangers Within Our Gates and Other Paragraphs of a Personal Nature

Rev. S. J. Shorey and Rev. D. O. Crossley were both home from conference for Sunday.

Mr. Roland McWilliams is home for his holidays from Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

Mrs. Robt. Bradburn, Union-st., has returned home after a visit to friends in Cobourg.

Mr. C. Blackett Robinson, of the Westminster and Canada Presbyterian, Toronto, is in town a few days on business.

Mr. W. Graham, of Kingston, spent Sunday in town with Mrs. Graham, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Denne.

Mr. H. A. Mulhern and family have moved in from Lakefield, and taken up residence on the corner of Gilmour and Park streets.

Mr. H. Willoughby Laird, who for some years has been proprietor and editor of the Cobourg Sentinel-Star, last week published his valedictory, having sold out his business in order to go to a wider field in the west.

Your Servant and Protector

Scotch Collie dogs are remarkable for their great intelligence and ability to be trained as your servants. They are the children's favorite and a protection to any home. Potts Brothers, Parkesburg, Pa., supply a large number and in their dealing with us they have been very honorable.

The Destructive Caterpillar

As an instance of the destructiveness of the tent caterpillar, says the Campbellford Herald, it may be stated that upon a certain farm on the Percy boundary, last year, the entire foliage of a piece of woods was completely stripped, not a vestige of a leaf having been left except on the black oak trees which seemed to have been unpalatable to the ravaging worms.

Caterpillars Stop Trains

The Canadian Pacific railway is meeting with a peculiar obstruction in the way of satisfactorily handling their trains out of Owen Sound. The track is covered with thousands of caterpillars and their crushed bodies act like oil on the rails. There is a heavy grade of some thirty miles out of Owen Sound, and it has been frequently found necessary to cut the stalled trains in two before they could be moved.

Boy Burglars

Two lads named Lazier, aged 8 and 12 years, are suspected of burglary. Boys entered the stores of Kells & Co. and Fairweather & Co. shortly after noon Sunday and manipulated the cash registers in both. They secured $7 from Kells and about $2.65 from Fairweather's registers. They got into the premises from the rear, where there was a large number of packing cases piled against the wall up to the second story. They climbed these, and, opening a window, the older one entered while the second boy watched. The registers were opened apparently without any trouble, and it looked as if they had watched the operation of opening the till and had discovered how it was done.

The boys were seen while trying to enter the buildings. The young Lazier was locked up yesterday, while the other, supposed to have the money, is in hiding.

The boys passed out through the front door of Mr. Kells' store, leaving it unlocked, and thus it remained all night until the clerks came to open up Monday morning.

In deference to the wishes of the police the matter was kept out of print yesterday morning in order not to alarm the suspects.

TERRIFFIC BOMBARDMENT OF SANTIAGO DE CUBA

A Three Hours Cannonade Silenced Nearly all the Forts, Destroyed Several Earthworks and Rendered the Estrella and Cayo Fortifications Useless—Full Details of the Action

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, off Santiago De Cuba, Monday, noon, via Kingston, Jamaica, Tuesday, June 7.—The American fleet this morning engaged the Spanish batteries defending the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba and after a three-hours' bombardment silenced nearly all the forts, destroyed several earthworks and rendered the Estrella and Cayo batteries, the two principal foritfications, useless. The fleet formed in double column six miles off Morro Castle at six o'clock in the morning and steamed slowly till 3,000 yards off shore, the Brooklyn leading, followed by the Marblehead, Texas and Massachusetts, and turned westward. The second line, the New York leading, with the New Orleans, Yankee, Iowa and Oregon turned eastward. The Vixen and Suawanee were far out in the left flank, watching the riflemen on shore. The Dolphin and Porter did similar duty on the right flank. The line, headed by the New York, attacked the new earthworks near Morro Castle. The Brooklyn column took up a situation opposite the Estrella and Cataline batteries, and the new earthworks along the shore. The Spanish batteries remained silent. It is doubtful whether the Spaniards were able to determine the character of the movement owing to the dense fog and heavy rain which were the weathen features this morning. Suddenly the Iowa fired a 12-inch shell which struck the base of the Estrella battery and tore up the works. Instantly firing began from both Rear-Admiral Sampson's and Commodore Schley's squadrons and a torrent of shells from the ships fell upon the Spanish works. The Spaniards replied promptly, but their artillery work was of a very poor quality and most of their shots were wide. Smoke settled around the ships in dense clouds, rendering accurate aiming difficult. There was no manoeuvring, the ships remaining at their original stations and firing steadily. The squadrons were so close in shore that it was difficult for the American gunnerst o reach the batteries on the hill tops, but their firing was excellent. Previous to the bombardment, orders were issued to prevent firing on Morro Castle as the American Admiral had been informed that Lieut. Hobson and the other prisoners of the Merrimac were confined there. In spite of this however, several strong shots damaged Morro Castle somewhat. Commodore Schley's line moved closer in shore, firing at shorter range. The Brooklyn and Texas caused wild havoc among the shore batteries, quickly silencing them. While the larger ships were engaging the heavy batteries, the Suawanee and Vixen closed with the small in shore batteries opposite them, raining rapid fire shots upon it and quickly placing the battery out of the fight. The Brooklyn closed to 800 yards and then the destruction caused by her guns and those of the Marblehead and Texas was really awful. In a few minutes the woodwork of the Estrella fort was burning and the battery was silenced, firing no more during the engagement. Eastward, the New York and New Orleans silenced the Cayo battery in quick order, and then shelled the earthworks located higher up.

Later on the practice was not so accurate, owing to the elevation of the guns. Many of the shells, however, landed, and the Spanish gunners retired.

Shortly after nine o'clock the firing ceased, the warships turning in order to permit the use of their port batteries. The firing then became a long, reverberating crash of thunder, and the shells raked the Spanish batteries with terrible effect. Fire broke out in the Catalina fort and silenced the Spanish guns there. The firing of the fleet continued until 10 o'clock, when the Spanish forts ceased entirely, and Rear Admiral Sampson hoisted the "Cease firing,' signal. Generally the firing of the fleet was very destructive. Many oft he earthworks were knocked to pieces, and the Estrella and Catalina fortifications were so damaged that it is questionable whether they will ever be able to renew any effective work during the war. After the fleet retired, the Spaniards returned to their guns and sent twelve shells after the fleet but no one was injured. One shell fell close to the collier Justin. Throughout the engagement no American ship was hit and no American was injured. If the Spaniards stuck to their guns, and all evidence is to the contrary, their loss must have been heavy.

THE CLOSE OF THE WAR NEAR.

Pittsburg, June 7.—Associate Justice George Shiras, of the United States Supreme Court, declares that the war will end in three weeks. He said to me to-night:

"In my opinion the decisive blow will be struck off the Cuban coast in a few days and within three weeks Spain will be suing for peace.'

"Were you for war before the formal declaration of hostilities?" I asked.

"No,' he replied. "I believed that the Cuban question could be settled peaceably, but now that the war is started I think we should not be slow in prosecuting it to a speedy termination in a manner that will bring glory to the United States. The Administration means business, and the wisdom of the policies pursued will be apparent in due season. The close of the war is near."

FIGHTING NEAR MANILA

The Insurgents Fight Fiercely on the Outskirts of Manila

They Hold Malubon, Tarlac and Bacon—They are now Attacking Santa Mes and Molate

Manila, May 31, via Hong Kong, June 7.—The Spanish outposts have been driven in all along the line simultaneously by the insurgents with gerat slaughter. It is said that over a thousand have been killed. There has been fierce hand to hand fighting for seventy hours, despite the typhoon which is raging. The violent winds and torrents of rain render the rifles of the Spanish troops unavailing. The natives easily win at every step with their slashing knives.

To-day the insurgents hold Malabon, Tarlac and Bacoor. They are now attacking Santa Mes and Molate, the suburbs of the city, which is completely encircled for a distance of seven miles. A native regiment, under Col. Aguinaldo cousin of the insurgent leader, yesterday rejoined the insurgents.

Three rockets dropped into the city to-day. They are supposed to have been a signal for the natives. The Governor has issued a despairing proclamation, begging the insurgents to come to terms and, meanwhile, he is arranging to remove all the Spanish population inside the old walled city. He is filling the moats, testing the drawbridges and placing strong guards in the principal streets, and artillery along the walls. All the other troops are camping in the suburbs. The weather is terrific.

Later.—It now appears that the rockets yesterday were not signals to the natives but a warning from the German consulate of the approach of the typhoon issued for the benefit of the ships in the harbor.

I visited Cavite without the Spaniards knowing it, and found there 197 wounded and 56 prisoners, among the latter six Spanish officers, the others being natives. All were well treated.

Chief Aguinaldo, in the course of an interview, has said that the insurgents are eager to rush upon Manila forthwith but that Admiral Dewey refuses to allow "hordes of passionate semi-savages to storm a civilized metropolis.'

Admiral Dewey intends to await the arrival of the American troops. In the meantime the insurgents have been forbidden to cross the Malate river, seven miles south of Manila; otherwise the Petrel will be stationed there to bombard them.

GREAT BATTLE NEAR MANILA.

Hong Kong, June 7.—The correspondent of the Associated Press at Manila, under date of June 2, says: "I have traversed the whole region of fighting during the past three days, in spite of the prohibition. I found the insurgents strongly posted at Caloocan, eight miles north of Manila, and at Bacoor the same distance south. To the east, I found nothing in the way of insurgent intrenchments. The Spaniards hold the whole Pasig river, which falls into the bay immediately below the town of Manila to the lagoon. The two sections of the insurgent forces signal their movements with fire balloons. To the northward the uprising is general, and the Spaniards are few. The railway has been cut in several places, and the English overseers have been warned off.

"To the southward there has been fierce fighting on the Zapote river, between Bacoor and Las Pinas. The biggest battle of the present campaign was fought last Tuesday, May 31. The insurgents attacked the left branch of the Zapote, waded across amid a typhoon, stormed the banks for several miles along and carried the Spanish trenches with knives. Yesterday, June 1, they tried the right branch of the Zapote, but failed. The Spaniards employed artillery all day, but no casualties are reported. To-day there have been only ineffective skirmishes.

"The country is densely wooded and swampy. Both parties shot aimlessly. I got in the middle of the firing but nobody was hurt. Nothing was visible in the tremendous fusilade, and I believe nobody knew what he was shooting at. Both sides were 'duffers.' The insurgents, however, are excellent in a melee.

"The Spaniards say they were victorious yesterday, but that they cannot follow up the victory and annihilate the rebels because of the American warships at Cavite. Moreover, they say it is necessary to save their energies for the American troops. Meanwhile the vicinity of Manila is an impenetrable network of ambuscades.'

SAVED MANY LIVES.

Tampa, June 7.—By an act of heroism Lieut. Parker, who is in charge of the old club house in Lafayette street, used by the Government as a storehouse, and Thomas McGee, a veteran of the civil war, prevented what might have been a calamity. These two men picked up a box of ammunition which had caught fire, and, heedless of the danger, carried it to the river, some distance away, and threw it into the water.

While soldiers were engaged in carrying boxes of ammunition from the warehouse and loading them on army wagons smoke was seen issuing from one of the boxes. Soldiers and negro roustabouts piled over each other in their scramble for safety.

McGee, however, ran to the box, picked it up, and was staggering toward the water with it alone when Lieut. Parker, who had heard a cry of fire, went to his assistance, and together they carried the smoking box to the water. It was recovered later, when the tide was out, and found to be considerably charred.

How the fire originated is unknown. In the storehouse were piled hundreds of boxes of ammunition each containing a thousand cartridges. Had the cartridges in the burning box exploded great loss of life might have resulted, as there were at least a score of soldiers working in and around the building.

VIOLATED INTERNATIONAL LAW.

Madrid, June 6.—Duke Almodovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has mailed to all the ambassadors of Spain a note and memorandum declaring that the United States has violated international law by capturing Spanish vessels before a declaration of war, by bombarding ports without notice, and by using the Spanish flag at Guantanamo.

DIED ON THE OCEAN.

Key West Fla., June 7.—4.20 a.m.—The United States collier Pompey formerly the British steamer Harlech, arrived here this morning from Norfolk, Va., with her commander, Lieut.-Commander E. W. Sturdy, dead on board, and Lieut. K. C. Norton in charge of the ship.

Commander Sturdy was not feeling well when the Pompey sailed on Friday evening. He was taken sick off Cape Henry soon afterwards, became unconscious and died yesterday. There was no physician on board.

SANTIAGO BOMBARDED

Spaniards Admit that the American Fire was Most Destructive

It is Reported that the Spanish Cruiser Maria Teresa was Sunk Yesterday by the fire of the American Fleet

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—9.05 a.m.—The fighting before and in the vicinity of Santiago de Cuba continued together with part of yesterday, from 7.45 a.m. until nearly 10 o'clock. Ten of the American warships maintained a steady and carefully directed fire against El Morro and the batteries of Punta Gorda, Zocapa, and Cincoreales, in addition to the bombarding of the Spanish fleet in the harbor. The percentage of effective projectiles was very large.

It appears from the best information obtainable at this place, the cable station connecting with Santiago de Cuba that immense damage was inflicted on the enemy. The Spaniards admit that the bombardment from the American fleet was most destructive. About 1600 projectiles are said to have been fired by the American warships, and it seems that the responsive fire from the Spanish forts and ships was scarcely felt at all by the Americans.

The fortifications at the entrance of the harbor are described as being riddled with shot and shattered by the explosion of the immense shells fired by the American battleships. The Spanish batteries are understood to have been virtually silenced, and El Morro and the fortifications at Zocapa and Punta Gorda are reported to have been demolished by the three hours' uninterrupted hammering of the American fleet.

The American attack is next said to have been specially directed against Aguadores, a small coast town a little to the east of the entrance of Santiago bay. The idea of the American admiral, it appears, was to land troops and seige guns there after reducing the defences of the place, and thence make a determined and more close assault upon Santiago de Cuba, which, in view fo the present condition of its fortifications may be expected to yield very soon after the beginning of such an attack. Heavy cannonading was opened upon Aguadores about midday yesterday. The latest advices received here from Spanish sources do not indicate the duration of the fire or whether American troops and seige guns were landed at Aguadores, but it cannot be doubted that the net result of Monday's fighting was extremely disastrous to the Spanish defences.

It is also understood here that the Cuban troops maintained throughout the greater part of yesterday an attack by land on Santiago de Cuba, and the Spanish reports say the garrison lost heavily in killed and wounded.

The military commander of Santiago de Cuba, acknowledges the following casualties among the land forces.

Colonel Ordonez, Captain Sanchez, Lieut. Yrizar of the Artillery, and Perez and Garcia, both Spanish officers. Their rank is not mentioned however.

SUNK THE MARIA TERESA.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—It is reported here that the first class armored Spanish cruiser Maria Teresa was sunk yesterday by the fire of the American fleet.

AN AMERICAN VICTORY.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—A landing of American troops is reported to have taken place yesterday near Daiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores and near the railroad connecting with Santiago de Cuba. Later there was severe fighting with a Spanish force on land, in which the Americans were victorious.

SPANIARDS CLAIM VICTORY.

Havana, June 6.—10 a.m.—The Spaniards claim to have repulsed two American attacks to-day at Santiago de Cuba and General Blanco has congratulated the Spanish commander for the heriosm of the Spanish forces. Other reports point to brilliant American victories.

SEVEN MEN WERE KILLED.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—The Spaniards also admit the losss of twenty-one infantry soldiers severaly wounded, and one soldier was killed. It is believed that the losses of the Spaniards were much more heavy.

Int he naval force the Spaniards say that the officer who was second in command of the partly dismantled Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes and five sailors and an ensign were killed. The Spanish sailors wounded, it is asserted, number sixteen men.

The Spanish acknowledge that a great deal of damage was inflicted on the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes and they say Morro Castle shows great gaping breeches in its wall.

Later in the day, it appears, the landing of the troops was effected near Daiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores, and near the railroad station connecting with Santiago de Cuba. Later an engagement took place between the American force and a column of Spanish troops which had been sent against the landing party. The accounts of the battle obtainable here being from Spanish sources, do not set forth the result. Therefore, it is to be inferred that the Americans were victorious and that is the belief which prevails here.

It is said that only five hundred American troops were landed at Daiquiri or possibly at Aguadores, the two places being mixed up in the reports received here. But it seems to be admitted that the fire of the American soldiers was so effective that the Spaniards were compelled to flee from the fortifications they were defending.

THE SPANISH VERSION.

Havana, June 6.—10 a.m.—Details from Spanish sources received here to-day of the bombardment this Monday morning of the American fleet say the warships of the United States fired about 1,500 projectiles of all kinds. This fire was answered by Morro Castle and the batteries of Zocapa and Punta Gorda. At noon, it is added, another bombardment began against Aguadores east of Santiago de Cuba, the firing lasting one hour. Both attacks, the Spaniards assert, were repulsed. Morro Castle is admitted to have been damaged, as well as the "exterior headquarters built during the time of peace at Capo Smith, and in addition the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes is admitted to have been slightly damaged."

The Spanish commander at Santiago de Cuba reports that the American fire did not dismount one piece of artillery and he says that nine of the American vessels "disappeared from sight before dark.'

The Spanish army losses, according to the official reports, are one soldier killed and one chief, four officers, and 21 soldiers wounded. The Spanish navy losses are reported to be one chief and five sailors killed, and one officer and 12 sailors wounded.

Finally, the Spanish version of the affair says: "The American losses are thought to have been considerable."

It is announced from the palace that a Spanish column has defeated an insurgent force near Palisada, in the Province of Pinal del Dia. The insurgents are said to have left 17 dead on the field. The insurgents, it appears, were almost naked. The Spaniards admit they lost 15 men killed.

In a number of encounters which have taken place recently between the Spaniards and insurgents the former claimed to have killed 37 of the latter, to have destroyed several camps and 33 huts, and to have captured a quantity of arms and ammunition.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 8 1898

A GOTHAM BRAG

The New York Journal, the yellowest of the yellows, has persuaded itself into the belief that its readers will believe anything. Accordingly it dishes up such intelligence as this: "The strength of the fleet now before Santiago is greater than that of any massing of warships in modern times.' The Journal evidently alludes to the fleet it would like to see before Santiago.

In a few days after Emperor William sent his troublesome note to Paul Kruger, and when, for the moment, the war cloud looked black, Great Britain massed that great White Fleet which probably had more battleships than the United States has warships, counting skiffs and scows. Certainly, this is true of the fleet massed at the Jubilee, the greatest fleet that any country could get together in modern times, the greatest fleet of the greatest naval nation in the world.

No, Maude, dear, the seat of war has nothing to do with the short pants of the dogs of war. Silly girl!

BY-LAW No. ....

A By-Law to provide for Borrowing the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars for Bridges and Steam Roller.

WHEREAS it is necessary to raise the sum of SEVEN THOUSAND DOLLARS for the CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGES OVER THE CREEK IN THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH, and the sum of THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the purchase of a STEAM ROLLER, and for the said purposes to issue Debentures of the said Corporation for the sum of TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

AND WHEREAS it will be necessary to raise annually by special rate for paying the said debt and interest the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars.

AND WHEREAS, the amount of the whole ratable property of the Municipality, according to the last revised Assessment Roll, is the sum of FOUR MILLIONS THREE HUNDRED AND THREE THOUSAND THREE HUNDRED dollars.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing debt of the Municipality is the sum of TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-ONE 26-100 dollars and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrear.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by the Council thereof therefore enacts as follows:—

1.—This By-law shall take effect on the SIXTH DAY OF JULY next.

2.—It shall and may be lawful for the Mayor and Treasurer, and they are hereby authorized to borrow the sum of TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS, and to issue Debentures therefor under the Corporate Seal of the Town of Peterborough to be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer of the said Town and by the Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust to the amount of the said sum of TEN THOUSAND DOLLARDS.

3.The said Debentures shall be made payable within TWENTY YEARS FROM THE ISSUE THEREOF and shall bear interest at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. PER ANNUM, payable half yearly on the THIRTIETH DAY OF JUNE and the THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF DECEMBER in each year and shall have coupons annexed thereto for the payment of such interest. Such principal and interest to be payable at the office of the Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust at Peterborough.

4.—There shall be raised annually for the payment of interest during the currency of the Debentures the sum of FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS and for the payment of the debt the sum of THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS by special rate on all the ratable property of the Town of Peterborough liable thereto.

5.—The moneys realized from the sale of such Debentures shall be applied to the purposes aforesaid and to no other purpose.

6.—The votes of the electors of the Town of Peterborough shall be taken upon this By-law on the 29th day of June, 1898, commencing at the hour of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and closing at the hour of 5 o'clock in the afternoon on the same day, at the following polling places and before the following Deputy returning officers, that is to say:—

For Ward No. One,—At THOMAS EYNON'S SHOP, No 241 George street, JOSEPH LUNDY to be Deputy returning officer.

For Ward No. Two,—At the TOWN COUNCIL CHAMBER, CHARLES CAMERON to be Deputy returning officer

For Ward No. Three,—At the SHOP OF J. & W. METHERAL, Aylmer Street, JOHN IRWIN to be Deputy returning officer.

For Ward No. Four,—At the SHOP OF WM. LEE, Smith Street, GEORGE W. POWELL to be Deputy returning officer.

7.—The 30th day of June, 1898, at the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, and the office of the Town Clerk are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

8.—The 28th day of June, 1898, at the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, and the office of the Town Clerk are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various polling places, and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk, respectively on behalf of the persons interested in and promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

NOTICE!

TAKE NOTICE that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law which has been taken into consideration and which will be finally passed by the Council of the Town of Peterborough (in the event of the assent of the electors being obtained thereto) after one month from the first publication hereof in the MORNING TIMES NEWSPAPER, the date of which first publication is the first day of June, 1898, and that at the hour day and places therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Town Clerk.

A

What does A stand for? When some friend suggests that your blood needs A sarsaparilla treatment, remember that A stands for AYER'S. The first letter in the alphabet stands for the first of sarsaparillas; first in origin, first in record, first in the favor of the family. For nearly half a century has been curing all forms of blood diseases—scrofula, eczema, tetter, rheumatism, erysipelas, blood poisoning, etc. There's a book about these cures—"Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured,"—which is sent free on request, by Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass. The book will interest you if you are sick or weak, because it tells not what it is claimed the remedy will do, but what your neighbors and fellows testify that it has done. Will it cure you? It has cured thousands like you. Why not you?

Assistant Registrar Crown Lands

The Toronto Globe says: 'It is understood that upon the resignation of Mr. C. P. Higgins, Mr. H. Cartwright was last week promoted to the assistant registrarship of the Crown Lands Department, and that Mr. Michael P. Doherty, of East Peterborough, was appointed in Mr. Cartwright's place.

How to Cure all Skin Diseases

Simply apply "Swayne's Ointment." No internal medicine required. Cures tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the face, hands, nose, &c, leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for Swayne's Ointment. Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents. Avoid imitations.

No other preparation has ever done so many people so much good as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

E. & D. BICYCLE

are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this. The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

CONDITIONS OF SALE.

No limit will be adjudged at less then the minimum price fixed by the department.

The limits will be adjudged to the highest bidder on payment of the purchase price in cash or by cheque accepted by a duly incorporated bank. Failing payment, they will be immediately re-offered for sale.

The annual ground rent of three dollars per mile, with fire tax, is also payable immediately.

Those timber limits, when adjudged, will be subject to the provisions of all timber regulations now in force or which may be enacted hereafter.

Plans of limits offered for sale are opened for inspection in the Department of Lands, Forests and Fisheries, in this city, and at the office of the Crown Lands and Timber Agents in the different agencies in which said limits are situated, up to the day of sale.

N. B.—No account for publication of this notice will be recognized, if such publication has not been expressly authorized by the department.

S. N. PARENT,
Commissioner of Lands,
Forests and Fisheries.

SPECIAL WAR NEWS

TROOPS LANDED

New York, June 6.—The ticker service at 2.55 this afternoon sent out the following:

Mole St. Nicholas, June 6.—United States cruiser St. Louis arrived here this morning with despatches for Washington. She brought news that troops were successfully landed west of Santiago de Cuba on Saturday. The troops were one battalion of engineers, three batteries of artillery, three regiments of infantry and heavy seige guns, which were easily disembarked by use of pontoons.

SPANISH FLEET REPORTED AT CADIZ

Gibraltar, June 6.—It is reported here to-day that the Spanish fleet commanded by Admiral Cervera has returned to Cadiz after completing the series of manoeuvres which formed the programme of the cruise.

LIEUT. HOBSON TO BE PROMOTED

Washington, June 6.—The promotion in store for Lieut. Hobson, the hero of Santiago, is under consideration by the Navy Department. Allen and Commodore Hidgborn, Chief of the Bureau of Naval Construction, talked it over in a general way to-day, but no conclusions were reached. The Department is desirous of knowing what would be most acceptable to Hobson himself and when this is learned a recommendation will be made to Congress, which that body will doubtless carry into effect without delay. The present indications are that Hobson will be taken out of the Staff and be made a Line Officer, as that ensures not only an increase of pay but an opportunity to the more conspicuous line position of admiral at present. Hobson is an Assistant Constructor with the relative rank of Lieut., junior grade.

DEFENCES ARE BEING STRENGTHENED

Havana, May 30, via Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 6.—Havana and the rest of the island of Cuba, so far as heard from, is officially pronounced to be entirely quiet preparations for defence are being pushed night and day, and work is going on without ceasing on the fortifications all over the Island. The Spanish officials here claim that if 50,000 men were needed to attack Havana by land and sea when the war broke out at least 100,000 will be required now in view of the strengthened fortifications and also because the so-called "Cultivation Zone" has been extended to Rivcon, Calabara and Cejucal, which are inside of the line of defences now. This will, it is asserted, support the inhabitants with food for a long time to come. In spite of this outwardly cheerful aspect of affairs bitterly anxious feelings exist. People go so far as to charge Senor Moret, the former Minister of the Colonies of Spain of being a traitor and of having "Sold Cuba to the United States." This causes discontent to prevail and if the Spanish fleet does not arrive here before food becomes really scarce, rioting may be reported.

The Caterpillar Pest

The havoc to the handsome shade trees of the town by the caterpillar is very great. A Times reporter mounted his wheel yesterday and went around town on a tour of inspection. The north end especially in the neighborhood of Smithtown hill is badly infested. In the west, however, in the neighborhood of St. Andrew's church, some trees are almost stripped of foliage. The south is even worse, while the centre of the town is not so bad. It is evident that stringent measures must be taken another year to overcome the pest.

CAREY THE SHOE ...ARCHITECT...

450 George Street

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

During dinner the judge, who was a brilliant conversationalist, spoke eloquently of a recent tour through Southern Mexico. Mr. Jameson had also in his youth been a traveler, so Stella enjoyed the bright exchange of experience between the two gentlemen.

When the company returned to the parlor, the judge resumed his conversation with Stella.

"I shall speak to you, Miss Sterling, in confidence," he said, seating himself near her, while Nina, at her uncle's request, went to the piano. "The lady whose portrait you so strongly resemble was my only sister Marion."

"My mother's name was Marion!" cried Stella, in surprise.

"Is it possible?"

"Yes; she was named, she told me, when I was a very little girl, for a grandmother in Scotland."

"So was my sister; her baptismal name was Marion Rothsay; we are of French and Scotch descent, the name originally being d'Orlean."

"It is very strange."

"So strange that I am convinced that you are my niece. So thoroughly convinced that I will beg you to let me examine any family papers you may have in your possession."

"I have very few; some old-fashioned portraits; the most of them are photographst aken at a period when photography was in its infancy. One or two are queer black-looikng things; you can't trace any picture at all unless you hold it in a certani light, and then an unnatural looking face appears. I do not like to look at them; they have a sort of look that reminds one of the face of a friend when one sees him or her lying in a coffin."

"I know what you mean; daguerreotypes. I dare say these portraits are those of my father and mother."

"They are pacekd away in an old-fashioned cedarwood box of mine; the old letters with them. I have often been on the eve of throwing them away."

"It is fortunate you did not; they may be—nay, I am almost certain they will be the means of proving your claim to an immense fortune."

Stella's heart bounded. She instantly thought of Walter Derwent.

She had dreaded the idea of bringing shame upon him through the infamy of her step-father, but what joy would be hers if she were proved the daughter of an old and honorable family, and the heiress of a fortune.

"It seems like a dream," she murmured.

"Dreams are sometimes only forerunners of coming events," said the old gentleman, pressing her hand with fatherly tenderness. Neither of them noticed that Nina had left the piano and drawn near them. Deeply engrossed by their conversation, they were not aware that the crafty creole had overheard all Stella had said on the subject of the cedar chest.

"Ah, this will be better than asking questions," she said to herself. "I shall find those old letters and pictures and on Sunday, when I go to meet that gentleman, I'll give them to him. Stella will get her fortune all the same and will love me because I shall be the means of giving it to her."

She slipped away out of the room, and ran swiftly up stairs in search of the cedar chest.

CHAPTER XVI

Jeffrey Pettus was well satisfied with the progress he had made in regard to obtaining information on the subject of Stella's parents, but he was in trouble on another account.

He was badly in want of money.

He had been all his life what is termed a "crook;" he had picked pockets in his boyhood, he had graduated into a housebreaker as soon as he reached his manhood. For some years his plausible manner had gained him a livelihood as appbunco-steerer, and he also practiced what is known as a "skin game," with small boxes which are supposed, by dupes, to contain money as well as cough candy and perfumed soap.

Such men rarely have any thought of the morrow, improvidence is one of their ruling characteristics.

"I shall not take any chances of getting in the jug," said the artful Jeffrey. "I guess I'll try and borrow some stuff from Mother Lasher."

He purchased some strong-smelling liniment at a drug store, cut open the ankle of one of his shoes and bound up his foot clumsily, then drew on the shoe, put on his hat, and got on a car, which carried him north to Milwaukee avenue.

He walked a few blocks, and stopped at a big frame building which had the appearance of a private house.

A rusty door-bell, together with the absence of fresh paint, gave the place a neglected, dilapidated look.

Jeffrey Pettus rang the bell twice, and the door was opened by a girl of most singular appearance.

In stature she was little more than a dwarf; her shoulders were deformed until she appeared a humpback, and her expression was so sinster and evil that she remembled a gnome of some fairy legent.

"Well, Mattie," said Jeffrey Pettus, "there you are, charming as ever."

"Shut up!" said the girl, with a fierce scowl.

"Now, now; don't get your lovely face wrinkled by being bad-tempered. Is the old lady alone?"

"Yes, go on, you yellow-faced jay."

Without further parley Pettus walked along the narrow hall into a dark parlor, where an old woman sat in an easy-chair, knitting.

"Hello, Mother Lasher!" said Jeffrey in an off-hand manner.

"Well, what are you after?" asked the woman, in anything but a kindly tone.

The room was shabbily furnished, and everything looked neglected and squalid. Everyone in the neighborhhod fancied Mrs. Lasher and her granddaughter were suffering from the direst poverty, but the old woman was one of the richest "fences" in the United States.

"What do I want? Did I never come to see you for your own sake?"

"No; it is not in you to do anything without an object of your own."

This was not promising.

"Don't you see," said Jeffrey, in an injured manner, "that I am sick? I sprained my ankle fearfully and have been ten days in the hospital."

"Ah! Why didn't you stay there till you got well."

There was no sympathy in Mother Lasher's manner or tone.

She was a very thin old woman, whose grey eyes were as keen and cruel as those of a hawk. Her features were regular, and she had evidently been at one time a very handsome woman. No one knew her age, but she was the friend of all the thieves in Chicago. She it was who disposed of silks and velvets stolen by dishonest salesmen, jewels which street thieves obtained by snatching pokcet-books and satchels out of ladies' hands, and articles purloined by shop-lifters.

LEE GONE TO JACKSONVILLE.

General Fitzhugh Lee has gone to Jacksonville as commander of the volunteer forces, and will make his headquarters in that city. Any regiments on the way down will likely be sent there under his charge, except those regiments now at Chickamauga.

Troops from Lakeland are now on their way to Tampa. This is put forward in support of the statement that some of the troops will soon move.

Four regiments of volunteers and the Tenth cavalry are here from Lakeland having arrived to-day, and the Twenty-fifth colored Infantry have been ordered forward. Also the Sixty-ninth of New York; Fiftieth of Maryland and the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh of Indiana. These latter are from Chicknmauga.

THE TERROR WAS SUNK

Kingston, Jamaica, June 6.—News has been received here to-day confirming the report from Port Antonio yesterday of the sinking of the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror by the United States battleship Oregon.

STORY OF THE FIGHT.

It appears that the Oregon saw a long craft sneaking close to the shore and heading towards the harbor. She signalled the craft to turn to and the signals were improperly answered, whereupon the Oregon opened fire upon her. A 13-inch shell struck the torpedo boat amidships, and she sunk with all hands. The vessel is supposed to have been the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror, trying to make her way from Porto Rico into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, to rejoin the fleet of Admiral Cervera, with which she arrived at Fort de France, Island of Martinique. The Terror was compelled to remain at Fort de France owing to her boilers being out of order. On the other hand, it is thought it may have been the Furor of Admiral Cervera's fleet, as the latest reports concerning the Terror seem to show that her boilers were still out of order.

BUILT AT GLASGOW

The Spanish torpedo boat ddstroyers Furor and Terror were built at Glasgow for Spain, and are bigger than any of their type in the British fleet, being 220 feet long and 22 feet broad. Their armament ocnsists of two 14-pound rapid fire Maxim-Nordenfeldts, two 16-pounders of the same calibre and two 37 MM automatic Maxims. There are also two 14-inch deck-pivoted torpedo tubes of the Schwartzkoff system. Their speed was 28 knots.

SAMPSON'S DENIAL

Mole St. Nicholas, Hayti, June 6.—Advices received to-day from the flagship New York say there is no truth in the Port Antonio report of the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror having been sunk by the United States battleship Oregon.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing thee musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

LIVELV LAKEFIELD

THE C.O.F. ATTEND CHURCH.

Lakefield Court met at 10.30 on Sunday and marched sixty strong to the Baptist church, where the pastor, Rev. H. S. Erb, addressed them from Kings, Chap. 2, and second verse—his theme being "True Manhood." The church was tastefully decorated, the initial letters of the order being displayed in a profusion of flowers. Standing room was at a premium. Mr. Erb displayed the characteristics of true manhood, taking Christ as the model man; and showed that manhood did not depend on any of the ordinary desires of the world. He then developed the idea, claiming it led to the highest liberty, benevolence and concord. He ended by saying: There is nothing on earth more noble than Christian manhood; nothing God delights to honor more than true man.

The council adjourned to August 22nd next.

FALSE STATEMENTS.

Chickamauga Military Park, Ga., June 7.—The officers at Camp Thomas have been annoyed by misleading reports sent out touching the healthfulness of the camp. Out of 42,000 men here there are now only half a dozen serious cases of sickness. The commissary department in Chattanooga has also been annoyed by false statements that the department has been unable to secure sufficient storage for the supplies. As a matter of fact there are now in depot here over 1,000,000 rations and ample room for 5,000,000 more has been provided for if needed.

POND'S EXTRACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29, 1894.
I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary Extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895.
I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894.
I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of druggists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known.

Driver Lawrence, Meets with an Accident

While Messrs. Jas. English and E. Lawrence were flushing out a hydrant on Brock-st. yesterday morning the fire team of greys which they had left standing by for a moment became frightened and endeavored to get away. Driver Lawrence ran to them, but the horses had become greatly excited and in their turnings one of them got its legs caught in the spokes of the front wheel and fell slightly, throwing Mr. Lawrence down and trampling on him. The driver was injured at the hip and also on the foot but held his horse all right. The other horse broke loose, but was captured.

141 Rank and File on Parade at Last Night's Drill of the Rangers

The Rangers turned out at last night's drill 141 strong and put in a couple of hours at battalion drill.

Lieut.-Col. Bell was in command, and Central Park was the scene of the regimental drill.

The following orders were issued:

Headquarters,
Peterborough, June 8, 1898.

Orders by Lt.-Col. R. W. Bell, Commanding 57th Batt. of Infantry, Peterborough Rangers:

No. 1—Detail of duty for week ending June 11th: Officer for the week, Capt. Miller; next for duty, Capt. Hill. Regimental Orderly Sergeant for the week, Col.-Sergt. Mathias; next for duty, Col.-Sergt. Edwards. Bugler for the week, Bugler Galley; next for duty, Bugle-Sergt. Sharpe.

No. 2—The Captains of Companies will in future see that all the empty shells are returned, after each target practice, to the Quartermaster's stores.

By order,
GEO. MATTHEWS,
Acting Adjt.

OFF TO CAMP

The Town Wore Quite a Military Air Yesterday Morning

The town wore quite a military air yesterday morning. The flashy uniform of the dragoons and bright red of the infantry were much in evidence. Lieut. Col. H. C. Rogers, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, left for Belleville on the G. T. R. morning train where the annual summer camp will be held this year. Troop C of the dragoons also went down fully equipped. The troop was 49 strong and was in command of Capt. W. D. Johnston and Lieuts. Bradburn, Tait and Hall. The men and horses all seemed in good condition.

The 46th rural battalion of infantry, which will also camp at Belleville this year, arrived at the city during the day. The local company, No. 6, went down on the 11.45 train. It was mustered 40 strong, and was commanded by Capt. T. J. Johnston, of Otonabee, and Lieut. J. Clark, of Springville. The battalion will remain in camp twelve days.

DOYLE WON

At Last Night's Wrestling Contest in the Opera House

When Doyle challenged Harrison, of Toronto, recently, the latter refused to meet him except at Graeco-Roman style, but offered to produce a 150-lb. man, an "unknown," to wrestle him at catch-as-catch-can style.

Doyle accepted, and the match took place last night in the Opera House before a fair-sized audience.

The audience was not quite as large as that at the Harrison-Doyle match, but what it lacked in numbers was made up in enthusiasm.

As a prelude to the principal event a couple of local boxers went on for a three-round bout, which was declared a draw.

After a long delay Mr. Alf Terril, one of the time-keepers, appeared on the stage and announced that the "unknown," a Mr. Connors, of Providence, Rhode Island, was unable to weigh in at the stipulated weight—150 lbs.—and that Mr. Doyle had claimed and been awarded the forfeit, which amounted to $50. However, in order not to disappoint the audience, the principals had agreed to wrestle for the gate receipts, and were willing to accept a referee chosen by the spectators.

Mr. Terril explained that Mr. Connors had weighed before leaving Toronto that morning, 151 1-2 pounds and had expected to reduce himself to the stipulated weight by taking a Turkish bath on reaching Peterborough. A Turkish bath, however, was not available in town, and Mr. Connors was consequently unable to qualify so far as weight was concerned.

Mr. James Graham was selected as referee, and the match proceeded.

Connors looked much lighter than Doyle and was considerably taller. Doyle is more compactly built than his opponent.

The first bout lasted 30 minutes and 50 seconds and up to the last minute the honors were pretty evenly divided—Doyle possibly having slightly the best of it. Finally Doyle succeeded in flooring his man, he having secured a grip on Connors neck that almost strangled him.

The second bout was a repetition of the first, with Connors not as strong as in the first. It lasted, however, nearly half-an-hour, and finally resulted in Doyle securing the fall.

Messrs. Alex. Gibson and Alf. Terril acted as time-keepers.

Mr. James Graham gave perfect satisfaction as referee.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

Tendered Mr. Saunders Last Night by Royal Black Preceptory, No 261

At the regular meeting of Royal Black Preceptory, R. B. K. of I., No. 261, held in the Orange Hall last night the following resolution of condolence was unanimously passed:

To Sir Joseph Saunders, W. P., Royal Black Preceptory, No. 261, R. B. of I., Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir Knight,—The officers and members of Royal Black Preceptory, No. 261, desire to express to you their most deep and heartfelt sympathy in your sad bereavement, caused by the removal, through death, of your beloved wife.

We are perfectly aware that all verbal condolence is vain, under the circumstances, and, if any consolation can be afforded under so heavy an affliction as you have just experienced, it must come from a higher power than ours. Your own strong sense of religion, and of our duty of resignation to a power that is beyond our control, and a will that is ever beneficently directed towards our good, must uphold you in this most bitter trial.

We hope that you will support your spirit for your own and your children's sake, and look forward to that bright and happy world in which we shall go to those who cannot return to us. There is one consolation—that we shall meet those we love in another and a better world, where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest. This is the hope that the teachings of our glorious Institution holds out to us, and its realization will amply repay our sorrows here, whilst thoughts of the joy and happiness that is in store for us hereafter should blunt the edge of present grief.

We trust that the "God of comfort, who comforteth in all tribulations" may bring to you and your children the full measure of comfort and consolation which a calm confidence in His wise and loving purpose fits His children to receive.

Signed on behalf of the Preceptory.
W. H. G. ARMSTRONG,
Registrar.

Peterborough, June 7th, 1898.

ROSS COMMITTED

For Trial at Yesterday Morning's Session of the Police Court

The adjourned preliminary hearing into the charge laid against Harry Ross of having committed theft at the Times office was resumed at Police Court yesterday morning. Evidence was given by W. H. Robertson, W. Fleming, Bruce Beatty, and others. Mr. E. B. Stone conducted the defence, Mr. R. F. McWilliams assisting in his absence. A strong plea was made for the prisoner, but the Magistrate remarked that the evidence was sufficient to justify the doubt as to whether the accused was not guilty, and committed him for trial.

This is another case that will be tried at the sessions which open a week from to-day.

THE GAOL BREAKERS

Fobes and Marshall Appear Before P. M. Dumble Yesterday Morning

The first development in the gaol breaking case occurred yesterday. Marshall and Fobes were brought before Magistrate Dumble at the court house at noon for a preliminary hearing. They were remanded until Friday afternoon next.

Marshall appears to be quite unconcerned as to his position, and the ultimate result of his crime, while Fobes looks penitent.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." MRS. SUMMERVILLE, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario. Get only Hood's, because

THE WAR NEWS NOT IMPORTANT

A German Captain in Trouble—A Mysterious Visitor At Cape Haytien—News from the Philippines

A GERMAN CAPTAIN IN TROUBLE

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—Captain Aarhuns, of the German steamer Schleswig which arrived here to-day from Kingston, Jamaica, was given a hearing this afternoon before collector of Port Thomas for violation of maritime laws in attempting to enter this port without first having obtained clearance papers from the customs officers at Kingston. After hearing his case, Collector Thomas decided that the captain should make a deposit of $5,000 for his liability pending final action. Captain Aarhuns refused to deposit this sum andt he case was referred to Washington for final action. Meanwhile the Schleswig is in the custody oft he customs authorities according to a despatch from Kingston, dated Kingston, May 2nd, Capt. Aarhuns openly expressed anti-American views while in that port, saying he hpoed every American ship would be blown up, and that the Harvard would be captured by the Spaniards. He is also credited with threatening to lie outsidet he port of Kingston and signal to the Spaniards the whereabouts of the Harvard which was then at Kingston. When agents of the Schleswig appliedt o Consul Dent for a bill of health,t he consular office had been closed for the night and the Schleswig sailed early the next morning without the necessary papers. This offence is punishable by a fine of $5,000.

A MYSTERIOUS VISITOR

Cape Haytien, June 8.—Much mystery was observed regarding the visit oft he American gunboat Restoration to this port yesterday evening . It transpired this morning that President Herureaux, of San Domingo, was on board the vessel and that from here heg oes to Inauga, where Senor Jimines was last known to be located. The Restoration left Cape Haytien before 5 o'clock this morning.

Commodore Jansen, who came ashore to receive the report of the Dominican consul on the alleged illegal shipment of men from this point by Senors Jimines and Marales to take part in the landing of the revolutionists at Monte Christi, spent the greater part of the night with the Consul. The Dominican gunboat Independence did not enter this port yesterday in company with the Restoration, as cabled last night. She proceeded to Port De Paix in order to investigate the report of the presence of Jimines at that place just before the revolutionary attempt at Monte Christi. It is understood that if President Herureaux finds that Jimines is still at Inafigua he will make an effort to induce the authorities there to deliver the insurgent leaders over to him on the charge of piracy.

NEWS FROM THE PHILIPPINES

Madrid, June 8.—The Minister of War General Correa, received news from the Philippine Islands to-day and communicated it to the Premier, Senor Sagasta saying the Governor-General of that colony—General Augusti—asked for full liberty of action. He added that Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader continuedt o excite a general insurrection in the archipelago.

A despatch from the commander of the island of Viscayas says that official sent two gnuboats to the islands of Luzon with instructions to try to communicate with Manila, but he adds they were compelled to return unsuccessful. The Government replied instructing the commander of the island Vizayas to restore communication with Manila at all costs. General Correa declined to furnish the text of the despatches for publication on the grounds that it would be prejudicial to the country's interest, but a member of the Government admitted that the despatch of Spanish troops to the Philippine Islands would not change the situation. He said: "We could send 50,000 troops but if the natives are against us, such a force would be inadequate. If they were with us, it would not be necessary to send troops to the Philippine Islands."

WILL RAISE SPANISH SHIPS SUNK AT MAMILA

San Francisco, June 8.—The United States Government will raise the Spanish vessels sunk in Manill aHarbor by Admiral Dewey's gunners. Three San Francisco firms, T. P. Whitelaw & Son, A. Woodside & Co., and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company will be called on for bids for undertaing tkhe work.

A FIERCE BATTLE AT PALMA

A Column of Spaniards, 1,3000 Strong Attacked by 1,000 Insurgents

And Compelled to Surrender—The Spanish Loss was 76 Killed—Among the Dead were 13 Officers

ew York, June 8.—News has just reached the Cuban Junta in this city of a victory achieved by the Cuban forces over a division of the Spanish army at Jiguani, Province of Santiago, on May 22. It was one of the most decisive battles which the patriots have gained in many months and the most important one since the war was declared by the United States agains Spain.

A column of Spanish soldiers, 1,300 strong, acting under orders from Havana to abandon the interior towns and advance toward the coast, evacuated the town of La Piedra, after having destroyed their forst and fortifications to prevent them from falling into the hands of the insurgents, and camped at Jiguani, where they expected to remain awaiting further orders.

The Spaniards were surprised on the morning of May 22 by being attacked by a division of the first corps, belonging to General Calixto Garcia's command, under the leadership of Colonel Jose Rabi. The Cubans altogether numbered a little more than 1,000 men while the Spaniards had fully twice that number. The Cubans advanced in good order, being well equipped with arms and ammunition and took the enemy completely by surprise. At the start the Spaniards scattered, but afterward made an effort to rally their forces. They only succeeded in being able to retreat in regular order to the village of Palma.

After six hours' hard fighting at Palma the Spaniards raised a flag of truce and expressed themselves as being willing to surrender. Terms were speedily arranged, and the Cubans took as prisoners one Spanish colonel, seven captains and several other officers, besides 103 soldiers. The Spanish loss amounted to 76 dead, besides a large number who were wounded. Included in the Spanish losses were 13 officers.

The Cubans sustained a heavy loss, but it was undoubtedly smaller than that of the Spaniards. It is reported that there were 45 killed, including five officers of lesser rank and about sixty wounded. After the battle the Cubans returned to Jiguani. There they recovered a large quantity of arms and ammunition from the deserted Spanish camp, together with provisions and supply wagons which the enemy had been compelled to leave behind. These were much needed, and were sent to the headquarters of General Garcia's camp at Bayamo.

BOMBARDED A SECOND TIME.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 8.—According to the latest direct advices from Santiago de Cuba, dated Monday, at midnight, the bombardment which began at 7.45 a.m. yesterday, and continued until half-past ten in the morning, was resumed again for a short time about midnight. It was then believed that the Americans had effected a junction with the insurgents near Daiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores, and near the railway line into Santiago.

DOUBT THE DESTRUCTION

London, June 8.—The London morning papers arei nclined to doubt the account of the destrustion and silencing of the forts at Santiago, but they believet he bombardment was intended to draw the Spaniards' attention from a landing somewhere, and that the coming week or two will see exciting events in Cuba.

The sinking of the Reina Mercedes is regarded as probable, for it is known that her boilers were defective, and that she had no armoured deck. The wounding or death of General Ordonez means a serious loss to Spain, Ordonez being, or having been, her artillery expert, with an European reputation, and the designer of the ordnance bearing his name.

The Cape Haytien advices of The Daily Mail practically confirm the account from the Associated Press boat Dandy. All other accounts here, except the brief despatches from Madrid, emanate from New York. A special from Havana, evidently pro-Spanish, says that nine American vessels retired seriously crippled; that the Reina Mercedes wacs only slightly damaged, and that the American losses were heavy.

WERE AMERICANS REPULSED?

London, June 8.—The Times, commenting editorially on the fact that the Cuban authroities at Havana permitted its correspondent, Mr. Knight, to discharge his function in forwarding the despatch as to Monday's engagement at Santiago, says: "His despatch says that the American fire was damaging. As he is doubtless subject to rigid censorship, this admission is significant; and his statement that the Americans were repulsed at Aguadores is probably correct."

The editorial, in summing up the situation, says:—"Spanish obstinacy may prolong the war for many months. The American Government is acting wisely and prudently in refusing to send to Cuba an army of untrained volunteers. Little attention need be given to peace rumors."

London, June 8.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Cape Haytien, says:—"The American victory at Santiago de Cuba has cleared the way for the entrance of Admiral Sampson and the destruction of the Spanish fleet. As Santiago's land defences are reported weak it is likely the city will yield to a vigorous attack.

"It is reported that the commander oft he Reina Mercedes, second in command in the Spanish fleet under Cervera, was killed during the engagement. The combined American and insurgent forces are entrenched near Daiquiri with guns mounted in preparation for a further movement. From Spanish sources comes a report that a party of Americans landed at Aguadores; but whether it is true or what the result was, is not known here."

SPANISH CONGRATULATIONS

Madrid, June 8.—In the Chamber of Deputies last night, Captain Aunon, Minister of Marine, read Admiral Cervera's despatch, and a despatch from General Blanco to the effect that General Linares had repulsed an American attempt to effect a landing of troops at Aguadores. The Senate, after hearing Admiral Cervera's despatch, unanimously resolved to congratulate the army and navy.

WANT A RELIEF EXPEDITION

Spaniards Blame Their Government and Call for Action

Conference of the Powers—Spaniards Still Holding out at Manila—They are in Bad Straits, However

London, June 8.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "El Liberal calls upon the Government to take steps promptly to satisfy public opinion, which is clamoring for the immediate despatch of a relief expedition to assist Capt.-General Augusti in forcing the Americans to leave Manila. This alone, the papers argue, would put a stop to the spread of agitation and disaffection among the natives of the Island of Luzon."

"The nation," says El Liberal, "has remained patient only because it has believed that the Government would really arrange such an expedition."

El Imparcial advocates a similar course, insisting that the fate of the Spanish rule in the Philippines could in this way be easily decided at Manila.

El Heraldo is even more energetic in its calls upon the Cabinet to act before it is too late.

The press campaign is evidently intended to exercise pressure upon the Government before the reserve fleet at Cadiz receives final instructions which are hourly expected by Admiral Camara. Reports from the Philippines state that the Spaniards, thanks to the promises of reforms and the energy of the local authorities have succeeded in checking the propaganda of Aguinaldo, who admits that he has not met with the support which he expected from the natives.

The Americans have been preparing defences at the mouth of the bay ever since the Spanish authorities set the rumor afloat among the natives that a relief expedition was on the way and was expected very shortly.

Senor Sagasta is manœuvring very dexterously and refraining from giving any pledges either to the Friars or the reformers on the plea that in the present circumstances any definite solution must be postponed until the end of the war.

CONFERENCE OF POWERS.

London, June 8.—The Paris correspondent of The Standard says: "The French and Russian Governments are exchanging views as to the expediency of subjecting such conquests as the United States may make and hold good in China as to European sanction at conference or congress."

SAIL IN A FORTNIGHT.

London, June 8.—A despatch to The Daily Chronicle from Gibraltar says that Admiral Camara, with the Cadiz reserve squadron, will sail for Cuba in a fortnight.

STILL HOLDING OUT.

London, June 8.—A despatch to The Daily Telegram from Manila, dated June 3, says: "The Spaniards in the church in old Cavite are still holding out; but the adjacent town of Imus has been captured by the insurgents. This is an important point at the back of Cavite proper, and its possession by the rebels is a serious matter for the Spaniards because it is the outlet of the surrounding country and through it supplies are brought to the city of Manila. It will also afford an admirable base of operations for a further advance toward the city.

"It has been found impossible to conceal from the inhabitants of Manila the fact that the insurgent successes have cast a deep gloom upon foreign residents, who are more anxious than ever to get away. For the most part the men remain, but the the women and children have been sent to Cavite, where they are safe under the Stars and Stripes. The most friendly relations exist between Admiral Dewey and the consular representatives of the powers and the commanders of the European warships in the bay. The Spanish soldiers who have been captured are a sorry looking lot. If they are a fair sample they will be no match for the American troops."

CUT THE LINE.

London, June 8.—The Manila Railway Company has received the following despatch from its superintendent at Manila:

"The line has been cut in the first section: the rails have been removed and there is no means of communication between the second and third sections. Traffic is suspended. The rebels are surrounding Manila and an attack is expected any day."

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 9 1898

THE BANK OF MONTREAL

As is our usual custom, we publish to-day a report of the Eightieth General Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of Canada's greatest financial institution, the Bank of Montreal, which took place at the head office of the Bank in Montreal on Monday last. The report is an interesting one, and will be read by thousands throughout eastern Ontario, who look upon the bank statement as a financial barometer, indicating what the future will be.

The profits for the year ending 30th April, 1898, were $1,265,300.09, to which is added the balance of profit and loss account, $886,909.98, making a total of $2,152,210.07. From this was paid two half yearly dividends, of five per cent. each, amounting in the aggregate to $1,200,000, leaving a balance of $952,210.07 to be carried forward.

Mr. Clouston, the General Manager, in his remarks, stated that the increase of $1,000,000 in the circulation, was due to increased expenditure in railroad building, the influx into the Yukon district and general expansion in business. He went on to explain that he had referred last year to a large increase in deposits over the previous year, and stated that in his opinion it lacked permancy. The bank probably had withdrawn $3,000,000 of special deposits of large amounts, and they have been replaced by deposits of smaller sums from the public of a more permanent, and therefore more satisfactory character.

In reference to trade conditions in Canada we cannot do better than quote Mr. Clouston's own words: "It is difficult to estimate the great boon the enhanced value of grain has been to this country. It has enabled the farmers to reduce their mortgage indebtedness, and it has increased their purchasing power, stimulating trade in all directions, giving more freight to the railways, their traffic returns showing large gains. The prophets who last year were predicting that the low price of grain had come to stay, must feel that they have mistaken their vocation The export of provisions and eggs is steadily increasing. The supply of cheese, unfortunately, has been in excess of the demand, and prices are unsatisfactory, but it is hoped that with the cessation of strikes and the increase of field work in England, there may be an improvement. The demand for merchandize and manufactures of all sorts is very satisfactory. In the territories ranchers have received highly remunerative prices for cattle and horses, and, with additional markets opening up in the mining districts they have every reason to feel hopeful."

The General Manager referred in hopeful terms to the opening up of the Yukon and Kootenay gold districts which had passed from the chrysalis and chromo stage into actual development and production. The worst feature in the present situation was the state of the lumber trade, which was very much depressed, owing to over production, causing an overstocked condition of the foreign markets. The general manager was hopeful, however, of better prices in the future, which will be cheering news for many of our readers who are engaged in the lumber trade.

Mr. Clouston commended the government for reducing the rate of Government savings bank deposits this session to 21-2 per cent., which he characterized as a wise and businesslike action. If there is any department of a government which should be conducted entirely apart from politics and strictly on business lines, it is the Department of Finance, and there could have been no excuse if they continued to pay as much for a temporary deposit such as a savings bank deposit is, as for loans running for a long period, particularly when ordinary municipalities can borrow now at 31-2 and 33-4 per cent. Mr. Clouston stated that if it is considered the duty of the Government to furnish a safer place of deposit for the public than that furnished by banks; the axiom should never be lost sight of, that "the greater the safety, the smaller the return for your money;' and the Government showed a sense of what was due to themselves and to the public, who have to pay for the increased interest, which after all, benefits only a very small proportion of the people.

The Hon. George A. Drummond, Vice-President, in his remarks, testified on behalf of the directors to the ability and prudence displayed in the management of the Bank, and to the loyalty and devotion displayed on the part of the large and increasing staff. He spoke of the era of better times upon which the country had entered. Confidence was returning and the general anticipations of improvement were reflected in the great commercial barometer, the Stock Exchange, by a steady advance in the value of securities. The war which had broken out between Spain and the United States, which had given us a shock at the time, was not materially disturbing the ordinary channels of commerce. The kindlier feeling which was awakened towards the Mother Country in the United States, was worthy of note.

Mr. Drummond also referred to the advance in the value of farm produce, which was most satisfactory to us. Also to the curtailment of the excessive terms of credit in many branches of business, which must be regarded as satisfactory.

Never, perhaps, in the history of the country were the conditions and out look more favorable. With the one exception—that of lumber—the industries of the country are in a flourishing condition, and everything pointed to a period of progress and prosperity unsurpassed in the history of Canada.

The remarks of Mr. Clouston and Mr. Drummond, whose policy has always been to exercise the greatest caution in giving publicity to their views, have said that things look exceedingly hopeful, and we can well afford to assume that the best of good times is not far off.

A contemporary asks why the Spanish ships can get no coal. The Times would suggest that it is probably because the new fangled ships which are now in vogue have no yards.

American papers have already traced Admiral Dewey's ancestry back to Alfred the Great. It will be a sore blow to the pride of our old father Adam to learn that he is to be shut out from the honor of being ancestor to the next greatest man to J. W. Gar—we mean Admiral Sampson.

• • •

There appears to be considerable kicking by the opposition in Parliament over the payment of the expenses in connection with the journey of Mr. E. E. Sheppard to South America. If the Conservative party expect to get back to power they must adopt some other policy than this system of eternal fault-finding. Mr. Sheppard did his work well, and if his mission is worth anything it is worth the paltry $7,000 which the country are asked to pay.

Destroyed by Fire

On Monday night Mr. Chas. Wynn's second cottage at Sandy Point, Clear lake, was destroyed by fire. Last week Mr. Wynn's large cottage was burned, and now the second one, which stood close to the other, is destroyed in the same way. The fire, of course, was the work of an incendiary. It contained a quantity of furniture, bedding, etc. The fire occurred about midnight. The cottage cost $600 to build, while the contents would be valued at a couple of hundred dollars more. Mr. Wynn, who has no idea who could desire to fire his property, had an insurance of $400 on his cottage.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 80,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

She had transacted a vast amount of business with Jeffrey Pettus, and they knew each other well.

"It is a lively place for a man to stay. You talk as if I had no friends.'

The old woman glanced at him over her knitting; she kept up a pretense of making her living by knitting boys' stockings, which really imposed upon many of her neighbors.

"I never found my friends were any use to me if I needed anything," she said, very dryly.

"Well, it is no use beating about the bush; I need some money, and if you won't help me while I am not able to work, I shall not regard you as a friend in a hurry."

"You can please yourself about that," said the "fence' coolly. She knew that thieves were planty and honest 'fences' were few, and she bore the reputation of being "straight goods" among her patrons.

"Now, mother, you surely are not going to turn your back on me in that way.'

Jeffrey saw that independence would not go down with the old woman, so he tried pleading.

"Turn my back on you? Artful Jeff! what have you ever done for me that I should stand behind you when you are down on your luck??"

"Haven't I introduced you to plenty of good fellows, and girls too?"

"Yes, and haven't I acted square with them??"

"Well, of course you have. Don't we all think as much of you as we do of our mothers."

"That isn't much to blow about. Now don't let's waste any more time in fool talk. What do you want?"

"I've got a chance to make love to an heiress, worth lots and lots of money, and as long as I am laid up anyhow I can just as well marry her."

Mother Lasher looked incredulous. She evidently had not much faith in Jeffrey's powers of fascination.

"I'd like to see the heiress who would marry such a yellow-faced fellow as you."

"Well, I'm sorry I can't oblige you, but I don't think she would care to visit this neighborhood."

"Wouldn't she? That's a pity. I never go out myself, except on business so I can't call on her."

Jeffrey was silent. He began to fear that he need not rely on the worthy Mrs. Lasher.

The old woman had always plenty of money on hand, for she bought stolen goods at any hour. Most of her clients visited her at night; but she preferred to see them at her pawn shop on South Halstead street. Then, however, they were apt to encounter her son, Mattie's father, who had a certain amount of influence over the old woman. Pettus did not like Lew Lasher, so he visited the "fence' in her home. The house belonged to her, and she also owned several horses and teams; some were exrpess waggons and some were for pleasure, such as buggies, dog-carts, etc. These traps were hired out to thieves, and had been used by bank robbers on more than one occasion. A milk cart had conveyed to Mother Lasher's many valuable articles which had been carried off by house-breakers. It was such an innocent looking vehicle that it had never excited suspicion.

"Well, I guess I'll say good-day to you, Mrs. Lasher," said Pettus, rising at length, with an injured look on his faec.

"Sorry you seem in such a hurry."

The old woman coolly commenced on another stocking.

"I don't think it is much use to stay here; I'm sorry I took the trouble to crawl so far."

Mrs. Lasher looked up, as Jeffrey prepared, with much show of his crippled condition, to take his departure.

"Artful Jeff," she said, "I didn't refuse to help you."

"Well, you came pretty near it."

Jeffrey knew that the "fence" liked to preserve the reputation of being kind and generous to her clients, so he moved slowly toward the door leaning heavily on a walking-stick which he had purchased for the occasion. He hoped that the old woman might relent when she remembered that he could and would talk far and near of her meanness in refusing to help him.

"You may as well sit down. I'll help you, but I don't want you to think I do it on account of your heiress story, for I don't believe one word of it."

"Please yourself," growled Jeffrey, as indignant at the doubt cast upon his veracity as if he had been above reproach.

"Heiresses, as a rule, are too well looked after to meet such men as you," said Mother Lasher, slowly. "I don't say that there are no exceptions to the rule," she added, bitterly, and Jeffrey remembered that he had heard somewhere that the "fence" was the daughter of a wealthy banker, and had eloped from a luxurious home with a gambler.

She was, at all events, a well-educated woman, and often treated such men as himself with a contemptuous hauteur, as though she considered them beneath her.

"This heiress is not looked after. Her mother is dead, and her father is in Europe."

"Where does she live?"

"On Michigan avenue."

"Well, everything is possible. However, I shall help you without regard to the heiress. You will pay me, I suppose? And if you don't, it will not ruin me. Here, will that do?"

She handed him a roll of bills, which he counted slowly.

"Three hundred. Many thanks. I'll pay every cent."

"I guess you will; I never said you were not square."

The two parted without more ceremony.

Old Mother Lasher sank back in her chair, with something like a groan.

"His story may be true," she said to herself. "Other women may share my fate. Oh, that some power would protect helpless, ignorant girls against themselves when they are carried away by their own folly and vanity.

CHAPTER XVII.

The day after Judge Orlin's visit to Mr. Jameson, Stella made her way to the top floor of the house, where, in an empty attic room, all the trunks and satchels were stored away. Among the rest stood the little cedar chest which contained all the various articles which were sacred in her eyes on account of having once been the property of her mother.

The chest was full of old-fashioned finery—such trifles as a woman treasures up all her life; a broken fan, which had been used to conceal the blush on a maiden's cheek while she listened with wildly beating heart to an avowal of love; ribbons worn on some momentous occasion; flowers, laces, gloves; an ivory-bound Bible, a bouquet-holder, broken breastpins, old eardrops of obsolete style, and a number of such things.

In a little box of fragrant foreign wood Stella had found, the first time she examined her mother's cedar chest, the letters and portraits of which she spoke to Judge Orlin.

She remembered the occasion. It was on the morning after her mother's funeral, and with the recollection came the perfume of the syringa bushes which grew thickly beneath the windows of her mother's little private parlor at Oakdean. The flowers were in bloom when Stella had turned over the contents of the cedar chest, and she had gathered several bunches and placed them there, as we lay flowers on the graves of our dead.

Once or twice since that day she had glanced through the articles in the cedar chest. She had often wondered why her mother's thoughts turned so persistently to it while she lay on her deathbed.

against the landing party. The accounts of the battle obtainable here being from Spanish sources, do not set forth the result. Therefore, it is to be inferred that the Americans were victorious and that is the belief which prevails here.

It is said that only five hundred Americant roops were landed at Daiquiri or possibly at Aguadores, the two places being mixed up in the reports received here. But it seems to be admitted that the fire of the American soldiers was so effective that the Spaniards were compelled to flee from the fortifications they were defending.

THE SPANISH VERSION.

Havana, June 6.—10 a.m.—Details from Spanish sources received here today of the bombardment this Monday morning of the American fleet say the warships of the United States fired about 1,500 projectiles of all kinds. This fire was answered by Morro Castle and the batteries of Zocapa and Punta Gorda. At noon, it is added, another bombardment began against Aguadores east of Santiago de Cuba, the firing lasting one hour. Both attacks, the Spaniards assert, were repulsed. Morro Castle is admitted to have been damaged, as well as the "exterior headquarters built during the time of peace at Cape Smith, and in addition the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes is admitted to have been slightly damaged."

The Spanish commander at Santiago de Cuba reports that the American fire did not dismount one piece of artillery and he says that nine of the American vessels "disappeared from sight before dark."

The Spanish army losses, according to the official reports, are one soldier killed and one chief, four officers, and 21 soldiers wounded. The Spanish navy losses are reported to be one chief and five sailors killed, and one officer and 12 sailors wounded.

Finally, the Spanish version of the affair says: "The American losses are thought to have been considerable."

It is announced from the palace that a Spanish column has defeated an insurgent force near Palisada, in the Province of Pinal del Dio. The insurgents are said to have left 17 dead on the field. The insurgents, it appears, were almost naked. The Spaniards admit they lost 15 men killed.

In a number of encounters which have taken place recently between the Spaniards and insurgents the former claimed to have killed 37 of the latter, to have destroyed several camps and 33 huts, and to have captured a quantity of arms and ammunition.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

SANTIAGO BOMBARDED

Spaniards Admit that the American Fire was Most Destructive

It is Reported that the Spanish Cruiser Maria Teresa was Sunk Yesterday by the fire of the American Fleet

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—9.05 a.m.—The fighting before and in the vicinity of Santiago de Cuba continued together with part of yesterday, from 7.45 a.m. until nearly 10 o'clock. Ten of the American warships maintained a steady and carefully directed fire against El. Morro and the batteries of Punta Gorda, Zocapa, and Cincoreales, in addition to the bombarding of the Spanish fleet in the harbor. The percentage of effective projectiles was very large.

It appears from the best information obtainable at this place, the cable station connecting with Santiago de Cuba that immense damage was inflicted on the enemy. The Spaniards admit that the bombardment from the American fleet was most destructive. About 1600 projectiles are said to have been fired by the American warships, and it seems that the responsive fire from the Spanish forts and ships was scarcely felt at all by the Americans.

The fortifications at the entrance of the harbor are described as being riddled with shot and shattered by the explosion of the immense shells fired by the American battleships. TheS Spanish batteries are understood to have been virtually silenced, and El Morro and the fortifications at Zocapa and Punta Gorda are reported to have been demolished by the three hours' uninterrupted hammering of the American fleet.

The American attack is next said to have been specially directed against Aguadores, a small coast town a little to the east of the entrance of Santiago bay. The idea of the American admiral, it appears, was to land troops and seige guns there after reducing the defences of the place, and thence make a determined and more close assault upon Santiago de Cuba, which, in view fo the present condition of its fortifications may be expected to yield very soon after the beginning of such an attack. Heavy cannonading was opened upon Aguadores about midday yesterday. The latest advices received here from Spanish sources do not indicate the duration of the fire or whether American troops and seige guns were landed at Aguadores, but it cannot be doubted that the net result of Monday's fighting was extremely disastrous to the Spanish defences.

It is also understood here that the Cuban troops maintained throughout the greater part of yesterday an attack by land on Santiago de Cuba, and the Spanish reports say the garrison lost heavily in killed and wounded.

The military commander of Santiago de Cuba, acknowledges the following casualties among the land forces.

Colonel Ordonez. Captain Sanchez, Lieut. Yrizar of the Artillery, and Perez and Garcia, both Spanish officers. Their rank is not mentioned however.

SUNK THE MARIA TERESA.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—It is reported here that the first class armored Spanish cruiser Maria Teresa was sunk yesterday by the fire of the American fleet.

AN AMERICAN VICTORY.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—A landing of American troops is reporteed to have taken place yesterday near Daiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores and near the railroad connecting with Santiago de Cuba. Later there was severe fighting with a Spanish force on land, in which the Americans were victorious.

SPANIARDS CLAIM VICTORY.

Havana, June 6.—10 a.m.—The Spaniards claim to have repulsed two American attacks to-day at Santiago de Cuba and General Blanco has congratulated the Spanish commander for the heriosm of the Spanish forces. Other reports point to brilliant American victories.

SEVEN MEN WERE KILLED.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7.—The Spaniards also admit the losses of twenty-one infantry soldiers severaly wounded, and one soldier was killed. It is believed that the losses of the Spaniards were much more heavy.

Int he naval force the Spaniards say that the officer who was second in command of the partly dismantled Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes and five sailors and an ensign were killed. The Spanish sailors wounded, it is asserted, number sixteen men.

The Spanish acknowledge that a great deal of damage was inflicted on the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes and they say Morro Castle shows great gaping breaches in its wall.

Later in the day, it appears, the landing of the troops was effected near Daiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores, and near the railroad station connecting with Santiago de Cuba. Later an engagement took place between the American force and a column of Spanish troops which had been sent

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

E. S. CLUXTON,
General Manager.

THE GENERAL MANAGER.

Mr. Clouston said: There are only a few items in our statement this year which call for special explanation. In our liabilities there is an increase in the circulation of $1,000,000, caused partly by increased expenditure in railroad building, the influx into the Yukon district, and partly by the general expansion in business. Our deposits have increased $600,000. Without explanation this would not show their true condition. I referred last year to a large increase over the previous year, and stated that in my opinion it lacked permanency. We have probably had withdrawn from us $3,000,000 of special deposits of large amounts, and they have been replaced by deposits of smaller sums from the public, of a more permanent, and therefore more satisfactory character. In our assets, the funds readily available have been reduced $800,000, from $26,545,256 to $25,703,869, chiefly in our Dominion, and provincial securities. The discounts have increased $2,600,000, partly from the general expansion in business and partly from special operations, which will probably be closed out in the next few months. The overdue debts show a reduction of $90,000. Our profits for the year, as shown in the statement, are $35,000 greater derived chiefly from the enhanced value of money in the European markets; and it is a curious condition of affairs that at one period of the year we were receiving more for short loans in Germany than could have been obtained here in Montreal. In London the bank rate advanced to 2 1-2 per cent on the 23rd September, 3 per cent. on the 14th October, 4 per cent. on the 7th April, where it remained till 26th May.

Up to the time that war seemed inevitable, the rate for call money in the United States ruled low, and even then it only advanced to firmness for a short time, as the credit balances established in Europe by the immense balance of trade in its favor, prevented any great stringency. It is worth while noting the figures of this balance of trade. On the 30th April the balance of trade for ten months in favor of the United States, amounted to the enormous sum of $514,000,000. whereas in no previous full fiscal year in its history had they attained $300,000,000. At present the rate for call money in the United States is merely nominal, though it remains to be seen what effect the replenishing of the coffers of the treasury, drained by the expense of the war, will have on the market.

With reference to trade conditions in Canada, it is difficult to estimate the great boon the enhanced value of grain has been to this country. It has enabled the farmers to reduce their mortgage indebtedness and it has increased their purchasing power, stimulating trade in all directions, giving more frieght to the railways, their traffic returns showing large gains. The prophets who, last year were predicting that the low price of grain had come to stay, must feel that they have mistaken their vocation. The export of provisions and eggs is steadily increasing. The supply of cheese, unfortunately, has been in excess of the demand, and prices are unsatisfactory, but it is hoped that, with the cessation of strikes and the increase in field work in England, there may be an improvement. The demand for merchandise and manufactures of all sorts is very satisfactory. In the Territories ranchers have received highly remunerative prices for cattle and horses, and, with additional markets opening up in the mining districts they have every reason to feel hopeful. In British Columbia there has been a great impetus to trade, by the migration to the gold fields of the Yukon, and in the Kootenay, mines are gradually passing from chrysalis and chromo stage into actual development and production. In the Maritime Provinces trade has been rather dull, owing to depressed markets for lumber, both in England and the United States, while the demand for fish, one of the chief staples of the Lower Provinces, has been seriously affected by the war.

The worst feature in the present situation in Canada is the condition of the lumber market, owing to the overstocked condition of the foreign markets and the cessation of the demand in the United States. Considerable stocks were carried over from last year and I am afraid the year's cut has not been sufficiently curtailed. Locally, however, the demand has been very good. Generally speaking, business is good and the outlook promising.

In the United States the year commenced with the same promising conditions as in Canada, possibly more strongly established, but the war has rather checked some enterprises and industries, but we hope for a short period only.

In this resume of the business of the country I have refrained from statistics, as I consider I am doing all you desire of me, by restricting myself to the figures in our statement.

There is one matter I will refer to. The action of the Government in taking power to reduce the rate of Government Savings Bank deposits this session to 2 1-2 per cent. was a wise and business-like one, and should commend itself to those who take a business point of view. If there is one department of a Government which should be conducted entirely apart from politics and strictly business lines, it is the Department of Finance, and there would have been no excuse if they continued to pay as much for a temporary deposit, such as a savings bank deposit is, as for loans running for a long period, particularly when ordinary municipalities can borrow now at 3 1-2 to 3 3-4 per cent. If it is considered the duty of a Government to furnish a safer place of deposit for the public than that furnished by banks, the axiom should never be lost sight of that the greater the safety, the smaller the return for your money;" and the Government showed a sense of what was due to themselves and to the public, who have to pay for the increased interest, which, after all, benefits only a small proportion of the people. You will notice that I said it was right to take the power, for it is quite possible that before the time arrives to exercise it, circumstances may render it injudicious to put it into effect with a war on hand in the neighboring country, and with the uncertainty as to the period when it will cease, serious consideration should be given before taking any definite step towards fixing a value for money in the future.

If there are any questions in connection with the business of the Bank, I will be happy to reply to them.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

Honorable George A. Drummond said: It seems almost superfluous to add anything to the full statements now laid before you, and the remarks of the General Manager, but, in accordance with precedent, I will ask your attention for a few moments. You will, I think agree with the directors in regarding the results of the year's business and the position of the Bank's affairs as eminently satisfactory.

The statement in the accounts that "full allowance has been made for bad or doubtful debts," is, in the view of the directors, fully justified. The directors are pleased to express their recognition of the ability and prudence displayed by the management, and the loyalty and devotion to the interests of the bank on the part of the large and increasing staff.

Early in the past year indications were not wanting that the country had entered on a long deferred era of better times. Confidence was returning and the general anticipation of improvement were reflected in the great commercial barometer, the Stock Exchange, by a steady advance in the value of securities. A rude shock was given when, on the 25th April, 1898, war against Spain was proclaimed by the United States. Vague expectations had been hazarded that, in some way or other the derangement of affairs in the neighboring republic would result in benefit to ourselves. So far I fail to see any. The established channels of trade and finance in the neighboring States have not been materially affected. We can only express the sincere hope and desire for the speedy restoration of the blessings of peace.

It is impossible to avoid noting, with satisfaction the growth of a kindlier feeling towards the Mother Country among our friends and neighbors.

The general and remarkable advance in the value of most farm produce is eminently satisfactory. The farming community has long suffered from an unnatural depression, and may be congratulated on the improvement which to a country like ours, exporting a large share of its products, is of enormous and widespread importance. Calculations by experts go to prove that during the past six months, at the very least, seven or eight million of dollars extra has been realized on cereal deliveries in the advance in values while, since the opening of navigation, the exports of wheat, corn, rye, peas, oats, buckwheat, barley and flour have nearly doubled, as compared with those of the corresponding period last year. Cheese has been depressed and unremunerative in consequence of overproduction. Butter and eggs have been exported in rapidly increasing volumes, and there seems to be no limit to the possibilities of this trade, due regard being had to quality. In general business it is reported that there is a marked increase in volume, if not in prices, in many departments, such as dry goods, hardware, leather, paints and oils, and in many branches of manufacturing industry.

The curtailment of excessive terms of credit in many branches of business, must be regarded as satisfactory for, while credit is the very essence of modern business, too extended terms are a fruitful source of mischief both to the giver and receiver. In this connection, the failure record of the year deserves attention. The number of failures is smaller than for a number of years, and the amount involved is moderate.

The steamship lines report a large business at fair rates. Ships during the winter from Portland and St. John have been full, and, since the opening of navigation, inward cargoes have been larger than usual and outward full. The proposed fast line of Atlantic steamers for passengers and mails is not yet apparently secured, but as such a line is of vital importance, not only to the trunk lines of railway, but to the Dominion, the hope is expressed that it may speedily be brought to a successful realization.

The great lumber interests must be reported in less satisfactory terms. While the cut of logs has been restricted, and the output of deals will be smaller than for years past, prices for both have not improved.

At the last annual meeting, reference was made to the menace of the possible adoption of free coinage of silver by our neighbors—of that we hear little at the moment—but it is conceivable that in the grave financial adjustments now going on by the United States, another opportunity may be afforded for the agitation of such questions as this. However, as all these expenditures are well within the resources and powers of the nation, I confidently believe that sound principles of finances will prevail.

In Canada no event has excited more interest than the gold discoveries in the Yukon, and the rush to that district. The continued progress and extension of mining in British Columbia is a satisfactory circumstance.

Projects of railway extension have been mainly directed to these districts, and the construction of the Crow's Nest Pass Line, by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, is the most important work in progress.

As a whole, then, the symptoms of returning prosperity are in the ascendant and the shareholders may rely that the Bank of Montreal will be prepared to meet increased responsibilities should they arise, and to maintain its position among the financial institutions of the Dominion.

I will move: "That the report of the Directors now read be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders."

The motion was seconded by Mr. A. T. Paterson.

THE DISQUSSION.

Mr. John Morrison, having made a few remarks in reference to the report, Mr. John Crawford alluded to the fact that the deposits had increased to the extent of $2,000,000 or thereabouts. He wished to know whether the interest on deposits had been paid up to the 1st of June or had it only been paid up to the 30th of April.

The General Manager—It has been estimated up to the 30th April.

Mr. Crawford—I see that you have reduced your Dominion and Provincial Government securities. Were you dissatisfied with them, or was it to establish a profit, or what was the object in diminishing the Dominion and Provincial Government securities $800,000?

The General Manager—This will nearly always be a fluctuating amount, as we are dealing in them continually, buying and selling. I think since then we have increased the amount.

Mr. Crawford remarked upon the large amount at the credit of current loans, and expressed a desire to see published, as was the practice in London, the amount reserved for rebate on interest, etc. Touching on the bank premises, he noticed that they were placed at the same amount, viz., $600,000. He understood that a considerable amount had been expended in building branches in the West, at Vancouver, Winnipeg and elsewhere. He wished to know to what item the expenditure upon these buildings had been put, or whether it had been paid out of the profits of the Bank.

The Chairman—You speak about Bank premises; I think I may say the General Manager will answer your questions generally, but in regard to that point I think I can answer myself. If we kept an account of the expenditure on the Bank premises, we would have to exert our judgment in writing off any depreciation, and a host of other things. As you are very well aware, whatever you don't see in the statement is not lost to the Bank. It is far better the Bank premises should remain at a moderate amount and not be added to or balanced every year; in my opinion, it is infinitely better in the interests of the Bank.

Mr. Crawford—You have not said anything about our highly esteemed though absent president. For the last two years, I think, he has not been here, and I think it would be in the interests of the Shareholders, and it would probably be your desire to explain to them the present position of affairs—to give them some intimation as to whether it is likely we shall have the honor of his return here as President or not. I am sure there is not a Shareholder who would not like to see him back again. Hold the office open for him as long as you think proper, for I just suggest that it would be a frankness on the part of the chair to say: "Gentlemen, you need not be astonished that your President has not been here, or that you have not heard from him for two years. I think it would be in the interests of the President himself; and I would be delighted to hear you say that he was coming back in one, two or five years.

The Chairman—I would very gladly give any information on that point, if I possessed it; but I don't. I have no knowledge of the intentions of Lord Strathcona, but I may point out to you that he is a member of the London Board, and his abilities are at the service of the Bank in all matters, and there are many important ones that turn up in London; so that he is not lost to us.

Mr. Crawford—That is quite satisfactory, Mr. Chairman, and I am quite sure that the prestige of his name, whether he is present here in person or at the branch in London, is of vast importance to this Bank.

The Chairman—There certainly was an omission in not referring to something of that sort, but it really was an inadvertence.

Mr. Crawford enquired when the proposed revision of the Banking Act was to take place, and he was informed by the Chairman that the present act expired in 1901, so that the revision would probably be considered in 1900, the Parliament after next.

Mr. Crawford then asked if there

Warning to the Boys

Year after year complaints are made, as the warm weather comes, of boys making a nuisance of themselves by bathing in puris naturalibus and using profance language to such an extent that ladies are deterred from enjoying the pleasures of canoeing on the river and Little Lake. This year the trouble has reappeared and it is the intention of those interested to invoke the law to stop these practices. It will be necessary for the boys to discontinue the practice complained of if they wish to avoid trouble.

Wedded at St. Peter's

Miss Ellen Shanahan, daughter of Mr. John Shanahan, Downie street, and Mr. Michael Cavanagh, of Ennismore, were wedded at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday morning. The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon Casey in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the young couple. After partaking of a tasty wedding déjeuner at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh left on their honeymoon by the noon train. On their return they will take residence in Ennismore.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING

Marriage of Miss C Barlee and Mr W. D. Parker Yesterday Afternoon

An interesting social event took place yesterday afternoon in St. John's church, being the marriage of Miss C. Barlee, daughter of the late G. Barlee, and Mr. W. D. Parker, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Ontario.

A large number of the friends of the bride and groom were in attendance. The chancel was most tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of Peterborough, assisted by Rev. V. Clementi, grandfather of the bride.

The bride was attired in rich white duchesse satin with garniture of white chiffon and orange blossoms, and looked most attractive. She also wore a bridal veil with a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mabel Barlee and Miss Florence Stevenson. The former was attired in white mousseline de soie, over pink, with trimmings of white chiffon. A large white picture hat was worn with black plumes and trimmings of pink chiffon and pink roses. Miss Stevenson was gowned in white mousseline de soie over yellow, trimmed with chiffon. She also wore a white picture hat with black plumes. It was trimmed with yellow chiffon and yellow roses.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Hampden Burnham and Mr. Harold Morrow. Mr. George Hilliard, of Lakefield, gave the bride away.

The ushers were Messrs. H.M. Allen, A.T. Lefevre, A. McNee, W. J. Montgomery and H. Ritchie.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party drove to the residence of the Misses Barlee, 177 Aylmer street, where the wedding breakfast was served, after which an informal reception was held.

A large number accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Parker to the 4.10 C. P.R. express, upon which they left for New York via Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will take residence at 205 Aylmer street.

A very large number of handsome and costly presents from the friends and relatives of both bride and groom testified to the esteem in which they are held. Among these gifts was a magnificent palm on a pedestal, the gift of the staff of the Ontario Bank. Two presents from the customers of the bank indicated Mr. Parker's popularity. One was an elegant onyx clock and a case containing a beautiful set of fruit knives and forks in pearl and silver. Both these latter were engraved with the inscription, "Presented to W. D. Parker, Esq., on the event of his marriage by the customers of the Ontario Bank, Peterborough, June 8th, 1898."

Among the guests from a distance were Mrs. and Miss Parker, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Van der Linde, Major and Mrs. Leigh, Miss Merrick, Mr. E. J. Toker, Mr. Reginald Wharton and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hilliard.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL

was any limit to the amount that the Bank could loan to a customer.

The Chairman replied that there was no fixed amount that he knew of.

Mr. Crawford then proceeded to speak in favor of comparative columns being published in the annual statement after which the Chairman said: I will ask the General Manager to reply to anything that happens to occur to him with references to your enquiries but I may remark that I have before me now the annual reports of a great number of banks, amongst them the largest and most important in England, the National Provincial Bank, and they give no more information in their statements than we give—no double columns—and, with the exception of one bank in the Dominion, no other bank, I think, gives it. I think you must have forgotten also that a much better thing than that is given to you every year. A large part of the remarks just made by the General Manager was an explanation of the points wherein the present conditions of things differed from last year's. He explained to you how the deposits compared, and why they were so and so, on throughout nearly the whole statement. As to the mere fact of having parallel columns, we are all in possession of the annual statement; it is well known to everybody; and while it is conceivable to a person who knows accurately what took place last year, to those who don't know, the parallel columns might be of some use; but that is not the body of shareholders.

The Chairman then put the motion for the adoption of the report, and it was carried unanimously.

VOTES OF THANKS.

Mr. G. F. C. Smith moved:

That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, Vice-President, and Directors, for their attention to the interests of the Bank.

This was seconded by Mr. J. Philip Scott, and adopted.

Mr. Hugh McLennan then moved

That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, and Inspector, the Managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year.

In making the motion, he, on behalf of the Directors, congratulated the Bank, which had over 500 employees on the faithful manner in which these employees discharged their duties. So far, he remarked, as he heard from those having business at the Bank, in no case had he heard any expression unfavorable to any employee of the Bank in the discharge of his duties.

Mr. W. W. Ogilvie seconded the motion, and spoke of the loyalty of the employees of the institution. They appeared to be proud of it. He had known many instances in which they had been offered double the salary they were receiving to go elsewhere; but there was something they valued as much as money, and that was being connected with the Bank of Montreal. So long as that loyalty prevailed among the employee of the Bank, it would be a great source of strength. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was unanimously concurred in.

The General Manager—I have to thank you, on behalf of myself and my fellow-workers for the kind expressions that have fallen from Mr. McLennan and Mr. Ogilvie. I have no doubt these expressions will stimulate the staff to further efforts on behalf of the Bank. As to what was said about the loyalty of our clerks, I can only say it was perfectly correct.

Mr. B. A. Boas moved:

That the ballot now open for the election of directors be kept open until three o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued.

This was seconded by Mr. A. A. Taylor, and unanimously agreed to.

Mr. John Crawford moved:

That the directors consider favorably the expediency of publishing the comparative columns in the report at the annual meetings.

Mr. James Wilson seconded the motion, which was adopted.

On the motion of Mr. John Morrison a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the chairman, who acknowledged the same.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following gentlemen:

To Meet Here on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of Next Week

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars of the Province of Ontario, will meet here and will hold their sessions in the Y.M.C.A. Hall.

On Tuesday the Juvenile Lodges meet and the Grand Lodge proper goes into session on Wednesday morning.

On Wednesday evening a mass meeting will be held in the interests of the plebiscite, in the George street Methodist church, when F. S. Spence, of Toronto, and other speakers will be present.

The civic authorities will gvie the freedom of the town to the visitors the same evening, and the greeting of sister societies will also be received.

It is expected that there will be between a hundred and twenty-five and one hundred and fifty delegates present. District lodges are entitled to two delegates and subordinate lodges to one for every fifty members.

The chief topic of discussion will be the prohibition plebiscite. Another matter in which the members will take great interest is the consideration of the question of withdrawing from the International Supreme Lodge, the headquarters of which are in the United States. The Canadian branches have to pay in a capitation tax, and consider that they do not receive a proportionate benefit. England, Wales and Denmark have already withdrawn.

27,000 AMERICAN SOLDIERS HAVE SAILED FOR CUBA

And are Expected to Land To-night or Early To-morrow Morning—By Sunday, o Monday at the Latest, it is Expected the Stars and Stripes will Float Over Santiago

TAE INNASION OF CUBA.

Dondon, Juno 0.×A Washington corrospondent of The Daily Chronicle, with the approval of General Greeley, cables the following: "The army sailed from Trmpa at noon to.day (Wednesday). The forces number 27,000 men, composed of infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers anp a signal corps. The infantry consists of 27 regiments—16 regulars and 11 volunteers, as follows. Of the regular regiments there were the 1st,2nd, 4th, 6th,7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 12th, 13th, 16th, 17th, 21st, 22nd 24th and 25th; of the volunteer regiments there were the 71st, New York, 32nd Michigan, 1st and 5th Ohio, 2nd New Yoyk, 1st District of Columbia, 5th Maryland, 1st, 5th and 7th Indiana and the 3rd Pennsylvania. The total infantry force is 21,600 men. In addition there are a battalion of engineers, a detachment of the signal corps, five squadrons of cavalry, four batteries of light artillery and two batteries of heavy artillery. General Shafter is in command of the force, which is convoyed by the battleship Indiana and the gunboat Helena, with the Bancroft as General Shafters floating home. The transports are due at Santiago Friday night or Saturdav morning, and a landing will be ottempted on Saturdap. This should be effectedtwithout difficulty; and no doubt, by Sunday or Monday at the latest, the Stars and Stripes will float over Santiago de Cuba.

BLEW UP THE SHIP.

Hong Kong, June 9.—A report ha reached here to the effect that the protected cruiser Olympia, Rear Admiral Dewey's flag-ship, has been blown up in Manila bay by a detachment of Spanish marines, who attached a torpedo to her bow in the night. The story is circumstantial, but somewhat doubtful, owing to the fact that if the flag-ship had been blown up in the night there would have been great loss of life and no mention of fatality is made.

Tampa, F.a., June 9.—A despatch from Key West, announcing that a Spanish squadron had been sighted in the Gulf of Mevico, at a late hour on Tuesday night has caused great excitement here. the report alleging that the intent of the Spanish squadron was to cut off the transport vessels carrying soldiers and supplies to Cuba. The squadron included a large cruiser, two smaller warships, and a torpedo boat. It has been generally admitted here from the time tho troops left Chickamauga that Tampa has been inadevuately protected against Sdanish assault and that the United States Government had been criminally carless in exposing the troops here to great danger, if not annihilation, Weth little trouble a couple of Spanish cruisers could steam up the gulf, enter the harbor c0 Port Tampa, and standing of in the bay coulb do incalculable damage, At one time there were at Port Tampa docks eleven transport vessels the most of them laden with supplies; a mile away on the plains there were 5,000 soldiers, and on the rhilway track there were trains loaded with arms, ammunition, and supplies. To poytect all these there was not a cannon or a large gon on the docks, but quite recently two small gun boats were brought into requisition and a couple of guns were placed on the dock. The feeling here is that there is truth in the reprrt of the Spanish squadron coming up the gulf, and that a diae tragedy may reatit, The officers here are exceedingly anxious concerning the movements of this mysterious fleet, but news of any kind is almost impossible to secure, or send away, owing to the rigid press censorship.

NO WORD ATSWASHINGTON.

Washington, June 9.—The report of the blowing up of Rear-Admiral Deway's flagship Olympia is discredited here, no information having been received on ohe subject.

FAILED IN THE ATTEMPT.

Madrid, June 9.—A despatch from Santiago de Cuba states that on Sunday night last an attempt was made by Cuban rebels to blow np the Cristobal Colin, one of the ships of Admiral Cervera's squadron lying in the harbor.

About midnight the lieutenant of the port watch of ehe man-of-war had his attention attracted by sounds coming from the water close to the side of the vessel. Hh looked over and saw a cutter with sis men, evidently endeavoring to fix something in position.

The lieutenant raised an alarm by firing his pistol, and called for a light, whereupon the boat's crew dropped some heavy object into the water and made off for the shore. By this time the sides of the cruiser were lined with men, and a hot fusilade was nirected towards the retiring boat, with the result that two man were seen to drop into the bottom of the boat, which eowever, escaped in the darkness, and it is presumed, reached land.

An examidation of the vessel's side nsar the water mark showed clear signs ofan pttempt to fix a dynamite charge, for close by floated a long time fuse, which had become detached when the dynamite was dropped into the water. The customs autoorities reported, on the following morning, that one of their boats were missing, having evidently been stolen by the makers of the ateempt, who are supposed to have been supplied with explosives for Admiral Sampson. The boat was batywards recovered driftidg on the opposite side of the bay, with a dead Cuban lying in the bottom, pierced through the abdomen wite a rifle ball.

CANNOT HOLD THE PHILLIPINES

MADRID, JUNE 9.—Since the last advices from Manila there is apparently an undercurrent of intensity that is repressed only on patriotic grounds. The newspapers are printing violent articles demand- that the responsibility for the present situation be determined. Political circles express themselves as being: 'Satisfied that the powers will not permit the Untied States to hold the Philippines Islands

A HEROINE MARRIED

BALTIMORE, M. D., JUNE 9.—Miss Evangeline Cisneror whose romanti escape from a Spanish prison in Havana several months ago is re-called,was married here to-day to Carlos F, Carbonell who assisted in her rescue. The ceremony took place at the Hotel Rennert at noon and the couple left for Washington an hour later

SENTENCED FOR FILIBUSTERING

WASHINGTON, JUNE 9.—The President to-day granted a pardon to Capt. John D. Hart, now serving a sentence of two years for engaging in a filibustering expedition to Cuba.

MADRID, JUNE 9.—A long Cabinet Council to consider the situation, especially the resources required for the campaign and the war plans was held to-day. The Minister of Marine ,submitted important documents for the consideration of the ministers. It is announced that he will proceed shortly to Cadiz,ostensibly to inspect the defences of that place, but it is said that he may possibly make an important decision during his stay there. The Minister of Marine will also devote considerable attention to the available navy reserves

STARVED TO DEATH

NEW YORK, N. Y, JUNE 9—Capt. Low, of the cruiser Alleghney which arrived here last night with a cargo of fruit from Savanilla and other West Indian points, says that from what he learned on the trip the condition of things in Cuba is deplorable. Nearly all the peaceful Cubans have been starved to death and the Spaniards on the Island are in a very bad way for food. The greatest proportion of the people have perished since Consul General Lee left Havana. The Cuban race say Capital Law has been practically exterminated.

LONDON, JUNE 9.—Whatever may be the policy of the United States toward the Philippine Islands the English Capitalists whose nvestments there give them the right to speak with authority on the conditions and needs of the colony are of one mind. Delegations of London men, representing some of the most important interests in the Philippines, eave called upon Ambassador Hay to urge him to make epresentations to the givers of their desire that the United States retain permanent possession of the Philippene Islands. They are agre. ed in the belief that with the guarantee of a staple government the Philippines would become a richer and even more desirable possession than Cuba.

Should the Islands remain under Spanish Sovereignty, that Government might make conditions burdensome for business men who were oc record as desiring a change and who had made revealations about Spanish misrule They can make known their desires only through diplomatic channels as they have done. The President of an important Philippines Company having its principal office in London who presented a statement Ambassador, discussed the question with a representative of the Associated Press. He gave the usual recital of exbortion by the officials who go from Spaiu to these Islands as they go to Cuba with the sole purpose of acquiring as much money as possible, in the shortest time

IMPRISONED IN A DUNGEON.

British Secretary at Porto Rico Expelled by Governor Macias.

He is Charged With Furnishing Information to the U. S.—Protest Made to the British Government,

New York. June 9.—A despatch from St. Thomas, W. I., to the New York Journal says;—Suspected of having furnished the United States with information of the mining of San Juan harbour since the bombardment, Walter Bett, Secretary of the British Consulate at that port, has received his passports and been banished from Porto Rico by order of Governor-General Macias. Mr. Bett wos imprisoned in a dungeon for fifty-six hours and during that time was subjected to gross maltreatmenr. British Consul General Crawford hae made formal protest to his Government and serious international complications are imminent. General Macia, has practicolly declarod war against the British Colony in San Juan, and made open accussaion that it is responsible for the disclosure of his military plans to the U. S. Consul-General Hanna, now at St, Thomas!

The military plans of General Macias were not disclosed to Mr. Hanna by Britifh officials or subjects, but by several tausted officers attached to General Macias' staff, whose sympathies are enlisted with the Bmerican cause.

How Mr. Hanna succeeded in securing the important information from the Spanish officers is not known.

ENTERED HAVANA HARBOR.

Key West. June 9—(10.50 a. m)—There are persistent rumors here credited by some high naval officers that three Spanish warships have forced their way into Havana harbour.

A SYSTEM OF SILENCE

Madrid, June 9,—On account of the serious news from the Philippines, the leaders of the minority parties in the Chamber of Deputies met Senor Sagasta yesterday to consider the situation, The Premier strove to convince them of the gravity of evisting circumstances, urging that they ought immediately to adopt the budget and to declare that the Chamber should sit in permanence.

When the Chamber opened Senor Sagasta said that the Spanish people ought to receive bad news with manly calmness.

Senor Siluela, leader of the dissident Conservatives, promised support but worned the Government that he did not intend to be reduced to the role of a mere witness of the country's misfortunes,

London, June 8.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Cape Haytien, says:—"The American victory at Santiago de Cuba has cleared the way for the entrance of Admiral Sampson and the destruction of the Spanish fleet. As Santiago's land defences are reported weak it is likely the city will yield to a vigorous attack.

"It is reported that the commander oft he Reina Mercedes, second in command in the Spanish fleet under Cervera, was killed during the engagement. The combined American and insurgent forces are entrenched near Daiquiri with guns mounted in preparation for a further movement. From Spanish sources comes a report that a party of Americans landed at Aguadores; but whether it is true or what the result was, is not known here."

SPANISH CONGRATULATIONS

Mndrid, June 8.—In the Chamber of Deputies last night, Captain Aunon, Minister of Marine, read Admiral Cervera's despatch, and a despatch from General Blanco to the effect that General Linares had repulsed an American attempt to effect a landing of troops at Aguadores. The Senate, after hearing Admiral Cervera's despatch, unanimously resolved to congratulate the army and navy.

THE REFORMED FAKIR.

He Had a Great Graft the Winter He Spent In Albany.

"I've earned an honest living in many ways," said the reformed fakir, when he was raking over the dead leaves of his past the other night, "but I never struck such a graft as I was up against the year I wintered in Albany. A friend got me a little job there that paid me a couple of dollars a day. Besides that, I was entitled to a pass down to New York and back every week. I might have starved if I had been so exclusive as to try to live on this alone. So I set my wits to ferreting.

"I hadn't been there long before all the pretty girls in town were after me. Now, as I don't pose as a handsome man I did not take it to heart. They didn't want me, but they wanted the autographs of the statesmen. I'd sing 'em a song like this:

" 'Why, cert, girls, I'd be delighted to oblige you. Nothing would give me greater pleasure But you know I can't go on the floor. My friend the doorkeeper, however, can get just what you want, but it will be some trouble to him, and he may charge 10 or 15 cents, and'—

" 'Oh, that's all right,' the girls would say, and nearly every one would put down a quarter a sig. And every quarter went into my pocket, for that guff about not being allowed to go on the floor was all a blind. So's they wouldn't see me, I'd just tackle the statesmen somewhere else.

"Then I got on to the money to be made in strikes. Every time a bill was introduced that would hurt some one or some interest in New York, I learned all I could about the matter there and wrote to a friend in New York who looked up the other end. Then I would write to the parties something like this:

" 'A bill detrimental to your interests has been introduced here. Better come up and see about it.'

"When they reached Albany, I never failed to get my reward for putting them on.

"There was another way of coining an honest plunk—I worked all the boys I could for passes. Those who didn't go home over Sunday were willing to give up, and those who could get more than one I jollied into turning the extras over to me. Then I sold them to fellows who couldn't get even one pass, or who wanted two or three.

"By these grafts I managed to live well, and save every cent of my salary."—New York Press.

A THOROUGH ARTIST.

Sir Edward J. Poynter's Great Care For Minute Details.

It may almost be said that it is impossible to appreciate the finished work of this artist without some knowledge of the contents of those portfolios which contain his drawings. It at all events increases our respect for the man and his art to know how much thought and labor and thorough craftsmanship have gone to the making of his more important compositions. For the figure of St. George, for instance, which we see clothed in a complete suit of Maximilian armor, gleaming through the dusk of the lobby of "the house," he thought it necessary to draw the figure nude, and not only nude, but ecorche, and it was not unusual for him about this time to make a study even of the skeleton in the attitude required for a figure. Such a drawing I have before me now—a drawing for one of the men, who is stooping to pick up a stone to hurl at St. Stephen, on one side the figure nude, but fully fleshed; on the other, trunk and legs and arms "in the bones."

Contrasted with such studies there are others of great completeness and finish, but still preparations—one, for example, of the same St. George, but fully armed, with his attendant figures of Purity and Fortitude fully draped and underneath the shield of the United Kingdom, with naked children on either side holding a festoon. The work is bordered with a band of roses conventionally treated and executed in water colors with the utmost care, yet so broadly that when photographed it looks like a fresco. This little drawing, almost as beautiful in color as in design, was experimental only. The shield and the children were replaced by a more formal design for the mosaic.—"Sir Edward J. Ponyter, P. R. A.," by Cosmo Monkhouse, in Scribner's.

The Worst Part.

"I hear that burglars got into your house the other night and stole jewelry worth $500,' said Collingwood.

"That wasn't the worst of it, either," replied Camperdown.

"What else was there?"

"Well, they lighted the gas all over the house and left it burning until we came home from the theater and extinguished it."—Harper's Bazar.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 10 1898

FIGHTING FOR PEACE

With Cervera's four armored cruisers fast locked in Santiago harbor the hope that a great naval battle might end the war has been dispelled. For all purposes of maritime conflict the contending fleets are as innocuous as though separated by ten thousand miles of salt water. While a picturesque and sensational element has been eliminated from the international struggle by the heroic deed of Lieutenant Hobson and a half dozen American seamen, the torpedoes which sank the Merrimac across that narrow channel destroyed all chances for a sea fight off Santiago between modern armored ships, and the curious and intricate problems in naval construction which can be solved only in such a struggle must be relegated to another occasion—perhaps to another war.

But if there are to be few or no further combats at sea, the land forces now to be brought into hostile array in Cuba and Puerto Rico should find fighting in ample measure when once the dogs of war shall have been let loose on the islands. Already, according to scant news advices filtered through the cable censorship, a considerable force of troops has been landed at Aguadores, a few miles east of the entrance to Santiago harbor, whence a roadway leads directly to the city, seven miles away. These troops are regulars from Shafter's corps, perfectly armed and equipped, and skilled in all the tactical minutiae of military operations. When duly reinforced they will constitute a formidable invading army of not less than 16,000 men, to oppose which General Linares, the Spanish commander at Santiago, has 9,000 regulars 5,000 volunteers and about 10,000 raw recruits impressed into the Spanish service from the city and adjacent country. Cervera's fleet brought, it is said, 18,000 Mauser rifles to Santiago to arm the volunteers and new levies together with an ample supply of ammunition. The enemy, accordingly, should be capable of making a strong resistance to the advance of an invading army when our lines shall be beyond the range of the heavy guns of our war ships.

This movement, which may be regarded as practically the beginning of military operations should culminate soon in the reduction by our navy of the forts surrounding Santiago Bay and the occupation of the city by a strong and victorious Federal force. The resulting capture or destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet would render Spain almost helpless as a naval power. The Cadiz fleet could not be spared from its appointed task of guarding home ports; it would be, in effect, at the mercy of any fleet of steel-clad battleships which the Navy Department might send across the Atlantic. There could be no further resistance by Spain, although much human life might be wasted in desultory and guerilla-like conflicts on Cuban soil. It might be necessary to lay siege to and capture Havana, in addition to holding Santiago and San Juan de Puerto Rico, in order to convince the enemy of the uselessness of further resistance.

These and other considerations relative to a possible speedy ending of the war have apparently inclined the American Government to a belief that Spain will soon sue for peace; possibly after Santiago and Puerto Rico have fallen. But military operations in a rough, tropical country during the rainy season will be necessarily slow, and many months may pass before a full demonstration can be made of superiority in the field. American gallantry, however, may accomplish the seemingly impossible, especially if aided and supplemented by Spanish mistakes at Madrid and in Cuba. The outlook for peace seems not so gloomy, now that is a chance to force the fighting.

At Manila Spain suffered a severe defeat but the one at Santiago promises to be Cervera.

If Cervera attempts to get out of that bottle, Admiral Sampson should see that some schooners are on hand to receive him.

All the freak fat men of the United States are certainly not summering in dime museums. If magazine portraits may be relied upon, most of them are wearing officers' uniforms at Tampa, Florida.

• • •

Mr. Hoke Smith comes out of his obscurity to suggest that Spanish be taught in American schools. We should think that Uncle Sam would be satisfied with murdering the Spaniards without murdering their language also.

• • •

It was considered a masterpiece of strategy for Cervera to evade the American fleet and place himself under the guns of Santiago. But if, as appears it was his only desire to keep his ships out of harm's way, will strategists kindly point out why he didn't remain on the other side of the Atlantic?

Hebrew Texts of the Old Testament.

The most ancient Hebrew manuscript of any part of the Bible is in St. Petersburg and dates no earlier than the tenth century. More than 2,000 copies of the Hebrew Old Testament have been compared, and very few variations have been found. This is accounted for by the fact that from the time when the Hebrew canon was formed, and even before that time, very strict rules were laid down for the scribes who copied the Bible. The lines and letters were counted, and each copy had to correspond precisely with the one from which it was taken. They calculated, for instance, that there were 5,245 verses in the Pentateuch, 22,206 in the whole Bible and 78,100 letters in Genesis. All of these rules and calculations were called the Massorah tradition, and about the tenth century the college of rabbis of Tiberias, on the Euphrates, decided upon a standard Bible, or "authorized version."

The Hebrew consonants alone had been written down up to that time, the pronunciation being a matter of tradition. Now a system of vowel signs was devised, fixing the sense in many instances. The vowels are just as important in Hebrew as in English so it is easy to see how necessary this reform was. The English consonants b r d may be read board or bread, or bored or braid, and if they occurred in a sentence without the vowels we should have to guess by the connection which vowels were necessary. It is possible that after a text had been adopted all older manuscripts were destroyed, or more probably were neglected because of their defects, and hence they have altogether disappeared.—Review of Reviews

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity; very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

She remembered the last words she had uttered:

"Stella, you may yet see faces once dear to me. Never lose sight of the cedar chest; keep it, take care of all its contains; some day it may prove of value to you."

More than once she had been inclined to cast aside the contents of the box, but refrained, as she remembered these words. She had not mentioned her mother's dying request to Judge Orlin, for she was averse to making confidants of strangers, and Croft had always made light of it.

"Your mother was feverish, Stella," he had said, "and her mind was running on things of the past. Don't worry about it; all the same, take good care of the cedar chest."

It had always stood in the little room, which had been termed Mrs. Croft's "morning-room."

After the arrest of her step-farther, Stella had taken possession of it, and when she left Brandon she carried it away with her. As she began to take out the things which she had not touched for years, she fancied they looked as though they had recently been disturbed.

At the bottom of the chest the little box containing the letters and portraits should lie, snugly wrapped in a red scarf of Chinese crape.

It was no longer there; it had disappeared!

Stella turned faint and cold, as she realized that thus must perish her hopes of establishing her identity as the member of an honorable family.

Judge Orlin had told her that he must leave Chicago the day after his visit to his friend Mr. Jameson, but added that he would return to his home on Ashland Boulevard in about ten days.

"Then I shall call on you, Miss Sterling," he said, "and claim the fulfillment of your promise to permit me to examine the old letters and portraits."

Stella was not aware how much she had relied on the bright prospects Judge Orlin's communications had suggested to her mind, till herr hopes were dashed to the ground by the disappearance of the old mementoes of the past.

"What has become of them?" she asked herself. "They were there the last time I opened the chest. When was that?"

By an effort of memory she recalled the circumstances.

"I have not touched this chest since before our misfortunes overwhelmed me," she said, and the idea flashed into her mind: "Croft has taken possession of them; he knew mother's past history, which she never confided to me, on account of my youth."

As this thought occurred to her, she remembered that she had not yet had an opportunity of reading Harold Dutton's letter.

She closed the chest after replacing its contents, and returned to her own room. Nina was busy practicing; she had begun to develop a talent for music, and her voice promised to be very fine.

She had always played and sung in an nututored but pleasant fashion, and Stella encouraged her to perfect her talent. Mr. Jameson was also very fond of music.

The letter had been carefully locked away. Stella closed her door, and bolting it to keep out intruders sat down to read. Of course the letter was addressed to Edith, and for the first few sentences touched on personal matters, then ran thus:

"See your friend, Miss Sterling, and tell her that I am exerting my utmost efforts to procure Mr. Croft's liberty. The punishment is out of all proportion to the offense charged against him. At the time of the trial every one was excited against him; now public opinion has had time to reason, mature, and change. It has done so. Miss Stella, I presume, knows that the 21st is the day when she is allowed to see her father. Prisoners are permitted an interview with friends once a month. Let her assure Mr. Croft that I am zealous and hopeful on his account. Ask her to convey to him my kindest regards, and add that I can almost assure him of justice, though its coming may be tardy. I would also wish you to tell my friend, Miss Sterling, that she has my earnest sympathy, and that I cannot rest till every means is exhausted to restore her father to his former position in society, and the esteem of his friends."

"Well," cried Stella, dropping the letter, and gazing at her own reflection in the mirror, "So here Mr. Croft poses as a martyr."

The idea struck her as being ludicrous, and she laughed bitterly.

"I am supposed to be the devoted daughter, hastening to comfort the injured parent. Ha, ha!"

She was thoroughly wrought up, and almost hysterical.

The incidents of the previous day had all been of an exciting nature, and Stella was terribly aggrieved at the loss of her treasures.

"I shall go to Edith, and tell her all. I shall go to Joliet on the 31st," she said, "but it shall not be a visit of condolence by any means. I shall force him to disclose his reason for stealing my letters and portraits. They are mine, and he has no part in them."

She hastily dressed for the street, and was soon at Mrs. Derwent's house.

Edith was surprised to see her at such an unusual hour, but sat down to listen to her story with friendly sympathy.

She was much surprised when she heard of the communication made by Judge Orlin.

"I remember, Stella," she said, "that my mother told me your mother had once spoken to her of relatives in the South. Is Judge Orlin from the south?"

"I do not know."

"Well, what do you wish to do next?"

"I want you to go to Joliet with me on the 21st."

"To see Mr. Croft? Oh, Stella, I do think that would be so imprudent."

"Imprudent?"

"Yes. You wish to keep all this miserable story a secret from Walter Derwent, and you visit to Joliet will be running another risk."

Edith was trembling and almost weeping.

"I cannot speak as I wish," she continued, taking both Stella's hands in hers. "You must know, unless you confide in him, which would be much the best way, I am certain, it cannot be wise for you to visit that man in prison; someone may see you; it is a fearful risk."

"I shall take care no one can recognize me. I shall demand my letters. I must have them, or how can I prove I am of good birth, worthy to become the wife of the best and noblest man on earth?"

"Well I can only say I am afraid."

"But you do not refuse to accompany me?"

"No. I will always do what I can for you."

"Well, then, good-bye Edith. You will hear from me appointing our place of meeting."

Accordingly on the 21st the girls met at the appointed place and took the train for Joliet feeling depressed and and nervous. When they reached the dismal portals of the prison they were thunderstruck to learn that Alwin Croft and two other prisoners had escaped the previous night.

Stella's step father was at liberty.

WERE AMERICANS REPULSED?

London, June 8.—The Times, commenting editorially on the fact that the Cuban authroities at Havana permitted its correspondent, Mr. Knight, to discharge his function in forwarding the despatch as to Monday's engagement at Santiago, says: "His despatch says that the American fire was damaging. As he is doubtless subject to rigid censorship, this admission is significant; and his statement that the Americans were repulsed at Aguadores is probably correct."

The editorial, in summing up the situation, says:—"Spanish obstinacy may prolong the war for many months. The American Government is acting wisely and prudently in refusing to send to Cuba an army of untrained volunteers. Little attention need be given to peace rumors."

London, June 8.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Cape Haytien, says:—"The American victory at Santiago de Cuba has cleared the way for the entrance of Admiral Sampson and the destruction of the Spanish fleet. As Santiago's land defences are reported weak it is likely the city will yield to a vigorous attack.

"It is reported that the commander oft he Reina Mercedes, second in command in the Spanish fleet under Cervera, was killed during the engagement. The combined American and insurgent forces are entrenched near Daiquiri with guns mounted in preparation for a further movement. From Spanish sources comes a report that a party of Americans landed at Aguadores; but whether it is true or what the result was, is not known here."

SPANISH CONGRATULATIONS

Madrid, June 8.—In the Chamber of Deputies last night, Captain Aunon, Minister of Marine, read Admiral Cervera's despatch, and a despatch from General Blanco to the effect that General Linares had repulsed an American attempt to effect a landing of troops at Aguadores. The Senate, after hearing Admiral Cervera's despatch, unanimously resolved to congratulate the army and navy.

Rheumatism Cured
after seven years suffering.

GENTLEMEN: Having suffered with Rheumatism for the past seven years was recommended to use Walton's Rheumatic Pills, which gave me immediate relief and am as well as ever and can follow my trade again. I have tried all different remedies that came to my hearing without any relief, and been to the mineral springs year after year, but with no such results as from Walton's Rheumatic Pills.

CONDITIONS OF SALE.

No limit will be adjudged at less then the minimum price fixed by the department.

The limits will be adjudged to the highest bidder on payment of the purchase price in cash or by cheque accepted by a duly incorporated bank. Failing payment, they will be immediately re-offered for sale.

The annual ground rent of three dollars per mile, with fire tax, is also payable immediately.

Those timber limits, when adjudged, will be subject to the provisions of all timber regulations now in force or which may be enacted hereafter.

Plans of limits offered for sale are opened for inspection in the Department of Lands, Forests and Fisheries, in this city, and at the office of the Crown Lands and Timber Agents in the different agencies in which said limits are situated, up to the day of sale.

N. B.—No account for publication of this notice will be recognized, if such publication has not been expressly authorized by the department.

S. N. PARENT,
Commissioner of Lands,
Forests and Fisheries.

Will of the Deceased Lawyer Filed For Probate

Toronto, June 8.—The will of the late D'Alton McCarthy, Q. C., which was filed for probate in the Surrogate Court this morning, disposes of property valued at $68,582, consisting of household goods and furniture at Toronto, $8,000; household goods and furniture at Tottendale and Barrie, $1,000; horses, carriages and harness, Toronto and Tottendale, $500; moneys secured by mortgage, $2,000; bank stock and other stock, $15,200; cash on hand, $1,072.67; real estate, after deducting mortgages $25,810; interest in the assets of McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin & Creelman, estimated at $15,000. Under the will, which bears date July 31, 1896, the Trusts Corporation of Ontario are appointed executors and trustees.

The widow is authorized to select out of the linen glass, miscellaneous books prints, furniture, and other household effects, such articles as she may desire to have.

The law library goes to the son, D'Alton Lally McCarthy.

The executors are directed to convert the entire estate into money, which is then to be divided into four equal shares or parts between the widow, the son, the daughter Annie Ethelreda, wife of James Ince, and the step-daughter, Mary Agnes, wife of Clare Fitzgibbon, the shares of the son and daughter, in the exent of their dying during their father's time, to go to their surviving children, and the share of the step-daughter, in the same event, to go to her daughter, Agnes Fitzgibbon.

The executors are empowered to postpone the sale and conversion of the real and personal estate for so long as they may think fit.

This will is superseded so far as the main provisions are concerned by a codicil bearing date, February 21, 1898, which proivdes that instead of the estate being divided into four equal shares it shall be divided into two parts or shares, one of three-fourths and the other one-fouth, of the estate, and that the three-fourths share is to be held in trust for the wife, and the income paid to her during the term of her natural life, and at her death is to be divided between the son and daughter. The remaining one-fourth is bequeathed to the step-daughter.

Hooley, the Promoter and Multi Millionaire Reaches His Downfall

London June 8.—A receiving order in bankruptcy has been issued against Ernest Terah Hooley, for years prominent as the biggest company promoter in this country, prominently interested in bicycle, land and Bovril concerns, and who was supposed to be a multi-millionaire.

London, June 8.—The markets were not affected by the dramatic downfall of Mr. Hooley, as the news of the receiving order, while it caused a sensation, was not unexpected in the best quarters, where the event has been expected for some time. The last attempt to float Hooley bills was a failure, although ten per cent. was offered, but it is believed tehre is a considerable amount of his paper in existence. It will be the second and third-class institutions which will suffer by his failure. The shares with which Mr. Hooley was connected have slumped latterly, but the London market did not take much share in the gamble.

Mr. Hooley reached the pinnacle of prominence in 1896, when he promoted the Dunlop Bicycle Tire Company and was supposed to have cleared up $12,500,000 by that deal alone. He has since been identified with the promotion of the Bovril Company and with many bicycle companies. It is understood that not many of the latter were profitable to the stockholders. In the meanwhile, however, Mr. Hooley lived a sort of Monte Cristo existence, bought yachts and race horses and numerous historic country seats. In January of the present year Mr. Hooley purchased the racing cutter Britannia, formerly the property of the Prince of Wales, from Mr. John Lawson Johnstone. During 1896 he purchased the schooner yacht verema form the Earl of Lonsdale. Mr. Hooley is a member of a number of a number of yacht clubs.

For months past financiers had predicted that Mr. Hooley was in deep water.

Geo. Wilson in Quod

Kingston, Ont., June 8.—To-day George Wilson, bricklayer, Toronto, was arrested at Odessa, on a charge of stealing a bicycle from Lashley's livery in this city. He rented it Friday.

Cornell Roasted

Rochester, N. Y., June 8.—At a meeting of the Rochester district Epworth League resolutions severely condemning the course adopted by secular institutions of learning generally, and Cornell in particular, were unanimously adopted. Cornell University was condemned on account of the alleged want of moral earnestness among the students and lack of religious instruction.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires noskill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

I have used Kenny's Hair Restorer for dandruff and falling out of my hair. It has removen the dandruff, and a few applications prevented my hair falling out. Three bottles of Kennys Hair Restorer has restored the hair on my head to its original state. I can in justice to the manufacturer recommend Kennys Hair Restorer from my own experience as the best remedy I have ever heard of for the prevention and cure of baldness, and I am sure it will accomplish all that it is claimed for it if properly applied as directed.

THE EXCITABLE FRENCH.

Scene In the Chamber of Deputies With the Members Enraged.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense usher called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant" —or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was—advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative halls of the world. At last M. Talandier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representatives' hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little locked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Lefts, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted end gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down lest he might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the desk or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'etat, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance bow much profounder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1891 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles farther on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, end before be took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 25 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like, an she's willin an so'm I. Whur's the nighest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louis-

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

Financial Trouble

Financial embarrassment is said to account for what there are reasons for believing was the suicide of Albert Fowlie, D. L. S., of Orillia, Clerk and Treasurer of Orillia Township. His body was found on the railway track near Severn Bridge, on Saturday; it having been run over and frightfully cut up by a passing freight train. A revolver was found near the body, and it is said that the unfortunate man had shot himself. He was about 60 years of age, and for some years was engaged in the lumbering business at Midland.

AN EXPLANATION.

The reason for the great popularity of Hood's Sarsaparilla lies in the fact that this medicine positively cures. THE FARMERS' PICNIC.

A Great Success Notwithstanding the Opposition From Some Quarters.

The farmers' picnic at Jubilee Point yesterday was a grand success in every particular.

The City of Peterborough carried over 500 passengers from town; the Beaver, from Hastings, 300; the Eclipse, from Keene, 300, and the North Star from Trent Bridge had over 200 on board.

At Jubilee Point there was a splendid programme of athletic sports, canoe races etc.

In the face of the fierce opposition the picnic met with, the huge success of yesterday must have proved intensely gratifying to the management.

The picnic was the most successful held in years.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Strangers Within Our Gates and Other Paragraphs of a Personal Nature

We were favoured yesterday with a friendly call from Mr. E. J. Toker, of Toronto, who, a number of years ago, was editor of the Times and later of the Review. Mr. Toker left for Toronto last night.

Mr. rank Ball, the popular representative of Spilling Bros., cigar manufacturers of Toronto, was in town yesterday on a business trip.

Mr. Joe. Goodman, representing the Copland Brewing Co., Toronto, is in town and is booking a large number of orders forthe popular beverage manufac ured by this firm.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams left yesterday morning on a business trip to Bracebridge and Gravenhurst.

Mrs. Solliffe, wife of Rev. T. W. Tolliffe, of Colborne, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. E. Dixon.

Mr. J. D. Flavelle, formerly of Peterborough, has donated $500 to the Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto.

Mr. Leslie Ramsden, of the Canadian General Electric Works, has returned from Kingston, where the Company have been putting in a power plant.

Mrs. Paterson and Misses Nettie and Flora Paterson, Hunter street, have just returned from Toronto, where they witnessed the marriage of their son and brother on Wednesday.

Mr. W. A. Shaw has returned from Toronto, where he has been closing up another year with the house he has been so long connected with—Messrs. Newcombe & Co., who made Mr. Shaw the recipient of a very handsome present as an evidence of of their appreciation of his efforts.

Orillia's Power System

Like Lindsay, says the Post, the town of Orillia is interested in a power transmission scheme, the energy to be developed at Ragged Rapids. Last week two experts of the Canadian General Electric Company advised the town council committee relative to the rates to be charged. It was decided to make the minimum rate for power $15, and to gradually raise to $30 for small takers. These figures are for a twenty-four hour service, and are said to be the lowest in the province. The light rates were greatly reduced. As with the water power the council will have abundance of power at its disposal day and night, it will not matter how much the lights burn, so with a view to doing away with the meters, which are a source of wrangling and expense, the meter rate was left as at present, and the flat rate cut in two. The new schedule is as follows: For stores and hotels—under 20 lights, 30 cents a month each; 20 to 39 lights, 25 cents; 40 and over, 20 cents. For residences—4 lights and under, 25 cents; 5 to 15 lights 22 1-2 cents; over 15, 20 cents per month. Meter rate 7-8 of a cent. an hour with 15 per cent discount. The power schedule is: 1 and 2 horse power, $30 per h.p. per annum; 3 to 5 h.p., $27; 6 to 10 h.p., $24; 11 to 20 h.p., $21 per h.p.; 21 to 30, $18 per h.p.; over 30, $15 per h.p. Ten per cent. discount off all these prices for prompt payment. The present flat rates for hotels and stores are 60, 70 and 80 cents, and for residences, 30 and 35 cents.

RAILWAY NOTES

Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway Paragraphs of Interest

—On Tuesday two double-deck carloads of hogs were sent from Campbellford station to Montreal by Mr. Dan. Black and Mr. E. McManaman, the former having loaded 160 and the latter 150. Purchases were made in this locality for the greater number, the price being $4 per cwt.

Tweed News: On Sunday morning about five o'clock two freight trains trains came into collision at the C.P.R. station here, the result being that both engines were badly damaged, as well as several cars. Fortunately all hands escaped without the slightest injury. Engine 503, attached to the westbound freight, was taking water at the eastern tank, when an eastbound freight, drawn by engine 628, entered the yard at the usual speed, but as it approached the station it was found that the air brakes would not work. The driver of 503, who was about to do some oiling, noticed the velocity of the approaching train at once jumped into the cab and tried to back his train. Each time he opened the throttle the drive-wheels slipped on the rails as they would on grease. He remained at his place as long as he dared, knowing that his tender would not stand the crash, and just before they struck he jumped. Had he remained longer he would no doubt have suffered serious injury. The wrecking crew arrived early in the morning and in the course of a few hours had the line entirely cleared. Sullivan and Williams the drivers of the two engines, have the reputation of being the youngest drivers on the road and a peculiar coincidence is that they started firing on the same day about seven years ago and also started as drivers on the same day, about six months ago.

BABY BORN WITH WINGS

Mother Had a Sharp Battle with a Hawk Some Months Before

Barker, N.Y., June 8.—Every baby is thought to be an angel, but it is seldom that one is born with wings. An exception to the general rule has been made in the case of a boy baby born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fenn, of Barker township, N.Y. The child is now three weeks old and differs only from the ordinary baby in having two peculiar protuberances on its shoulder blades. These are V-shaped and covered with a fine webbing. They appear like the formation of a pair of wings, and physicians who have been consulted decline to undertake their amputation, fearing that they are connected with the spine. Last fall Mrs. Fenn had a battle with a ferocious hawk that was trying to steal a chicken. The bird beat her about the face and head with its wings, but was with difficulty driven off. This, it is thought may have been the cause of this strange growth. The child is well and does not seem inconvenienced by its wings.

The Tent Caterpillar

Editor of the Times:

Sir,—As it is very important that war should be declared and carried on against the Tent Caterpillar steps should be promptly taken to destroy the "new crop."

This can be done at this stage by destroying the cocoons that are being spun by the mature caterpillars.

Prof. Saunders says: "As the caterpillars arrive at maturity they leave the trees and wander about in all directions in search of suitable places in which to hide during their chrysalis stage. A favorite place is the angle formed by the projection of the capboards of fences, or fence-posts." They will also be found about the woodpile, the under side of logs, in the corners of houses or verandahs, under shingles or any little projection."

Prof. Saunders continues: "Here they construct oblong oval cocoons of a yellow color, formed of a double web the outer one loosely woven and slight in texture, the inner one tough and thick. In its construction the silk is mixed with a pasty substance which, when dry, becomes powdery, and resembles sulphur in appearance. Within these cocoons the larvae change to brown chrysalides from which in about two or three weeks the moths escape."

These cocoons should be gathered now and burned. Each moth will deposit from 300 to 500 eggs in a cluster on the small twigs, cemented together and coated with a tough varnish impervious to rain. These are the clusters to destroy which the council properly enlisted the services of small boys early in the spring. It would be wise to take a similar course now, and give a suitable reward by the dozen for the cocoons. The destruction of a hundred cocoons means the destruction of a hundred moths. From the myriads of large caterpillars now daily promenading the streets, and even going to church on Sundays there will be myriads of cocoons and the council, if that be necessary, should at once authorize the Mayor to take action on this line.

It is only by prompt, energetic and intelligent action at all suitable periods—and in a persistent way—that this plague of caterpillars can be kept down and prevented from destroying every shade and fruit tree in town.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 10.—An explosion of dynamite occurred at St. Johns Bluff near the mouth of the St. Johns River this morning, killing two men—J. J. O'Rourke and Edward Houston—and severely injuring Lieut. Hartusa. O'Rourke was foreman for the Western Union Telegraph Company in this city, and Houston was in the employ of the Government. The two men were in a small building on the blufft esting electrical appliances to be used for exploding the mines in the river. In some manner the wires became crossed and the dynamite was exploded. Houston's body was blown into the air and nothing of it except scattered fragments of flesh and bones could be found.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

MINISTER ARRESTED

Madrid, June 10.—The Minister for Foreign Affairs, Duke Almodovar Derio denies that Lieut. Cananza, formerly naval attachee of the Spanish Legation at Washington, and Senor Du Bosc, recently Spanish Charge D'Affairs at Washington, have been arrested in Canada. He also says he was not even aware that they were to be expelled from Canada.

Answering further questions, the Foreign Minister said he had received no further news from the Philippines, nor had he any information regarding the rumor in the United States that the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror had been sunk by an American warship.

A semi-official note issued to-day says Spanish letters continue to be seized in the United States, even though addressed to foreigners. The note adds: "If this measure unprecedented in war between civilized peopels is persisted in, Spain will make reprisals upont he property of Americans in Spain."

BULLETIN

Washington, D. C., June 10.—The Navy Department to-day posted the following bulletin: On June 7th Admiral Sampson ordered the Marble Head commander, McCalla, and the Yankee commander, Brownson, to take possession of the outer bay of Guantanamo. These vessels entered the harbor at daylight, on the seventh, driving a Spanish gunboat into the inner harbor, and took possession of the lower bay, which is now held, by the Marble Head.

CAMPAIGN PLANS

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, off Santiago de Cuba, Thursday, June 9, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 10.—It is believed the navy will follow the landing of troops by forcing the passage of the narrow channel leading to the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, fishing up the sunken mines and compelling Admiral Cervera to make a stand. If the destruction of the Spanish fleet is successfully carried out it will end the last vestige of Spanish dominion in Eastern Cuba. The harbor of Guantanamo is completely under the control of the American fleet, and the landing of marines at that point is expected to occur simultaneously with the landing oft roops at Santiago de Cuba.

RELEASE MAY BE TARDY

Plan for Exchanging the Crew of the Merrimac Temporarily Frustrated

Spanish Circumlocution Now Stands in the Way—The Subject has been Taken out of Cervera's Hand.

With the blockading fleet, off Santiago, June 8, 10 p.m., via Mole St. Nicholas, June 10.—Lieutenant Hobson and his heroic companions in the exploit of sinking the collier Merrimac across the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, may not be released for some time. To-day Admiral Cervera sent a flag of truce to Admiral Sampson, with a message that the prisoners were in the hands of the military authorities, and that their cases had been referred by the military governor of Santiago to Governor-General Blanco. The plan of exchange submitted by Admiral Sampson to Admiral Cervera is thus temporarily frustrated.

A CRITICAL PERIOD.

London, June 10.—The Times says editorially this morning: "Probably the next few days will form as critical period as any Spanish Government has yet passed through. It is useless for Spain to cherish pleasing illusions. America will lick her volunteers into a shape good enough for work in hand a good deal more quickly than seems to be anticipated in Madrid."

The Daily News says "Spain's best friends can only urge her to submit without delay. There is no armor against fate, and there is no remedy for incapacity. If international diplomacy deals with the war, Lord Salisbury will insist upon the just claims of the United States to secure the reward of energy and foresight in a good cause.'

New APPEAL TO THE POPE.

London, June 10.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily News says: "A new appeal has been made to the Pope to intervene, or to use all his influence to obtain the interference of the powers. It is asserted that the Queen Regent has even submitted to the Pope the question of her retirement in order to allay public discontent.

THE SECOND EXPEDITION.

San Francisco, June 10.—Wednesday, June 15, is the date scheduled for the sailing of the second Manila expedition. The fleet will include the China, 1,100 men; Colon, 800;; Zealandia, 750; Senator, 800; Morgan City, 700; and City of Para, 800, it being announced last night that the Morgan City and Senator would be added. The Nebraska regiment will probably go with the expedition. The field guns of the battery will be moved to the ships. One gun on each ship will be installed on deck for the purpose of defence.

TO CONVOY TROOPS.

Washington, June 10.—A powerful fleet of 16 warships is now assembled in Florida waters to convoy the troops and transports to Cuba at once.

ONLY A HORRID DREAM

Yankees Only Fancied they Saw and Sank the Terror

Thought a Train a Boat—Ludicrous Mistake on Board Several Warships off Santiago—Fired at a Phantom

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, off Santiago de Cuba, Sunday, June 5, 2 p.m., via Kingston, Jamaica, June 9.

Friday night it was believed that a night attack on the United States fleet by one or both of the torpedo destroyers with the Spanish fleet had been frustrated by the vigilance of the New Orleans and that the destroyers had been repulsed and driven back into the harbor by the hot fire poured into them by the New Orleans New York and Massachusetts. It was this heavy firing which led to the report which reached Port Antonio Saturday, that the Spanish destroyer Terror had been surrounded and sunk on Friday night as she was trying to slip into Santiago harbor.

THEY DREAMED IT.

The latter report is now known to have had no foundation, and there is a conflict of opinion among the officers of the fleet as to whether the New Orleans had in reality met a torpedo boat. When the firing was begun on Friday night it was dark and the object at which the guns on the United States ships were directed seemed to be moving close in shore. A railroad line connects Santiago with Cave Point, at a distance of fifteen miles the site of iron manufactories. The track runs along the water edge, and the trains which carry supplies and probably war material, are only run at night and without light. It is possible that in the darkness a fast moving train may have been mistaken, as one was last week, for a torpedo boat. But the discovery by the Porter of two torpedoes on Saturday afternoon floating in the water two miles from shore tended to strengthen the theory of those who insisted that a torpedo attack had been attempted.

THEY SHOOT AT EACH OTHER.

A sharp lookout is maintained by the blockading squadron in guarding against night torpedo attacks; and it has already led to firing by the United States ships upon each other, on at least two occasions. During the last week the battleship Texas fired upon the Marblehead and the Vixen and both the latter vessels had narrow escapes. Only the flash of their signal lights, and on the occassion in question, the fortunately bad aim of the gunners of the Texas, saved them.

Several of the newspaper despatch boats have also had rather stirring experiences of a similar character. It should be said that on board the New York and the New Orleans they are quite confident a torpedo attack was repulsed on Friday night.

A HUGE MISTAKE.

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, off Santiago de Cuba, Sunday, June 5, 2 p.m., via Kingston, Jamaica, June 9, 9.55.—Friday it was believed that a night attack on the American fleet by one or both of the torpedo destroyers with the Spanish fleet had been frustrated by the vigilance of the New Orleans and that the destroyers had been repulsed and driven back into the harbor by the hot fire poured into them by the New Orleans, New York and Massachusetts. A SCARE AT JACKSONVILLE.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 10.—A letter written at Tampa yesterday morning and received here late last night states that sixteen vessels laden with army supplies, ammunition, horses, mules, and 12,000 soldiers left Port Tampa late in the evening under an escort oft wo large cruisers and two gunboats. Eight transports, each carrying 800 soldiers, with horses, mules and supplies, started down the bay on Wednesday afternoon, but upon arriving at the entrance to the Gulf of Mexico,t wenty-eight miles from the port, they turned back owing to the approach of two large vessels. When transports reached the docks it was given out, but the vessels seen in the Gulf were Spanish cruisers, and immediately a great scene of excitement occurred. The Twenty-Ninth Regiment of Cavalry, colored, encamped on a plain within a mile of the docks, and they were at once ordered to break camp and retreat to Tampa city, nine miles away. Half a mile further from the bay there were three thousand regulars and two regiments of volunteer infantry and they too were ordered back, but before this order was carried out it was found that the strange vessels sighted in the Gulf were the cruisers sent direct from Key West with instructions to General Shafter to start his expedition at once. The letter states that the transports are heavily laden for ships bound through the Gulf stream, but that probably a number oft he troops along with horses, etc., will disembark at Key West, where a haltwill be made to await instructions. There are now 9,000 troops here, but it is expected that they will to-morrow proceed south to Miami and go in transports down the east coast to Key West to join the Tampa contingent. It is utterly impossible to secure reliable telegraphic information from Tampa, and the telegraph office at Miami is closed to all but the Government.

Lord Wolsley Figured on as Governor-General

ARRANGED AT NEW YORK

The Tribune Figures the Whole Affair Out This Way

The British Army a Place for "Bobs," who is a Very Ambitious Soldier—Overtures have been Made to Wolsley

(Special to the Times.)

New York, June 10.—A despatch to the Tribune from London, says: The trouble in filling the vacancy for the Vice-royalty of Canada. Numerous candidates for the succession have been mentioned, but no appointment has been made. The good relations now existing between England and America make it important that the new Governor-General of Canada should be an offical of unique reputation, so as to impress the imagination of the whole English-speaking race in America.

LORD WOLSELEY THE MAN.

The appointment has not been officially announced, but it is generally believed in the War Office that Lord Wolseley is the man who has been selected for this important post. Nothing has yet appeared in print about it but it may be stated with the utmost confidence that overtures have been made to him.

The Crown is not in the habit of offering appointments for high places until the willingness of those proposed for preferment to accept honors is ascertained. There is adequate reasons to believe that Lord Wolseley has been approached, and that he is now considering the expediency of accepting.

A PLACE FOR BOBS.

His appointment as Governor-General would command the attention of Canada and America, and would be of great utility in promoting good relations on each side of the border. At the same time it would create a vacancy in the office of Commander-in-Chief, which the friends of Lord Roberts would like to have their special favorite fill. Lord Wolseley is at once a soldier and a diplomatist, equal to any work which he may be called upon to perform; but Lord Roberts is a soldier only, and a very ambitious one.

Bankrupt Shakers

Another unsuccessful co-operative community is that of the society of Shakers at Pleasant Hill, Ky., this failure being the more notable because of its occurrance in a society held together by the ties of religeous communion as well as by the material on of trade and industry. The establishment of the community was also coincident with the beginning of the century. It flourished for many years its people numbering at one time 600, and its wares being known all over the South for their honest excellence. The garden seeds and fruit held a reputation not exceeded. Their "preserves" were sold in almost every Southern city. The Shaker brooms handmade, commanded the highest prices in the various markets. The Shaker straw hats and bonnets always found ready sale. Their shorthorns were in great demand in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. Their silkworm culture was profitable, and their supply of silk was equal to the demand. Anything with the Shaker brand found a ready market. Now their factories are abandoned, their breeding of short horns is ended, their lands shrunk to one-half the former holdings to satisfy mortgages, no longer support the best breeds of sheep and horses, and their number has fallen to about sixty. Their downfall began some years ago on the death of Rufus Bryant, who for many years had been the financial brains of the community, and now their pretty "meeting house," sold with other property to meet burdensome debts, is being converted into a ballroom.—New York Evening Post.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 11 1898

MODERN NAVAL WARFARE.

The Chicago Record has an instructive article on the modern methods of naval warfare. We condense it in a way to bring all the information before our readers in the shortest possible space.

To understand the peculiarly destructive power of the guns with which modern navies are provided it must be kept in mind that most of these larger instruments of warfare carry a projectile, which not only has great penetrating power, but contains some higher explosive, easily detonated upon striking any obstacle offering fair resistance.

The mortar, discharging an explosive shell through a high trajectory, the muzzle of the gun being upturned to an angle of 45 degrees, is still in use in shore batteries. But modern sciance has mastered the invention of shell guns, which can shoot point blank with high velocity and will explode with terrific effect on striking a target Some of the smaller and rapid-fire guns of course, shoot solid masses of of steel, highly tempered, and capable of great penetration. Projectiles designed for this purpose are sent from the muzzle of the gun with immense force, and are capable of penetrating armor plate of the best kind to a thickness of 30 per cent greater than the calibre of the projectile. But the deadliest damage is done by the shell gun carrying a missile, which aside from its great weight explosive charge which is detonated and penetrating power, holds a very immediately upon impact with the target, although some shells are exploded by a fuse.

As to the relative merits of the explosives opinions differ, but gun cotton is a favorite, though the French navy uses melinite as the bursting charge. The shells themselves differ both in form and size and in their design. The "incendiary shell" is filled with some substance designed to set fire to the enemy's ship. The ordinary Hotchkiss shell contains in its cylinder a heavy charge, and the projectile is made with a casing of three thicknesses in order that it may break into a large number of pieces when bursting. The skill which has been expended on projectiles of this class may be imagined from the fact that they can be discharged with a heavy concussion without exploding, and the danger of unintentional explosions has been so minimized that while the shell from a heavy cannon will burst if its impact is against four inches of steel it will not explode when sent against the ordinary side-plating of ships.

The penetrating power of these modern implements of warfare is great, but their destructive effect on explosion is terrific. When an acurate gunner sends an 1,800 pound missile loaded with 170 pounds of high explosives against the side of a hostile vessel near the water line he practically dooms it to destruction. No armor-plate yet invented has been found strong enough to stand even a short fusilade of this sort.

The best medicine you can take is that which builds a solid foundation for health in pure, rich blood—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Reports that the U. S. warships have cut the cables Santiago are growing tiresome.

The Montreal Star has a paragraph concerning a woman whom it describes as "a young lady of middle age." There is nothing remarkable about that. Now if she were an old lady of infantile age, or baby of old age, it might have been worth mentioning

"Eighty-four new lawyers were turned loose on society by the Osgoode hall authorities, Saturday. What are they going to do? Where in Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, is a lawyer needed? Where is the blissful spot where there are already not too many of 'em?" - Hamilton Herald.

The nerve of Mrs. Sterman, who narrowly escaped the gallows on a charge of poisoning her husband, is something colossal and sublime. She is taking steps to bring an action against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., to get possession of the $1,000 on the life of her husband.

Perhaps it was because he hated to see an uncorked bottle with nothing issuing from it that Lieut. Hobson made up his mind to cork up Santiago bay if he had to be part of the stopper himself. At any rate he remedied the unseemly condition, and will doubtless pardon an appreciative public, if, with more gratitude than formality, it nicknames him Corker Hobson.

TO SEIZE HAWAI.

Alleged Orders of the Monitor Monadnock—Will Hoist the Flag.

Washington, June 10.—The monitor Monadock is not intended for the Philippines. She is under orders to prepare for see and proceed to Honolulu, where she will raise the Stars and Stripes if Congress fails to annex the islands before adjourning.

President McKinley has decided that we must have the Hawaian Islands, if we hope to retain the Philippines; and, if the bickerings in the Senate and the House will not permit of their acceptance in the usual way, he will take them himself. A big transport will accompany the Monadock. It is to carry supplies, ammunition, guns and marines, and soon as Hawai has been "captured," in a friendly way, the jackies will be landed and will occupy the island in the name of the United States. They will be prepared to quell any uprisings on the part of the natives and defend Honolulu against all comers.

A base of supplies will be established for ships plying between San Francisco and Manilla. This is the plan of the administration, as outlined by a Cabinet officer.

Washington, June 10—The President has in contemplation, according to a Senator who was in consultation with him to-day, the submission of a special message to the two Houses of Congress calling for immediate annexation of Hawai as a military necessity. According to this Senator, the message will be delayed for a few days to await action that may by taken by Speaker Reed and the Committee on Rules.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO.

Issue of Forty-Year Annuities.

Sealed tenders for the purchase of terminable annuities running for a period of 40 years, issued under authority of an act of the Ontario Parliament, 47 Vic, chapter 31, will be received by the undersigned at his office, Parliament buildings, Toronto, on or before 14th day of July next, at 2.30 p. m., when the tenders will be opened in the presence of such of the applicants, or their agents, as may attend.

The annuities will be in the form of certificates signed by the Provincial Treasurer, in which certificates the Provincial Treasurer will agree to make half-yearly payments at his office at Toronto, or in London England, of sums of $100, or larger sums, or their equivalent in sterling at the par of exchange (£20 10s 11½d), on the 30th day of June and 31st day of December in each year, for forty years from 30th day of June instant, the first half yearly certificates being payable on the 31st December next.

The total amount of annuities to be issued in 1898 is $5,700 annually, but tenders will be received for any part of the same not less than $200 annually.

Tenders may, if preferred, be upon condition that the annuities be payable in sterling in London, England. In such case the conversion will be at the par of exchange, $1.86, 2-3 to the pound sterling. Tenders will be required to state the purchase money which will be paid for either the whole annuities offered or such portion as may be tendered for.

Notification of allotments will be given to tenderers on or before 20th July and payments from the persons whose tenders are accepted must be made within ten days thereafter at the office of the Provincial Treasurer in Toronto, but if, from any cause, the purchase money is not paid by the 1st day of August next, purchasers who have not then paid will be required to pay interest on their purchase money from that date to date of payment, at the rate of interest which the investment will yield, according to their respective tenders.

The annuity certificates will be delivered at the office of the Provincial Treasurer in Toronto, where, if desired, they may be specially registered.

The Provincial Treasurer reserves the right to determine what tender is most advantageous to the Province, but no tender will necessarily be accepted. Tenders should be on the accompanying form.

Envelopes containing tenders should be endorsed "Tender for Province of Ontario Annuities."

Further information may be obtained on application to the Provincial Treasurer.

Provincial Treasurer's Office, Toronto, 2nd June, 1898.

NOTE—Illustration of calculation on interest—At the rate of 3 per cent, per annum (or in strictness 1½ per cent, half yearly) a present payment of $2.390.36 would represent an annuity of $100 for 40 years. $50 payable each half-year.

A

What does A stand for? When some friend suggests that your blood needs A sarsaparilla treatment, remember that A stands for AYER'S. The first letter in the alphabet stands for the first of sarsaparillas; first in origin, first in record, first in the favor of the family. For nearly half a century has been curing all forms of blood diseases—scrofula, eczema, tetter, rheumatism, erysipelas, blood poisoning, etc. There's a book about these cures—"Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured,"—which is sent free on request, by Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass. The book will interest you if you are sick or weak, because it tells not what it is claimed the remedy will do, but what your neighbors and fellows testify that it has done. Will it cure you? It has cured thousands like you. Why not you?

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

BLACKBIRD'S GRAVE.

LAST RESTING PLACE OF THE FAMOUS INDIAN CHIEF.

On a Bluff That Is Now Inside the City of Omaha—On Its Summit the Chief Watched For His White Friends—Romance of the Omaha-Poncas Feud.

Omaha has within her city limits an unknown and uncared for historic spot which in a few decades will be looked upon with far more interest than it has in the past or is now, for the value of historical places grows with the distance in time from the events which made them historical. This spot, which is in Omaha, and yet has been forgotten and neglected by the city, is the grave of the famous Omaha chief and warrior whom even Washington Irving thought worthy of a place in his writings. This chief lived in the latter part of the last century, dying in 1792. In those days, according to Irving, the Omahas looked upon themselves as the most powerful and perfect of human beings, and considered all created things as made for their peculiar use and benefit. The leader of this tribe, Blackbird, or Wash-ing-guh-sah-ba, was a warrior of the highest class. Early in life he had been taken a prisoner by the Sioux, where he had his metal tested. Under his leadership the Omahas attained a reputation among the other tribes that they never had possessed before. The Pawnees having inflicted an insult upon an Omaha brave, Blackbird led his men against their town and slaughtered many of the inhabitants and burned it to the ground. He also waged a fierce war against the Otoes until peace was effected by the interference of the whites.

Yet, notwithstanding his fiery disposition, he fell a victim to Cupid's dart. The Poncas had raided the Omaha tribe and carried off many of their women and horses. Blackbird took the field with the sworn determination of eating up his enemy. So fiercely did the battle rage that the Poncas began to sue for mercy. A herald was sent out with the pipe of peace, but he was shot down by Blackbird. A second herald shared the same fate. As a last hope the Ponca chief then sent out his daughter, arrayed in all her finery and bearing the calumet of peace. Her charms conquered. A treaty was made, and Blackbird married the herald. She became his favorite wife, yet nevertheless in one of his ungovernable fits of rage he killed her with a single blow of his knife.

No sooner did he see her lying dead at his feet than his anger left him, and for three days he sat by her corpse—silent, motionless and tasting no food. On the third day his people began to fear that he intended to starve himself to death and entreated him to be comforted. He paid no attention to their entreaties, and at last a warrior brought a little child into his presence and placed it beneath the chief's foot. This appeal brought him to himself, and, arising, he made a speech to his followers and seemingly threw off his grief as easily as he had taken it on. In 1792 the smallpox swept over Nebraska, and Blackbird was one of its victims. The following description of his death and burial is quoted from Washington Irving's "Astoria:"

"When the general horror and dismay were at their height, Blackbird himself was struck down with the malady. The poor savages gathered around his bed and forgot their own miseries. His dominant spirit and love for the white men were manifested in his latest breath, with which he designated his place of sepulture. It was to be on a hill or promontory upward of 400 feet high, overlooking a great extent of the Missouri river, from whence he had been accustomed to watch for the barks of the white men. The Missouri washes the base of the promontory, and after winding and doubling in many links and mazes in the plain below returns to within 900 yards of its starting point, so that for 30 miles navigating with sail and oar the voyager finds himself continually near to this singular promontory as if spellbound.

'It was the dying command of Blackbird that his tomb should be on the summit of this hill, in which he should be interred, seated on his favorite horse, that he might overlook his ancient domain and behold the barks of the white men as they came up the river to trade with his people.

"His dying orders were faithfully obeyed. His corpse was placed astride of his war steed and a mound raised over them on the summit of the hill. On the top of the mound was erected a staff from which floated the banner of the chieftain and the scalps that he had taken in battle. When the expedition under Mr. Hunt visited that part of the country (1802), the staff still remained, with the fragments of the banner, and the superstitious rite of placing food from time to time upon the mound for the use of the deceased was still observed by the Omahas."

"That promontory is now within the city limits of Omaha," says Dr. Mercer, "and I located the grave 20 years ago. When I came to Omaha 36 years ago, the river wound around in the shape of an 'S,' and this promontory upon which I found the grave exactly answers to the description given by Irving. It is in the south part of the city, and Williams street would run through it if extended to the river. Just east of it and under the bluff is a brickyard, the roofs of which reach nearly up to the top of the hill.

"The Omaha camp was located in the bottom beneath the bluff and a little to the north. This point was Blackbird's favorite place for sitting to watch for the coming of the traders, with whom he was very friendly. No doubt you have heard the story. When the traders came up, he greeted them most friendly, made them open up their goods and selected what he wanted himself. Then he called in his tribe and compelled them to trade. The whites made up for their gifts to him by the extra charge they put upon the goods sold, and not an Indian dared kick. The chief had got his bribe and his people had to pay for it.

"There is another story about the old fellow. He was great on superstition, and when pursuing the enemy would fire into their tracks, claiming that would kill them. He posed as a kind of god, but after awhile some of his people grew skeptical of his superhuman power and refused to obey him. In this difficulty he consulted his friends, the white traders, and they told him to prophesy the death of all who disobeyed him. He did so, announcing according to instructions that all who were disobedient would die a mysterious death upon a certain day. When that day came, he invited the whole tribe in to dine with him, and put a dose of arsenic in the bowl of each man whom he wished to serve as an example of his godlike power. Of course they died. From that time on his power was never questioned, and the traders who put him up to the trick and furnished the arsenic stood higher than ever with him."—Omaha World-Herald.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles

Symptoms—Moisture intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate and become very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. A good appetite
Is essential to good health.
Hood's Sarsaparilla creates an Appetite, tones and
Strengthens the stomach,
And builds up the whole system.

It relieves that tired feeling, and by purifying and enriching the blood, it promptly and permanently cures all scrofula eruptions, boils, humors, pimples and sores; strengthens the nerves, and gives sweet refreshing sleep. No other medicine has taken such hold upon the confidence of the people as Hood's Sarsaprilla, and its record of great cures is unequalled by any other preparation. You may take Hood's Sarsaprilla with the utmost confidence that it will do you good.

TEN YEARS IN THE TOILS.

South American Kidney Cure Loosed the Bonds and Freed the Prisoner—It Relieves in Six Hours.

"This is to certify that after taking six bottles of South American Kidney Cure I am completely cured of stricture and gravel, having suffered from these complaints for over ten years. I felt relief almost immediately, and after taking three bottles felt greatly improved. I continued its use until I was satisfied I was perfectly cured." Willis Goff, Chippewa, Ont.

Rheumatism Cured

after seven years suffering.

GENTLEMEN: Having suffered with Rheumatism for the past seven years was recommended to use Walton's Rheumatic Pills, which gave me immediate relief and am as well as ever and can follow my trade again. I have tried all different remedies that came to my hearing without any relief, and been to the mineral springs year after year, but with no such results as from Walton's Rheumatic Pills.

IN BED FOR WEEKS.

And Every breath She Drew Was an Excruciating Pain—Rheumatism Had Fastened his Talons on his Prey—South American Rheumatic Cure Snatched her from his Grasp.

"For fifteen years I had been troubled with rheumatism. It had settled in my back. At times the pain was so severe as to entirely lay me up for weeks at a time. I was just about discouraged and had given up hope when I was recommended to try South American Rheumatic Cure. I did so. The first bottle enabled me to leave my bed, and in one week from the time I commenced its use, I was completely cured. It is undoubtedly the best remedy in the world for rheumatism." Mrs. John Beaumont, Elora, Ont.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

I have used Kenny's Hair Restorer for dandruff and falling out of my hair. It has removen the dandruff, aud a few applications prevented my hair falling out. Three bottles of Kennys Hair Restorer has restored the hair on my head to its original state. I can in justice to the manufacturer recommend Kennys Hair Restorer from my own experience as the best remedy I have ever heard of for the prevention and cure of baldness, and I am sure it will accomplish all that it is claimed for it if properly applied as directed.

IMPORTANT SALE

—OF—

LANDS

IN PETERBOROUGH AND ASHBURNHAM

Pursuant to the Administration Order made by the High Court of Justice in the matter of the Estate of the late JOHN BURNHAM, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, with the approbation of the Master at Peterborough, AT THE MORGAN HOUSE, in the Town of Peterborough on

Monday, 27th day of June, 1898

at 2 p.m., by CHARLES STAPLETON, Auctioneer, the lands following namely:—

IN THE VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM

PARCEL 1.—Block "I" according to the Village Plan, and Lot "B" North of Douro Street and West of Grand Trunk Railway track according to Plan 15 of said Village. Upon this property is a two-storey brick dwelling about 32x42, with a two story kitchen and shed, with cellar under the whole house and kitchen. Dwelling is heated with hot air. The land contains about two acres. The property is occupied by a tenant whose lease is determinable on 2 months notice.

PARCEL 2.—Lot "A" on Plan 15 Ashburnham, situated on the North side of Douro street and facing Brown Street. On the property is a two story brick house. The property is occupied by a monthly tenant at a rental of $10 per month.

PARCEL 3.—Part of Lot 3, South of Elizabeth Street and East of Mark Street described as follows:—Commencing at a point on the northern limit of Lot 86 1-2 links East from the North West corner of the Lot, thence Southerly (along a line drawn from the said point to a point in the Southern limit oft he Lot, distant one chain twenty-one and one-half links from the South West corner of the Lot) to where the Northern boundary of a portion of the said Lot belonging to one Dawson being produced would strike the said described line, thence West along the said Northern boundary produced to the Eastern boundary of the land owned by the said Dawson, thence, South along the Eastern limit of said land to the Southern limit of said Lot 8, thence Easterly along such Eastern limit to the South East corner of the Lot, thence Northerly along the Eastern limit thereof to the North East corner thereof, thence West to the place of beginning. Upon this Parcel is a two story 8 roomed brick dwelling. The property is now rented at $100.00 per annum by lease terminable in 6 months notice. There is a stable, etc., on the property belonging to the tenant which could be acquired by the purchaser if required, for $125.00

PARCEL 4.—The South West part of Lot 136 North of Robinson Street containing about one third of an acre on which there is a small frame house.

IN THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

PARCEL 5.—Park Lots 1 and 2 in Township Lot 14 in the 12th Concession of the Township of North Monaghan containing about 19 acres. This land is within the limits of the Town and is immediately North of the Driving Park. Upon the property is a dwelling house and stable, etc. Full possession to be given on 1st of October. The North 33 feet of Park Lot 2 is subject to an agreement with the owner of Park Lot 3 for the opening of a road from George Street to Park Street across said Lot. Park Lot 2 has been sub-divided into small Lots as shown by Plan registered which may be altered or entirely dispensed with by the purchaser.

PARCEL 6.—Lot Number 45 South of Crescent Street. On this Lot is a frame dwelling house (Street Number 17). The property is held by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 7.—Lot No. 51 North of Ware Street. There is on the Lot a frame dwelling house (Street Number 32) occupied by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 8.—Part of Lot Number 1 South of Sherbrook Street and West of George Street described as the North 48 feet thereof. Upon this Parcel is a two-storey frame building occupied as a store and dwelling by a monthly tenant.

PARCELS 9 and 10.—Building Lots 18 and 19 South of Sherbrooke Street and West of Park Street. These lots have each a frontage on Sherbrooke Street of 74 links and a depth of 3 chains and 33 links.

PARCEL 11.—Building Lot 46 South of Crescent Street, having a frontage thereon of about 90 links and a depth of about 2 chains and 90 links.

PARCELS 12, 13, 14 and 15.—Building Lots Numbers 52, 53 (except the West 35 feet) 55 and 57 north of Ware Street. These lots have each a frontage of 80 1-2 links, and a depth of 2 chains and 80 links.

PARCELS 16, 17, 18 and 19.—Lots 3, 4, 9 and 10 South of Ware Street on Plan 62. These lots are 75 links wide and 2 chains 28 links deep.

PARCELS 20 and 21.—The South half of Lot "D" and all Lot "E" in Plan 37. These lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street and are 1 chain, 12 1-2 links wide, by 3 chains 41 links deep.

PARCEL 22.—Lot "F" and that part of Lot "G' not conveyed to Midland Railway on said Plan 37.—. The Lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street.

PARCEL 23.—30 Building Lots situated on Gladstone Avenue between Lock Street and Haggart Street to be sold en bloc.

TERMS OF SALE.—10 per cent down and the balance in one month thereafter without interest.

There will be a reserved bid upon each Parcel. In other respects the conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Court.

Further particulars can be obtained from MESSRS. HALL & HAYES, Solicitors, or from the undersigned.

LIVELV LAKEFIELD

Rolly Griffin is back and he is no half-back.

Mr. Wm. Graham and Mr. Moyle, of Toronto, went up to Stony Lake yesterday.

Lakefield was well represented at the Methodist picnic in Young's Point on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell, of Brockville, passed through the village on their way to Burleigh Falls.

Nothing succeeds like success. The more people read the Times the more

The Misses Hunter are "rusticating" in Lakefield.

The bills are out for the excursion of C. O. F. on June 16th. They go at 8.30 per steamer "Golden City" to Burleigh for dinner, thence around the lake, returning to Burleigh at 4.30 and then leave for home. The price is only 35c. return. A large attendance is expected.

ZEALOUS WOMEN SLAIN.

Awful Fate of Missionaries in West Africa Tortures for the Victims.

London, June 9.—The first detailed account of the massacre of the American missionaries at Rotifunk, in West Africa, has been received to-day, by mail, from a Sierra Leone merchant, detailing the hideous cruelties perpetrated upon them.

He writes: "We had no sleep for the past four or five nights, expecting the Mendis to rush upon us from the hill-sides. When they made the attack on Rotifunk they captured four American missionaries who had got about a mile and a half from the mission in their flight for Songo town.

WOMEN TORTURED TO DEATH.

They stripped the ladies and marched them back in the burning sun to the house they had just escaped from, and after assaulting them, they put them to death and mangled their bodies in a manner that cannot be described.

"Another lady, who was down with a fever at the time, was tied up in barbed fencing wire, thus piercing her to death.

VICTIMS MUTILATED.

The men they captured they mutilated by first cutting off their hands, then their arms at the elbows and afterward at the shoulders. Their legs were then lopped off, piecemeal, after which the trunk of the body was placed on a pole and these poles were set up in the fields. Portions of the body were scattered along the roadway in the bush.

CHOPPED UP THE BODIES.

The Mendis also sent into Sherbro several baskets of chopped up human remains of both whites and blacks.

The four American mission ladies done to death in this revolting fashion were Mrs. Cain and the Misses Archer, Hatfield and Scheok.

To Boys and Girls.

The publisher of the Times will give a prize worth two dollars for the best article descriptive of Peterborough as a business and manufacturing centre as well as a residental town. For the purpose of giving intending competitors a start they might imagine that an English gentleman has written saying he desires to settle in the best town in Canada, or that a large manufacturing industry is seeking a place to locate, and asking the advantages Peterborough offers. Do not sign your real name to the essay, but write it on a card which you will enclose with the M. S. We shall ask the Mayor and the Police Magistrate to award the prize. Leave the article in a sealed envelope with the Times Bookstore, or send it by mail addressed the Editor of the Times, Peterborough, before July 10th. The prize essay will be published in the Times.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this. The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Obituary

Lindsay Post: Mr. Edward Daly received a telegram this morning informing him of the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. Terry Brady, at Lansing, Mich., where he had resided with his family for the past 16 years. Many of our citizens will remember the deceased, who was very popular during his residence of many years in this district.

Fruit and groceries courteously served. Low price "Spot Cash."

Returning the Compliment

The Lindsay Warder says: Mr. McGill, of the Ontario Bank, is back again after a short holiday. Being a captain in the 57th Battalion, Peterborough, Mr. McGill will have charge of one of the picked companies which will take part in the 4th of July celebration in Watertown, United States. Two companies from Watertown, together with the 57th of Peterborough and the 14th Battalion of Kingston, celebrated the 24th of May in Kingston. The Canadians are thus returning the compliment.

The Brigade Camp at Belleville

The total strength of the brigade in camp at Belleville is 1,063, made up as follows: Prince of Wales Dragoons, 206; 16th Battalion, 253; 40th Battalion, 308; and 46th Battalion, 269.

The 3rd Dragoons are encamped close to the water's edge and are favored with a nice breeze from the bay.

The camp grounds are lighted by electric light at nights and are much appreciated by the officers and men.

Quite a number of the 57th are down with the 46th, and are reported to be first-class men.

Hon. Chaplain Rev. H. Symonds is in camp and will preach to the men on Sunday.

Trumpeter Fred Hubbs, of C Squadron, who is fresh from the school, is acquitting himself in fine style.

Mr. J. W. Garvin is Quartermaster Sergeant, and Victor McWilliams, Hospital Sergeant.

THE BICYCLE MEET

A Correspondent Writes to Say That too Much Economy is being Practised by Those in Charge

Editor Times:

Dear Sir,—As a citizen, and one who has the best interests of the town at heart, I wish to raise a warning voice in connection with the provincial C. W. A. meet to be held here next month. Those who have charge of the meet appear to act as though they were trying to "Jew" the affair through—paring every item of legitimate expense down so fine that even local people, whose callings bring them into contact with the executive, fight shy of them. The latest piece of "hair-splitting" that has come to our ears is to the effect that the management have decided to "sponge" their music of visiting bands instead of employing some of our local organizations. Is such parsimoniousness creditable to the premier town of the province? The town council has aided the bicycle people, and, as a ratepayer, I protest, for the sake of the fair name of our town, against such niggardliness. It does not become a rich and prosperous town like Peterborough to conduct an event of such importance as the provincial C. W. A. meet on the business lines of a junk-shop dealer. It is now only some three weeks until the meet takes place and I will venture to say that not 10 in 100 right here in the county of Peterborough know anything definitely of the meet. They may have a hazy idea that such a thing is to take place some time but this is the limit of their information. Is it not time to call a halt and do things decently as becomes a large and prosperous community?

Yours truly,
H— A—,
Peterborough, June 10th, 1898.

Mr. Strong had a small insurance on the house, but nothing on the contents. Most of the furniture and contents were saved.

—The proprietor of a large bookstore lately received the following order from a teacher in a small village in Ontario: "Enclosed you will please fine 25 cents, for which send me as soon as possible one of your best regulation strapes. I am in a very rough and heavy school, where the pupils chase the teacher with the poker, but they don't run me if I can help it; and I wish you to send me one of your best ticklers as it might come in useful in the case of an eruption."

—The Starr electric scheme has been given its quietus for the present. It was a good scheme, and one that was wanted. From all that we can make out, the Electric Works people were the ones that did the obstructing. Mr. Starr arranged terms all right with Messrs. Bradburn and Hazlett, of the Street Railway, but the Electric Works had a claim, or stock, for which they wanted three prices, and so Mr. Starr shut off his negotiations. If they will take a reasonable figure, before Mr. Starr's option expires, he will push the scheme. If not, it dies. At least that is the gossip that is current.

8000 Visitors from Toronto Alone

From Toronto papers we gather that Toronto promises to send down a big delegation to the Ontario Provincial Wheelmen's Meet here on July 1st and 2nd. The city clubs are arranging for an appearance in full force. Local societies are making plans to hold their annual excursions that day to Peterborough. Not less than 8,000 visitors are expected from the city alone. The carrying capacity of the trains will be taxed, even with specials to relieve the traffic.

A JOURNALISTIC REPROBATE

"Smiff" Makes a Blamed Fool of Himself at the Farmers' Picnic

Yesterday's issue of the Bobcaygeon Independent contains the following:

Too Bad.—It is too bad that the aged reprobate who writes our leading articles can never leave home without making an exhibition of himself, and bringing this journal into disrepute. He had to take in the Farmers' picnic last Saturday, and could not get through the day without creating a scene that was shocking. Shortly after dinner he was noticed strolling off with a very charming young lady of North Verulam, and carrying on simply nohow behind his old gingham umbrella that he had open. Presently the most piercing shrieks spread fright and dismay throughout the merry-makers, and on a rush being made to where the terrifying sounds came from, Smiff, the umbrella and the young lady were found in a whirling mix of chaotic wreck. Which was linen duster, and which belonged to the lady was indistinguishable. Both parties were frantically clawing around each other between screams and imprecations. Smiff declared it was caterpillars. There might have been some excuse for an inexperienced young lady with a caterpillar on the inside of her corset, and no other apparent means of getting it out than by standing on her head, but a man who cannot discover three or four tent caterpillars in his trousers without cutting up like a born idiot in a fit, doesn't know anything. Does not know enough to chew gum without the recipe, and ought to religiously abstain from picnics, pop, and pretty girls.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Strangers Within Our Gates and Other Paragraphs of a Personal Nature

Miss Boucher is visiting friends in Lakefield.

Mr. John Sager left for Rochester yesterday morning.

Miss Genevieve Kempt, George-st., left yesterday for Belleville, where she will visit Miss Bella Dixon.

Mrs. and Master Willie Deremo, of town, are the guests of Mrs. James Bryans, of Havelock.

Rev. J. G. Potter was in Millbrook yesterday in connection with church work.

Norwood Register: Miss Christie, of Peterborough, was a guest at the home of Mr. W. E. Roxburgh on Sunday.

Lindsay Warder: Mr. T. Johnston, of Peterborough, who has been attending the conference here, gave The Warder a friendly call on Wednesday.

Rev. Dr. Torrance and Rev. Wm. Bennett are attending the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church at Montreal as delegates of this Presbytery.

Mr. D. O'Connell has returned from a business trip to Penetanguishene.

Mrs. B. A. Jackson, of Rubidge street, will be out of town for the next two weeks.

Miss Norah Bell, of Belleville, who has been visiting at the residence of Mrs. (Hon.) Hamilton, Auburn, has returned home, accompanied by Miss Daisy Hamilton.

Mr. Court Poussette has been appointed to a position in the St. Catharines branch of the Bank of Toronto, and has left to enter upon his duties.

Bobcaygeon Independent: Mr. and Mrs. Andy Allison, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with Mr. D. Allison, the village chief......Messrs. Hall and V. E. McGill, of Peterborough, wheeled in on Sunday afternoon, and continued their run to Sturgeon Point and back.

Mr. John C. Douglas, who last winter went south to reside at Atlanta, Georgia, has struck out as a full fledged publisher. The first number is to hand of the "Southern Home," a journal devoted to the interests of the home; its education, culture and refinement; J. Campbell Douglas, editor and proprietor. It is a neatly printed and well illustrated eight page journal, full of bright readable matter.

New C. P. R. Time Table

The following changes in time as affecting the local trains on the C. P. R., will be observed until further orders:

The 4.10 afternoon west bound express now leaves at 4.25 p.m., and the 7.53 evening train from Toronto arrives in Peterborough at 8.07. The east bound night express now leaves at 12.12 a. m., instead of 11.35 p. m. The 2.48 p. m. east bound Klondike flyer now arrives in Peterborough at 2.45 p. m.

Fresh berries from the growers every day, low prices, "Spot Cash."

Police Court

A tramp, giving his name as Wm. McDonald, was charged at the police court yesterday with stealing a coat from Mr. J.J. Turner, the particulars of which were given in yesterday's Times. Mr. Dumble recalled to the mind of the prisoner how, when the latter came to his office begging, he had warned him to beware of the magistrate of this town, who was known to be very strict with vagvagrants, yet this morning he was in the magistrate's hands. The case was enlarged till Monday.

Dennis Daly was charged with vagrancy, but as the prisoner pleaded that he had never been convicted of anything, had never been charged with any offence and had never been in police court even as a witness before, during his forty-eight years in Peterborough, the magistrate allowed him to go, reminding him that, if arrested again, he will not be able to make the same statement.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

LACROSSE.

Lindsay Post: A large number of enthusiastic lacrosse players turned out to a meeting at the Simpson House last night, and the club re-organized with the following officers: Pres., Dr. F. A. Walters; vice-pres., J. Boxall; secretary, Jas McMillan; treasurer, Harold McKay; captain, J. Cook. Managing committee, J. Cook, W. Reesor, P. Cullon. Another meeting is called for Thursday night.

An event looked forward to with no little interest is the return Peterborough-Orillia lacrosse match, which will take place on the oval on June 16, says the Orillia News-Letter. The Peterboroughs have a stronger team than they ever had, and the Orillias will need to put in some tall practice in order to retrieve their reverse of last Thursday.

News-Letter: Orillia's intermediate lacrosse team had their first reverse last Thursday afternoon in Peterborough at the hands of the local team. The Peterboroughs have beyond a doubt the swiftest aggregation of players they have had for many years and more than that they are natives of the town.

CRICKET.

A very interesting match will take place this afternoon in the Nicholls Park between Trinity College School, Port Hope, and the Colts. Wickets will be pitched at one o'clock. The Colts team will be composed as follows: Frank Bradburn (Capt.), Willie Macdonell, Harry McKee, Claude Rogers, Harold Armstrong, Hubert McBain, Stanley Bradd, Jack Fessenden, Crawford Sowers, Douglas Hammond and Harry Rogers.

McDonald's Burglar's Kit

Mr. J. B. Pearce, of Norwood, left with County Crown Attorney Wood the other day the burglar's kit which was thrown away at the time of the arrest of McDonald, alias Marshall, at Havelock, for complicity in the burglary of the Norwood post office last April.

It consists of a flat plate of iron slotted at one end to fit on the axle of a safe knob, and is to be held in place by two small set-screws at one end. From the latter set-screw (about seven eighths of an inch in diameter), at the outer end, extends a crank, to the end of which is a hollow bolt, which is threaded, works the drill, upon which can be fastened a removable crank, and a detachable leather disk revolves the threaded bolt as the drill penetrates the steel. One would think that the apparatus could be adjusted in a moment, ready for effective work. In the Norwood case the drill was evidently not used, the knob of the safe door having been knocked off with a heavy hammer and a drop or two of nitro-glycerine from the bottle McDonald carried and which was found on his person at the time of arrest, inserted in the opening thus made and exploded with resistless effect. The door was made of two half-inch chilledd steel plates, with a heavy plate of iron between, held together by heavy iron bolts of about two inches. These plates were broken like delf-ware and a dozen bolts an inch in diameter and about two inches long blown out of steel.

The kit in question was made by a master mechanic, except the slotted plate, which was evidently ordinary blacksmith work. It was apparently considered a precious possession, and was carefully put up in waterproof bags—the apparatus in one bag and the crank and drills in another.

The burglar's pistol, also left with Mr. Wood, is a brutal-looking weapon. It is of 45 calibre and therefore carries a bullet larger than the ordinary Winchester rifle. These interesting examples of perverted ingenuity and enterprise will be produced at McDonald's trial at the approaching Fall Assizes.

NEURALGIA TORMENTS

Thousands Could Tell the Same Story of Misery that William Davidson Tells—And Thousands Have To-day the Same Song of Rejoicing—Cured by South American Nervine.

"I suffered untold misery for over three months from neuralgia of the stomach. Physicians did their best to help me, but all attempts were baffled. I saw South American Nervine advertised and resolved to try it. The first bottle gave me great relief, and after I had used six bottles I was completely cured of this dreadful disease." What Was the Trouble?

Health Broken Down, Heart Troubles, Torpid Liver, Consumption, Rheumatism

Whatever It Was, Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured by Its Power as The One True Blood Purifier.

Discouraged people are numerous now — some because of lost business, others because of lost health. All may find fresh inspiration and valuable suggestions in the following:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen: For 12 years I have been a commercial traveller, and owing to the hardships of my life, long railroad jumps, all kinds of exposure, and sudden changes of climate, etc., my health gave way. Physicians did not help me and I was given up to die. My illness developed a Complication of Diseases.

I was without ambition or appetite. All strength had left me. One doctor said I had heart disease, another torpid liver, a third said it was lung trouble and another consumption, and so on. I have no doubt, symptoms of all these complaints and even that of rheumatism, judging from the stiffness and pains in my joints and legs at times, were manifest. I was unable to attend to business, was confined to my room and frequently lay in a comatose state for hours. I was so feeble, and so little encouragement was offered, that I began to wonder

Where I Would be Buried.

Finally, as a last effort to help myself, I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The effects of a few doses of the medicine seemed almost magical. The depressed feeling left me, and when one bottle had been taken, I had regained an appetite, and strength was coming back. After finishing the third bottle I was able to go about my commercial duties. I continued to improve, and to satisfy my mind that I had fully regained health, I submitted myself to a doctor for examination. He pronounced me 'sound as a dollar.' Three months later, I passed a rigid examination for insurance. I have since been in the best of health, notwithstanding my travels, and I give Sarsaparilla, as each season since I have taken several bottles. It keeps my blood in good circulation, gives me a keen appetite and leaves no room for that tired feeling which naturally finds easy prey among those of my calling in the summer months after an early spring hustle. THE U. S. TROOPS LEAVE FOR CUBA

Last Night Under Command of Major-General Shafter An Escort of Nineteen War Vessels Accompany Them

CAPT. RIVERA DEFENDS HIMSELF

Madrid, June 12.—At the sitting of the Senate yesterday the chamber was crowded. Captain Rivera, former Governor-General of the Philippine Islands, made a long defence of his administration in the Philippines. He said that in 1881 he asked that a powerful squadron be sent to the Philippines, and that the other defences of the Islands be increased. He later, during the critical relations with the United States, informed his governmen t that an American squadron was about to appear at Manila, and again asked for several iron-clads and other war vessels. The Government wired him on May 12, 1897, that he need not fear a war with the United States and he could return to Spain, but on March 12, 1898, he received another telegram announcing that war was probable between the United States and Spain, and instructed him to prepare for the defence of the Philippines. "But," said the speaker, "what means of defence had I when everything I had requested since 1881 had been refused. I know I ought not to divulget hese matters in the interest of Spain." At this point a senator cried: "The moment has come to say all."

General Rivera continuously declared that the Spanish squadron in the Philippines, owing to a means of defence, was forwarded to perish. After declaring that a native army in the Philippines was absolutely necessary, as Europeans could not survive the climate and the disease. He spoke of the agreement with the rebel by which the chief, Aguinaldo, undertook to submit if the Government would give a certain sum to the widows and orphans of insurgents. A tenth part of this sum was given to Aguinaldo who undertook to distribute it.

General Primo Rivera concluded by declaring that he would give up the cross with which he was decorated if the chamber did not think him worthy of it.

Senor Giroun, Minister of the Colonies, made reply, praising General General Rivera's services and at the same time assuring the chamber that the Government was working incessantly to prevent the country's woes from increasing, which was to be feared. The debate then ended.

SAILED LAST NIGHT

Washington, June 12.—Under command of Major-General Shafter the first division of the United States army will sail to-night from Key West for Santiago de Cuba to beseige and capture that town. The army transports, 30 in number, left Port Tampa yesterday and are now at Key West. The conveying warships are believed to number between 16 and 19 and will be ready for the voyage by nightfall and with this powerful force there is no longer reason for apprehension that the transports can be attacked successfully by any Spanish warships, even if such should have escaped the vigilant search of the commanders.

REPAIRING THE CABLE

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 12.—2 p. m.—No war news has been received today up to this hour. It is probable that the repairs of the Camavera cable can be completed by Thursday or Friday. It is understood that vessels of the United States navy are rendering all the assistance possible.

AMERICANS DRIVEN BACK.

Spaniards, Skillfully Posted, Repulse an Attempted American Landing

Vixen and Suwanee Delight the Insurgents—They Land 30,000 Rounds of Ammunition, with 300 Rifles and 2,000 Machetes, on Cuba's Coast

Madrid, June 11, noon.—An official despatch received here from Havana, dated Friday, June 10, says: This morning eight of Admiral Sampson's ships re-commenced the bombardment of Santiago de Cuba. At the same time a number of boats, towed by a steamer, approached and attempted to make a landing. The Spaniards skilfully posted, repulsed the attempted landing and the Americans drew off. No damage was caused by the shelling from the ships, which kept distant, evidently afraid to venture within range of the guns of the forts.

HUNGRY REBELS.

On boardt he Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, off Santiago de Cuba, Thursday afternoon, June 9, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 11.—In Santiago de Cuba there are now about 20,000 Spanish soldiers, chiefly infantry, but with a fair contingent of cavalry and field artillery, drawn from the surrounding country. During the day time the cavalry skirmish in the vicinity of the city, returning at night to the barracks. During the last few days the activity of the Spaniards has been particularly noticeable. Oxen trains have been making their way to the batteries; detachments have been working on umplacements, and there have been other signs indicating a desperate resistance by the Spaniards.

Some guns from Admiral Cervera's ships may be removed to the forts. The insurgents, about 5,000 strong, have taken a position on a mountain to the westward. Two thousand insurgents of this gathering are unarmed. General Maximo Gomez, now about 150 miles inland, is making his way toward the coast. Admiral Sampson is actively co-operating with the insurgents. Yesterday General Miniet, of the insurgent forces, and his staff went on board of the New York for a long consultation. The naval officers have been doing splendid and daring work in carrying communications to the insurgents, landing arms, and making trips ashoref or the purpose of gaining information. Upon the gunboats Suwanee and Vixen this work has chiefly devolved.

Lieut. Sharp, of the Vixen, and Lieut.-Commander Delehanty of the Suwanee, have been daily intrusted with important missions and have carried them out successfully. The Vixen's work has been chiefly confined to carrying messages to and fro; but the Suwanee has been occupied in a more serious task. This gunboat has landed 300,000 rounds of small arms, ammunition, 300 Springfield rifles, 100car bines, 2,000 machetes, with equipments and provisions. These were handed over to the insurgents, numbering about 800, on Wednesday, about fifteen miles west of Santiago. The insurgents came down to the beach, the main body remaining in the mountains. The debarkation of supplies was tedious, but uninterrupted. The insurgents reported that irregular engagements between their forces and the Spanish cavalry were of daily occurrence. The Cubans were hard up for supplies and ammunition, and were fairly overjoyed at the sight of the Suwanee'sc argo. Some, almost ravenous, hacked at the sides of bacon and ate raw beef. They had been living on limes, cocoa nuts, and sweet potatoes.

Ensign Gilpin, of the Suwanee, went ashore and accompanied the Cubans to their temporary camp inland, where he found ten or a dozen badly wounded men, in need of surgical assistance. Bandages forth em were sent from the Suwanee. The casulties were the result of a brush on the previous night with Spanish cavalry. To the correspondent of the Associated Press on the despatch boat Wanda, Ensign Gilpin, describing his experience at the camp, which is about ten miles inland, said: "I found the insurgents a rough looking and mixed crowd of boys andold men, rigged out anyway, carrying arms of all sorts, and all anxious to borrow everything I had, from my blouse to my revolver.

"Four Spanish soldiers in uniform, carrying rifles,mar ched into the camp while I was there and said they wanted to join the insurgents. They were enrolled, but a close watch was kept on them, as they belonged to the civilg uard. A Cuban officer told me such additions were not infrequent. The Spaniards had Mausser rifles, which were in fairly good condition."

Conservative authorities believe the United States troops will have to carry out their plan of campaign without placing much reliance upon the insurgents. Several young officers have made trips ashore and taken observations of the interior of the harbor and the fortifications, locating the exact position of Admiral eCrvera's ships. It is hardly likely, however, that the Spanish admiral keeps them moored at the same place dayand night. More than once the officers engaged in this shore duty have had narrow escapes from falling in with the enemy's cavalry.

GLOOM THROUGHOUT SPAIN.

New York, June 11.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: "Gloom pervades every part of Spain where the situation in Manila is known. The Government is so much alarmed that it has taken extraordinary military and police precautions, both in the capital and in the provinces. It held backt elegrams to the provincial and and foreign press eight hours in order to let the official messages break the news. Numerous prominent republican agitators and journalists have been arrested, while others are closely watched by detectives.

"The troops are confined in the barracks, where half the officers sleep every night ready to act if a revolution is started. But a revolution is hardly considered likely, as the lower and middle classes are dazed, bewildered, disgusted and weary. They accuse the Government, the press and their rulers of having deceived them. It is an open secret and has been for some time that everybody from the court and Ministers down to the conservative statesmen and generals has been playing a part, for the Opposition, as well as the Ministerialists, knew that Spain would have to give in after crushing defeats and appeal to the powers to mediate."

SPANISH WARSHIPS SAIL.

The Maria Cristina and the Ciudad de Cadiz Set Sail from Ferrol

Dockyards at Ferrol are Working Day and Night—Five Vessels Under Construction—Seven Repaired

London, June 11.—A despatch to The Standard from Corunna, dated Tuesday says: "The arsenal at Ferrol is and has been most active; while the private and Government dock yards are working day and night. The ships under construction are the armored cruiser Cardenal Cisneros, cruiser Vittoria, torpedo gunboats Dona Maria de Molina and Don Alvaro de Bazan and the armed transport Ciudad de Cadiz. The following have been undergoing repairs: The armored cruiser Princesa de Asturias, the Maria Cristina,t he Villa de Bilbao, the Puig-Cerda (monitor), the Guepez Coano, the Duke de Tetuan and the Ejaricto.

"The Maria Christina and the Ciudad de Cadiz have left Ferrol for a destination unknown and under sealed orders. The former left June 6, the latter to-day (Tuesday).

NO LANDING YET.

London, June 11.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "General Linares, commanding the Spanish forces in the province of Santiago de Cuba, cables that nothing has occurred during the last twenty-four hours; that the Americans have not succeeded in effecting a landing, but that the fleet is still off the harbor. General Linares says the report that a Spanish torpedo boat destroyer has been sunk is untrue."

TO DISCUSS THE PHILIPPINES.

Madrid, June 11.—It is reported that Germany will propose a meeting of the European conference to discuss the question of the Philippines. An interview which the German Ambassador Count de Radowitz has had with Duke Almedovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has provoked general comment. An official despatch from Gen. Blanco at Havana says the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror is in Porto Rican waters.

HOBSON IS WELL.

New York, June 11.—A communication has been received from British Consul Ramsden at Santiago de Cuba in reply to a query as to the condition of Lieut. Hobson and the other Merrimac heroes, in which the consul says: "Hobson and his men are well. They are all well cared for by the authorities. I have myself just seen him."

NO INSTRUCTIONS TO AUGUSTI.

Madrid, June 11.—In the Chamber of Deputies Senor Romero Giron, Minister for the Colonies, in reply to a question as to whether Captain-General Augusti had been given instructions in the event of being obligedto surrender, and as to whether these instructions directed him to treat with Admiral Dewey, the American commander, or Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief, saidt he Government had given no instructions on the subject.

THE KEY OF THE FUTURE.

London, June 11.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: Whether Admiral Camara's fleet with reinforcements ever sailed for the Philippines is doubtful. Many people think it may soon be more urgently required nearer home. Meanwhile the political importance of events in the Philippines is fully recognized. The Imparcial says: "As bearing on the peace negotiations, what we may do in the Pacific will be of capital and perhaps of decisive interest. In the bay of Manila is the colonial future of Spain; and in the promptitude with which assistance is sent lies the key of that future."

This and similar references to peace negotiations are significant; but it would be a mistake to assume confidently that the Spanish Government is aboutt o take the initiative in that direction. All I can venture to say is that peace has been brought nearer by recent events.

AN ENGLISH PROTECTORATE.

Vienna, June 11.—The Government has declined to initiate mediation between the United States and Spain, as it wishes to avoid the appearance of making intervention seem only a dynastic action in the interest of the Queen Regent, which, perhaps, might give fatal offence to many parties in Spain. Nevertheless a decided opinion is heldt hat the time for intervention is very nearly at hand. The probability is that Russia will undertake the initiative within one or two days. No doubt exists in official minds in Vienna that the Philippines cannot remain in the hands of America. The insurgents there reject all foreign control, and it is not conceivable that America could provide a sufficient force to take full possession.

The probability is that the powers will find a way out of the difficulty by establishing a protectorate, which, perhaps, England might undertake.

A RISING AGAINST RUSSIA

St. Petersburgh, June 11.— The report of an unexpected attack by a thousand natives on a Russian post garrisoned by 300 infantry, at Andijan Ferghana Province, Turkestan, is confirmed.

The uprising in which 20 soldiers were killed, and as many more wounded, was of purely religious origin, and due the intrigues of the Mussulman priesthood, who, excited by Turkey's victory over Greece, promoted the outbreak with the most serious reverses to the Russian arms sustained in Central Asia in many years.

The leader of the band, a high Mussulman priest, has confessed to a secret understanding with high official circles at Constantinople, and admits that the uprising was intended to be general in the province of Ferghana.

TO ST. PETERSBURGH·

London, June 11.—Sir Charles Stewart Scott, British Mister at Copenhagen has been appointed British Ambassador to Russia, in succession of Sir Nicholas O'Connor.

Sir Charles Scott was born in 1838 He entered the dipolamatic service in 1858, has served as many courts, and been Minister to Switzerland and denmark.

JAP CABINET BEATEN.

Yokohama, June 11.—The Imperial Diet was re-opened yesterday, After a stormy discussion, the Government's proposals for land taxation were rejected amid great uproar. The Diet will probably be dissolved.

GRAVEL TRAIN WRECKED

Four Trainmen Killed and Two Seriously Injured

CAUSED BY AN OPEN SWITCH

Story of the Wreck as Told by Engineer Murray

Prorogation on Monday—Big Fire in Detroit—Choynski to Fight McCoy—John Blackburn, Thinking to Avoid a Train, Steps in Front of It and Loses His Life

(Special to the Times.)

Russell, June 11.—Four men were instantly killed and two injured last evening in a railway accident on the Ottawa and New York railway, at Embrum, four miles distant from this by the derailing of a gravel train. The victims are W. Greenless, conductor, Detroit, Mich.; —Rombough, laborer, Ntwington, Ont.; and — Brown, laborer Ntwington, Ont.

NEAR THE STATION.

Shortly after six o'clock last evening the construction train, in charge of Conductor Greenless and Engineer Murray, was approaching Embrum station, traveling at a moderate speed. Immediately after crossing the Castor river bridge, the train ran into an open switch leading to a temporary siding, with the result that the locomotive and ten cars loaded with gravel were piled in one mass of destruction, crushing out at least four lives beneath them. Twelve other cars loaded with gravel, composing the train, remained on the track.

STORY OF THE WRECK.

Engineer Murray's story of the wreck is that Greenless, Rombough, Brown and another man were sitting together on top of a car load of gravel on the behind the locomotive as the train neared Embrum. After crossing the bridge he noticed that the switch was open. He was then only about two hundred yards from the switch, and seeing that he could not stop the train reversed his engine and shouted to the men behind, warning them of their danger.

TOLD TO JUMP.

He also told the fireman Chrysler to jump for his life. The fireman did so before the train reached the switch, the engineer remaining at his post till the locomotive left the track and then jumped, escaping with a slight bruise.

The fireman and three men on the gravel car were buried in the wreck. Immediately the work of removing the debris with the hope tha some of the victims might be rescued alive was begun. Within a few hours the bodies of Chrysler, Rombough and Brown were found, but it was not until daybreak this morning, after the men had worked all night that the body of Conductor Greenless was discovered.

THE WRECK CLEARED.

To-day the wreck is being cleared, and it is considered possible that more bodies may be found, as occasionally laborers who had formarly worked on the new road stole a ride on the construction trains. Dr Ferguson, coroner of Cumberland, will hold an inquest at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The bodies lie in Embrum station until the coroner's jury examine them. The remains of Fireman Chrysler will be buried Monday forenoon with Masonic honors. It is believed boys opened the switch, causing the accident.

KILLED BY THE EXPRESS

Ottawa, June 11.—John Blackburn was instantly killed yesterday by the C. P. R. Winnepeg express, near Castleford, while walking on the track.

PROROGATION ON MONDAY

Ottawa, June 11.—The Senate today threw out the Manitoba School Fund bill by a vote of 23 to7.

Lord Aberdeen notified the Speaker of the Senate to-day that he would prorogate Parliament at three o'clock on Monday.

BIG FIRE IN DETROIT

Detroit June 11.—G. F. Case's immense power building on Congress street west was discovered on fire at 3 o'clock this morning. The building was a very large seven storey structure occupied by many light manufaturing concerns. The Union Trust building, Moffat and Buhl and other office buildings in the vicinity were covered with showers of sparks. Nothing in the Case building was saved. Five firemen were caught inside the Case building by the rush of the flames and all were severely burned. The fire originated in the drying room of the printing office of the Michigan Farmer newspaper on the fourth floor. The rapididy with which the whole outfit went up in smoke and flames was extraordinary. The Case building was valued at $90.000. It was insured for 60.003. The contents are roughly estimated at [illegible],000, but may reach above that amount.

CHOYNSKI TO FIGHT McCOY

Chicago, June 11.—Joe Choynski has signed articles to fight Kid McCoy 20 rounds before the Hawthorne A. C. of Buffalo, N. Y., August 27. The men will fight at catch weights. The purse offered is $7,500, winner to take 75 per cent., loser 25 per cent. According to the articles signed the men are at liberty to hit with one arm free and in breakaways. To bind the match each man will immediately put up a forfeit of $500.

RAN ASHORE

St John's, Nfld., June 11.—A steamer whose name is not given, while bound from St. John's, N.B., for England, with a general cargo and a deckload of deals, went ashore during a dense fog at about 9.30 o'clock Saturday morning, at St. Shott's Cove, 100 miles from here. The crew and passengers will probably be saved.

MODERN NAVAL WARFARE

The Chicago Record has an instructive article on the modern methods of naval warfare. We condense it in a way to bring all the information before our readers in the shortest possible space.

To understand the peculiarly destructive power of the guns with which modern navies are provided it must be kept in mind that most of these larger instruments of warfare carry a projectile which not only has great penetrating power, but contains some high explosive, easily denotated upon striking any obstacle offering fair resistance.

The mortar, discharging an explosive shell through a high trajectory, the muzzle of the gun being upturned to an angle of 45 degrees is still in use in shore batteries. But modern science has mastered the invention of shell guns, which can shoot point blank with high velocity and will explode with terrific effect on striking a target. Some of the smaller and rapid-fire guns of course, shoot solid masses of steel, highly tempered, and capable of great penetration. Projectiles designd for this purpose are sent from the muzzle of the gun with immense force, and are capable of penetrating armor plate of the best kind to a thickness of 30 per cent. greater than the caliber of the projectile. But the deadliest damage is done by the shell gun carrying a mis-explosive charge which is detonated sile, which aside from its great weight and penetrating power, holds a very immediately upon impact with the target, although some shells are exploded by a fuse.

As to the relative merits of the explosives opinions differ, but gun cotton is a favorite, through the French navy uses melinite as the bursting charge. The shells themselves differ both in form and size and in their design. The "incendiary shell" is filled with some substance designed to set fire to the enemy's ship. The ordinary Hotchkiss shell contains in its cylinder a heavy charge, and the projectile is made with a casting of three thicknesses in order that it may break into a large number of pieces when bursting. The skill which has been expended on projectiles of this class may be imagined from the fact that they can be discharged with a heavy concussion without exploding, and the danger of unintentional explosions has been so minimized that while the shell from a heavy cannon will burst if its impact is against four inches of steel it will not explode when sent against the ordinary side-plating of ships.

The penetrating power of these modern impliments of warfare is great, but their destructive effect of explosion is terriffic. When an accurate gunner sends an 1, 800 pound curate gunner sends an 1,800 pound missile loaded with 170 pounds of high explosives against the side of a hostile vessel near the water line he practically dooms it to destruction. No armor-plate yet invented has been found strong enough to stand even a short fusilade of this sort.

AGAINST AN ALLIANCE

The Irish National Club of New York has uttered a solem protest against an Angalo-American alliance. The club met in due form and "resoluted" to a considerable extent. Then the secretary sent copies all over the country so that the sentiments of the club should be known and respected. These are only a few of the resolutions:

That while we remember the Main, we also remember Nathan Hale, Wyoming, Washington and the Alabama, and we do not forget Lafayette, Rochambeau and the Russian fleet—nor the advice of Washington.

The success in freeing Cuba is not dependent upon the alliance between the young, vigorous mighty, republican America and monarchical old England.

That as our national life will depend upon self-supporting industry an agriculture that will feed our own people, and manufacturers that need no foreign aid, we are loath to consider the descendents of the Tories of the Revolution and the representatives of the British interests of today the proper people to guide the destinies of the Republic.

That with our capacity to produce and manufacture, we are unalterably opposed to any entangling alliance that would antagonize purchasers or prevent sales of our surplus food products and manufactures to the evident disadvantage of the American farmer, the American manufacturer and the American workingmen.

That the proposed Anglo-Saxon alliance, viewed in the light of history, would be inconsistent with the traditional policy of the fathers, an insult to our cosmopolitan population, native to the soil, or sprung from Germany, France, Italy, Scandinavia, Russia and the whole motherland of Europe.

That with wealth and power planted on our own domain, we protest against an alliance engendering a world-wide antagonism, retarding development, trade and commerce, and preventing the dictation of our own trade.

Canadians who have had little confidence in the abiding nature of the proposed alliance, so far as the United States is concerned, will have that confidence increased by such resolutions. They show that the American enemies of Great Britan have fears that it will become an accomplished fact. If that should be the "happy issue," the occupation of the Irish-American tail-twisters will be lost, for politicians would cease pandering to that element. If the rapprochment has the effect of making "tail-twisting" an unprofitable political performance, American statesmen will live to call it blessed.

Of course the Merrimac is the cork. And, equally, of course, Hobson and his six men were the cork's crew.

Sir Claude Macdonald, the British Minister at Pekin, has obtained a lease of land, including Kodloon, which secures the strategic safety of Hong Kong as a naval base. With an impregnable naval base, Great Britain will take a lot of beating in China, whether the foe is Russia or anybody else.

When the Plebiscite Bill came up for a third reading Sir Mackenzie Bowell asked that it be allowed to stand over, as the action of the Senate with regard to it would depend on the action of the Lower Chamber with respect to the Franchise Bill. This looks as if Sir Mackenzie intended to push his obstruction tactics to the point of a duel with the Commons.

At Peterborough the town council has refused to make a grant to entertain the Grand Lodge of Good Templars. The soreheads threaten to contest the legality of the grant to the Wheelman's Meet Committee.—Toronto Star.

Bosh, my dear boy, bosh. The councouncil has granted a small sum to the Good Templars, and why wouldn't it? Haven't we got the purest drinking water in Canada in Peterborough? That's why we never drink anything stronger.

Liver Trouble

When the yellow flag of quarantine is hoisted over a dwelling it means disease and danger. So when the yellow flag flies in the face—when the cheek is sallow and the clear white of the eye is dyed saffron—there is danger. It is liver trouble. The liver is one of the most important organs of the body. On the proper discharge of its functions depend human health and happiness. When the liver fails of its duty, poisons at once begin to generate, and other organs of the body become involved. Never neglect the liver if you value health. If you are suffering from liver trouble, begin at once the use of AYER'S PILLS and you will find prompt relief and permanent cure.

"I was so weakened by liver trouble that I could scarcely lift my head. While in this condition I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued their use until I was cured of my complaint."

Towner, N. D.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

CHAPTER XVIII.

Nina awaited the dawning of Sunday withg reat impatience. She had the papers and portraits; they were still safe in the little sandal-wood box which she had purloined from Stella.

She had experienced little difficulty in securing it: she had in her possession a large bunch of keys which had once belonged to her mother, and after leaving the reception room, where Stella was engrossed by her conversation with Judge Orlin, she had run hastily to her own room, where she found the keys and put them in her pocket.

No one saw her as sheascended the stairs to the attic, and aftera few trials she found a curiously shaped brass key, which opened the cedar chest With nimble fingers the creole lifted out all the articles which covered the box.

"Ah,t hat is where she keeps them!" she exclaimed, when she caught sight of it, and as it was not locked, she soon satisfied herself that she was right. Very swiftly and deftly all the articles she had abstracted were returned to their places, and hiding the box beneath the drapery of her white dress, she returned to her room, and before she had been missed from the parlor she was back in her place.

Sunday dawned fair and cool, with a fresh breeze blowing from the lake, and w hite clouds drifting overhead.

Nina arrayed herself with unusual care, in a handsome dress of white cloth, with silver braidin gand buttons. Stella had wrought radical changes in the style of her costumes but the West Indian girl still loved gay and showy attire.

Her beautiful glossy hair was dressed in massive braids, and her small, close toque, partly covered by a white gauzy vail, which fell over her face and lent it a delicate bloom, her sunshade of pale-pink, covered with white lace, and her dainty gloves, completed a toilet which Nina felt certain the strange young man whom she was going to meet would consider extremely becoming.

"It is strange that he did not tell me his name,' said Nina, as she tucked an American Beauty rose in her belt, and tripped down the street.

Jeffrey was on the corner, elaborately dressed, and looking as much like a wealthy member of the upper ten as he knew how.

"Good-morning, Miss Dunlap!" he said, raising his silk hat, and smiling to show his white teeth, which constituted his only beauty.

"Good-morning,' replied Nina. She glanced up at him and added, "I do not know your name."

"Why, what an oversight on my part,' exclaimed Jeffrey; "how intensely stupid of me! My name is Howard Montague."

He had adopted so many aliases that one more or less signified nothign, and under the circumstances a high-sounding one was most appropriate.

"How aristocratic!" thought Nina, "he must belong to some very old old family of noble descent."

"Now, miss, as you promised you would go for a drive with me, I have a carriage waiting. I thought it was better to leave it a few blocks away, if you do not mind walking that far."

"Yes; I do not want any one to see me."

Ast hey walked on, Jeffrey inquired anxiously whether Nina had been able to ascertain anything in regard to Stella's parentage.

"Did you ask about her father and mother?"

"I did better than that. I found a box with a lot of letters and papers, and some pictures, funny old things, and It ook it."

"What?" cried Jeffrey, with sparkling eyes, "you took it?"

"Yes; it was too big to bring with me to-day, so I pu tthe letters in my prayer-book, and I'll give you the rest another time."

She handed to him a thick packet of old papers, which he seized, and carefully put away in his pocket-book.

"You aret he smartest and most lovely young lady I ever saw," said the "crook" enthusiastically.

Nina blushed; she was too fond of flattery to be particular as to the source whence it came.

"I love Stella very much," she said, "and I shall be glad to think that she will get her fortune through me. By the by, there was an old gentleman telling her a lot of things the other night; that is how I came to know about the box of letters."

She proceeded to relate every word of the conversation which she had overheard. It was just enough to puzzle Artful Jeff.

One fact was clear to his mind, however; that was that Stella had been informed of the inheritance which might some day be hers.

He regretted that; he was enough of a judge of character to know that Stella was not the kind of a girl who could be easily hoodwinked or deceived.

The Road Hog

Bicyclists who take a spin into the country complain of the "road hog," that is, the fellow who drives a vehicle and labors under the mistaken idea that the whole road belongs to him. Drivers should remember that when a bicycle overtakes them the law says they must turn to the right and give sufficient room to pass. A failure to comply with these instructions may be expensive for the r. h.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvelous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing thee musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Plan for Exchanging the Crew of the Merrimac Temporarily Frustrated

Spanish Circumlocution Now Stands in the Way—The Subject has been Taken out of Cervera's Hands

With the blockading fleet, off Santiago, June 8, 10 p.m., via Mole St. Nicholas, June 10.—Lieutenant Hobson and his heroic companions in the exploit of sinking the collier Merrimac across the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, may not be released for some time. To-day Admiral Cervera sent a flag of truce to Admiral Sampson, with a message that the prisoners were in the hands of the military authorities, and that their cases had been referred by the military governor of Santiago to Governor-General Blanco. The plan of exchange submitted by Admiral Sampson to Admiral Cervera is thus temporarily frustrated.

A CRITICAL PERIOD.

London, June 10.—The Times says editorially this morning: "Probably the next few days will form as critical period as any Spanish Government has yet passed through. It is useless for Spain to cherish pleasing illusions. America will lick her volunteers into a shape good enough for work in hand a good deal more quickly than seems to be anticipated in Madrid."

The Daily News says "Spain's best friends can only urge her to submit without delay. There is no armor against fate, and there is no remedy for incapacity. If international diplomacy deals with the war, Lord Salisbury will insist upon the just claims of the United States to secure the reward of energy and foresight in a good cause.'

New APPEAL TO THE POPE.

London, June 10.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily News says: "A new appeal has been made to the Pope to intervene, or to use all his influence to obtain the interference of the powers. It is asserted that the Queen Regent has even submitted to the Pope the question of her retirement in order to allay public discontent.

THE SECOND EXPEDITION.

San Francisco, June 10.—Wednesday, June 15, is the date scheduled for the sailing of the second Manila expedition. The fleet will include the China, 1,100 men; Colon, 800; Zealandia, 750; Senator, 800; Morgan City, 700; and City of Para, 800, it being announced last night that the Morgan City and Senator would be added. The Nebraska regiment will probably go with the expedition. The field guns of the battery will be moved to the ships. One gun on each ship will be installed on deck for the purpose of defence.

TO CONVOY TROOPS.

Washington, June 10.—A powerful fleet of 16 warships is now assembled in Florida waters to convoy the troops and transports to Cuba at once.

THEY DREAMED IT.

The latter report is now known to have had no foundation, and there is a conflict of opinion among the officers of the fleet as to whether the New Orleans had in reality met a torpedo boat. When the firing was begun on Friday night it was dark and the object at which the guns on the United States ships were directed seemed to be moving close in shore. A railroad line connects Santiago with Cave Point, at a distance of fifteen miles, the site of iron manufactories. The track runs along the water edge, and the trains which carry supplies and probably war material, are only run at night and without light. It is possible that in the darkness a fast moving train may have been mistaken, as one was last week, for a torpedo boat. But the discovery by the Porter of two torpedoes on Saturday afternoon floating in the water two miles from shore tended to strengthen the theory of those who insisted that a torpedo attack had been attempted.

THEY SHOOT AT EACH OTHER.

A sharp lookout is maintained by the blockading squadron in guarding against night torpedo attacks; and it has already led to firing by the United States ships upon each other, on at least two occasions. During the last week the battleship Texas fired upon the Marblehead and the Vixen and both the latter vessels had narrow escapes. Only the flash of their signal lights, and on the occasion in question, the fortunately bad aim of the gunners of the Texas, saved them.

Several of the newspaper despatch boats have also had rather stirring experiences of a similar character. It should be said that on board the New York and the New Orleans they are quite confident a torpedo attack was repulsed on Friday night.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

I have used Kenny's Hair Restorer for dandruff and falling out of my hair. It has removen the dandruff, and a few applications prevented my hair falling out. Three bottles of Kennys Hair Restorer has restored the hair on my head to its original state. I can in justice to the manufacturer recommend Kennys Hair Restorer from my own experience as the best remedy I have ever heard of for the prevention and cure of baldness, and I am sure it will accomplish all that it is claimed for it if properly applied as directed.

Dissolution of Partnership

As will be seen by notice in another column, the partnership heretofore existing between Mr. R. Mulholland and Mr. J. H. Roper, will be dissolved on July 1st. Mr. Mulholland in retiring does so with regret. During the past nine years the business has become well established and he has formed a great many business attachments which he is sorry to be compelled to terminate. But the demands of family ties requires his retirement—he expects to remove to Toronto in the fall. During the time of his residence in Peterborough Mr. Mulholland has made many friends who will learn of his departure with regret. He was a public spirited citizen who took an active part in public concerns involving the promotion of the interests of the town. A large number of persons will greatly miss the conveniences afforded by a private bank, in case Mr. Roper does not continue the business which, however, he will probably do He has the matter under consideration at present.

LITTLE SISTER.

Little sister's prim and sly,
With a keen and knowing eye,
With a bright and roguish glance,
Sharper than a soldier's lance.
At that glance my faint heart goes
Down and hobnobs with my toes.
Can she know the boon I seek—
Why I call three times a week?
How she watches all my moves—
Ah, I hope she quite approves!
And she treats me to such airs,
While my darling is up stairs.

She's discovered why I call!
Little sister knows it all!

—Harry Romaine in Ladies' Home Journal.

SHE THOUGHT IT STRANGE.

Naggley Went Out For His Little Walk Anyway.

Naggley threw down the evening paper he had been reading, yawned and stretched and said he guessed he'd go out for a little while, whereupon Mrs. Naggley said:

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, no place in particular."

"No, I s'pose not. It's anything or any place to get away from home with you. It's mighty strange that you can't content yourself for any length of time in your own home—mighty strange. I was reading this from Goethe today, 'He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.' I said to myself when I read it, 'I wish to the Lord Joe Naggley felt more like that.'

"Mrs. Goethe must have been a happy woman to have a husband who could say that. I'll bet a dime she did not have to sit alone evening after evening while Mr. Goethe ripped and paced around anywhere and everywhere, just so he needn't have to be at home with the wife he'd promised to love and honor and cherish, and who had done all she could to make home pleasant for him, and I'll bet Mr. Goethe didn't belong to three or four lodges and clubs that ought to be wiped out of existence, so the members of them would stay at home with their wives, where they belong.

"It's mighty strange that a man [illegible] talk so sweet and nice about a home of his own when he's trying to delude some girl into marrying him, and then when he gets her and a home he wants to be on the gad all the time. I say it's mighty strange.

"How many times before we were married did you make me sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' for you, and now if I try to sing it you look as if you'd taken a dose of ipecac. And look at that motto, 'There's no place like home,' that you made me work before we were married so as to have it all ready for our own home. It doesn't appeal to you any more than it appeals to that lamppost out there across the street. I'd like to know why.

"The land knows I do all I can to make home peaceful and pleasant for you. You couldn't scrape up a tablespoonful of dirt in this whole house, and I'll put my cooking against that of any other woman I know of—yes, I'd put it against Mrs. Goethe's even.

"I'll bet that her husband appreciated her a good deal more than you appreciate me, and I'll bet her home wasn't a bit cleaner than mine, nor her— What's that? What did you say about her tongue? I pity the poor woman if she didn't have a tongue.

"There never was a married woman yet who didn't need all the tongue the Lord gave her, and I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for my tongue, and—Oh, yes; rush off as usual right when your wife is speaking! It shows just how much you respect her. It's mighty strange how soon men change after they are married—mighty strange!"—St.

WHILE IT IS POSSIBLE

To successfully grind a concave surface like the one shown in Cut No 1, yet the time spent will not allow of the job being done economically, hence it is never done, and as a result of this not being done the bearings show the marks of machine tools. This rough surface prevents a smooth and even movement of the balls, causing the machine to run hard and this, together with the TWISTING OF THE BALLS, will cut cones and cups until they are useless. The Four-Point Bearings as used only in the

are made of the finest tool steel and are ground to an ABSOLUTELY TRUE FLAT SURFACE FOR HARDENING. We do not draw the temper to do this. The construction of our Four-Point Bearings enables us to guarantee no TWIST OF THE BALLS in the ball race; also that dust cannot get in or oil out of the pathway of the balls. These bearings are guaranteed for three years against wear.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Elected to be Tried by Jury

Harry Ross appeared before Judge Weller Saturday morning, on a charge of robbery, and elected to be tried by a jury.

Lucas Captured at Drayton

Some time ago Chief Roszel received a telegram from the Chief of Police at Gravenhurst asking him to arrest a man known as Jas. Lucas, who travelled under several aliases, as he was wanted on a charge of larceny. Constalbes Adams and McGinity went to arrest Lucas, who was living at the corner of Antrim and Bethune streets, but he jumped from an up-stairs window at four o'clock in the morning and escaped. A letter was received Saturday stating that Lucas had been arrested by Constable Flath, of Drayton, and had pleaded guilty at Gravenhurst to the charge of larceny.

The Rooters Won

A very interesting baseball match took place Saturday between the Rooters and the Gallery hands of the Canadian General Electric works. The Rooters won by 26 runs to 11. Only seven innings were played on account of rain interfering. B. Ramsden and the D'Russia brothers put up a star game for the Rooters, as also did Guerin and Breckenridge for the Gallery hands. The Rooters hereby challenge the Canadian General Elcycle Club to a game next Saturday, for fun, money or marbles. R. H. Shepherd umpired the game to everybody's satisfaction.

Grand Lodge I. O. G. T.

The local Good Templars have completed preparations for the reception of the delegates to the convention of Ontario Grand Lodge, which opens in Association hall in the Y.M.C.A. building to-morrow. It is expected there will be a big attendance of delegates. Most of these will arrive to-morrow and committees have been appointed to meet the visitors at the trains and conduct them to the Y.M.C.A. building, where they will be shown their billets. All the delegates are exuected to be present for Wednesday's session when the most important business of the convention will be discussed. The Grand Lodge officers will be elected for the next year at the convention and it is expected that strong associations for the County and province will be organized for the plebiscite campaign.

NINE CRIMINAL CASES

Will be Disposed Off at the Assizes Which Open To morrow

The Assizes open to-morrow afternoon before Judge Weller. The docket, is a heavy one, and is as follows:

CIVIL CASES.

McNeely vs. Scott—Ellen McNeely, the plaintiff, is a married woman residing in Asphodel, and is the mother of the defendant, Mr. Robt. Scott, who resides in Norwood. The statement of claim sets forth that the plaintiff being entitled to a life estate in west half and southeast quarter of lot No. 17 in Asphodel, and in possession thereof sold the crop to the defendant who then entered into occupation of the said land. In the month of February the defendant unlawfully removed from the said farm four horses belonging to the plaintiff, and placed them in his livery stable at Norwood, and although the plaintiff demanded from the defendant the return thereof before the commencement of this action, he refused to deliver the same.

The plaintiff claims the said horses and $25 damages and her costs in this action.

In the statement of defence the defendant says that in the year 1897 the plaintiff was in possession of her farm in Asphodel, and being unable to work it, requested the plaintiff to move from the village of Norwood, where he was then working under salary, and to return to the said farm and work the land for her and remove the crop there growing, and in consideration thereof she gave to him the farm horses in question. The defendant says that all conditions were fulfilled and all things happened and all times elapsed to entitle defendant to possession of the goods and chattels hereinbefore mentioned.

Geo. J. Sherry for plaintiff; Stratton & Hall for defendant.

Martha Helson vs. Wm. Drummond and the Corporation of the Township of Otonabee. In this case the statement of claim sets forth that the defendants on Nov. 23rd unlawfully seized certain goods of the plaintiff, to wit, one mare, a set of harness and a buggy and converted the same to their own use. The defendant, Wm. Drummond, claims to have done the said acts as collector of taxes for the defendants, the corporation of the township of Otonabee, for the year 1897, but the plaintiff says that the said acts were done maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause; or, in the alternative, that the said acts were done in a matter in which by law the defendants had not jurisdiction. The plaintiff claims to have sustained damage to the amount of $200, and claims this amount and her costs in the action.

The defendants, the corporation of the township of Otonabee, deny that they seized, or authorized anyone in their behalf to seize any goods, the property of the plaintiff.

The defendant, Wm. Drummond, says that he is the collector of taxes for the township of Otonabee, and was fulfilling his duty when he seized the goods mentioned, and that he is entitled to the benefit of the Act for the Protection of Justices of the Peace and others.

The defendants further allege that the goods claimed by the plaintiff were not her property, but belonged to one George Helson, from whom they were seized to satisfy a claim against him for unpaid taxes.

E. B. Edwards for plaintiff; Denistoun, Peck & Stevenson for defendants.

CRIMINAL CASES.

There are three indictments against Jas. McDonald, alias Mart. Marshall, viz., robbery of the Norwood post office, arson and causing a dangerous explosion.

Two charges of perjury are preferred against Mark Black, caused by the evidence which he gave in his own behalf at the Police Court in the charge of assault brought against him by Mrs. Irwin.

John Walker is charged with the theft of a bicycle from Wolstenholm's livery.

Harry Ross has a charge of robbery against him, and there are two appeals, viz: In the case of Irwin vs. Black, on a conviction by D. W. Dumble for assault; and Fobes vs. Howall, appealed by the defendant against a conviction by D. W. Dumble on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Is the Provincial C. W. A. Meet in the Hands of a Ring?

Editor Times:

Sir,—I notice in the Times of Saturday a letter from a citizen roundly scoring the local managers of the provincial C.W.A. meet for niggardliness unbecoming a large and prosperous town like Peterborough. I quite agree with your correspondent and I am positive that he but voices the opinion held by hundreds of our citizens.

In the interests of the public I would like to ask a few pertinent questions: Is it a fact that the meet is in the hands of a "ring' who are working it for their own personal aggrandisement? If this statement is correct, what right has this "ring" to the $300 granted by the town? In view of the fact that the meet is bound to be a money-maker I propose, if the first question is answered in the affirmative, to challenge the payment of the grant by the town council, and consider that I will be perfectly justified in taking such action if the surplus cash is to go into the pockets of private individuals. This is no idle boast. Public sentiment will back up any action along these lines. Awaiting a reply and thanking you for giving this a place in your columns, I am,

Yours very truly,

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT

A Man Named Goselin Attacked by a Stallion and so Severely Injured that he Will Die

A shocking accident occurred near Ballieboro Saturday afternoon, and which will likely result in the death of a man named Goselin

From the meagre details at hand we gather the following:

Goselin was engaged in travelling "Tyrone," a stallion owned by Mr. R. Shaw, of Cavan, and Saturday afternoon, when a short distance from Ballieboro, alighted from the sulky to talk to a farmer. While thus engaged, and without the slightest warning, the stallion rushed at him and knocked him down. The vicious animal then commenced to tear the unfortunate man with its teeth and trample upon him.

The farmer in the meantime had not been idle, but had secured a club and at once attacked the stallion, knocking it down and dragging Goselin to a place of safety.

Goselin's injuries were simply frightful. The horse had actually torn with its teeth a large hole in the man's side and trampled him in a horrible manner.

Medical aid was procured as quickly as possible and all that could be done to relieve the victim's sufferings was done.

There is, unfortunately, not the slightest chance of Goselin surviving the terrible injuries sustained.

Goselin's parents live in Port Hope and were notified of the accident Saturday evening.

THE WRONG MAN

A Case of Mistaken Identity Gets a Hobo In to Trouble

A citizen was standing in front of the C.P.R. station yesterday when a freight train pulled in from the east. He was quietly looking at the long line of cars when the door of a box car slowly opened and a tramp who was stealing a ride took a peep out to refresh his knowledge of the geography of the country and then quietly closed the door.

Now, the citizen referred to has an idea that he missed his vocation in life and that he has all the qualifications that go to make up a slick detective. The hobo's face was familiar and a moment's reasoning made it clear as day that he had seen the man in company with McDonald, the night he was arrested in Havelock. A bright thought flashed through his mind—he would lock the door of the box car and notify the police. The plan was no sooner formulated than it was put into execution.

The bubble exploded, however, when the supposed burglar and desperado reached the police station and produced a seaman's discharge certificate, showing that he had a few days previously been sailing the briny deep.

The sailor was given his liberty and the citizen the laugh.

PETERBOROUGH WON

Trinity College School, Port Hope, Defeated at Cricket Saturday Afternoon

A very interesting cricket match was played on the P.A.A.A. grounds here Saturday afternoon, between Trinity College School, Port Hope, and the Colts.

The Colts team was composed as follows: Frank Bradburn (Capt.) Willie Macdonell, Harry McKee, Claude Rogers, Harold Armstrong, Hubert McBain, Stanley Bradd, Jack Fessenden, Crawford Sawers, Douglas Hammond, and Harry Rogers.

The match was stopped in the second innings owing to a heavy downpour of rain.

The score stood: Peterborough, 33; Trinity College School, 31, Peterborough thus leading by two runs.

In the evening the College lads were entertained by Mrs. John McKee, London street.

The return match will be played at Port Hope at an early date.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

The Strangers Within Our Gates and Other Paragraphs of a Personal Nature

Miss Annie Paul is in Lakefield for a few weeks.

Mr. J. M. Irwin went to Haliburton Saturday morning.

Mr. Geo. J. Sherry, of Norwood, was in town Saturday.

Mrs. Jas. McWilliams, of Hastings, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. J.P. McNamara, of Quebec, formerly of Peterborough, is in town.

Prof. Vontom and wife (Rosa D'Erina) are at present residing in Peterborough.

Rev. Robt. Laird, of Campbellford, preached morning and evening in St. Paul's church yesterday.

Mr. A. H. Ramer, artist of Stouffville, is renewing old acquaintances in town. He is the guest of Mr. K. G. Lech.

Mrs. M. Brandon, Mr. J. J. Brandon and Mr. and Mrs. N.W. Brandon, of Fenelo nalls, are visiting at Mr. W. H. Robertson's, Water street.

Rev. A. S. Hammond Graeme, priest in charge of South Burleigh and Buckhorn mission, has resigned his charge. The Rev. Mr. Creswick, of Toronto, is appointed his successor.

Manager McHarrie, of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, is not improving as fast as could be wished from the injuries received when he recently fractured his leg in Toronto.

Mrs. R. A. Howson, of Toronto, the talented organist of the George-st. Methodist church, has resigned her position. Mrs. Howson will continue with the church until a successor has been secured. Mrs. Howson's departure will be regretted by her many friends in Peterborough. During the six months she has been connected with the church she has rendered very efficient and satisfactory service.

Among the honor lists of students passing the examinations at Toronto as published in the Toronto papers, the names of several former students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute appear in the different departments. Mr. J. A. Smithson took first class honors in political science and in modern languages, standing second in the former and seventh in the latter. This is in the fourth year term. In second year work Mr. W. J. Cragg took honors in Oriental languages, standing first in his class. Mr. W. J. Thom took honors in political science, and Mr. W. J. Spence in modern languages. In first year work Mr. E. G. Porter and Mr. J. H. Beer took honors in general proficiency.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Dan Godfrey's celebrated band will visit Peterborough this month. Arrangements are about completed, but the date is not definitely fixed. It will probably be the 27th of June. The visit of the famous band will no doubt be received with great enthusiasm in Peterborough.

—Hamilton recently purchased a steam road roller, and as Peterborough is about to decide the question of a similar purchase, the following from the Hamilton Herald is interesting: "The new roller was at work on Napier street this morning, and an admiring crowd watched its operations. Several who had been opponents of its purchase acknowledged that the corporation had made a good bargain, as in an hour and a half it did as much work as a score of men could have done in a day."

Commodore Calcut is having a large addition built to the dance hall at Jubilee. This famed summer resort is growing in popularity year by year, and this deason promises to be the best in its history. The grounds are splendidly adapted for all kinds of athletic games. The orchestra is always available and is in charge of Prof. Tucker, who has filled a similar position for years at the Sand Banks. Jubilee offers more inducements to picnic parties than any other summer resort in the Midland District.

The Young's Point Football Club are out with a challenge to any team in the province to play a match at Jubilee for a silver cup or $25 cash. For particulars address H. Calcutt, Esq., Peterborough.

GERMAN HOSTILITY

Paris, June 13.—The Tempest this afternoon publishes a despatch from Madrid, in which it is said that communications exchanged between high officials at Madrid, Vienna and Berlin do not treat directly of peace, but "an important view of the situation may arise out of Germany's hostility to the development of American intervention in the Philippine Islands, and in connection with the reported intention of the United States to occupy the Ladrone and Caroline Islands. It is reported that Germany has long desired Porape as a coaling station. As the Spanish Cabinet does not consider the moment arrived to discuss peace, the despatch continues: "The war party and press interpret the international pourparlers as an indication of an understanding and a combination, possibly leading to co-operation with the United States.

WILL ACCEPT PEACE

Brussels, June 13.—The special Madrid correspondent of the Petit Bleu of this city telegraphs an interview which he claims to have had with Senor Merino, the Private Secretary of Spanish Premier Senor Sagasta, in which the secretary is quoted as having formerly declared that the Spanish Government will now accept any peace proposal, which is submitted "on the express condition that it does not emanate from the enemy," but the Premier's secretary is said to have added: "The international mediation, which would be especially welcomed upon the part of Spain, would be in the case of the initiative being taken by France or Austria."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

REVOLUTION TERMINATED

Washington, June 13.—Information has reached the State Department that the revolution which has prevailed in Venezuela for the past six months ended last night by the defeat and capture of Hernandez, its leader. People are celebrating the termination of the revolution by public demonstrations. As a result President Andrade remains more firmly than ever seated in the executive office in Caracas.

GUNBOAT FIRED ON

Off Santiago de Cuba, Wednesday, June 8th, 10 p. m., via Kingston, Jamaica, June 9.—10.50 a. m.—The Yankee and St. Louis cut the cable at Guantanamo sixty miles east of Santiago de Cuba yesterday afternoon and Cuba is thus believed to be finally shut off from communication with the outerworld. The Marblehead fired at a small Spanish gunboat. She returned the fire, the old fashioned forts joined in the engagement, the gunboat retreated into harbor and the forts were silenced by the Marblehead. It is not believed the Spanish gunboat was struck, as the range was too great. The Marblehead and Yankee returned to the blockade at midnight.

The steam launches which now form a picket line to guard against a torpedo boat attack, reported yesterday that the Spaniards were apparently attempting to repair the batteries damaged by bombardment of Monday. Rear Admiral Sampson thereupon said he believed that half if not more of the enemy's guns had been dismantled. When asked if he did not think Spaniards deserted their batteries early during the bombardment he replied: "Yes, I am sure they did; they could not stand that terrific fire."

AMERICAN SHIPS INJURED

Madrid, June 13.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day the Ministerr of Interior, Senor Capdepon, replying to questions on subject, said that according to semiofficial despatches during the last fight at Santiago de Cuba. "A Spanish shell burst on the deck of the Massachusetts, dismounting a gun, killing and wounding a number of men and seriously injuring the vessel, while the New York and several other vessels were compelled to withdraw in a badly damaged condition. In addition, three of the American ships were sent back to the repairing yard."

THE FATE OF SANTIAGO

Is Practically Sealed—Shafter's Difficulties are Those of Climate

Blanco is Losing Hope—The Queen Regent Wishes to Shift the Regency to the Infanta—War Supplies Needed

London, June 13.—Admiral Sampson's acquisition of a base for coaling and supplies at Guantanamo is universally recognized as practically sealing the fate of Santiago, although it is believedt hat the Spanish troops will show a good fight before the city is captured.

The Times, in the course of an article reviewing last week's operations, after remarking that Guantanamo Bay will serve admirably as a coaling statioon and sheltered harbor, for the large American fleet, says: The Spanish garrison, we think, does not exceed 10,000 men, who have an immense position to hold and are lacking in supplies. Therefore General Shafter's difficulties will be mainly those of climate and movement, owing to the absence ofg ood roads. On the other hand, the difficulties of communication will prevent the despatch of reinforcements from Havana, and the Santiago garrison will be left to its own resources. Admiral's Cervera's proceedings have proved tha tthe Spanish ships find it impossible to keep at sea. It is highly improbable that General Camara will attempt to cross the Atlantic, but some fast American cruisers may appear ere long in Spanish waters.

In view of Captain-General Augusti's despatch the surrender of Manila appears inevitable within a fortnight. In Spain's best interests it is hoped that when Manila and Santiago have fallen she will recognize the necessity of bringing to an end a contest unequal from the firsta nd rendered hopelessly so by hert otal unpreparedness.

The Times, commenting editorially upon the "arrival of a new stage in the development of the war," says: "The American commander is not likely to put unlimited faith in the assistance of Gomez. Judging from past experience of the work fo the Spanish army against the insurgents, the reduction of Santiago will not prove a formidable task. In the case we shall soon know whether the Spanish army can better vindicate the ancient fighting reputation of the Spanish racet han Admiral Cervera's squadron has done it."

The Daily Telegraph says editorially this morning: "We learn from an exceptionally well informed source that communications of a character which lend themselves easily to official repudiation, are passing between Vienna, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg on the question of intervention between Spain andt he United States.

"It is said that Emperor Francis Joseph has takenthe initiative. Spain, however, must face the situation squarely. Cuba and Porto Rico will obtain independence, and in all probability the United States will retain the Philippines as security for the indemnity, which is not likely to be paid for many years.

BLANCO IS LOSING HOPE.

London, June 13.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily News, telegraphing by way of Bayonne says: "General Blanco's last despatch being less sanguine, the Cabinet council discussed whether it should be published, and decided on some verbal alterations. Military precautions have been taken at Madrid to quell disturbance when the inevitable happens.

"Reports are again rife that the Queen Regent wishes to shift the regency tot be Infanta Isabella, and to let her accept the American conditions. It is expected that Russia will protest against the open alliance of Admiral Dewey as a belligerent with Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief."

WAR SUPPLIES NEEDED.

London, June 13.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard, telegraphing Sunday says: "General Blanco having again telegraphed that in case the blockade becomes stricter it will be urgent to send war stores, as his supply is running short, the Government has taken steps to despatch abundant supplies by fast vessels from Spanish and foreign ports. The more important supplies from Spain will be strongly convoyed and will be sent immediately.

"General Blanco also telegraphs that the authorities at Santiago de Cuba claim to have repelled the American attempt to land in the inner and outer bays of Guantanamo, the Spanish forces being entrenched in positions commanding the best landing places between Santiago and Guantanamo."

A MASTER STROKE.

London, June 13.—The Paris correspondent of The Standard says: "Critics here regard the occupation of Guantanamo harbor as a master stroke, and the fact that 3,000 Spaniards allowedt he landing is ominously significant."

THE POPE AND THE QUEEN.

London, June 13.—The Rome correspondent of The Standard says: "Owing tot he serious news from the Philippines, the Pope wired the Queen Regent of Spain, placing his services at her disposal if she considered that thet ime had arrived for the intervention of the powers in favor of Spain. The Queen Regent in reply telegraphed her thanks, saying that an opportune moment she would feel the Pope's offer to be very precious."

NOTHING BUT A MIRACLE.

London, June 13.—Senor Romero Giron, the Spanish Minister of the Colonies, according to a special despatch from Madrid, has, in the course of a recent interview, expressed the opinion that nothing short of a miracle can save Manila.

HAY NOT RESPONSIBLE.

London, June 13.—Ambassador Hay says he is not responsible for the statement that Manila has fallen.

BLANCO'S OFFICIAL DESPATCH.

London, June 13.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Sunday, says: "The only definite information from the Spanish side about Cuba is a short passage from an official despatch of General Blanco's to the Minister of War, as follows:

"Respecting Santiago, General Linares reports that to-day fifteen merchant ships, with some tugs, forming apparently a total of twenty-four vessels, appeared before the port about noon. Only fifteen remained, the others having left for Guantanamo with the Massachusetts and Dolphin, which cannonaded the heights of Baitiquiri. No casualties are reported. We do not know whether these merchantmen carry a portion of the contingent for the expedition."

"Criticisms on Marshal Primo de Rivero and others for shortcomings in the Philippines should be accepted with considerable reserve, because the whole subject has revived old personal and party animosities. The truth is that both parties and all Cabinets for many years have been guilty of sins of omission. Nobody foresaw war with America, and it is unjust and ungenerous to try to blame individuals. I can find no good foundation for the rumort hat Russia is suggesting mediation."

TO RAISE $200,000,000.

New York, June 13.—In view of the probable issuance of a circular by the Secretary of the Treasury within a short time, asking for subscriptions to thel oan authorized by the war revenue bill to the amount of $200,000,000, the National City Bank of New York, the Central Trust Company, of New York, and Vermillyea & Company, have informed the Secretary of the Treasury that they will subscribe fort he entire loan of $200,000,000 or such part thereof as may not be subscribed for by the public, in order to insure the immediate success of the loan.

DON CARLOS IS INDIGNANT

Censures the Spanish Government for Its Incapacity

Massacre Appeared—When American Troop Land Cubans will be Slaughtered—A Toronto Gunner's Prophecy

Madrid, June 13.—El Bandelero, a Madrid newspaper, publishes an interview with Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, in which the latter expresses the greatest indignation at the incapacity shown in the conduct of the war.

"Spain," said Don Carlos, "is lying at the feet of the enemy; she is holding out her neck to be trodden on; not willingly, however, but because she is being forced to do so by statesmen who place petty party interests before their love of country. Urged for years to adequately defend the Philippines, the Government, sleeping in a castle of delusions, neglected to do so until too late. The result was that hundreds of brave Biscayan seamen died in Manila bay defending hulks that were not worthy to be dignified by the name of 'warships,' and that could not have weathered a heavy sea without foundering.

"Over a month has passed, and still Augusti is without succor, though he must be nearing the end of his resources and is hemmed in by determined enemies. Is this the way Spain defends her hero defenders?

"In Cuba the same state of things exists. Cervera, compelled by inexorable necessity, to put into Santiago, is there unaided, the Cadiz fleet pusillanimously keeping close to Spain until it is to late. Before Blanco can be assisted or Cervera relieved, the armies of America will be poured into Cuba, and the crises which the latter tried so skilfully to avert will have taken place. Once American troops land on the island, half the war is already won. Spain should at all costs have prevented the landing even if she had lost her whole fleet in the attempt.

"But speech is usless. All the patriotic and devoted Spaniards can do is to hold their peace and allow the ship of state to drift rapidly upon the breakers hoping that in the debacle which will surely follow some portion of wreckage may be saved and constituted into a newer and more solid kingdom."

A MASSACRE FEARED.

Havana, via Key West, June 13.—It is a certainty here that in case of an attack on Havana every Cuban sympathizer with the United States will be massacred by the volunteers who are their most bitter enemies, and that some of the scenes of 1871 will be repeated. Circulars are being sent broadcast through the city blaming the Cubans for the war, and calling for retribution. Cuban women are now afraid to leave their doors and their homes are almost nightly invaded by rioting volunteers wearing the uniform of the Spanish army. At sundown every Cuban house is closed so as to escape the insults of recruits and volunteers under the influence of liquor. Numerous brutal and lecherous assults have been committed, and it is believed generally that the landing of the United States troops on Cuban soil will be the signal for a general massacre of the Cubans in Havana. General Blanco recognizes this danger, and is doing his best to provide against such a contingency, but his officers say that he will not be able to prevent the awful scenes of bloodshed that will follow the landing of the American troops.

REV. MR. MADILL EXPELLED

Toronto, June 11.—At the congregational Union at Bond street church yesterday the case of Rev. Mr. Madill was considered.

The chairman, Rev. William McIntosh, said that Mr. Madill should be given a hearing, and one at least, or two, should be heard in his behalf.

At the suggestion of Mr. O'Hara the discussion was limited to occurrances of the past year.

Mr. Madill complained that he had threceived no notice of any charges against him.

Rev. T. B. Hyde, convener of the Membership Committee, said that the committee was inspired by no personal animus. Mr. Madill had stated that his success in the church had been achieved in the face of persecution. Reports have been scattered in the press against the committee. Mr. Madill was alleged to have said in private conversation that the report was unfair, and that he only waited reinstatement, and would then carry his church into another denomination.

Mr. Madill denied that he had said the report was unfair, explained that he was not responsible for the statements in the press, and that his statement respecting taking his church into another denomination, had been qualified by the condition "if they continue to persecute me."

A warm discussion ensued. The final result, however, was that the report of the committee was adopted by 46 to 25. Mr. Madill is therefore no longer a member of the Union.

(Mr. Madill was at one time stationed at Havelock and is well known in town.—Ed. Times.)

CHAPLEAU DIED YESTERDAY

England and France Come to an Agreement in West Africa

Is Joe Leiter Embarassed?—Report that the King of Wheat Has Made an Assignment—His Trades Transferred—Report That Alan Grier Has Taken Over His Deals

(Special to the Times.)

Ottawa, June 13.—His Excellency the Governor-General at three o'clock this afternoon visited the Senate chamber in the Parliament buildings, and after the members of the House of Commons had been summoned, delievered the following speech of prorogation:

Hon. gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I am glad to be able to relieve you from further attendance in Parliament.

Whilst all the measures which public, interest seemed to demand and to which I invited your consideration at the opening of this session have not received the concurrence of both Houses of Parliament, I congratulate you on the very important legislation which has been the outcome of your deliberations, particularly the plebiscite act and the new franchise act, which, I confidently expected, will work satisfactorily in all parts of the Dominion.

IMPROVED RELATIONS.

I rejoice that during my term of office it has been my good fortune to witness the improved relations that have grown up between Canada and the neighboring republic, and I look forward with much satisfaction to the great benefits that will flow from a settlement of the many questions that have caused irritation in the past.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:—I thank you for the liberal provision which you have made for the public service.

Hon. gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:—

I now wish to express the earnest hope that the work of the session may materially advance the prosperity of the country. I cannot be unmindful ott he fact that this is the last occasion on which it will be my privilege to address you from this seat as the representative of the sovereign.

BIDS FAREWELL.

In bidding you a cordial farewell I have to return my warm acknowledgements of or the parting address, full of loyalty to the Queen and of kindly good-will to myself, which I am officially informed has been unanimously passed by both Houses of Parliament, and which will always constitute a valuedt oken and memorial of my stay amongst you; and in conclusion I desire to express my most hearty good wishes for your personal happiness, for the welfare of the great interests entrusted to us.

CHAPLEAU DEAD

Ottawa, June 13.—D. Chapleau, of the House of Commons staff, last night went to Montreal to be at the bedside of his dying brother, Sir Adolphe Chapleau. He stated before leaving that no hope of recovery remained whatever. Sir Adolphe did not himself at first anticipate a fatal termination of his illness, but the decline when it commenced was as rapid as it was unexpected. He died at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Joseph Adolphe Chapleau, LL.D., Q.C., P.C., was born at Ste Therese de Blainille, Terrebonne, Quebec, in 184 of parents who came from France. H passed brilliantly through the College of Terrebone and St. Hyacinthe, an became a law student, being called to the bar of Lower Canada in 1861, an made a Q.C. 12 years later. He was elected a member of the Quebec Legislature for Terrebone in 1867, and in 1876 became Solicitor-General, which position he held for a year. In 1876 he enteredt he De Boucherville administration as Provincial Secretary and Registrar, holding the post until 1878. became leader of the Conservative Opposition and helped more than any man to overthrow the Rouges under Joly. He was Premier and Minister of Agriculture and Public Works until 1882, when ill-health compelled him to retire. He entered the Privy Council as Secretary of State for Canada. In 1884 he was appointed Commissioner 1884to investigate Chinese immigration into British Columbia. He was a director of Companies, professor of jurisprudence and probably the best French orator in Canada. He married the daughter of Lieut.-Col. King, of Sherbrooke.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 14 1898

AN EXPENSIVE GAME

The collier Merrimac which was sunk in the channel at Santiago by direction of the hero Hobson cost the United States $342,000 a few weeks ago.

The New York Herald points out that the transfer of the Merrimac to the nation involved a profit of $150,000 to the owners of the vessel.

The original cost of the old boat and expense of repairs aggregate $150,000 less than the price at which the Merrimac was transferred to the nation.

War exhibits humanity in some of its best and some of its worst aspects, and surely there is nobler patriotism in the poverty which offers its life to the country below cost than in the wealth which offers its steamers to the nation at a profit of three or four hundred per cent.

A SILLY BOAST

The New York Journal says: "The strength of the fleet now before Santiago is greater than that of any massing of warships of modern times." Nonsense! From a fighting standpoint the flying squadron of thirteen vessels Great Britain assembled at the time President Cleveland talked bombastically about the Venezuelan question was strong enough to meet two fleets like Sampson's. At the British naval manoeuvers near Bantry Bay, Ireland, some years ago, the combined British fleet was so large that the whole American navy could have been lost in it. But the greatest gathering of great warships belonging to any one power was last year at the naval review in honor of the Queen's jubilee, when Great Britain showed the world thirty miles of them, and that, too, without drawing of her squadrons on foreign service.

THE WILD MAN OF BORNEO

The tale of the fleas that were on the whiskers of the dog of the wild man of Borneo, who had just come to town, is nothing to the tale of torpedoes, torpedo boats, torpedo boat destroyers, and torpedo vessels that go to make up the lighter arm of the modern navy.

The torpedo boat came first. She is a waspish, insidious craft, planned to steal in upon the great war vessel in the darkness and discharge her deadly torpedo; or even to attack in daylight, depending then, for her safety, upon the difficulty of striking so small a mark.

The torpedo boat destroyer followed. She is built for swiftness, and is armed with searchlights and machine guns, to discover, overtake and destroy the smaller torpedo boat. She is unarmored, too, and unable to carry coal for a protracted cruise. Latterly, torpedo guns have been added to her armament, and hence—

The result has been the torpedo-vessel; a small cruiser capable of keeping at sea for a long period, and of defending the coasts against the sudden attack of a torpedo boat destroyer. She is, therefore, the destroyer of the torpedo boat destroyer.

The destroyer of the destroyer of the torpedo boat destroyer is the cruiser; and, of course, the battleship is the destroyer of the destroyer of the destroyer of the torpedo boat destroyer.

And all this because the wild man of Borneo, as it were, has just come to town.

A LIBERAL'S VIEW

The Rt. Hon. John Morley discussed the question of an Anglo-Saxon alliance at a meeting in Leeds the other night. Mr. Morley is not the leader of the Liberal party, but he is one of its most representative spokesmen. His remarks, therefore, may be taken as the view of a large section of that party. That view, it may be said, is that it is inexpedient for Great Britain to enter into any alliance. alliance. This is to be inferred from Mr. Morley's assertion that he does not believe a word of the gloomy talk about Great Britain's isolation and threatening prospects. Any Englishman who really thinks there is no danger to his country from the attitude of Continental nations will prefer to see it continue on its own solitary way. The animus of Joseph Chamberlain's speech in which an Anglo-Saxon alliance was suggested was that England was surrounded by enemies who made it imperative for her to look around for help, either in the United States or Germany. Possibly the cares and responsibilities of office have been weighing rather heavily upon Lord Salisbury and Mr. Chamberlain, and it is usually true that a statesman in opposition is disposed to criticise the Government. In any event, Mr. Morley is impressed with the greatness of England's naval power, the extent of her financial resources and credit and the ability of the people to repel invasion and protect their rights, which, he said, is as great as at the beginning of the century. If this is a sound position, endorsed by the mass of Englishmen, there never will be an alliance, or even an understanding, between Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Morley gives some reasons why he doubts whether an alliance would be desired by the United States. He considers it inconceivable that a treaty could be entered into without taking into consideration the Irish vote in the United States. It certainly is a fact that a formal alliance would encounter opposition from the greater number of Irishmen in the States, who have a better memory for English coercion than for the Home-rule policy of Mr. Gladstone and his lieutenant, Mr. Morley. Then, again, the speaker has an idea, that the alliance would aim, not at peace, but at menace and war, and that tens of thousands of the best men in the United States believe that no greater calamity could befall their country than that it should become entangled in the unrest and intrigue of Old-world militarism. This, indeed, is literally true. In the States there is general appreciation of the friendly offices of Great Britain since the war with Spain began, but that is the end of it. Assuredly the United States has no desire to unite with Great Britain in a policy of war and menace against the rest of the world. It is equally certain that such a union does not appear necessary in the interest of the peace of the world. Mr. Morley may not have expressed average British sentiment in this address, but he comes very close to voicing the sensible opinion of people of the United States.

Kentucky distillers propose to send the American army 50,000 bottles of whiskey containing one drink each. It would be more patriotic to send them to the Spanish army and import good Canadian whiskey for the American army.

Years of Agony and Suffering

Result of Kidney and Female Complaints

Paine's Celery Compound Gives Mrs. Stone a New Life

She Strongly Recommends the Medicine that Banished Her Troubles

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND THE ONLY TRUE CURE FOR KIDNEY DISEASE

Wells & Richardson Co.,

Gentlemen:—For more than twelve years I was afflicted with kidney, female and stomach troubles, and had been attended by five doctors, and tried medicine after medicine, without any good results. My sufferings a year ago from the kidneys and stomach were dreadful. I was in such a state that I could not live, and concluded there was no use trying other medicines. However, I was advised to try Paine's Celery Compound. Before I had finished the first bottle I had improved very much, and after the use of a few more bottles I had not been so well for many years, and am now altogether a different person. The use of Paine's Celery Compound also banished my nervousness. I can therefore recommend Paine's Celery Compound to any one suffering from kidney, female and stomach troubles.

Yours truly,
MRS. GEORGE STONE,

Dandruff is Dangerous

When dandruff appears it is usually regarded as an annoyance. It should be regarded as a disease. Its presence indicates an unhealthy condition of the scalp, which, if neglected, leads to baldness. Dandruff should be cured at once. The most effective means for the cure is found in AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It promotes the growth of the hair, restores it when gray or faded to its original color, and keeps the scalp clean and healthy.

"For more than eight years I was greatly troubled with dandruff, and though a young man, my hair was fast turning gray and falling out. Baldness seemed inevitable until I began to use

Ayer's Hair Vigor

The dandruff has been entirely removed and my hair is now soft, smooth and glossy and fast regaining its original color."

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity; very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

"She will be more independent than ever if she knows the money is hers," he thought.

They had now reached a side street, where carriages stood awaiting them.

Nina was perfectly well aware that she was doing wrong when she walked out to meet a stranger, but the romance oft he performance captivated her. She felt so thoroughly grown up and full of importance.

"Where shall we go?" asked Jeffrey, as soon as they were seated in the carriage, which was an open one, with a pair of horses and a colored driver.

"I do not care. Don't go to South Park, for Mr. Jameson drives there on Sunday morning sometimes."

"Then we can go to Lincoln Park."

"I am afraid that would take too long."

"Well, let us have a drive about the city, and not go to any park."

To tell the truth, Jeffrey Pettus was anxious to be rid of his fair companion, for he wanted an opportunity to examine the letters and learn if they were of as much importance as he hoped.

So he did not object to shortening the drive, and finally parted with Nina a few blocks from her home, having managed to convey the impression to the girl that he enjoyed nothing in the world so much as her society.

Having dismissed the carriage, he walked into a restaurant, and sitting down, ordered a luncheon which required some time to prepare. He then drew out the treasures, and began to look them over.

"What a literary appearance you present to the surrounding public," said a mocking voice near him, and looking up hastily, he met the gaze of Alwin Croft.

The escaped felon was admirably disguised, in a full beard and eye-glasses but Pettus knew him at once.

"I am surprised to see you," said Pettus, trying to replace the letters with affected carelessness, as if they were of no consequence.

"I presume so. I told you, however, that I would not waste much time over that stupid business."

Croft had seated himself, and taken up the bill of fare.

"We will lunch, and then I shall go home; you shall accompany me, and we can discuss the future."

"Very good."

Jeffrey Pettus was furious; he felt that Croft would prove the dominating power, as of old. He would become a mere cipher in the hands of the elder, more experienced villain.

Croft read Pettus like an open book. He knew that the papery Jeffrey had been examining, and which had been so hurriedly thrust aside, were of importance, though of course he was far from guessing the truth.

"Now, about my charming stepdaughter. You found her, of course?"

Pettus hesitated; he was not strong enought o cope with Croft, but still Croft, but still he hated to give in.

"Now, Jeffrey, said Croft slowly, while he eyed his sallow-faced and ill-tempered nephew with profound contempt, "if you try to buck against me you will find yourself in Queer street. See?"

"Who is trying to buck against you?" muttered Pettus sulkily.

"No one, if you din't. I know what Stella Sterling is; I can drive out and call upon her. She is governess for the niece of old Jameson, the lawyer."

Jeffrey was amazed. How had rCoft acquired this information while locked up in the State prison?

"You are the devil, I believe!"

"Very likely. Now, as our repast is finished, to business. I am going down tot he Palmer House; so come along. We will jump on a Wabash avenue car."

He arose and took up his gloves and cane. In his black frock coat, light trousers, and high silk hat, he looked like a well-to-do doctor or lawyer.

"Isn't it rather risky to go to the Palmer House?"

"Not at all. I find that the police generally search the slums and tough saloons for men in my position. I go to a first-class, high-toned hotel, and I meet them walking the streets, and there is no trouble about it. I complained to-day of a seedy-looking individual on State street—told the officer I was suspicious of him, fancied he might be a pickpocket. The officer offered to arrest him, but I said I did not think it was necessary to do so; merely suggested keeping an eye on him. The cop thanked me, and I gave him a good cigar. Next time we meet, the guardian of the public welfare will respectfully touch his official helmet to me."

They left the restaurant, and took the cable-car for down-town.

Croft had secured a fine room, and ordered Bass' ale sent up with such a lordly air that the colored waiter hastened away, fleetness being lent to his feet by the thought of a generous tip.

"Now. Jeff," said Croft, who had registered under the name of Judge Geo. P. Hamilton, of Texas, "let's to business. How are you off for cash?"

"Very poorly."

"I thought as much; always dead broke,' said Croft contemptuously.

"How are you situated?"

"Well, it costs money to live at such hotels as I have put up at for the last month. Now, Stella's money won't come in for two years, so meanwhile we have got to hustle. What have you been doing?

"Oh, nothing much; I've been sick."

"Or lazy—which?"

"I have been working a little game on Clark street, but the cops got too thick, and I quit."

"Well, no ten-for-a-cent game will answer now. It's got to be a regular tapioca, for I must have money. Rusty Rube has got the whole lay-out soaked away with Lew Lasher, and we must raise stuff enough to get it out."

"You are not afraid to go crib-cracking already?"

"Afraid? What of?"

"I think it's kind of rash."

"Bosh! Everything is rash; it is not a patch on a wheat deal with Old Hutch at the helm."

"Has Rube got his eye on any particular crib?"

"Yes, two or three. Rube is working the alleys, selling face-powder and perfumes to the hired girls. He has go ttongue enough to work any racket, and the girls always want him to call again. He keeps a keen eye for chances, and has a strong scent for whistles."

"Can't he work a budge into some crib?"

"Maybe; but I would rather go to work without one."

As a "budge' is a boy, girl or woman who hires as a servant in a house, for the purpose of unlocking the door and admitting thieves, Jeffrey Pettus was always better satisfied when one was employed, as he objected to risks. Croft, being bolder, preferred to dispense with such assistance.

"A budge may chant and squeal for the sake of a reward," said the elder rascal, thoughtfully.

Crof tnow laid a plan by which Jeffrey, Rube and himself should rob some of the finest mansions in the city. He was as courageous as he was unprincipled, and he was in need of money. His plan was to remain a guest at the hotel; he had cards printed, and carried them in the breast-pocket of his frock coat, in a fine leather card-case. He intended to secure other lodgings, but never be seen near them without changing his appearance by a skillful disguise. In altering his make-up he was an artist. He could change his complexion, age and apparent rank in life, with such consummate skill as to defy the closest observer.

"I shall soon call on Miss Stella Sterling,' he said.

Jeffrey started.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

AMERICANS DRIVEN BACK.

Spaniards, Skillfully Posted, Repulse an Attempted American Landing

Vixen and Suwanee Delight the Insurgents—They Land 30,000 Rounds of Ammunition, with 300 Rifles and 2,000 Machetes, on Cuba's Coast

Madrid, June 11, noon.—An official despatch received here from Havana, dated Friday, June 10, says: This morning eight of Admiral Sampson's ships re-commenced the bombardment of Santiago de Cuba. At the same time a number of boats, towed by a steamer, approached and attempted to make a landing. The Spaniards skilfully posted, repulsed the attempted landing and the Americans drew off. No damage was caused by the shelling from the ships, which kept distant, evidently afraid to venture within range of the guns of the forts.

HUNGRY REBELS.

On boardt he Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, off Santiago de Cuba, Thursday afternoon, June 9, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 11.—In Santiago de Cuba there are now about 20,000 Spanish soldiers, chiefly infantry, but with a fair contingent of cavalry and field artillery, drawn from the surrounding country. During the day time the cavalry skirmish in the vicinity of the city, returning at night to the barracks. During the last few days the activity of the Spaniards has been particularly noticeable. Oxen trains have been making their way to the batteries; detachments have been working on umplacements, and there have been other signs indicating a desperate resistance by the Spaniards.

Some guns from Admiral Cervera's ships may be removed to the forts. The insurgents, about 5,000 strong, have taken a position on a mountain to the westward. Two thousand insurgents of this gathering are unarmed. General Maximo Gomez, now about 150 miles inland, is making his way toward the coast. Admiral Sampson is actively co-operating with the insurgents. Yesterday General Miniet, of the insurgent forces, and his staff went on board of the New York for a long consultation. The naval officers have been doing splendid and daring work in carrying communications to the insurgents, landing arms, and making trips ashoref or the purpose of gaining information. Upon the gunboats Suwanee and Vixen this work has chiefly devolved.

Lieut. Sharp, of the Vixen, and Lieut.-Commander Delehanty of the Suwanee, have been daily intrusted withi mportant missions and have carried them out successfully. The Vixen's work has been chiefly confined to carrying messages to and fro; but the Suwanee has been occupied in a more serious task. This gunboat has landed 300,000 rounds of small arms, ammunition, 300 Springfield rifles, 100car bines, 2,000 machetes, with equipments and provisions. These were handed over to the insurgents, numbering about 800, on Wednesday, about fifteen miles west of Santiago. The insurgents came down to the beach, the main body remaining in the mountains. The debarkation of supplies was tedious, but uninterrupted. The insurgents reported that irregular engagements between their forces and the Spanish cavalry were of daily occurrence. The Cubans were hard up for supplies and ammunition, and were fairly overjoyed at the sight of the Suwanee'sc argo. Some, almost ravenous, hacked at the sides of bacon and ate raw beef. They had been living on limes, cocoa nuts, and sweet potatoes.

Ensign Gilpin, of the Suwanee, went ashore and accompanied the Cubans to their temporary camp inland, where he found ten or a dozen badly wounded men, in need of surgical assistance. Bandages forth em were sent from the Suwanee. The casulties were the result of a brush on the previous night with Spanish cavalry. To the correspondent of the Associated Press on the despatch boat Wanda, Ensign Gilpin, describing his experience at the camp, which is about ten miles inland, said: "I found the insurgents a rough looking and mixed crowd of boys andold men, rigged out anyway, carrying arms of all sorts, and all anxious to borrow everything I had, from my blouse to my revolver.

"Four Spanish soldiers in uniform, carrying rifles,mar ched into the camp while I was there and said they wanted to join the insurgents. They were enrolled, but a close watch was kept on them, as they belonged to the civilg uard. A Cuban officer told me such additions were not infrequent. The Spaniards had Mausser rifles, which were in fairly good condition."

Conservative authorities believe the United States troops will have to carry out their plan of campaign without placing much reliance upon the insurgents. Several young officers have made trips ashore and taken observations of the interior of the harbor and the fortifications, locating the exact position of Admiral eCrvera's ships. It is hardly likely, however, that the Spanish admiral keeps them moored at the same place dayand night. More than once the officers engaged in this shore duty have had narrow escapes from falling in with the enemy's cavalry.

GLOOM THROUGHOUT SPAIN.

New York, June 11.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: "Gloom pervades every part of Spain where the situation in Manila is known. The Government is so much alarmed that it has taken extraordinary military and police precautions, both in the capital and in the provinces. It held backt elegrams to the provincial and and foreign press eight hours in order to let the official messages break the news. Numerous prominent republican agitators and journalists have been arrested, while others are closely watched by detectives.

"The troops are confined in the barracks, where half the officers sleep every night ready to act if a revolution is started. But a revolution is hardly considered likely, as the lower and middle classes are dazed, bewildered, disgusted and weary. They accuse the Government, the press and their rulers of having deceived them. It is an open secret and has been for some time that everybody from the court and Ministers down to the conservative statesmen and generals has been playing a part, for the Opposition, as well as the Ministerialists, knew that Spain would have to give in after crushing defeats and appeal to the powers to mediate."

SPANISH WARSHIPS SAIL.

The Maria Cristina and the Ciudad de Cadiz Set Sail from Ferrol

Dockyards at Ferrol are Working Day and Night—Five Vessels Under Construction—Seven Repaired

London, June 11.—A despatch to The Standard from Corunna, dated Tuesday says: "The arsenal at Ferrol is and has been most active; while the private and Government dock yards are working day and night. The ships under construction are the armored cruiser Cardenal Cisneros, cruiser Vittoria, torpedo gunboats Dona Maria de Molina and Don Alvaro de Bazan and the armed transport Ciudad de Cadiz. The following have been undergoing repairs: The armored cruiser Princesa de Asturias, the Maria Cristina,t he Villa de Bilbao, the Puig-Cerda (monitor), the Guepez Coano, the Duke de Tetuan and the Ejericto.

"The Maria Christina and the Ciudad de Cadiz have left Ferrol for a destination unknown under sealed orders. The former left June 6, the latter to-day (Tuesday).

NO LANDING YET.

London, June 11.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "General Linares, commanding the Spanish forces in the province of Santiago de Cuba, cables that nothing has occurred during the last twenty-four hours; that the Americans have not succeeded in effecting a landing, but that the fleet is still off the harbor. General Linares says the report that a Spanish torpedo boat destroyer has been sunk is untrue."

TO DISCUSS THE PHILIPPINES.

Madrid, June 11.—It is reported that Germany will propose a meeting of the European conference to discuss the question of the Philippines. An interview which the German Ambassador Count de Radowitz has had with Duke Almedovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has provoked general comment. An official despatch from Gen. Blanco at Havana says the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror is in Porto Rican waters.

HOBSON IS WELL.

New York, June 11.—A communication has been received from British Consul Ramsden at Santiago de Cuba in reply to a query as to the condition of Lieut. Hobson and the other Merrimac heroes, in which the consul says: "Hobson and his men are well. They are all well cared for by the authorities. I have myself just seen him."

NO INSTRUCTIONS TO AUGUSTI.

Madrid, June 11.—In the Chamber of Deputies Senor Romero Giron, Minister for the Colonies, in reply to a question as to whether Captain-General Augusti had been given instructions in the event of being obligedto surrender, and as to whether these instructions directed him to treat with Admiral Dewey, the American commander, or Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief, saidt he Government had given no instructions on the subject.

THE KEY OF THE FUTURE.

London, June 11.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: Whether Admiral Camara's fleet with reinforcements ever sailed for the Philippines is doubtful. Many people think it may soon be more urgently required nearer home. Meanwhile the political importance of events in the Philippines is fully recognized. The Imparcial says: "As bearing on the peace negotiations, what we may do in the Pacific will be of capital and perhaps of decisive interest. In the bay of Manila is the colonial future of Spain; and in the promptitude with which assistance is sent lies the key of that future."

This and similar references to peace negotiations are significant; but it would be a mistake to assume confidently that the Spanish Government is aboutt o take the initiative in that direction. All I can venture to say is that peace has been brought nearer by recent events.

AN ENGLISH PROTECTORATE.

Vienna, June 11.—The Government has declined to initiate mediation between the United States and Spain, as it wishes to avoid the appearance of making intervention seem only a dynastic action in the interest of the Queen Regent, which, perhaps, might give fatal offence to many parties in Spain. Nevertheless a decided opinion is heldt hat the time for intervention is very nearly at hand. The probability is that Russia will undertake the initiative within one or two days. No doubt exists in official minds in Vienna that the Philippines cannot remain in the hands of America. The insurgents there reject all foreign control, and it is not conceivable that America could provide a sufficient force to take full possession.

The probability is that the powers will find a way out of the difficulty by establishing a protectorate, which, perhaps, England might undertake.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

PIONEER YOUNG'S POINT

Acconnt of Its Early Settlement--Its Wonderful Water Power--Its Need of a Railroad

A WELL-KNOWN FAMILY COMPACT

In 1825 Francis Young with his six sons, William, John, Samuel, Patrick, Francis, Robert, Matthew, and two daughters, all direct from Tipperary, Ireland, landed in Canada and proceeded to explore the Otonabee. They passed through Peterborough, then a burg of one shack, through what is Lakefield, and stopped not until they reached the foot of Clear Lake. Here they found a water power, inexhaustible, fed by eighteen miles of continuous lakes. Their descendants to-day point with pride to a large elm tree on the main street, and over two feet in diameter, to which as a sapling their boat was tied at the first landing. The boys soon scattered around, picking on the choice lands of the district, and many of their children still live in the neighborhood. To Patrick's lot fell the homestead and mill privileges, and it is still in the hands of his son Cornelius. Patrick Young is now ninety-four years of age, and came in from the garden to tell The Times of his early struggles. The old man's eye lighted as he recounted tale after tale of hairbreadth escapes from wolves and Indians. He was fortunate in his dealings with the Massassaguas, whose chief's good-will he secured by presents.

Among the chiefs of this tribe was one known as "Handsome John Cow,' who had an equally handsome daughter, Polly. She died, and the chief brought her down to bury her on the island at the foot of the rapids. She was wrapped in bark, and Patrick turned in and "whipsawed' boards for a coffin. The chief expressed his delight by saying: "Now the snakes won't get her." This island, it may be remembered, was presented by the Government to Mrs. C. P. Trail, Lakefield pioneer, in recognition of her own and her family's literary services; and the old lady of ninety went up to Young's Point and called on the old man of ninety-two, and together they entered a canoe and paddled down to Polly's island, and there these youngsters picniced all day—recounting their century's experiences.

Young's Point is on the main wagon road running from Peterborough north for one hundred miles, and is eighteen miles from Peterborough. It is on the Trent Valley Canal system, the river being spanned by an iron bridge at this point. The first dam was built here in 1829. It was subsequently swept away, as was a second. The Government has since constructed a very powerful one which ensures continuous water power.

A fine lock is also here looked after by one of Mr. P.P. Young's sons.

Mr. Young erected a grist mill in 1830, and ran it until the roller process came in. This requires a certain amount of Manitoba wheat to be mixed with the native product to secure the best results, and without a railroad it is impossible to get imported wheat into Young's Point, and the mill was discontinued. The need of a railway—steam or electric—is the great drawback to Young's Point, and Mr. C. Young, recognizing this, has been advocating it for a number of years—going so far as to have a survey made and offering free continuous unlimited power to an electric company to build a line in from Peterborough, via Lakefield. Young's Point would be a splendid location for a grist mill, there being a fine country east, west and south. Mr. Young has prepared plans and specifications for a large mill, and only awaits the electric road to construct it.

Young's Point has for years been a summer resort, being at the entrance to the Stony Lake region, and being itself the best fishing ground on all the Otonabee. Bass and maskinonge of enormous size abound. The chief industry in PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Young's Point has a fine Public School, under the efficient management of Mr. Harry Andrews, a Toronto Normal graduate. The roll runs over a hundred, the average attendance being eighty, and the school under Mr. Andrews has always received the highest euconiums from the Inspector.

In the matter of

CHURCHES

Young's Point, considering its size, is well supplied. A Roman Catholic Mission was established there thirty years ago. This is now a parish church and is served by Father Fitzpatrick in conjunction with Lakefield. The church is erected in a commanding situation and is finished very handsomely within and without. The Methodists also have a church near by, and it is administered from Lakefield. The Episcopalians have a congregation and resident minister, but no church so far.

THE SAW MILL.

In connection with which there is a large planing mill, and shingle mill employing eighteen hands and with a capacity of 20,000 feet a day. It would be a credit to a much larger place than Young's Point. The first mill was built in 1831 by Patrick Young, and has been operated ever since by the family, with the exception of twelve years previous to 85. When the present proprietor, Mr. C. Young, purchased the old homestead and the mill and has conducted the business ever since. Mr. Young carries a large stock of dressed and undressed lumber, shingles, lath, etc. He has for some years made a specialty of furnishing finished material for builders, and does the principle lake trade int his. Mr. C. Young's well known enterprise is shown by the fact that when he took charge of this business, there being at that time no telephone into Young's Point, he constructed a line in from Lakefield at his own expense. The company afterwards took it over, and Mr. Young acts as their agent. He has also acted as magistrate for the past twelve years.

THE STEAMER MAJESTIC.

The fact that all the logs for the different mills along the Otonabee have to come down through the lakes made towing an important matter in the early summer. Mr. P.P. Young, fifteen years ago, put on a little boat—the Fairy. Five years after he built at Young's Point a larger boat, known as the Mary Ellen, and about two years ago he built and equipped the present commodious Majestic, which has especially been designed for the lake traffic after an experience of thirteen years in studying its needs. She is a propeller 80 feet long, has 16 feet beam and a depth of 5 feet. Her engines are 30 horse power, and drive her at the rate of 12 miles an hour. She is licensed to carry 185 passengers, and these can be comfortably distributed over her two decks. In connection with the Golden City, of Lakefield, she carries the mails to Young's Point, Juniper Island and Burleigh Falls. Not a little of Mr. Young's success as a steamboat owner is due to the skill and courtesy of Capt. William Scollard, who had charge first of the Fairy, then of the Mary Ellen, and now the Majestic. The mate, F. G. Young, is also an obliging officer.

THE CARLETON HOUSE

Was originally built in '83, but was destroyed by fire just when completed. Nothing daunted Mr. W. McFarlane, the proprietor, immediately erected the present commodious two-storey brick now occupied and operated by him near the locks. The Carleton can accommodate thirty guests; its table is supplied with fruit, fish and game in season; and its bar contains the finest assortment of case goods north of Peterborough. Mr. McFarlane, who is a relative by marriage of the Young's, is to the manor born, being brought up in a hotel, and his qualities as a host are best evidenced by the fact that he retains his summer guests from year to year. The Carleton does the commercial trade oft he village.

THE LAKEVIEW HOUSE.

The proprietor, Mr. J. E. Kearney, has been in business in the present stand for twenty-five years. The Lakeview is beautifully situated in the west end of the village, and right opposite to it, and owned by Mr. Kearney, is a pretty little island, used by the hotel as a picnic ground. A boat house is also in connection. A handsome new addition has just been built this summer, containing a parlor and ten bedrooms. This gives twenty bedrooms in all to the Lakeview. The table is well supplied with all delicacies and especially native fish.

MR. W. J. YOUNG

Commenced business in '89, and was forced, through its growth, to erect near the locks in '89 the large brick store now occupied by him. He carries a very full, well assorted, stock of staple and fancy dry goods, ready-made clothing, boots and shoes, and groceries and provisions, and pays especial attention to the outfitting of camping parties. Mr. Young is the oldest son of William, the oldest son of Francis, the original pioneer, and is recognized as one of Young's Point's most progressive citizens.

MR. P. A. KEARNEY

Is the postmaster of the burg, and carries on besides a large general store. Mr. Kearney is a native of the district, having lived within a couple of miles of the village until ten years ago, when he took up business in his present quarters. He carries a large stock of dry goods, boots and shoes, hats and caps, groceries and canned goods, etc., and does an extensive business with summer hotels and visitors. Mr. Kearney is also connected with the Young's.

THE CHEESE FACTORY.

Is owned and operated by Andrew Wilson, and was built about four years ago. Mr. Wilson's experience of nine years enables him to command the very highest market price for his output of 600 lbs. a day.

MR. RICHARD HURD

Started in business in '81 as a carriage and wagon-maker, and later on extended his business by handling implements. Mr. Hurd at present represents Noxon Bros., of Ingersoll.

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

I have used Kenny's Hair Restorer for dandruff and falling out of my hair. It has removed the dandruff, and a few applications prevented my hair falling out. Three bottles of Kennys Hair Restorer has restored the hair on my head to its original state. I can in justice to the manufacturer recommend Kennys Hair Restorer from my own experience as the best remedy I have ever heard of for the prevention and cure of baldness, and I am sure it will accomplish all that it is claimed for it if properly applied as directed.

Police Court

George Ritchie was charged by Mrs Staunton at the Police Court yesterday morning with having assaulted her by striking her with a chair. The evidence showed that it resulted from family troubles. The Magistrate found the accused guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $10. Mr. W. H More prosecuted, while Mr. E. B. Stone handled the case for the defendant.

Wm. Macdonald was charged with stealing a coat and a carnival suit from Mr. J. J Turner. He gave the suit away and was wearing the coat when arrested. The prisoner pleaded that he was an old soldier in India and had been struck by lightning in that country and had his limbs broken and that he was now a dipsomaniac. The Magistrate evidently did not think these were good grounds for a dismissal for he sentenced the prisoner to six months in gaol at hard labor.

The future is uncertain, but if you keep your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, you may be sure of good health.

CYCLING.

The Athenæum Club members were so tickled with the sucess of their band and the showing that they made in the cook's parade at Chatham last year that they have decided to go to the Peterboro' meet stronger and larger in every way. They will take the same barrel, as they don't think it can be beat, and will have all kinds of specialties and a starter for the cook's parade. Fred Sterling and Pud Woods will be their starry entry in the big cake walk, and if they are up to form should land the medals.

President T. A. Beament was in the chair at a meeting of the C.W.A. executive held Saturday afternoon, when it was decided that Toronto should have the international meet in 1899. The president presented a report of his recent visit to Washington. The committee tendered him a hearty vote of thanks. Hal. B. Donly was appointed representative to the world's championship meet, which will be held in Vienna, Austria, in September next.

The T.A.C. team defeated the Elms 4 to 0 in their City League match on Saturday.

Streetsville defaulted to Waterloo in the royal Junior District game scheduled for Saturday.

The Victoria Lacrosse Club defeated the Winnipegs 3 to 2 Saturday in a match for the championship at Winnipeg.

The Toronto Star, in its report of the Cornwall-Toronto match on Saturday has the following to say of the playing of Moran—a brother of Mr. John Moran of town: "The poor work of the home bothered Gamble and Moran both, just as a home's bad work will always bother those about center at any time, for these men, finding that those up the field cannot be depended upon, are often at a loss what to do. But this did not prevent Moran from playing a beautiful game. He is just about the best home player on earth, and with a home to aid him on Saturday a different story would have been told."

Wedded at St. Peter's

Miss Minnie Cadigan, daughter of the late John Cadigan, and Mr. John Turcott, of Hamilton, were married at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday morning—Rev. Father Scanlan performing the ceremony. Miss Katie Cadigan, the bride's sister acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. A. Turcott. The bride wore a wedding gown of bluette, trimmed with cream chiffon and satin and carried a bouquet of white carnations and white roses. The bridesmaid was attired in an attractive gown of corn colored muslin, trimmed with chiffon. She wore a large leghorn hat and carried pink carnations.

After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the residence of the bride's family, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was enjoyed. The young couple received a large number of handsome presents, among those to the bride being an elegant dinner andt ea set from the employees of the wire department of the electric works.

Mr. and Mrs. Turcott left for their future home in Hamilton on the 4.25 train, the bride wearing a dark blue travelling costume with white satin front, trimmed with black braid.

Killed by the Freight Train

Albert Knox, son of Arthur Knox, 79 Van Horne-street, Toronto, met with instant death Sunday morning while stealing a ride with two other boys on the freight train between Havelock and Toronto Junction. About eight o'clock the boys were sharing up part of a loaf of bread near the tank at Locust Hill, and as the freight pulled out of there they boarded a coal car and endeavored to beat their way to the city.

About a mile from Locust Hill, Albert Knox fell off the car. One wheel passed right over his body and crushed his life out. He was also struck upon the head and had many other injuries, any one of which would have caused instant death.

The train got down to Markham before the hands were informed of the occurance, when they put back to the scene of the accident and took the remains to Locust Hill. The body was first found by the section men.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Thrown on the Subject of Home Dyeing

There are dyes—the world-famed Diamond Dyes—that crown our labors and home Dyeing work with perfect success, and there are imitations and worthless dyes that bring ruin and disaster wherever they are used.

There are dyes—the chemically pure and scientifically prepared Diamond Dyes—that have brought blessings to millions of homes for long years, and there are the vile preparations and mixtures of imitators who, as far as style of package is concerned get as near the "Diamond" as they dare go. But what shall be said of the contents—the ingredients—that the women of Canada are asked to dye with? Little more can be added to what has so often appeared in the press of the country. These imitation dyes are simply deceptions; they are adulterated and dangerous preparations, hurtful to the hands of the user, and destroyers of valuable garments and materials.

The manufacture of Diamond Dyes is reduced to a science, and to-day they are the only dyes that dare guarantee their work—that dare proclaim certain victory for every user who will follow the plain directions. Diamond Dyes have a wide-spread popularity; other brands of dyes are hardly known outside of the greedy, long-profit dealers who sell them to the unsuspecting public. Avoid all imitation package dyes as you would avoid spurious coin.

A BRITISH CANADIAN

Writes a Sensible Letter from Lakefield on American Friendship for Britain

To the Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—Readers of American literature since the commencement of the war will notice many quotations from English and Canadian papers approving of the action of the American Government in forcing Spain to free Cuba. In this way the American people are led to believe that they have the sympathy of their cousins on this side, and of the whole English-speaking world. While the willingness on the part of many Englishmen, and the political leaders of the Mother Country too, at this time more than any other, show their friendship for the people of the Great Republic, is pleasing to the sentimentalist, it is looked upon by the diplomat and business man as a matter of policy, calculated to warn Continental nations that the English people will not allow interference and that the war must be confined between Spain and America only. Englishmen say a fair fight and no favors is likely to bring an early termination of the war, and possibly teach Uncle Sam that it does not pay to fight. The Americans are very much like the sick man already, looking for English and Canadian sympathy and ready to publish anything from an English paper that contains an atom of compassion for their cause. Most Englishmen and Canadians will remember the position of this Great Republic towards Canada and the British Empire only a few months ago; how they were ready to assume then the right to proclaim the political and geographical boundaries of all the countries in the Western world because Englishmen claimed their rights in South America. They weret hen ready to drive British influence from this continent. While for humanity's sake we hope for an early termination of the war it would be well that Uncle Sam should get a few knock-downs, as an intimation that they can't so easily lick all creation. Too easy a victory, too great a conquest, and who's turn next? While we remember the cause, "For humanity's sake," we cannot forget the battle-cry, "Remember the Maine." It is at present no doubt gratifying to the American people to hear and read expressions of sympathy from Englishmen and Canadians.

Sympathy is sweet to the sick man, especially when he fears that he might have avoided the trouble. But "When the Devil was sick the Devil a Saint would be; when the Devil got well the divil a Saint was he." What about American friendship after the war?

HEAD AND TAIL WITH GRIM DEATH

The American Troops Meet the Attacks of the Insurgents Behind Strong Entrenchments Hastily Constructed

CANADIAN SYMPATHY

London, June 14.—Sir Chas. Tupper, the Canadian statesman, who has just arrived here from Canada, is quoted in an interview as discussing lengthily the relations between Canada and the United States. He said: "Canada sympathizes very warmly with the proposed reapproachment between Great Britain and the United States. It has always been our desire to have the most friendly commercial relations with the Republic, but hitherto the United States had not shown any disposition to reciprocate. The McKinley and Dingley and the Alien Labor Laws presented conclusive evidence of this point. I believe, however, that the present is a most propitious time for the settlement of questions and in the changed temper of the American people. I think they can be approached with a fair prospect of a just settlement."

CONTINUOS FIGHTING AT SANTIAGO

Berlin, June 14.—Advices received from Shanghai by the Frankfort Seitung says news has been received there from Manila to the effect that there is fighting every night around the town. The insurgents it seems are trying to capture Manila and establish an independent government before the Americans land. The German Consul at Manila, it is further reported has three hundred German and Swiss on board a refugee steamer in the harbor.

COUNTING ON GERMAN INETRVENTION

Madrid, June 14.—The Spanish press has increased its optimism, based on the belief that Germany intends to prevent a bombardment of Manila by making a naval demonstration. The newspapers urge sacrifices with the view of securing Germany's assistance, and political leaders express themselves in favor of offering Germany the following concessions in return for her taking the initiative in checking America. Firstly, naval stations and coaling depots in Spanish Oceania; secondly, Spanish concurrence in the development of Germany's commercial and political relations with Morocco.

AMERICAN FLAG STILL FLOATS IN CUBA

Camp of the United States Marines, Outer Harbor of Guantanamo, Monday, June 13.—By the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 14.—7 a. m.—After two nights of hard fighting the American flag still floats on Cuban soil over the encampment of the marine battalion. Thus far the marines have had the best of the fighting but the situation is grave and they are exhausted with repelling almost incessant attacks. They have little chance to rest or sleep and the time ofthe arrival of the relieving troops in uncertain. Were it not for the protecting guns of the fleet the little band would have been annihilated by the Spanish troops in overwhelming numbers from Santiago de Cuba. As it is, they probably can hold their position, but they cannot move forward until reinforcements arrive. What first, with the white tents on a bold eminence against the tropic background looked like a holiday camp is now grim reality. The tents have been struck and rolled into breastworks, supplemented by trenches around the crest of the hill. The spot is lamentably exposed on bare ground, while surrounding it on all sides is heavy. The least movement in the camp is the signal for instant target practice upon the part of the Spanish sharpshooters, whose rifles carry much further than these of the marines, though their owners rarely hit anything they aim at. It is impossible to accurately estimate the Spanish attacking forces, but it is numerous enough. About two-thirds of this force surrounds the camp nightly with a deadly ring and the spatting of the Mausers makes things quite lively for the Spaniards are daring enough to crawl up and take a pop shot at the marines from the bushes. About thirty yards from the camp every yard of chapparel is an ambuscade, and picket duty is flipping coins with death.

After the first attack on Saturday night Col. Huntington decided that another attempt would be made on Sunday night, and he caused entrenchments to be thrown up on all sides of the camp, and in the trenches the main part of the battalion waited for the attack that the Colonel was certain would come. It arrived within a short time after dark, and from that time until daybreak the firing was incessant and at times very heavy. On the American side two men were killed and four were injured. The dead are: Sergeant-Major Henry Goode, of the marines, shot through the right breast; Private Tanman, wounded and fell off the cliff and was instantly killed. The injured are: Private Wallace, fell off the cliff and sustained a fracture of the leg; Private Martin, shot through the left leg; Private Roxbury, shot through the arm. The above are all privates belonging to Company D. Private Burk was shot through the arm.

The first attack of the Spaniards was made at eight o'clock, and the last shot fired by them was at about five o'clock in the morning. During the night the Spaniards attacked the camp of the marines on shore and Marblehead, believing the Americans had been driven out threw several shells into the place. The attack, however, was repulsed by the small detachment of marines in camp without trouble. The shells of the Marblehead struck among the marines. The fight was the first of the war, in which the Cubans co-operated with the American forces, and their co-operation was not a glittering success. At one time during the afternoon whenever the marines were firing on a small detachment of Spaniards that made their appearance a short distance from the camp the Cubans began firing without orders and sent a volley right among the Americans. There were several narrow escapes, but no one was injured. Lieut. Neville, of Company D., was sent out on scout duty and as on the day previous he attacked a small stone fort. A hot fight followed and the Spaniards were driven off with loss. It was during this fight that Wallace and Tanman fell over the bluff. Fifteen dead Spaniards, including one Lieutenant, were found in the fort.

During the attack several shots struck the ships in the harbor, one penetrating the pilot house of the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy. No one was injured on board her. The night attack was picturesque, and a striking spectacle. The crack of the Mauser's tongues of fire from every bush encircling the camp, the twitter of the long, steel bullets overhead, while the machine guns down on the water were ripping the pickets and the crash of the field guns could be heard as they were driving in canister. Where the fire of the Spaniards was thickest then there was the screech oft he Marblehead's shells as she took a hand in the fight and the sharp, quick flashing of the colt rapid firing guns from the effectively placed ship launches made a night wild and lurid as a tropical storm. The Dolphin this morning located the Spanish water station on the ocean-side of the harbor entrance which supplied the water for the attacking force. The well was situated in a blockhouse windmill, having a small garrison. It was shelled at 2,000 yards and excellent practice was made. The station was wrecked and canister followed the retreating Spaniards up the steep ravine. The arrival of the fleet to complete the bombardment of the town and its defences is expected this afternoon.

A WARSHIP FOR GERMANY

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 14.—The officials of the Dominican Government having seized at Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, a business house formerly belonging to Senor Jimenes, the leader of the recent abortive revolutionary attempt, but now the property of a German company, the German Consul-General has asked Berlin to send a warship to that port to protect the company's interests.

Senor Jimenes carefully made over his business at Monte Cristi to his successor before embarking in the revolutionary enterprise.

President Heureaux's Government demanded that the owners of the business should pay a fine of $20,000 because of the part Jimenes took in the insurrection. This was refused, and the private seals which had been placed on the doors of the warehouse were broekn by Dominican officials, whot ook possession.

Speakstof the Crisis—Says that She Will Try to Save Spanish Honor

Americans Guilty of Brigandage—Spain is Better Prepared than Her Enemy, so far as Land Forces are Concerned.

Madrid, June 14.—Considerable excitement has been caused in political circles by an interview in El Horizonte purporting to express the opinions of the Queen Regent upon the present unenviable position in which Spain finds herself.

"Will your Majesty condescend to give her views as to the probability of peace being restored in the near future?" the representative of the newspaper is reported to have said.

"YoYu may tell the Spanish people the world," was the reply, "that though the desires of the Queen Regent weigh little amid the dissensions of faction and the choas brought about by a war which had clearly been foreseen but lethargically prepared for, what little I can accomplish will be in the direction of ending the war.

"I have, however, two duties to perform—one as the interim head of the Spanish nation, the other as the mother of the King that is to be and to whom I owe it to hand down intact the dominions and the honor of his ancestors. The attack that has been made upon us was in spite of all imaginable concessions, and demonstrates that the nation that gives way too much is in greater danger than the one which resists the first attempt at intimidation with an appeal to arms. By weakly yielding to American demands in the first place Spain has brought the war upon herself. Still it is not too late for Spain, by bearing herself bravely, to retain the respect of Europe and withdraw without loss of prestige or territory.

"Europe will never stand by and see her the victim of American brigandage. There is little doubt that our foes are not prepared, and will not be prepared for months, to wage a dangerous conflict, whereas Spain, so far as land forces are concerned, has already thousands of trained soldiers at her call. Were these at once placed upon Cuban and Philippine soil the capture of both our possessions would be effectually prevented. But alas! inertness instead of activity characterize the counsils of Spain, and the hour is rapidly going by when war can be carried on with hope of victory.

"Notwithstanding internal foes and dissensions I shall ever be bound among those who resist any attempt to make peace at the price of honor and integrity and will keep in this mind to the end, even though the dynasty should fall. Better the loss of a throne than the loss of the world's respect. I would rather that my son should inherit nothing than that he should be deprived unjustly of the possessions which Spanish treasure and enterprise secured."

A BOGEY SQUADRON.

London, June 14.—The Cadiz correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "Captain Aunon's reception along the route from Madrid to Cadiz was not very enthusiastic. The reserve squadron is not ready. Indeed, it is doubtful whether it will ever depart. The cruiser Alphonso XIII. is practically eliminated as unseaworthy, and the Princess de Asturias is unfinished and in the dock, with all her armament incomplete. Probably Captain Aunon came to see why the Alphonso XIII. is unseaworthy, or to avoid awkward questions in the Cortes.

"The military Governor of Cadiz is vigilant, and night alarms are frequent. The lighthouses have been destroyed, and the forts are being strengthened, some twenty fresh guns being mounted, of which six are modern."

The Daily Chronicle, commenting upon the foregoing despatch, says: "bogey of a reserve squadron ought no longer to frighten the timidest soul in America."

REINFORCEMENT NECESSARY.

Gibraltar, June 14.—It is rumored that Admiral Camara has seriously advocated to Captain Aunon, Spanish Minister of Marine, the necessity of reinforcing the reserve fleet, and it was understood that the armored cruiser Lepanto, now at Cartagena, will join the squadron.

TRIED TO RUN THE BLOCKADE.

Cape Haytien, June 14.—The British steamer Ravensdale arrived Saturday at Port de Paix, after trying unsuccessfully to run the blockade at Guantanamo. Captain Luke, her commander, informed the consular agent there that he brought a cargo of 800 tons of coal from New York to Nassau, and after discharging proceeded in ballast toward Guantanamo to take a cargo off the Cuban coast.

The United States battleship Oregon, he said, fired across the bows of the Ravensdale, but the latter kept on running with increased speed toward the entrance of Guantanamo bay. Eventually the Marblehead also fired at the Ravensdale when very near the shore, and the steamer hove to. A United States naval officer went on board and notified Captain Luke of the blockade, ordering him out of Cuban waters.

SANTIAGO IS DEFENDED

By 25,000 Spaniards—A Land Attack Would be a Big Undertaking

Protected by Mountain Barriers—The Sierra Cobro Contains Positions which a Handful of Men can Hold Against an Army

London, June 14.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "The opinion here is that a land attack upon Santiago de Cuba will prove a much harder operation than is commonly supposed. The country to be traversed presents great natural difficulties. To arrive at Santiago an expedition must cross the range of mountains called Sierra Cobre, in which there are many positions easily defended by comparatively small forces especially against an enemy which is sure to be decimated and demoralized by yellow fever and dysentery, for this district at all times is the most unhealthful in the island.

"The rainy season has now begun. Doubtless the Americans will have the assistance of the insurgents, who are thoroughly acquainted with the topography of the district and are well seasoned against disease; but in the past history of the insurrection the rebels have never had much success in attacking fortified positions. At the same time it must be remembered that a considerable number of Spanish troops are available for defence. A list is published in several Madrid newspapers showing that in the province of Santiago, including Holguin and Manzanillo, there are no less than thirty battalions of infantry, or about 23,000 men, seven squadrons of cavalry, 1,500 men, five companies of sappers, four mountain batteries and four companies of garrison artillery.

"The prospect of a conjoint bombardment by the American squadron does not excite serious apprehension in the minds of the Spanish military authorities. For the moment, however, the Cuban question is rather in the background, owing to the hot discussion everywhere of Philippine affairs. The papers are publishing curious documents relating to the transactions for the surrender of Aguinaldo before the war. I refrain from commenting upon them until I can satisfy myself that they are authentic."

ABSOLUTE INDEPENDENCE.

London, June 14.—A despatch to The Standard from a special correspondent dated off Cayo Romano, along the north coast of Puerto Principe, reports a conversation with a representative of the insurgent Government in Cuba. The latter declares that the insurgents would accept nothing short of absolute independence. He represented that General Maximo Gomez had gone personally to assist the Americans against Santiago de Cuba and that the remainder were massed around aHvana, which was being stoutly defended. The rainy season he said he did not regard as very dangerous for the American troops, provided they fortified themselves with quinine.

GENERAL RIO'S DESPATCH.

Madrid, June 14.—8 a. m.—The Government has received a despatch from General Rios, dated Iloilo, Island of Panay, Philippine Islands, which says: "Although I have sent seven steamers toward the Island of Luzon, on which Manila is situated, I am still without news from Manila, as the enemy has cut off communication."

"During the night of June 5th an American cruiser entered the harbor here. After reconnoitering she left, going southwardly. Since then there has been no news of the enemy's squadron.

"I am taking measures to insure supplies for the troops and inhabitants from the resources of the island.

"The spirit of the troops at the Visayas Islands is excellent."

J. LEITER EMBARASSED

Says that it is a Case of the Tail Wagging the Dog

HIS FUTURES DISPOSED OF

The Attachment Amounts to $793,925 and is in Favor of Grain Dealers

It Looks as If Joe Leiter Had Got Much the Worse of a Series of Big Deals in the Wheat Market

New York, June 14.—Justice Daly of the Supreme Court, has issued an attachment against the property of Joseph Leiter, the wheat speculater of Chicago, for $793,925, in favor of Otto L. Lehke, William P. Callaghan and Wm. Knight, grain dealers to money advanced.

Chicago, June 14.—Joseph Leiter, speaking of the collapse of his wheat deal, says:—"It is a case where the tail has begun to wag the dog. This strongly finds its illustrations in the fact that fortunes began breaking faster than cash was decimated. Logically the condition should have been exactly the reverse. For several days—in fact I may say for some weeks—cash wheat has been slow sale, particularly in the North-West and around milling centres generally. To a certain extent this has been offset by a fair degree of activity at the seaboard in answer to an inquiry from the other side, but the local markets have been decidedly inclined to drag. There has been a steady marketing of cash wheat, but I cannot say as to the quantities in which it has gone to home consumption or abroad for foreign use.

FUTURES DISPOSED OF.

"I see no objection to stating that all my holdings of futures have been disposed of. A good deal of gossip has gone the rounds on the general subject of alleged treacherous conduct on the part of the North-Western grain interests which I have always heretofore considered friendly to me in a personal and business way, but I have nothing to say on this subject. I have no complaints or charges to prefer against those with whome I have been doing business. It is a source of considerable satisfaction to me that my affairs, for the moment more or less tangled, are in a fair way of settlement without intervention of a trustee, and without invoking the machinery of the court, as would be necessary in the case of an assignment.

EVEN ON THE MARKET.

"The Chicago trade will all be taken care of—in fact I may say it has been already protected for I am even on the market so far as September contracts are concerned. The cash wheat business will be transacted through Alexander Geddes for the benefit of the banks which have an interest in it, and which will act in concert. The June wheat, representing the cash wheat in the markets, will be carried by Armour & Co.

CONSIDERATE TREATMENT.

"The treatment I have received at the hands of Mr. Armour is in the highest degree considerate, courteous and complimentary. Nothing could have exceeded Mr. Armour's generosity in his offers of financial help, which were to an extent covering any possible requirements on my part. It is particularly gratifying to be the recipent of this kind of treatment at this particular time, establishing, as it does, the fact that the business and personal relations between Mr. Armour and myself are not as strained was they have been represented to be."

ARMOURS STATEMENT.

Mr. P. D. Armour, himself one of the central figures in the Leiter deal which has been going on for many months did not take a very gloomy view of the situation. He said: "Most of the wheat with the banks is margined at 80 cents a bushel. I confidently believe the market will react possibly before the end of the week. Wheat has got down to a point where it is worth the money regardless of speculation. The arrangement which I understand has been perfected provide for the protection of all parties in interest. Mr. Leiter's cash wheat in all positions between the Northwest and Europe ought to be so handled that the banks will not have to take a loss.

"In one sense there is not much 'local' end to this story. The local stock of wheat is small and in relieving Mr. Leiter of his June and local cash wheat we took only 240,000 bushels.

NOBODY HURT.

"I do not believe any of the local people who have acted for Mr. Leiter will be hurt, and the feeling in the trade seems to be most kindly toward him. When we arranged to carry his June wheat we offered to help him in any way we could. I regret that the deal has turned out as it has, but I believe that the worst of it is known and that the market will probably react."

A PANIC IN LIVERPOOL.

London, June 14.—The collapse of the Leiter wheat corner has caused a panic in the Liverpool market, the heaviest movement recorded in wheat since the excitement began occuring this morning.

In London the news of the collapse was received with exquanimity. The consensus of opinion of a number of operators on Mark Lane is that the English markets will gain steadiness now that "the plunger operating without regard to market precedents is shaken out."

It is asserted on Mark Lane that the collapse was due to Messrs. Armour and Pillsbury.

The newspapers generally rejoice at the breakdown of the Leiter plans and point to it as a moral.

The Star says:—If the primemover in this war against mankind is beggared by his greed, the retribution is well merited; but nothing can atone for the awful suffering Leiter and his accomplices have caused."

WOLSLEY FOR GOVERNOR-GENERAL

The connection of the name of Lord Wolseley with the Governor General-ship of Canada, has naturally elicited a shower of commending comment. a shower of commending comment. There are a few names in the British peerage that are better or mtre favorably known throughout the Empire than that of "Wolseley;" and his presence at Rideau Hall would fit in admirably with the military revival of the day. He has studied the art of war in the school of war—the only place where it is thoroughly taught—and it might be that he would be able to advise his constitutional "advisers" to some effect in dealing with our militia. The tremendous difficulties that the Americans have had to over-come in getting their militia forces ready for the field, has induced a good deal of hard thinking in Canadian military circles; and it would be an excellent thing for us to have a soldier at the head of the Executive.

Then it would have the effect of pleasing compliment if the British Government were to select Canada as the resting place of the old lion when he is not expected to longer endure the hardships of the campaign. "It would signalize the importance of Canada in the eyes of the Imperial authorities and also in a delicate way intimate that they regard the Dominion as a part of the "bone" rather than an outpost of Empire. The British Government may be sure that the appointment would be a popular one in Canada; and we hope that it will prove popular" too with Lord Wolseley himself.

ROCKFELLER'S WEALTH

There was considerable comment in the United States papers some months ago over the attack which the Rev. W. H. Cossum, missionary from China, made in the Baptist gathering at Pittsburg, on John D. Rockfeller, the richest man in America. Mr. Cossum objected to a donation from Mr. Rockfeller of $250,000 for Baptist missions in China. He said:

"What our denomination needs is not rich men, but holy men. A New York millionare has offered us a great gift. I say that great gift should not be accepted unless John D. Rockfeller first make confession to the American people. We must accept no money that does not come from clean hands. Let Mr. Rockfeller purify himself and bring in this gift as a righteous God-fearing man, and then we can accept it."

Mr. Rockfeller is the head of the Standard Oil Trust. His money has been made in the Trust; he was mostly the directing genius of the Trust, and he is morally responsible for its methods.

What the methods of the Standard Oil Trust have been are summarised by the Toronto Globe in a recent article, written in connection with the fact that the Trust is now buying refineries in Petrolia and Sarnia, to begin serious business on the Canadian market. The Globe's summary is based upon an article in the "Ammerican Commonwealth" by Henary D. Lloyd, an article which has not been contradicted.

The Standard Oil Company started in 1862 with a small refinery in Cleveland. The owners managed to secure discriminating "rates from railways which give "an" advantage over competing refineries. As they made profits they bought out other refineries and worked the railway lodge on an ever-increasing scale. Their business became very large, and then when competitors would not sell out cheap to them, they either managed to make combines with the railways and ruin the competing concerns by high freights on which the Standard Oil Company received a secret rebate, or they dropped their prices for a time until they ruined the opposition. They squeezed out competitors without mercy. One case may be cited; a widow who believed herself a personal friend of a prominent member of the Trust had a refinery which brought her $25,000 a year, and was estimated to be worth half a million dollars. It has been established by her dead husband. The Trust by its usual methods and through her confidence in her supposed friend got her business into such a position that she had to sell or face position that she had to sell on face ruin. Then the Trust gave her $71,000 for her property. In many cases small dealers were crushed without any compensation. The Trust maintained lobbyists in all the chief legislative centres and there is no moral doubt that it did wholesale bribing. Now and again it met able and energetic opponents, but in every case entangled them in such prolonged railway and legal conflicts that they were ruined.

The little company which came into existance in 1862 grew to $1,000,000 capital in 1870, to $2,500,000 in 1872, $3,500,000 in 1875, to $70,000,000 in 1882 spreading over hte whole of the United States and to $90,000,000 in 1887, the stock being then worth $148,000,000. Before it was forced into a predicament of dissolving in 1892 and became a number of separate corporations acting in concert its stock was valued at $166,500,000. Its dividends had been $10,860,000 per annum for several years.

It is probable that no commercial corporation which has existed in the world's history has done more moral wrong than the Standard Oil Trust. As already said, Mr. Rockfeller has been the main spirit of it. He is said to be worth $125,000,000 now. This money is the accumulation of gigantic scoundrelism. The missionary who so bravely uttered his opinion of the wealthiest rascal the world has seen imputed blame upon a civilization which honors the plutocrat and accepts his gifts. It is no wonder that the humble follower of Christ is getting as his Master did, more hard words than thanks.

A man named McKinley assured the world when the war began that it was not for territorial acquisition, but for humanity's own sweet sake. Congress and the senate gave the same assurance. Have they changed their intentions?

A Madrid paper says Spain is willing to resume former relations with the United States with unchanged territorial conditions. It forgets that the war is being waged for the express purpose of bringing about a change in territorial conditions.—Rochester Democrat.

• • •

The reduction of the number of councillors and the proposed change in the manner of voting will be welcomed by the people. The change will be the means of bringing into our midst that famous old warrior, General Satisfaction.

• • •

"I hear," said a citizen, "that Mayor Davis purposes to open out a subscription list for a set of chimes this fall to be placed in the George St. Methodist church." "Yes," replied the work kicker, "it's chime for a change."

• • •

It was Henry Ward Beecher who said "If you want to know how much you will be missed when you die, poke your finger into a bowl of water, pull it out, and look at the hole." There are some of us who seem to think that when we shuffle off this mortal coil the entire universe will go into mourning, and pocket handkerchiefs will be greatly in demand by all the sons and daughters of men.

• • •

The King of Siam, having become offended with his representative at the German capital has decreed as follows: "My Minister, Tchanpleirex, is from this day relieved of his functions, and all his orders and marks of rank are withdrawn. Furthermore, his beard shall be shaved. Lastly, seven days after this operation, he shall be charged with supplying hay to the sacred elephants, and shall be employed at this task to the day of his death."

• • •

Political patronage, since Mr. Laurier got his finger in the pie, reminds one too forcibly of the whiskered narrative of the Peterborough schoolteacher who said: Now, boys, I have a few questions in fractions. Suppose I had a piece of beefstake and cut it into two pieces, what would those two pieces be called?"

"Halves!" shouted the class.

"Correct. And if I cut each half into two pieces?"

"Quarters!"

"That's right. And if the quarters are each cut into half?"

"Eights!"

"Quite so. And if these were chopped in two?"

"Sixteenths."

"Very good. And when the sixteenths were cut, what would those pieces be called?"

"Thirty seconds!"

"Just right. And now we will chop those in half. What have we now?"

"Mince," said a small boy—and the school was dismissed for the day.

So, you see, it is a very bad plan to cut patronage into too small pieces—especially if the other fellow is real hungry.

The Kidneys

are the seat or the starting point of many maladies, all of them serious, all more or less painful, and all of them tending, unless cured, to a fatal end. No organs of the body are more delicate or more sensitive than the kidneys. When symptoms of disease appear in them not a moment is to be lost if health is to be restored. The best way to treat the kidneys is through the blood, cleansing it from the poisonous matter which is usually at the bottom of kidney complaints. For this purpose there is no remedy equal to

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For many years I have been a constant sufferer from kidney trouble, and have tried a number of largely advertised kidney cures without benefit. At last a friend advised me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The use of eight bottles of this remedy entirely cured my malady."—MARY MILLER, 1235 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

THE FATE OF SANTIAGO

Is Practically Sealed—Shafter's Difficulties are Those of Climate

Blanco is Losing Hope The Queen Regnet Wishes to Shift the Regency to the Infanta - War Supplies Needed

London, June 13.—Admiral Sampson's acquisition of a base for coaling and supplies at Guantanamo is universally recognized as practically sealing the fate of Santiago, although it is believed that the Spanish troops will show a good fight before the city is captured.

The Times, in the course of an article reviewing last week's operations, after remarking that Guantanamo Bay will serve admirably as a coaling station and sheltered harbor, for the large American fleet, says: The Spanish garrison, we think, does not exceed 10,000 men, who have an immense position to hold and are lacking in supplies. Therefore General Shafter's difficulties will be mainly those of climate and movement, owing to the absence of good roads. On the other hand, the difficulties of communication will prevent the despatch of reinforcements from Havana, and the Santiago garrison will be left to its own resources. Admiral's Cervera's proceedings have proved that the Spanish ships find it impossible to keep at sea. It is highly improbable that General Camara will attempt to cross the Atlantic, but some fast American cruisers may appear ere long in Spanish waters.

In view of Captain-General Augusti's despatch the surrender of Manila appears inevitable within a fortnight. In Spain's best interests it is hoped that when Manila and Santiago have fallen she will recognize the necessity of bringing to an end a contest unequal from the first and rendered hopelessly so by her total unpreparedness.

The Times, commenting editorially upon the "arrival of a new stage in the development of the war," says: "The American commander is not likely to put unlimited faith in the assistance of Gomez. Judging from past experience of the work for the Spanish army against the insurgents, the reduction of Santiago will not prove a formidable task. In the case we shall soon know whether the Spanish army can better vindicate the ancient fighting reputation of the Spanish race than Admiral Cervera's squadron has done it."

The Daily Telegraph says editorially this morning. "We learn from an exceptionally well informed source that communications of a character which lend themselves easily to official repudiation, are passing between Vienna, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg on the question of intervention between Spain and the United States.

"It is said that Emperor Francis Joseph has taken the initiative. Spain, however, must face the situation squarely. Cuba and Porto Rico will obtain independence, and in all probability the United States will retain the Philippines as security for the indemnity, which is not likely to be paid for many years.

BLANCO IS LOSING HOPE.

London, June 13.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily News, telegraphing by way of Bayonne says, "General Blanco's last despatch being less sanguine, the Cabinet council discussed whether it should be published, and decided on some verbal alterations. Military precautions have been taken at Madrid to quell disturbance when the inevitable happens.

"Reports are again rife that the Queen Regent wishes to shift the regency to the Infanta Isabella, and to let her accept the American conditions. It is expected that Russia will protest against the open alliance of Admiral Dewey as a belligerent with Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief."

WAR SUPPLIES NEEDED.

London, June 13—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard, telegraphing Sunday says: "General Blanco having again telegraphed that in case the blockade becomes stricter it will be urgent to send war stores, as his supply is running short, the Government has taken steps to despatch abundant supplies by fast vessels from Spanish and foreign ports. The more important supplies from Spain will be strongly convoyed and will be sent immediately.

"General Blanco also telegraphs that the authorities at Santiago de Cuba claim to have repelled the American attempt to land in the inner and outer bays of Guantanamo, the Spanish forces being entrenched in positions commanding the best landing places between Santiago and Guantanamo."

A MASTER STROKE.

London, June 13.—The Paris correspondent of The Standard says: "Critics here regard the occupation of Guantanamo harbor as a master stroke, and the fact that 3,000 Spaniards allowed the landing is ominously significant."

THE POPE AND THE QUEEN.

London, June 13.—The Rome correspondent of The Standard says: "Owing to the serious news from the Philippines, the Pope wired the Queen Regent of Spain, placing his services at her disposal if she considered that the time had arrived for the intervention of the powers in favor of

BLANCO'S OFFICIAL DESPATCH.

London, June 13.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Sunday, says: "The only definite information from the Spanish side about Cuba is a short passage from an official despatch of General Blanco's to the Minister of War, as follows:

"Respecting Santiago, General Linares reports that to-day fifteen merchant ships, with some tugs, forming apparently a total of twenty-four vessels, appeared before the port about noon. Only fifteen remained, the others having left for Guantanamo with the Massachusetts and Dolphin, which cannonaded the heights of Baitiquiri. No casualties are reported. We do not know whether these merchantmen carry a portion of the contingent for the expedition."

"Criticisms on Marshal Primo de Rivero and others for shortcomings in the Philippines should be accepted with considerable reserve, because the whole subject has revived old personal and party animosities. The truth is that both parties and all Cabinets for many years have been guilty of sins of omission. Nobody [illegible] war with America, and it is unjust and ungenerous to try to blame individuals. I can find [illegible] foundation for the rumor that Blanco is contemplating dictatorship."

IMPORTANT SALE

—OF—

LANDS

IN PETERBOROUGH AND ASHBURNHAM

Pursuant to the Administration Order made by the High Court of Justice in the matter of the Estate of the Late JOHN BURNHAM, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, with the approbation of the Master at Peterborough, AT THE MORGAN HOUSE, in the Town of Peterborough on

Monday, 27th day of June, 1898

at 2 p.m., by CHARLES STAPLETON, Auctioneer, the lands following namely:—

IN THE VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM

PARCEL 1.—Block "I" according to the Village Plan, and Lot "B" North of Douro Street and West of Grand Trunk Railway track according to Plan 15 of said Village. Upon this property is a two-storey brick dwelling about 32x42, with a two story kitchen and shed, with cellar under the whole house and kitchen. Dwelling is heated with hot air. The land contains about two acres. The property is occupied by a tenant whose lease is determinable on 2 months notice.

PARCEL 2.—Lot "A" on Plan 15 Ashburnham, situated on the North side of Douro street and facing Brown Street. On the property is a two story brick house. The property is occupied by a monthly tenant at a rental of $10 per month.

PARCEL 3.—Part of Lot 3, South of Elizabeth Street and East of Mark Street described as follows:—Commencing at a point on the northern limit of Lot 86 1-2 links East from the North West corner of the Lot, thence Southerly (along a line drawn from the said point to a point in the Southern limit of the Lot, distant one chain twenty-one and one-half links from the South West corner of the Lot) to where the Northern boundary of a portion of the said Lot belonging to one Dawson being produced would strike the said described line, thence West along the said Northern boundary produced to the Eastern boundary of the land owned by the said Dawson, thence, South along the Eastern limit of said land to the Southern limit of said Lot 8, thence Easterly along such Eastern limit to the South East corner of the Lot, thence Northerly along the Eastern limit thereof to the North East corner thereof, thence West to the place of beginning. Upon this Parcel is a two story 8 roomed brick dwelling. The property is now rented at $100.00 per annum by lease terminable in 6 months notice. There is a stable, etc., on the property belonging to the tenant which could be acquired by the purchaser if required, for $125.00

PARCEL 4.—The South West part of Lot 136 North of Robinson Street containing about one third of an acre on which there is a small frame house.

IN THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

PARCEL 5.—Park Lots 1 and 2 in Township Lot 14 in the 12th Concession of the Township of North Monaghan containing about 19 acres. This land is within the limits of the Town and is immediately North of the Driving Park. Upon the property is a dwelling house and stable, etc. Full possession to be given on 1st of October. The North 33 feet of Park Lot 2 is subject to an agreement with the owner of Park Lot 3 for the opening of a road from George Street to Park Street across said Lot. Park Lot 2 has been sub-divided into small Lots as shown by Plan registered which may be altered or entirely dispensed with by the purchaser.

PARCEL 6.—Lot Number 45 South of Crescent Street. On this Lot is a frame dwelling house (Street Number 17). The property is held by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 7.—Lot No. 51 North of Ware Street. There is on the Lot a frame dwelling house (Street Number 32) occupied by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 8.—Part of Lot Number 1 South of Sherbrook Street and West of George Street described as the North 48 feet thereof. Upon this Parcel is a two-storey frame building occupied as a store and dwelling by a monthly tenant.

PARCELS 9 and 10.—Building Lots 18 and 19 South of Sherbrooke Street and West of Park Street. These lots have each a frontage on Sherbrooke Street of 74 links and a depth of 3 chains and 33 links.

PARCEL 11.—Building Lot 46 South of Crescent Street, having a frontage thereon of about 90 links and a depth of about 2 chains and 90 links.

PARCELS 12, 13, 14 and 15.—Building Lots Numbers 52, 53 (except the West 35 feet) 55 and 57 north of Ware Street. These lots have each a frontage of 80 1-2 links, and a depth of 2 chains and 80 links.

PARCELS 16, 17, 18 and 19.—Lots 3, 4, 9 and 10 South of Ware Street on Plan 62. These lots are 75 links wide and 2 chains 28 links deep.

PARCELS 20 and 21.—The South half of Lot "D" and all Lot "E" in Plan 37. These lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street and are 1 chain, 12 1-2 links wide, by 3 chains 41 links deep.

PARCEL 22.—Lot "F" and that part of Lot "G" not conveyed to Midland Railway on said Plan 37.—. The Lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street.

PARCEL 23.—30 Building Lots situated on Gladstone Avenue between Lock Street and Haggart Street to be sold en bloc.

TERMS OF SALE.—10 per cent down and the balance in one month thereafter without interest.

There will be a reserved bid upon each Parcel. In other respects the conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Court.

Further particulars can be obtained from MESSRS. HALL & HAYES, Solicitors, or from the undersigned.

Dated 27th May, 1898.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

"Will it be safe?"

"Certainly. She dare not give me away, for her own sake."

"I don't know; she is no coward."

"No, but she loves respectability, and would not like to own that her stepfather was an escaped convict."

"That is so. She is as proud as Lucifer."

"I know it; she is the kind that would be blackmailed for ten years and never squeal."

Jeffrey said nothing on the subject of the letters and portraits. If he could dispense with Croft's assistance he intended to do so.

"Yes, I'll call on Miss Sterling very soon," said Croft, calmly. "She will not be overjoyed to see me, but she will not dare to say a word. I've got her under my thumb."

CHAPTER XI.

Edith and her new friend, Harry Launders, were thoroughly well acquainted inside of a week. With Harry it was a case of love at first sight. Edith was still disposed to feel a little sentiment over the memory of Harold Dutton, but so strangely are young girls constituted that Stella's contemptuous allusion to the "long, lank lawyer, with the big white eyes," had gone far toward curing her passion.

"He loves her, and she despises him," she said, "so I am foolish to care for him after all. He is not nearly so handsome as Harry, and Harry likes me. I know he does."

Mrs. Rush was rather disposed to make light of the love affair going on in her little parlor.

"Wait till Frank comes, my dear," she said to Edith. "You won't look at a milkman when my sailor boy is here."

"What's the good of a nice girl marrying a sailor?" asked Harry. "He is away from her six months out of the year. Who wants to sit alone half the time—eh, auntie?"

"Go along with you, Harry! You know my Frank is the finest fellow in the State of Illinois."

"See, Miss Edith, the injustice of this dear old lady. Here am I, her own sister's son, and Frank Rush is only her nephew by marriage."

"Hush, Harry!" cried Mrs. Rush indignantly. "You know I love my sister Emma's son dearly, but poor Frank's father was drowned, and I'm awfully afraid he will be drowned, too."

"Then why do you want Edith to fall in love with him?"

"You terribly wicked boy! I did not say a word about falling in love."

"No, but you say so much in praise of Frank that Edith can't help taking an interest in him, and no one can see Edith without falling in love with her."

This was getting on, indeed. Edith, who was busily engaged making a new style of tidy for Aunt Polly's parlor, looked down and blushed. She felt quite certain that Captain Rush was not half such good company as Harry. The milkman was so strong and sturdy, too; she began to think that Harold Dutton's legs were very thin, and then, too, he stooped a good deal.

Harry's eyes were so bright and frank, they laughed so merrily, and then his chestnut curls clustered thickly on his wide white forehead, his skin was so pure and clear; his mustache so full and glossy that it fell over his dimpled chin in what Edith with a recollection of her old boarding-house days, called a "fetching way."

"Captain Frank Rush is not so nice," cried Edith to herself.

This opinion was strictly just, considering that she had never seen him.

"The old lady may have her opinion, but I can have mine, and Harry is a darling."

What had become of the memory of Harold Dutton?

Harry came almost every night, and he also invited Edith out to drive with him on Sunday afternoons, when they went all around Chicago to Washington Park, Lincoln Park, and all the boulevards in a very smart buggy, which was Harry's own property.

One Sunday Edith felt certain that she looked particularly charming. She wore a thick white dress of pique, and a gay bonnet of white straw, in which perched a bright bunch of [illegible] roses. A [illegible] white net came [illegible] her nose, [illegible] the full red lips, and chin, and [illegible] but [illegible] cheeks [illegible] in view. [illegible]

"Edith," said Harry, "[illegible] you are [illegible] for anything to-day."

"No am I?"

Harry also looked his best. He was a really handsome fellow in form and feature, and that is no small boast.

"Yes you are. Edith, I do hope you ain't going to fall in love with Frank Rush. Of course he is a good fellow, and aunty loves him dearly, but between you and me, he is a sort of a seafaring dude."

"Is he really?"

"Yes. Auntie thinks he has never been off the lake, of course that is all right. Frank has made four or five voyages as mate, then he took out his captain's certificate, but he does not want to make auntie nervous. He went to China once and he is awfully smart but Edith, I will tell you the solid truth—Frank is an awful flirt and he is engaged to a girl in Milwaukee."

"Does your aunt know that?" inquired Edith, not that she cared the least bit in the world how many girls Frank Rush was engaged to, but just for the sake of saying something.

"You must not tell. No, auntie doesn't know."

"He should tell her."

"Yes but you see the young lady is a very proud sort of a girl—gay, and doesn't know the least thing in the world about housekeeping, and Frank thinks auntie would not like her, so he keeps his mouth shut. You wouldn't care for him anyhow, would you Edith?"

Edith looked down: she found something very interesting about the trimming on her sleeve.

"Would you, Edith?" Harry asked again very shyly very tenderly.

"Would I what?"

"Care for Frank?"

"No of course not; especially as, you tell me, he is engaged."

"He is, really and truly."

"Well I hope he will be happy."

"But what about me, Edith? Do you hope I will be happy?"

Harry bent his handsome head, and peeped at Edith sideways.

DON CARLOS IS INDIGNANT

Censures the Spanish Government for Its Incapacity

Massacre Appeared When American Troop Land Cubans will be Slaughtered A Toronto Gunner's Prophecy

Madrid, June 13.—El Bandelero, a Madrid newspaper, publishes an interview with Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, in which the latter expresses the greatest indignation at the incapacity shown in conduct of the war.

"Spain," said Don Carlos, "is lying at the feet of the enemy; she is holding out her neck to be trodden on; not willingly however, but because she is being forced to do so by statesmen who place petty party interests before their [illegible] of country. Urged for years to adequately defend the Philippines the Government, sleeping in a castle of delusions, neglected to do so until too late. The result was that hundreds of brave Biscayan seamen died in Manila bay defending hulks that were not worthy to be dignified by the name of 'warships,' and that could not have weathered a heavy sea without foundering.

"Over a month has passed, and still Augusti is without succor, though he must be nearing the end of his resources and is hemmed in by determined enemies. Is this the way Spain defends her hero defenders?

"In Cuba the same state of things exists. Cervera, compelled by inexorable necessity, to put into Santiago, lies there unaided, the Cadiz fleet pusillanimously keeping close to Spain until it is to late. Before Blanco can be assisted or Cervera relieved, the armies of America will be poured into Cuba, and the crisis which the latter tried so skilfully to avert will have taken place. Once American troops land on the island, half the war is already won. Spain should at all costs have prevented the landing even if she had lost her whole fleet in the attempt.

"But speech is useless. All the patriotic and devoted Spaniards can do is to hold their peace and allow the ship of state to drift rapidly upon the breakers hoping that in the debacle which will surely follow some portion of wreckage may be saved and constituted into a newer and more solid kingdom."

A MASSACRE FEARED.

Havana, via Key West, June 13.—It is a certainty here that in case of an attack on Havana every Cuban sympathizer with the United States will be massacred by the volunteers who are their most bitter enemies, and that some of the scenes of 1871 will be repeated. Circulars are being sent broadcast through the city blaming the Cubans for the war, and calling for retribution. Cuban women are now afraid to leave their doors and their homes are almost nightly invaded by rioting volunteers wearing the uniform of the Spanish army. At sundown every Cuban house is closed so as to escape the insults of recruits and volunteers under the influence of liquor. Numerous brutal and lecherous assults have been committed, and it is believed generally that the landing of the United States troops on Cuban soil will be the signal for a general massacre of the Cubans in Havana. General Blanco recognizes this danger and is doing his best to provide against such a contingency, but his officers say that he will not be able to prevent the awful scenes of bloodshed that will follow the landing of the American troops.

NOTHING BUT A MIRACLE.

London, June 13.—Senor Romero Giron, the Spanish Minister of the Colonies, according to a special despatch from Madrid, has, in the course of a recent interview, expressed the opinion that nothing short of a miracle can save Manila.

HAY NOT RESPONSIBLE.

London, June 13.—Ambassador Hay says he is not responsible for the statement that Manila has fallen.

TORONTO GUNNERS PROPHECY.

Charles Moyan, an old Toronto boy, who is now a gunner on the cruiser New York, writes to a friend in Toronto, a short letter describing the situation at the date of June 5. He concludes thus:—

"We are still here (off Santiago), and in hope of ending this one-sided war. You will all hear of its end in thirty or forty days.

Gunner, U.S.N."

Taste on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Excursion from Hastings

The annual excursion of St. George's Sunday school, Hastings, was run from that town to Peterborough yesterday on the steamer City of Peterborough, bringing up a big crowd. Rev. L. Weaver and eMssrs. T. Lancaster and George Pulford, churchwardens, were on board.

Suicide at Deseronto

Tuesday morning Frederick H. Sims, shipping clerk for the Rathbun Company, Deseronto, committed suicide by fatally shooting himself with a revolver. He was at church on Sunday, but on the following day bought a revolver and ended his life. Mr. Sims was one of the best known citizens of Deseronto, having been employed for many years as shipping clerk in the sash and door factory of the Rathbun Company. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church and a prominent member of the A.O.U.W. Lodge. He was a native of Bristol, England, and was about 50 years of age. He is survived by his second wife.

THE C. W. A. MEET

Within the last few days we have given a place in our columns to several communications criticizing the manner in which the management of the provincial C. W. A. meet were conducting the affair. Briefly, the criticisms comprised in these epistles implied false economy and the wrongful appropriation of public money by private individuals. In fact, a correspondent, under the nom de plume of "No. 2 Ward," openly stated that it was the belief of a large number of our citizens that the net profits of the meet—which he claimed could not possibly fail in reaching a large sum—would find its way into the pockets of private citizens, whom he designated "a ring." This same writer also proclaimed that he would challenge the payment of the $300 grant made by the town.

Immediately after the appearance of "No. 2 Ward's" letter, a prominent member of the committee who has in charge the local end of the meet, called on the Times and stated that the reflections contained in the letters above referred to were not altogether truthful. While he did not deny that the profits—if any—would go into the pockets of those comprising the committee, still he claimed that the members of this committee were amply justified in pursuing this line of action, because of their having individually advanced $600 each and the purely speculative nature of the venture. Rainy weather would leave them heavy losers and it was claimed, with apparent justice, that if the committee was public-spirited enough to risk their money they should certainly enjoy the profits—if any.

It was also asserted that the town council had been asked to take charge of the meet, but had declined; also, that any citizen who wished to risk the ante would have been welcomed as a member of the committee.

As to the music—the committee had no alternative but to engage the bands of the Napanee, Wanderer's and Athenaeum Clubs. These clubs possessed an immense membership and a refusal to employ their bands practically would have meant the absence of these influential bodies from the meet.

As to the ability of our correspondent to successfully challenge the payment of the town grant we can express no opinion, but we do think that the public-spiritedness displayed by the gentlemen who have charge of the meet is deserving of commendation, and that no obstacle that would in any way hamper them should be placed in their way.

We do, however, think that the committee should strain a point to secure the services of at least one of our local bands. The employment of outside organizations entirely appears unfair and is sure to create a bad impression locally; to say nothing of the effect it will have on visitors, who will criticize the unusual proceeding of visitors being asked to tender themselves a reception.

BEFORE JUDGE WELLER

The County Court Opened Yesterday Afternoon at One o'clock

The County Court sessions opened yesterday afternoon before Judge Weller. The Grand Jury, which is composed as follows, has chosen Mr. Geo. A. Smith, of Peterborough, as foreman: Wm. Cowie, Robt. McFadden, R. H. Nesbitt, Peterborough; Wm. Harper, Lakefield; G. W. Mann, Smith; Peter Nicholls, Ennismore; Walter J. Patterson, Ashburnham; W. A. Payne, Dummer; John Quinn, Patrick Ryan, Douro; A. B. Richardson, Norwood.

In addressing the Grand Jury Judge Weller mentioned the fact that the town and county authorities were conferring as to the feasibility of a scheme for the erection of a House of Refuge. The need of one was apparent when it was known that at present two old men of eighty and one of seventy years of age were at present in the gaol for no other reason than that they were poor.

Running over the criminal docket His Honor mentioned first the case of John Walker, charged with the theft of a bicycle. The bicycle, he remarked, had come to stay, and was an article which was easily picked up and made away with by anyone wishing to do that sort of thing. In the present instance he understood that a bicycle had been hired and afterwards disposed of. The prisoner therefore came by the article honestly enough, but larceny would be proven if the bicycle was sold or if there was a disposition shown to sell it.

The next case was that of M. Blac, charged with perjury. Perjury consisted in an untrue statement made by a man under oath before a proper tribunal. It requires to be untrue, and known by the man to be untrue when it is made.

The appeal was dismissed—the evidence being practically the same as that reported in the Times at the preliminary hearing.

The most important case would be that of James McDonald, charged with burglarizing the post office in Norwood and feloniously entering it. He was also indicted for arson—for having set fire to the place. Another charge would be that of having carried a dangerous explosive. These were all offences, His Honor stated, for which a man is liable to be tried and severely punished, if convicted. The last case on the docket was that of Harry Ross, charged with larceny, being accused of the breaking into the gas register till in W. H. Robertson's office and appropriating the contents to his own use. In referring to the escape of McDonald and Fobes from the gaol, Judge Weller stated that there was no reason to suppose that either Gaoler Nesbitt or Turnkey Rae were in any way responsible for the escape, nevertheless, it would not be out of place to investigate and inquire into the circumstances under which they had escaped. Every assistance would be given the jury by the sheriff and the gaoler in the matter, and if they saw fit to suggest something by which the safety of the prisoners would be better secured he would see that their suggestions came before the proper authorities.

The case of Helson vs. Drummond, in the Township of Otonabee, was settled between the parties by judgment for the plaintiff in terms of consent.

On the side we might say that Mr. Drummond and the township of Otonabee put up $125 to secure this settlement.

E. B. Edwards for plaintiff; Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson for defendants.

In the appeal from the magistrate's judgment in the case of Floddy vs. Conway, an illicit still case, Mr. E. B. Edwards for the appellant, stated that he had instructions from the Department of Justice to abandon the case. Mr. D. O'Connell, for the defendant, asked for costs, and Judge Weller reserved his decision as to the amount to be awarded.

Mr. O'Connell, on behalf of McDonald, produced an affidavit from the prisoner stating that owing to deaths and sickness in his family he was unable to get that pecuniary assistance which was necessary to enable him to defend himself, also that he did not know other charges than that of burglary were to be preferred against him, and asking for a postponement of his trial until the fall sittings of the court. The affidavit also set forth that witnesses were to be sworn who did not appear at the preliminary investigation, and that as he knew nothing of their evidence he would require time to look into that.

Judge Weller thought if the prisoner had spent his time in looking after his case instead of planning an escape from gaol he might have known more about the matter. He decided that the burglary case should be proceeded with and deferred giving his opinion until later regarding the other charges.

The civil case of McNelie vs. Scott was then taken up, but the hearing was adjourned until the next session. Mr. G. J. Sherry, of Norwood, appeared for the plaintiff, and W. A. Stratton for defendant.

I. O. G. T. GRAND LODGE

First Meeting Held Last Night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall

The delegates to the convention of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of Ontario are arriving in town by almost every train. Members of the reception committee of City and Auburn lodges met all trains yesterday and welcomed the visitors, escorting them to the Y.M.C.A. hall, which is to be the headquarters of the convention. The sessions of the Grand Lodge proper will open this morning and will continue to-day and Thursday. The mass meeting in the George street church to-night is arousing great interest. The delegates will there be given a civic welcome by Mayor Davis.

The local committee have made every arrangement for the accommodation and convenience of their visitors and the convention promises to be very successful.

The first meeting was held last night, when the Juvenile Templars gave a particularly interesting entertainment in the Y.M.C.A. hall. The entertainment was well patronized and the program presented in first-class style.

UTTER DEFEAT OF SPANISH TROOPS

The Americans and Cubans Combined Broke Up Their Camp and Destroyed the Well which Supplied Them with Water

SAMPSON REINFORCED

Washington, June 15.—The Navy Department to-day posted the following bulletin: "Admiral Sampson reports that he has been reinforced by several hundred Cubans and that his forces at Guantanamo are in a very satisfactory condition. The town of Acerraderos has been occupied by the troops under General Rabi. The men under General Garcia are co-operating with the American forces."

SPANISH TROOPS ROUTED

United States Camp, entrance of Guantanamo Bay, Tuesday, June 14.—6 p. m., via Kingston, Jamaica, June 15, 10.40 a. m.—The United States marines and Cubans to-day attacked the Spanish camp, situated five miles from the American entrenchments. They completely routed a force of four hundred Spaniards, breaking up their camp and destroying their well which supplied them with water. One American was slightly woulded, two Cubans were killed and four Cubans were wounded. The Spanish loss is believed to be forty killed. Fifteen bodies have already been discovered off Santiago de Cuba. On Monday night the guns of the Vesuvius were tested with great success. Three shots were fired at the Spanish fortifications and it is believed that great damage was done. On Tuesday morning the New Orleans shelled and partly destroyed the new emplacements, east of Morro Castle. The Spaniards fired some shots at the Vesuvius and one at the New Orleans, which was struck.

SITUATION CONTINUES CRITICAL

Madrid, June 15.—A despatch received here from Captain-General Augusti, dated Manila, June 6th, says: "The situation continues critical. The enemy surrounds the town. I have had our lines drawn closer around the city and strengthened at intervas by trenches. Communication is still cut off. I expect General Monet, with reinforcements, but I have no news from him. The white population of the suburbs fearing they will be massacred by the rebels and preferring the risk of bombardment have entered the fortified part of the town and will assist in its defence. I do not know when the bombardment will commence.

SPANIARDS CAPTURED

New York, June 15.—A Journal despatch from Camp McCalla, Guantamo harbor, June 15th, says: "The scouting parties of marines, which were sent out yesterday, returned here at ten o'clock last night with 18 Spanish prisoners, one of them an officer. The party also captured a hundred Mauser rifles and 10,000 rounds of ammunition. They report having had a series of engagements with Spaniards, in which 100 Spanish soldiers were killed and 200 wounded. They also destroyed a Spanish blockhouse and telegraph station, through which the Spaniards had been keeping Guantanamo and Santiago informed of the movement of American troops.

ORDERED TO LEAVE CANADA

Madrid, June 15.—The Spanish Foreign Minister has ordered Lieut. Carranza and Senor Du Bois to leave Canada.

GERMANY WILL NOT INTERVENE

Washington, June 15.—The State Department has been officially advised that reports that Germany would make an issue in the Philippines are unwarranted. German ships would be on hand at Manila to afford protection to German subjects and property, but Germany had no thought of intervention.

HEROES OF THE MERRIMAC

Receive their Rewards Although Languishing in Spanish Prisons

Blanco Refuses to Exchange Them—The Capt. General Says that He Has no Authority from Madrid to do so

Washington, June [illegible].—The [illegible] recognition has been given [illegible] Navy [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the change [illegible] [illegible] of the Spanish gun [illegible] [illegible] recognition was taken [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sent the orders to Admiral Sampson [illegible] the promotion of [illegible] the [illegible] of the crew. [illegible] reward will come later, through congress.

The men still linger in a Spanish prison and Captain-General Blanco refuses to treat for their exchange, but when they return to their ships their promotions will be awaiting them. The orders sent to Admiral Sampson direct the promotion of the men as follows—

Daniel Montague, master-at-arms, to be a boatswin, from $50 a month to $1,000 a year.

George Cherette, gunner's mate, to be a gunner, from $50 a month to $1,300 a year.

Rudolph Clausen, Osborn Deignan, and Murphy, coxswains, to be chief boatswain's mates, an increase of $20 a month.

George F. Philips machinest to be chief machinest, from $40 a month to Francis Kelly, water tender, to be chief machinest, from $37 a month to $70 a month.

In addition to the promotions steps have already been taken towards the presentation of medals to Constructor Hobson and the members of his gallant crew. What new honors await Constructor Hobson who planned and executed the brilliant coup have not yet been disclosed.

THE DIFFICULTY OF LANDING.

New York, June 15.—A special from Washington to The Times says—A full week has been used up at Tampa in getting the 15,000 men of the Santiago expidition afloat, and presumably on the way to their destination. The War department people now talk with concern about the landing of this force when it shall reach its Cuban destination. A railroad brought the men baggage, guns, provisions, tents, and ammunition to the side of the ship, but with all these advantages it has taken them a whole week to get the expedition off. A very well informed army officer says that the southern coast of Cuba is rough and difficult of approach at most points, and a good deal of the time the water is to rough for comfortable landing from vessels moored in the open road. The men, horses, baggage, and provisions now on the transports must be lightered ashore unless the Government expects to take a harbor well supplied with terminal facilities, which is not expected. To get the men ashore will be a simple matter compaired with the difficulty of landing animals and heavy equipments.

"It will not be a summer afternoon matter," said the officer. "The troops will be landed under the cover of the guns of the fighting ships if a hostile reception is accorded them. Their first business will be to secure themselves against attack. Then the landing of their equipments will follow and it is bound to be a tedious matter, as it will be done by the aid of lighters. It is probable that it will take not less than three weeks to land the expidition that was loaded on shipboard in a week. After we have heard about the landing of this expidition we shall begin to understand why General Miles was opposed to sending out 60,000 men at once, before the war satisfied that they were properly drilled, seasoned, and disciplined. With 60,000 men to ship at Tampa, the confusion and delay would have been increased. It is inevitable that there shall be some confusion at the Cuban end of the trip and that confusion would have been possible four times greater with four times the number of troops."

STARVED OUT BY JUNE.

London, June 15.—The correspondent of The Times at Kingston, Jamaica, cables that according to advices brought there from Havana by the British cruiser Talbot, which left the Cuban capital June 8 with a number of refugees and newspaper correspondents on board, the food supplies in Havana would probably give out by the middle of June, though meat, fruit and vegetables were plentiful.

PROMISED AGUINALDO REFORMS.

New York, June 15.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says—Senor Uria, a deputy who has taken the lead in the debates in the Cortes on the Philippines and several general officers and civilians recently returned from Manila, assert that Marshall Primo de Rivera, on making peace with Aguinaldo and about twenty other insurgent chiefs, not only paid them several hundred thousand dollars—gold and bills on Hong Kong bankers, but promised them these things:

Local self government and administrative reforms. [illegible] on the positive understanding that [illegible] should [illegible].

[illegible] forms without touching the [illegible] orders, however, because they wield such powerful influence at [illegible]. Now the idea is to move the Vatican and the whole Catholic power to urge upon the Emperor of Germany that Spain may retain the Philippines [illegible] preserve a part at least of the religious and military system of Spain in the archipelegos.

THE CREWS WONT SERVE.

Newport News Va, June 15.—The engineers stokers and ordinary seamen who have been in service on the scout ships Yale and Harvard will refuse to go to sea on these vessels when they leave this port as auxiliary cruisers. These men were in the employ of the American Line when the steamers were leased by the Government and they signed articles of agreement for one year, but claim they will not enlist in the navy and therefore cannot be compelled to go into service on a warship, especially as most of them are subjects of foreign powers.

THE ATTACK UPON MANILA

London, June 15.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Daily Telegraph forwarding advices he has received from Manila up to June 9, says: "On June 7th the insurgents forced the passage of the Zapote river and captured Las Pinas and Paranaque. Since then up to the time my advices left Manila, the fighting has been continuous and the Spaniards suspect that the insurgents are fighting under American guidance. The defenders of the city have suffered severely from the incessant attack and from want of food and rest, and the hospitals and churches are crowded with wounded."

WILL GERMANY INTERFERE?

London, June 15.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News says, "It seems almost impossible that Germany can have the idea of risking a war with the United Staets by interference at Manila. Nevertheless it is equally possible to ignore the significance of the fact that ideas of repeating the successful Kiao Chou experiment are evidently floating in the brains of naval personages whose influence is so great that the matter deserves attention."

ENGLISH COMMENTS.

London, June 14.—The morning papers publish further long accounts of the bombardment of Santiago on June 6, confirming the reports from the United States that Morro Castle and the Estrella battery were both set afire by the American shells and that the Spanish fortifications were immensely damaged. These versions say that the Massachusetts and the Suwanee were somewhat injured by shells.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent says: "The spectacle was one of awe-inspiring grandeur. Nobody who saw it could ever forget it. The lightning flashed and the thunder boomed, drowning the roar of the guns, while a tropical rain poured throughout a perfect deluge. The Spanish shooting was better than the American. The sunken collier Merrimac does not block the entrance to the channel. Admiral Sampson intends to try to force the entrance when the troops arrive. He expects to lose a ship or two, but is convinced that he will succeed."

The Daily Chronicle's correspondent says: "It is surprising that the American losses were so small as the engagement was very severe. Altogether the bombardment might fairly be claimed by the Spanish as a victory, for, after three hours' fighting, by the pick of the American fleet, Spain's colors were still floating."

BLUE'S HAZARDOUS JOURNEY.

Washington, June 14.—The Navy Department to-day posted the following bulletin:

Mole St. Nicholas, June 13.—Lieut. Blue has just returned after a detour of seventy statute miles of observation of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. He reports the Spanish fleet is all there. The Spanish attacked vigorously the camp at Guantanamo. An outpost of four marines were killed and their bodies mutilated barbarously. Surgeon Gibbs was killed. (Signed) Sampson.

TWO EARLY BUNGLES OF THE AMERICANS.

Toronto, June 15.—It is apparent from a perusal of the news contained in the despatches published this morning that those leading the land forces of the United States have made two blunders and learned lessons which, if heeded in the future, will save them from disaster. The landing party of marines at Guantanamo Bay have been so harassed by the Spanish guerillas that they have fallen back upon the beach and have not even pitched their tents, showing that they are holding themselves in readiness to make for their ships in case of serious further attack. The choosing of an encampment upon a hill surrounded by bush, which would naturally exhibit their men as easy marks for hidden riflemen, was a mistake in elementary tactics which American military officers should not have committed. Moreover, why men should have been landed at all so long in advance of a force of occupation is difficult to explain, unless by the eagerness of the Americans to "play at fighting." It is extremely amusing, also, to read of a large fleet of transports on the eve of sailing delayed by the sudden discovery that no pilots had been provided to conduct them to the place of rendezvous. These things make it very clear that the forces of the United States engaged upon their first expedition outside their own country and are consequently showing every sign of inexperience [illegible] must [illegible], however, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] matters to bring [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

TWO CONVICTS ESCAPED

Carlyle and Lawrence Noted Pickpockets Get Away from the Central

"Handsome" Tom Carlyle, the pickpocket, added another to his list of escapes this morning, when with Paul Lawrence, a Detroit pickpocket, he broke out of the Central prison.

At 7 o'clock carlyle and Lawrence left their cells and were lined up with the other prisoners, in charge of several guards, to march out into the enclosure. Ten minutes later when the men were being devided into squads Carlyle and Lawrence were missed. The other prisoners were hurried back into their cells and a search was begun

THROUGH THE CHAPEL.

In a few minutes it was discovered that the two pickpockets had broken the line at the foot of the stairs and rushed up to the chappel, where, with the aid of a cubbard which they moved into the middle of the floor and capped by a chair, they clambered into the attic of the chapel a distance of twenty feet. Here they wrenched away the ventilator and squzzed ehtmselves out upon the roof. Once on the roof of the building they crawled to the portion which overlooked the railway tracks. By means of a slender cord, stolen from the cordage works, they lowered themselves to the ground and immediately ran into Massey's lumber yard. Lawrence was frightened and hid himself in a box car, where he was captured a few minutes laeer by Sergeant Lyons of the Central prison.

A DARING CONVICT.

Carlyle was bold. He ran into the Massey-Harris building shop and eluding the men who were arriving for work, stole a coat, vest and pair of trousers and escaped to King street, where he turned in the direction of High Park, where it is said his friends had "cat-ned" a suit of clothing and the necessaries for his successful escape. A dozen men are still searching for the escaped man, and the police all over Ontario have been notified by telegraph.

HELPED BY SWAIN.

Carlyle was serving a twenty-three months term for picking pockets at the Hooper-Jones wedding in the Church of the Ascension. His companion, Thomas Swain, was recently released from the Central after serving sixty days for the same offence. It is alleged that he was waiting on the [illegible] to assist Carlyle.

Lawrence is a Detroit man, and with Wm. Sennet, a Windsor boy, was convicted of picking pockets at Broadway Tabernacle, was sentenced to twelve months in the Central.

It is [illegible] said that Charles Jones, a "trusty" prisoner, escaped from the prison and got clear away.

HIS FORMER ESCAPES.

This is Carlyle's fourth escape from prison. On April 29, 1893, he was sentenced to two years in Stony Mountain Prison, Manitoba, but he escaped two months later.

In 1894, while awaiting sentence in Toronto, he pried apart the bars in the cage at Police Headquarters and escaped under the constable's nose.

In 1895, while serving a 12 months' term in the Central Prison, he cut his way to freedom, but was recaptured in Montreal three weeks later.

Ottawa June 14.—The laborers of Ottawa, at a mass meeting held last evening, addressed by Mayor Bingham evening addressed by Mayor Bingham and other prominent citizens, determined to insist on a nine hour day and a daily wage of $1.25 in all corporation work, whether done by the [illegible].

PETERBOROUGH JUNE 16 1898

THE ONTARIO BANK.

We publish elswhere a report of the forty first annual meeting of the shareholders of the Ontario Bank, which took place at the head office of that institution on Tuesday last, 14th instant

The net profits, after deducting charges of management, interest accrued on deposits, and making provision for all bad and doubtful debts, amounted to $84,648.49. Adding the amount brought forward last year from profit and loss account, of $17,595, there is a total of $102,243 49 From this was paid two half yearly dividends of 2½ per cent, amounting to $25,000 cash, $20,000 added to the Rest Account, $5,000 reserved for Officer's Guarantee Fund and $5,000 written off Bank premises. The balance carried forward amounts to $22,243 49

It will at once be seen that the showing is extremely gratifying to the friends and shareholders of the bank. As compared with last year there is an increase in the amount carried forward of nearly $5,000 as well as $20,000 added to the Rest Account as compared with $15,000 in the previous year. The Rest now amounts to $85,000. The amount written off bank premises also exceeds that of the previous year by nearly $5,000.

The report shows that the affairs of the bank have been wisely managed. Mr. McGill since assuming the position of general manager, has got the affairs of the bank into good shape, and under his prudent direction, the bank's progress is sure to be upward and onward. The local branch under the present management, is not only retaining but increasing the large business built up under the years of Mr. McGill's management. Mr. W. D. Parker, the present local manager assisted by Mr. Crane, is in a large measure responsible for the great success the bank has met with in Peterborough

The Times "failed to connect" on Monday in catching the early mail to Lakefield. The result was a score or more complaints and a letter from the post office people in Lakefield stating that they were kept busy appearance of the paper. We regret the occurrence, and will endeavor to have the Times mailed more promptly hereafter. This great family journal's vanity is a trifle tickled all the same to know that people miss us when we stay away. In this regard this g. f. j. is once more led to remark that everybody reads the Times.

THE ONTARIO BANK.

The Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of the Ontario Bank was held at the Banking House, Toronto, on Tuesday, 14th June, 1898.

Among those present were Messrs. G. R. R. Cockburn, Donald Mackay, Hon. J. C. Aikins, J. K. Macdonald, A. S. Irving, [illegible] John Hallam, R. D. Perry, [illegible] R. S. Williams, David Smith, [illegible] D. Ullyot, [illegible] Joshua Ingham, F. M. Purdy and others.

On motion Mr. G.R.R. Cockburn was called to the chair and Mr. McGill was requested to act as Secretary.

Messrs. J. K. Macdonald and F. M. Purdy were appointed Scrutineers.

At the request of the Chairman, the Secretary read the following report.

The Directors beg to present to the Shareholders the Forty-first Annual Report for the year ending 31st May, 1898, together with the usual statement of Assets and Liabilities.

The net profits, after deducting Charges of Management, interest accrued upon Deposits and making provision for all bad and doubtful debts were		$ 84,648 49
Profit and loss brought forward from 31st May, 1897		17,595 00
		$102,243 49
Which have been appropriated as follows:
Dividend, 2½ per cent., paid 1st Dec. 1897	$25,000 00
Dividend, 2½ per cent., payable 1st June 1898	25,000 00
Added to Rest	20,000 00
Reserved for Officers Guarantee Fund	5,000 00
Written off Bank Premises	5,000 00	$80,000 00
Balance of profits carried forward		$22,243 49

Your Directors desire to place on record their regret at the loss sustained by the Bank in the death of their late colleague, Mr George Maclean Rose, who was for so many years a Director of this Institution.

During the year a Branch of the Bank has been opened at Alliston, Ont.

The Rest Account has been increased to $85,000, and the Profit and Loss Account to $22,243.49.

The Bank Premises and Furniture Account has been reduced by $5,000.

All the offices of the Bank have been inspected during the year.

The Bank has had a fairly profitable year and both the Deposits and Circulation show a considerable increase.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE R. R. COCKBURN,
President.

Liver Trouble

When the yellow flag of quarantine is hoisted over a dwelling it means disease and danger. So when the yellow flag flies in the face—when the cheek is sallow and the clear white of the eye is dyed saffron—there is danger. Beware liver trouble. The liver is one of the most important organs of the body. On the proper discharge of its functions depend human health and happiness. When the liver fails of its duty, poisons at once begin to generate, and other organs of the body become involved. Never neglect the liver if you value health. If you are suffering from liver trouble, begin at once the use of AYER'S PILLS and you will find prompt relief and permanent cure.

"I was so weakened by liver trouble that I could scarcely lift my head. While in this condition I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued their use until I was cured of my complaint."

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvelous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

QUEEN REGNET OF SPAIN

Speakstof the Crisis—Says that She Will Try to Save Spanish Honor

Americans Guilty of Brigandage Spain is Better Prepared than Her Enemy, so far as Land Forces are Concerned.

Madrid, June 14.—Considerable excitement has been caused in political circles by an interview in El Horizonte purporting to express the opinions of the Queen Regent upon the present unenviable position in which Spain finds herself.

"Will your Majesty condescend to give her views as to the probability of peace being restored in the near future?" the representative of the newspaper is reported to have said.

"You may tell the Spanish people the world," was the reply, "that though the desires of the Queen Regent weigh little amid the dissensions of faction and the chaos brought about by a war which had clearly been foreseen but lethargically prepared for, what little I can accomplish will be in the direction of ending the war.

"I have, however, two duties to perform—one as the interim head of the Spanish nation, the other as the mother of the King that is to be and to whom I owe it to hand down intact the dominions and the honor of his ancestors. The attack that has been made upon us was in spite of all imaginable concessions, and demonstrates that the nation that gives way too much is in greater danger than the one which resists the first attempt at intimidation with an appeal to arms. By weakly yielding to American demands in the first place Spain has brought the war upon herself. Still it is not too late for Spain, by bearing herself bravely, to retain the respect of Europe and withdraw without loss of prestige or territory.

"Europe will never stand by and see her the victim of American brigandage. There is little doubt that our foes are not prepared, and will not be prepared for months, to wage a dangerous conflict, whereas Spain, so far as land forces are concerned, has already thousands of trained soldiers at her call. Were these at once placed upon Cuban and Philippine soil the capture of both our possessions would be effectually prevented. But alas! inertness instead of activity characterize the counsils of Spain, and the hour is rapidly going by when war can be carried on with hope of victory.

"Notwithstanding internal foes and dissensions I shall ever be bound among those who resist any attempt to make peace at the price of honor and integrity and will keep in this mind to the end, even though the dynasty should fall. Better the loss of a throne than the loss of the world's respect. I would rather that my son should inherit nothing than that he should be deprived unjustly of the possessions which Spanish treasure and enterprise secured."

A BOGEY SQUADRON.

London, June 14.—The Cadiz correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "Captain Aunon's reception along the route route from Madrid to Cadiz was not very enthusiastic. The reserve squadron is not ready. Indeed, it is doubtful whether it will ever depart. The cruiser Alphonso XIII. is practically eliminated as unseaworthy, and the Princesa de Asturias is unfinished and in the dock, with all her armament incomplete. Probably Captain Aunon came to see why the Alphonso XIII. is unseaworthy, or to avoid awkward questions in the Cortes.

"The military Governor of Cadiz is vigilant, and night alarms are frequent. The lighthouses have been destroyed, and the forts are being strengthened, some twenty fresh guns being mounted, of which six are modern."

The Daily Chronicle, commenting upon the foregoing despatch, says: "bogey of a reserve squadron ought no longer to frighten the timidest soul in America."

REINFORCEMENT NECESSARY.

Gibraltar, June 14.—It is rumored that Admiral Camara has seriously advocated to Captain Aunon, Spanish Minister of Marine, the necessity of reinforcing the reserve fleet, and it was understood that the armored cruiser Lepanto, now at Cartagena, will join the squadron.

TRIED TO RUN THE BLOCKADE.

Cape Haytien, June 14.—The British steamer Ravensdale arrived Saturday at Port de Paix, after trying unsuccessfully to run the blockade at Guantanamo. Captain Luke, her commander, informed the consular agent there that he brought a cargo of 800 tons of coal from New York to Nuasiu, and after discharging proceeded in ballast toward Guantanamo to take a cargo off the Cuban coast.

The United States battleship Oregon, he said, fired across the bows of the Ravensdale, but the latter kept on running with increased speed toward the entrance of Guantanamo bay. Eventually the Marblehead also fired at the Ravensdale when very near the shore, and the steamer hove to. A United States naval officer went on board and notified Captain Luke of the blockade, ordering him out of Cuban waters.

A WARSHIP FOR GERMANY

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 14.—The officials of the Dominican Government having seized at Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, a business house formerly belonging to Senor Jimenes, the leader of the recent abortive revolutionary attempt, but now the property of a German company, the German Consul-General has asked Berlin to send a warship to that port to protect the company's interests.

Senor Jimenes carefully made over his business at Monte Cristi to his successor before embarking in the revolutionary enterprise.

President Heureaux's Government demanded that the owners of the business should pay a fine of $20,000 because of the part Jimenes took in the insurrection. This was refused, and the private seals which had been placed on the doors of the warehouse were broken by Dominican officials, who took possession.

IMPORTANT SALE

—OF—

LANDS

IN PETERBOROUGH AND ASHBURNHAM

Pursuant to the Administration Order made by the High Court of Justice in the matter of the Estate of the late JOHN BURNHAM, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, with the approbation of the Master at Peterborough, AT THE MORGAN HOUSE, in the Town of Peterborough on

Monday, 27th day of June, 1898

at 2 p.m., by CHARLES STAPLETON, Auctioneer, the lands following namely:—

IN THE VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM

PARCEL 1.—Block "1" according to the Village Plan, and Lot "B" North of Douro Street and West of Grand Trunk Railway track according to Plan 15 of said Village. Upon this property is a two-storey brick dwelling about 32x42, with a two story kitchen and shed, with cellar under the whole house and kitchen. Dwelling is heated with hot air. The land contains about two acres. The property is occupied by a tenant whose lease is determinable on 2 months notice.

PARCEL 2.—Lot "A" on Plan 15 Ashubrnham, situated on the North side of Douro street and facing Brown Street. On the property is a two story brick house. The property is occupied by a monthly tenant at a rental of $10 per month.

PARCEL 3.—Part of Lot 3, South of Elizabeth Street and East of Mark Street described as follows:—Commencing at a point on the northern limit of Lot 86 1-2 links East from the North West corner of the Lot, thence Southerly (along a line drawn from the said point to a point in the Southern limit oft he Lot, distant one chain twenty-one and one-half links from the South West corner of the Lot) to where the Northern boundary of a portion of the said Lot belonging to one Dawson being produced would strike the said described line, thence West along the said Northern boundary produced to the Eastern boundary of the land owned by the said Dawson, thence, South along the Eastern limit of said land to the Southern limit of said Lot 8, thence Easterly along such Eastern limit to the South East corner of the Lot, thence Northerly along the Eastern limit thereof to the North East corner thereof, thence West to the place of beginning. Upon this Parcel is a two story 8 roomed brick dwelling. The property is now rented at $100.00 per annum by lease terminable in 6 months notice. There is a stable, etc., on the property belonging to the tenant which could be acquired by the purchaser if required, for $125.00

PARCEL 4.—The South West part of Lot 136 North of Robinson Street containing about one third of an acre on which there is a small frame house.

IN THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

PARCEL 5.—Park Lots 1 and 2 in Township Lot 14 in the 12th Concession of the Township of North Monaghan containing about 19 acres. This land is within the limits of the Town and is immediately North of the Driving Park. Upon the property is a dwelling house and stable, etc. Full possession to be given on 1st of October. The North 33 feet of Park Lot 2 is subject to an agreement with the owner of Park Lot 3 for the opening of a road from George Street to Park Street across said Lot. Park Lot 2 has been sub-divided into small Lots as shown by Plan registered which may be altered or entirely dispensed with by the purchaser.

PARCEL 6.—Lot Number 45 South of Crescent Street. On this Lot is a frame dwelling house (Street Number 17). The property is held by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 7.—Lot No. 51 North of Ware Street. There is on the Lot a frame dwelling house (Street Number 32) occupied by a monthly tenant.

PARCEL 8.—Part of Lot Number 1 South of Sherbrook Street and West of George Street described as the North 48 feet thereof. Upon this Parcel is a two-storey frame building occupied as a store and dwelling by a monthly tenant.

PARCELS 9 and 10.—Building Lots 18 and 19 South of Sherbrooke Street and West of Park Street. These lots have each a frontage on Sherbrooke Street of 74 links and a depth of 3 chains and 33 links.

PARCEL 11.—Building Lot 46 South of Crescent Street, having a frontage thereon of about 90 links and a depth of about 2 chains and 90 links.

PARCELS 12, 13, 14 and 15.—Building Lots Numbers 52, 53 (except the West 35 feet) 55 and 57 north of Ware Street. These lots have each a frontage of 80 1-2 links, and a depth of 2 chains and 80 links.

PARCELS 16, 17, 18 and 19.—Lots 3, 4, 9 and 10 South of Ware Street on Plan 62. These lots are 75 links wide and 2 chains 28 links deep.

PARCELS 20 and 21.—The South half of Lot "D" and all Lot "E" in Plan 37. These lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street and are 1 chain, 12 1-2 links wide, by 3 chains 41 links deep.

PARCEL 22.—Lot "F" and that part of Lot "G" not conveyed to Midland Railway on said Plan 37.—. The Lots are situated on the East side of Lock Street.

PARCEL 23.—30 Building Lots situated on Gladstone Avenue between Lock Street and Haggart Street to be sold en bloc.

TERMS OF SALE.—10 per cent down and the balance in one month thereafter without interest.

There will be a reserved bid upon each Parcel. In other respects the conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Court.

Further particulars can be obtained from MESSRS. HALL & HAYES, Solicitors, or from the undersigned.

Dated 27th May, 1898.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler". Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?" He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of [illegible] trouble or indigestion, said [illegible] for [illegible] learn [illegible] particulars [illegible] "I had always [illegible] a physician and [illegible] for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

FRENCH SUSPICION.

IT HAS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN THE COUNTRY'S HISTORY.

In France the Element of Suspicion Has Reached the Preternatural and Is No New Thing—How It Influenced the Actions of Robespierre.

At all the great crises of French life the element of preternatural suspicion has played an important part. Like some mischievous Puck it hovers over the land, whispering doubts here, misgivings there, converting the whole nation into mouchards, whose business it is to set a watch on their neighbors day and night. We have such a profound admiration for many qualities of the French people, such a sincere belief in the necessity of a powerful French factor in the complex mesh of modern civilization, that we can afford to bring this charge of undue suspicion against France as a whole. No student of French history can fail to see the confusion it has wrought. It is not the growth of yesterday, but it is almost as evident in the memoirs of the France of the seventeenth century as on the Paris boulevards at the present moment.

It pervaded the court and the official classes in the time of Richelieu, it was constantly present in the mind of Mazarin when negotiating with Cromwell, and it is visible all through the pages of the memoirs of De Retz. This spirit of preternatural suspicion naturally attained its climax in the French revolution, when, for the first time, the monarchy was involved in its infinite entanglements.

From the moment when the national assembly met at Versailles to the day when Napoleon was banished to Elba universal suspicion filled the air and dictated the cruel aspect of French policy. The queen was, of course, suspected, and justly, in political matters, and perhaps it was not altogether unreasonable that the suspicion in which she was enveloped should have attached to her weak but perfectly honest husband, who was assumed to be absolutely under her fatal influence.

The attack on the Bastille was animated not merely by memories of the past, not in the least because of actual cruelties at the time, for there was none, but mainly because it was suspected that the Bastille was to be utilized as an armed fortress to overawe Paris. The day of the "black cockades" and the march of the Maenads (to use Carlyle's graphic phraseology) were due to excited suspicion. The assembly had scarcely organized itself before the demon of suspicion spread its dusky wings over that body, and Mirabeau and Barnave, at first popular idols, became suspected of intrigue with the court. The vigorous personalities who came to the front all suspected one another. To them the famous warning which Benjamin Franklin addressed to the founders of the American republic, "Gentlemen, we must hang together or we shall hang separately," would have been useless. They could not hang together, and they did hang, or were guillotined, separately. It was Danton's suspicion of an aristocratic plot which caused the September massacres. It was pure suspicion that created the most revolting and unjust of all the revolutionary excesses, the tribunal of Fouquier-Tinville. Danton in his turn was suspected and fell.

We may, of course, justify the suspicion of Dumouriez, but what possible explanation can be given of the suspicion of the harmless astronomer Bailly, with his precisian virtues, who paid with his head for the dangerous folly of meddling with things he did not understand? It was obviously a question of war to the knife between Jacobin and Girondin, for each took an absolutely different view of both foreign and internal politics; but why could not the struggle have been confined to party warfare within the walls of the convention? Why was it necessary to decimate the Girondin chiefs? The only answer that can be made is that suspicion had grown to such a pitch that the very existence of Girondism was considered incompatible with the security of the republic. Men had become frenzied, insane, through constant spying on one another's actions and perpetual attempts to fathom one another's inward thoughts, and the "law of suspects" was simply a formal expression of national craziness. That way madness lies. In the person of Robespierre preternatural suspicion attained its most complete incarnation. His feline nature was ever on the dart for its prey. He could not hear a good word said of any man but he instantly began to revolve in his mind the question as to whether there were not some concealed motive in the praise. The shout of triumphant relief which reverberated over France when Robespierre's head fell into the basket marked the break of the straining point of that suspicion which had created and sustained the terror. When we remember that but for an accident Carnot would have fallen a victim to Robespierre's suspicions and that this suspicious disposition had led a man of sentimental virtue to become a wholesale murderer, we can understand that feeling of relief.—London Spectator.

Nothing to Work On.

"Fellows, I tried to get that blooming mind readah, don't you know, to come up to the club some evening and give us one of his deuced queeah entertainments. By Jove, he said he couldn't come."

"Did he give any reason, deah boy?"

"Why, he said he couldn't make a success of his efforts where there wasn't any material to work on."

"I wonder what the deuce he meant by that?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SANTIAGO IS DEFENDED

By 25,000 Spaniards—A Land Attack Would be a Big Undertaking

Protected by Mountain Barriers—The Sierra Cobre Contains Positions which a Handful of Men can Hold Against an Army

London, June 14.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "The opinion here is that a land attack upon Santiago de Cuba will prove a much harder operation than is commonly supposed. The country to be traversed presents great natural difficulties. To arrive at Santiago an expedition must cross the range of mountains called Sierra Cobre, in which there are many positions easily defended by comparatively small forces especially against an enemy which is sure to be decimated and demoralized by yellow fever and dysentery, for this district at all times is the most unhealthful in the island.

"The rainy season has now begun. Doubtless the Americans will have the assistance of the insurgents, who are thoroughly acquainted with the topography of the district and are well seasoned against disease; but in the past history of the insurrection the rebels have never had much success in attacking fortified positions. At the same time it must be remembered that a considerable number of Spanish troops are available for defence. A list is published in several Madrid newspapers showing that in the province of Santiago, including Holguin and Manzanillo, there are no less than thirty battalions of infantry, or about 23,0000 men, seven squadrons of cavalry, 1,500 men, five companies of sappers, four mountain batteries and four companies of garrison artillery.

"The prospect of a conjoint bombardment by the American squadron does not excite serious apprehension in the minds of the Spanish military authorities. For the moment, however, the Cuban question is rather in the background, owing to the hot discussion everywhere of Philippine affairs. The papers are publishing curious documents relating to the transactions for the surrender of Aguinaldo before the war. I refrain from commenting upon them until I can satisfy myself that they are authentic."

ABSOLUTE INDEPENDENCE.

London, June 14.—A despatch to The Standard from a special correspondent dated off Cayo Romano, along the north coast of Puerto Principe, reports a conversation with a representative of the insurgent Government in Cuba. The latter declares that the insurgents would accept nothing short of absolute independence. He represented that General Maximo Gomez had gone personally to assist the Americans against Santiago de Cuba and that the remainder were massed around Havana, which was being stoutly defended. The rainy season he said he did not regard as very dangerous for the American troops, provided they fortified themselves with quinine.

GENERAL RIO'S DESPATCH.

Madrid, June 14.—8 a. m.—The Government has received a despatch from General Rios, dated Iloilo, Island of Panay, Philippine Islands, which says: "Although I have sent seven steamers toward the Island of Luzon, on which Manila is situated, I am still without news from Manila, as the enemy has cut off communication."

"During the night of June 5th an American cruiser entered the harbor here. After reconnoitering she left, going southwardly. Since then there has been no news of the enemy's squadron.

"I am taking measures to insure supplies for the troops and inhabitants from the resources of the island.

"The spirit of the troops at the Visayas Islands is excellent."

To day's Synod at Toronto

In the debate on Laity's proposition to provide a court for the settlement of disputes, Rev. J. C. Davidson, of Peterborough, said that the number of persons qualified to lay complaint before the bishops should be one-quarter that of the electors of lay representatives, and that a warden of the church should be included. He thought it would often happen, otherwise, that some few mischief makers would succeed in laying a bad name upon a clergymen which he could not throw off for years.

Mr. S. H. Blake, Q. C., created considerable amusement when Rev. W. E. Cooper, of Campbellford, was appealing against the disfranchisement of his parish because of its failure to pay its assessment.

"What is the amount?" said Mr. Blake.

"Nine dollars and forty cents."

"Then I'll subscribe $5," and paid the amount forthwith, thereby putting an end to discussion on the subject.

—While the Durham Field Battery was mustering yesterday morning after arrival in Port Hope, a horse attached to one of the cannons commenced kicking vigorously and only stopped after it had gashed itself severely and broken one of its legs. COUNTY COURT

A True Bill has been Found Against McDonald, the Norwood Burglar

Yesterday morning the Grand Jury brought in a true bill against James McDonald, alias Mart Marshall, in the matter of robbing the premises of J. B. Pearce and the Norwood Post Office.

After a jury had been selected to try the case County Crown Attorney Wood addressed them, stating that the prisoner was not a citizen of this country, but comes from Ohio and it behooved all to lay aside everything they had heard of this case and give the prisoner a fair trial. The ofence is for breaking into Mr. Pearce's counting house at Norwood and stealing therefrom a sum of money and a quantity of postage stamps. Mr. Pearce is the Warden of the county and as well as conducting a store, is also postmaster, the premises of the store and post office being connected by a door. On the night of the robbery the money and stamps were placed in the vault. In the morning two men named Thompson and Tucker found that the premises had been entered and the safe door blown to pieces. Mr. Pearce found out three men had been in the locality, one of whom was the prisoner. The next day the three men were seen in Havelock. Mr. Pearce was telegraphed for and on going down on the midnight train saw the prisoner enter the car and pluckily arrested him, finding in his possession a satchel containing a "jimmy," and on his person was a large Colt's revolver. The "jimmy" was taken to the door which had been forced and found to fit into the impressions on the door. A bottle of nitro glycerine was found on his person which had been examined by a Government analyst and pronounced to be of a most explosive character. On the person of the prisoner there was also found $130 worth of postage stamps, amongst which was a fifty-cent Jubilee stamp with marks on it, exactly similar to the ones that had been stolen.

Mr. J. B. Pearce, Warden of the County, was the first witness called. He described his premises in Norwood, and produced a photograph of the safe, showing its damaged condition the day after the robbery had been perpetrated. The floor, he stated, was burned around the safe. He first heard of the affair on the morning of April 5th at about six o'clock, when Mrs. Pearce told him that the store had been burglarized and was on fire. He found the vault had been forced open. The safe doors were broken into forty or fifty pieces by the force of the explosive which had been used to open it. In the cash drawer there was $91.04 in i. o. u's and $116.42 in cash, also promissory notes to the amount of $3,700. Railway men, Mr. Pearce stated, that morning found in their tool house the two cash boxes and a number of stamps which were badly mutilated. Most of the notes and a number of the i. o. u's were also found here. Two crowbars found in the store had been taken from this tool house. He knew the work on his safe had been done by professional cracksman in which the work was done. Soap had been used to fill up the interstices in the locks, etc. Witness had then inquired as to whether any strangers had been seen in the village during the day and had heard of some men who had been in the hotels. He got a description of the men and telegraphed it along the line. He got a message from Havelock saying there were three suspects there. He went down on the next train, and when he jumped on the platform he saw a number boarding the train. He saw the prisoner and followed him. Witness' son called out, "There are the men." The light fell on prisoner's face, and witness recognized him from the description given of one of the strangers who had been in Norwood. As the prisoner was entering the car the witness, assisted by a man named Weese, grabbed prisoner. Dr. Holdcraft stepped up and caught one of prisoner's hands. Prisoner was taken into the station, and witness returned to the car and secured the satchel, which he took into the station agent's private office. Mr. Weese then called out that he had cornered a man in the woodpile, but they were unable to get him. Mr. Weese said that the man had drawn a revolver on him. Witness then returned and searched the prisoner. He took from his person a map of Ontario, a revolver, cartridges, $9.20 in money and six-ounce bottle of fluid. In the satchel was a burglar's kit. Witness then explained how the various doors leading into his premises was forced. On the doors were found the imprints of an instrument into which the jimmy found in the prisoner's satchel fitted exactly. Pieces of the door jamb were produced by the witness, which had been broken out. These also were indented and into the indentations the "jimmy" fitted exactly. A drill which had been found by Constable Cummins of Norwood, was produced, which fitted bits found in the prisoner's satchel. The manner in which the drill was used on safes was illustrated by witness.

Cross examined by D. O'Connell, counsel for the prisoner, the witness stated that when he went to Havelock he was accompanied by Messrs. Hall, O'Rourke and McGregor. On the train he was suspicious of a Jew and questioned him as to where he was going, teling him his reasons. The Jew told him where he had been doing business for the few days previous. Two men passed him, getting on the train at Havelock. They were too tall to correspond with the description furnished him. Two others passed him whom he recognized as railroad men. When the prisoner came along he spotted him at once. The station master stated that prisoner had purchased a ticket to Tweed. He had purchased two tickets. Witness was positive prisoner carried a grip. Saw prisoner with grip in car. After placing him in the station he returned immediately to get the grip. Mr. Daly, Jas. Graham and Dr. Holdcroft all assisted in holding up the prisoner's arms so he could reach no weapons. Witness ordered the arrest of another man on the platform, but he was a citizen of Havelock. The satchel was locked in the station until morning by Dr. Holdcroft. Next day witness took the valise to Norwood. He locked it in his bedroom. He ordered that no one be allowed to enter the bedroom. It had afterwards been inspected by Detective Parkinson.

At this point, the hour being 12.30, the court adjourned for lunch.

J. F. Pearce, son of Warden Pearce, was the first witness after adjournment. He gave evidence as to the arrest at Havelock of the prisoner.

Jas. Calder, assistant postmaster at Norwood, was next examined. His evidence was chiefly connected with the 50c. Jubilee stamp found on the prisoner, which he identified as the one that had been in the Norwood post office. Cross-examined by Mr. O'Connell, witness stated that there was nothing to distinguish this stamp from any other of the same denomination except the small tear on the corner.

Geo. Cochrane, County constable, and Detective Parkinson, of the Dominion police, gave evidence. The latter had taken possession of the bottle of liquid and sent a sample down to Ottawa, destroying the rest. He had seen the prisoner speak to his counsel in the police court at the preliminary hearing and then the counsel had asked to have the bottle moved.

TEMPERANCE RALLY

Last Night at the George Street Methodist Church—The Program.

Only a fair audience materialized at the mass meeting held in the George street Methodist church last night under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, I.O.G.F.

Rev. Mr. Shorey acted as chairman and after a few preliminary remarks the fine choir of the church rendered in faultless style a popular hymn.

A prayer by Rev. Mr. Shorey followed and then letters expressing regret at their inability to attend, from Jas. Kendry, M. P., and J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., were read amidst profound and ominous silence.

Mrs. Patton, representing the Women's Christian Temperance Union, then delivered an excellent address. Her remarks were listened to with marked attention.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong, town clerk, read Mayor Davis' address of welcome to the visiting delegates. The Mayor extended a cordial welcome and the freedom of the town.

Mr. Marshall, Grand Organizer, I. O. G. T., responded to the address from the Mayor and also to that from the sister societies.

Then followed a quartette by Mrs. Seward, Miss Pascoe and Messrs. Squiers and Harvey, which was well rendered and well received by the audience.

Mr. Spence then delivered a splendid oration on the burning question of the hour—prohibition. Mr. Spence amply sustained his reputation as an orator and created a very favorable impression.

Mr. Spence's eloquent address practically concluded the programme.

If not largely attended the meeting was certainly enthusiastic.

An Enquiry from President McKinley

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons yesterday received a communication from President McKinley—by his private secretary—making enquiry as to the firm's ability and capacity for supplying army tents.

The firm also received a cheque from the proprietors of the Tift House, Buffalo's largest and grandest hotel, in payment for two British ensigns.

This speaks well for the firm's reputation abroad.

CONSOLIDATING THE BY-LAWS

Warden Pearce and County Councillors Casement and Peck Engaged in the Work

Warden Pearce, assisted by County Councillors Peck and Casement, began yesterday at the Court House the consolidation of the County By-Laws. The last consolidation took place in 1862, and there are now upwards of nine hundred separate By-Laws to be read, revised or amended.

The work will occupy considerable time, but, when completed, will be found extremely useful.

Two Sudden Deaths

Mr. Eugene Donovan, who has been employed in the Review news room as a compositor until a short time ago, died very suddenly in Toronto yesterday morning. Mr. Donovan went to the city Tuesday morning and at night retired in his usual health. About five o'clock in the morning he was suddenly taken ill and died in a short time. The deceased was well known in Peterborough and Toronto. He was employed in the Review office over thirty years ago, and afterwards went to Toronto where he resided until about two years ago when he returned to town. He was about sixty-five years of age and leaves a wife to mourn his unexpected death. He was a member of Toronto Typographical Union, No. 91, and the remains were taken in charge by that organization, and will be brought here for interment.

The community was greatly shocked yesterday morning by the death of Miss Elizabeth Malane, Robinson street, Ashburnham. The deceased was over in town the previous evening and appeared to be in her usual health, but yesterday morning when arising she complained of a pain in her head and retiring to bed again sank into unconsciousness immediately afterwards. Upon Dr. McGrath being summoned he pronounced her to be suffering from apoplexy. Miss Malane never regained consciousness and passed away shortly after her physician's arrival. The deceased lived with her sister, Miss Maggie Malane, on Robinson street, Ashburnham. Mr. John Malane, painter, of Peterborough, is a brother.

FOOD SUPPLIES LANDED

New York, June 16.—A despatch from Kingston, Jamaica, to the evening Telegram says: "A heavy cargo of food supplies has been landed here by the steamer Castledin from New York. The cargo bears similar marks to that of the cargo of the City of Kingston, which has been transferred to the purisima concepcion. The cargo on the Castledin was shipped by the same people—Llera and Roca, of New York—who furnished the cargo for the City of Kingston. The Purisima Concepcion will sail probably to-morrow. She has obtained an English captain—Alexander Rennie—who will take command. Her bill of sale is registered to Captain William Hunter, of Montego Bay, the pilot who brought the ship around.

The Purisima's officers report that a Spanish naval officer was aboard the Twickenham, but had landed at some port before her capture. Strong protests have been made by Mr. Dent, the American Consul, against Jamaica being made the base for the shipment of provisions and supplies to the Spanish troops in Cuba.

Many Spanish ships which have called recently have been allowed to change the British register and to take on cargo for Cuban ports. These, many instances, have been landed at Batabano and sent by railway to Manzanillo, consigned to private persons, but later sold to the Spanish Commissariat.

The British cruiser Talbot sailed today for Nassau. She will go again to Havana to take off refugees at the request of Mr. Gollan, the British Consul.

28,000,000 PESETAS

Madrid, June 16.—The Bank of Spain has agreed to place 28,000,000 pesetas at the disposal of the Treasury for war purposes. A despatch received here from the commander of the Vizcaya's Island and Mandano, the latter the second largest island of the Philippine group, under date of June 11th, says that an envoy sent to Iloilo Island of Canay with instructions to endeavor to communicate with Governor-General Augusti failed in his mission. The messenger found that the telegraph lines on the Islands of Luzon (of which Manila is the capital) had been cut by the native militia were deserting by wholesale. The Vizcayas sIland and Island of Mindano, however, were quietly. A despatch from the Governor of Santiago de Cuba, says that recently nothing has occurred at that place.

Premier Sagasta upon leaving the Cabinet council to-day said that the two provinces of Luzon were still loyal to the Spanish Government, but that the situation in Manila was of the most serious character.

WARSHIPS BOMBARD CAIMANERA.

Camp McCalla, Guantanamo Bay, Wednesday, June 15, via Kingston, Jamaica, Thursday, June 16.—The brick forts and earthworks at Caimanera at the end of the railroad leading to the city of Guantanamo, near Santiago in eastern Cuba, were demolished to-day by the bombardment of the Texas, Marblehead, and Suwanee. The warships opened fire at 2 p.m. and the bombardment lasted one hour and thirty minutes.

The Texas steamed slowly up the channel leading to the fortifications followed closely by the Marblehead. The Texas fired two shots as range finders both falling short and to the right. The Marblehead stood off to the east side of the channel and opened with her five-inch guns on the fort, knocking down part of the wall. The Texas then threw in some 12-inch shells, tearing down the wall of the fort and throwing the brick and mortar 30 feet in the air.

After damaging the fort the Marblehead stood farther in to shell the earthworks and barracks at the west end of the harbor. She knocked them into the air, and when the Spaniards fled from the forts they were shelled by the St. Paul and driven into the bushes. The Spaniards fired only five shots, which did no damage.

After the ships stood out into the harbor the Spaniards in the bush opened fire on the Marblehead's launch which replied vigorously. The Suwanee then turned back and shelled the bushes, driving the Spaniards inland.

GRAVE SITUATION.

New York, June 16.—A despatch to The World from Madrid, Spain, says: The situation is daily becoming more critical for the Government. The Ambassadors of Austria, Russia and Germany have been authorized to protect the Queen and royal family in case of need as far as diplomacy can do so. The Government has increased the police and military precautions, but dares not take measures of repression as long as the Cortes is in session. Hence the desire of Sagasta, Silvela, Campos and even Romeo Robledo to close the debates.

Sagasta is holding on to the Premiership from sheer loyalty and dogged resignation of fate.

This leaves the Queen Regent one more card to play. When the apprehended reverses at Manila, Santiago and Porto Rico take place it is expected that if the dreaded revolutionary movement is not too violent the regent will call upon Senor Silvela and the Conservative generals to save the throne and make peace. The diplomatic corps regards the situation so grave that no member thereof has asked for the usual summer leave. None will leave the capital if the Queen remains, as it seems likely that she will.

PEACE IS NOW BANISHED.

Washington, June 16.—A leading member of the diplomatic corps said to-day that the departure of General Shafter's first army of invasion to Cuba put an end to all present prospects. While none of the foreign representatives here has ever made any peace overtures to the United States Government yet a peaceful solution has always deemed to members of the diplomatic fraternity as within the bounds of possibility, even probably, so long as the United States troops remained at Tampa and Key West. Now, however, with 15,000 American soldiers about to take position on Spanish soil it is said that the conditions opportune for peace have undergone a material change, as it commits the United States to an aggresive land campaign and also makes it impossible for Spain to adopt any other course than that of defending her soil against invasion.

The presence of American ships at Manila, Havana and Santiago has not, this diplomatic individual stated, constituted an actual invasion, although the ships had wrought much damage. The ships could have been withdrawn at any time. Instead of blockading and beleaguring a few Spanish cities, the American army is now entering Spanish territory and that advances the campaign from a passive to an active and offensive condition. For this reason he said that the hopes of a peaceful solution of the conflict could not be revived until the result of the first Cuban invasion was determined. This would take some months, probably all summer, for this aggressive land movement would be followed by others. If a peace proposition had come before General Shafter sailed diplomatic officials are inclined to believe it would have been eagerly accepted by Spain and would have stood some chance of consideration by the United States for the belief is entertained in diplomatic quarters that the authorities were loath to send a large invading army into Cuba during the rainy season.

The Cabinet crisis in France may exert other indirect influences on the present war. M. Hanotaux, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the present French Cabinet, has been formost in overcoming the anti-American spirit shown by part of the French people and the French press. He has, moreover, through his close and personal intimacy with the Spanish Ambassador at Paris, Senor Castillo, had a considerable part in shaping the policy of the Spanish Government. It was through Castillo that Spain hoped to induce France to come to her rescue, but Hanotaux would not entertain the proposition and on the contrary urged that Spain must make the concessions necessary to secure peace. It was this attitude of France, shared by Hanotaux, that caused such deep depression in Spain a few weeks ago as it brought to the Spanish Government and people the first relization that they were without an ally or friend in Europe. Besides being most friendly to the United States Hanotaux is an eminently fair and conservative man. What is feared particularly in diplomatic circles is that Hanotaux's withdrawal along with the Meline Cabinet will bring some fiery deputy to the head of the Foreign Office, thus giving free rein to some of the popular ill-feeling in France against the United States.

MANY SPANIARDS DESERT.

Spaniards Fight Heroically at Manila and Will not Surrender

The Carlists are Active—Warships Bombard Caimanera—A Shipload of Provisions will Shortly be Sent to Cuba

New York, June 16.—A Key West despatch says: Junta advices from the headquarters of the Cuban Civil Government at La Guanaja, in Camaguey, report that more than five thousand Spanish volunteers and many regulars from Puerto Principe and Neuvitas garrison have deserted to the patroit army. The immediate cause of the desertion was the fear of the American fleet. Santa Cruz del Sur has been invested by the Cubans and communication by sail-boat has been established with Jamica.

New York, June 16.—The Herald says:—Just as soon as arrangements can be completed, the Cuban Junta will send a ship commanded by captain Johnny O'Brien, to Cuba. A commission of prominent Cubans will be aboard, and the ship will carry a quantity of provisions for the use of the insurgents to-day. Members of the junta are busily engaged in an effort to secure a fast sailing yacht, and a meeting with the Cuban Government will be arranged for at some part of the coast where the expedition will be safe from Spanish interference. Despatches will be carried to the Cuban Government, and an agreement on future plans will also be an object of the voyage.

THE CARLISTS ARE ACTIVE.

London, June 16.—A despatch from Brussels to The Daily Chronicle confirms the earlier reports as to the exceptional activity of the carlists just now. The correspondent says that the Duchess of Solferino, her two brothers and several military men, and former Deputies have arrived from Spain and have recently held secret meetings in Brussels.

INCESSANT FIGHTING AT MANILA.

Madrid, June 16.—Advices received here to-day by The Liberal from Manila, under date of June 6, says—"The fighting continues incessantly. There are skirmishes at intervals day and night, and lack of provisions has compelled the Spaniards to yield at certain points. Both ammunition and food are most scarce. Nevertheless the Spaniards are animated by the best spirit, and are fighting heroically. The wounded, who are crowding the churches and convents have been placed under the protection of the red cross. The Jesuits are seeking places of refuge in the province of Batanzas, and the sisters are fleeing to the province of La Guna.

"It is not expected that Manila will capitulate until the American troops arrive."

BALLOONS WENT ALONG.

Washington June 16.—What may become an important adjunct to the Santiago expedition which steamed out of Port Tampa Tuesday was the military balloon equipment prepared under the direction of General Greely of the Signal Office. It was in charge of Capt Joseph Maxfield, an experienced officer of the corps who will supervise all operations connected with the use of the airship.

DARING BUSH FIGHTERS

The Spaniards Teach the Americans Many Lessons In Fighting

Ten Thousand Rounds in a Night—American Troops were so Nervous They Wasted Ammunition in Killing Shadows in the Woods

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, Guantanamo Bay, Tuesday, June 14, noon, via Kingston Jamaica, June 15.—The landing of this small detachment of marines, mostly raw men in the enemy's country, has taught some lessons to the officers and men here, and possibly, also, to the authorities at Washington. It has shown the Spaniards to be daring bush fighters, and it has proven that every American camp must be compactly built and as well protected to resist nights attacks as though in the [illegible] country. It has developed several small defects in the navy guns under service conditions, and it has shown that given a free rein with repeating rifles that 500 nervous troops can waste 10,000 rounds of ammunition, killing shadows, in a single night, and not think even then that they have done much shooting.

Though the sixteen dead Spaniards found by Lieut. Nevill's men wore regular uniforms most of those seen in the daylight attacks wore scarcely anything except big plantation leaves bound around their heads in lieu of hats. This acted as an effective disguise in the bush. Others, stripped to a pair of dirt-colored trousers, tied branches around their waists reaching shoulders high, and moving very cautiously, they could even cross open ground without being detected, though some of them were caught at the game.

Another trick was to make a moving screen of two or three big palm leaves, almost impossible to detect where stunted palm everywhere rises out of the chapparal. The Cuban auxiliaries were most successful in pointing out these tricks. There are sixty of these men now in camp, mostly negroes with Cuban officers. They are hawk-eyed woodsmen, equalling the Spaniards in every device of bush-craft.

The American marines speak enthusiastically of their daring. At night in skirmish time, the marines say the Cuban auxiliaries go through the bush like rabbits. Their chief fault, however, is their reckless handling of the new magazine rifles.

CLOUD BURSTS IN KANSAS

The Flood Carries Away a Dam and Drowns Five Persons

Kansas City, June 16.—A cloudburst about 11 o'clock last night in the vicinity of Chelsea Park, a suburban pleasure resort three miles southwest of here, is believed to have caused the death of at least five persons and possibly more. An artificial lake had been created in the park by the building of a dam across Jersey Creek. The flood of water carried away this dam and a torrent poured out over the lowlands along the creek. Half a dozen houses standing near Jersey Creek were carried away. Mrs. Greenlee, living on 13th street, near the creek, was drowned, being swept away with her house. Robert [illegible], his wife and their two children are missing and are believed to have perished. Their house was near that of Mrs. Greenlee. Three other persons are reported to have been drowned, but their names are unknown.

THE LAURNA STILL LAWLESS

A Filibustering Steamer Cuts In Two the Vancouver Watermain

Vancouver, June 16.—The noted filibustering steamer Laurada this morning went ashore in the narrows at the entrance of Burrard Inlet, cutting through the two water mains by which the city obtains its water supply from the River Coquitland on the opposite side of the inlet. The city at once instituted proceedings in the Admiralty Court, but before action could be taken to hold the vessel she floated on the high tide and ran away from libel. Fearing detention her skipper had her inspected by the underwriters' surveyor and the surveyor for the American Registry out in the narrows so as to avoid coming within reach of the arm of the law.

A SEALED VERDICT

Rendered by the Jury in the Appeal of Lou Craig

M'DONALD GETS 14 YEARS

On the Charges of Burglary and Arson, Sentences to Run Concurrently

John Walker, of Erinsville, Gets 18 Months in the Central for Theft and Perjury—McDonald's Trial Occupies All Day—Harry Ross is Discharged

The case against McDonald, alias Marshall, was continued yesterday. The evidence previously given appeared in the Times of yesterday.

A. G. Cayman was called but did not appear, and Mr. Wood who stated that a subpoena had been duly issued, applied for a warrant for his arrest. His Honor granted the application.

Benjamin Weese stated that he was at Havelock on the night of the prisoner's apprehension. He had seen prisoner at Graham's hotel before, at about 11 o'clock. Prisoner was with another man and at half-past twelve he was joined by a third. They had a drink at the bar, Macdonald tendering a bill to pay for the drink and saying, "Take for a game of pool out of that, too." He (witness) went to the station, where he saw the three men. McDonald was carrying a grip which, he believed, was the same as the one produced in court. When the train was at the station one of the men pulled a revolver on him and followed him to the woodpile, where he lost sight of him. There was no cartrage in the revolver. He (witness) went back to the station where he saw McDonald.

Weese was cross-examined at considerable length by Mr. O'Connell with reference to what transpired at the station, but no material fact was elicited.

Anthony McGill, government analyst at Ottawa, testified to receiving a bottle on April 19th containing about three ounces of liquid for analysis. He tested it and found it to contain nitro-glycerine. This he explained, is a liquid which on percussion immediately forms a gas and produces a violent explosion. After he had identified it he put a single drop on a piece of blotting paper about three inches square and struck it with a hammer. The explosion tore the blotting paper to shreds and made a noise like the report of a pistol. An explosion like it might produce a result on the iron safe such as was [illegible]. The witness also stated that the piece of fuse produced might be used to produce an explosion by nitro-glycerine. The mere flash of powder, the witness thought would not be sufficient to cause nitro-glycerine to explode. He saw nothing in the outfit in court that would be used to produce an explosion of nitro-glycerine.

Dr. Holcroft testified that he had been practising in Havelock for about four months. He saw prisoner and another man at the hotel that night between 9 and 10 o'clock. He also saw him at the platform just before the train came in. He saw Mr. Pearce seize the prisoner and as the latter dropped his hand to his pocket the witness seized the hand and held it. He (the witness) left the prisoner in the station and went back to get the valise. A Jew had the valise in the train but he gave it up to the witness, who took it into the station. In answer to Mr. O'Connell witness stated that it was quite dark and at midnight when this took place. Could not tell what color or style of hat or coat prisoner was wearing. He had noticed the valise he was carrying. Prisoner made no resistance when arrested. In searching the prisoner he had found his bottle in his inside pocket. Was never under the influence of liquor.

Frank Fobes, the man who escaped in company with McDonald and was arrested at Windsor, was then brought in to give evidence. He testified that he was now in the Central imprisoned for theft. He knew McDonald well. On several occasions McDonald had told him that he was one of three men who did the job. The conversation arose from the fact being known that McDonald was awaiting trial. Prisoner had never told him who the other two were, but simply stated that they were now away. Of these two McDonald had told him one was new at the business, being then at his first job. The other was a professional. McDonald had told him more than once, but had given no particulars as to how it was done. McDonald had told him this both in the gaol and while they were away together.

Mr. O'Connell cross-examined this witness severely to show the unreliability of his testimony. Fobes said that McDonald had told him this not necessarily in confidence, but in ordinary conversation.

He had told Mr. Nesbitt that McDonald had confessed to him on being asked by Mr. Nesbitt, but had never volunteered it himself. He had not started the conversation with McDonald about the burglary. The last conversation about it took place when they were away together. McDonald told him where he had come from. He did not remember the name distinctly. McDonald did not tell him exactly the time it was done. He had told him, however, that it was Norwood. Witness did not know the [illegible]. Fobes stated that he had been offered no inducements to give evidence very well. In answer to questions, evidence against McDonald. He did not get anything for it and did not expect to receive any more lenient sentence for himself than he otherwise would. At his own hearing in the Police Court he had sworn that he did not steal the money he was accused

THE IMPERIAL BANK.

The Shareholders of the Imperial Bank held their twenty-third annual general meeting at the head office of that institution on Wednesday last, and as usual the statement presented was very satisfactory, and shewed that the affairs of the Bank were in careful hands.

The net profits of the year, after making full provisions for bad and doubtful debts, and for interest on unmatured bills under discount, amounts to $231,393.92. Add to this $53,393.18, balance brought forward from previous year, and $32,760, premium on new capital stock, there is a total receipt of $317,393.92. From this was paid two half-yearly dividends of $80,000 each, $20,000 bonus to stockholders, $43,200 carried to Rest Account and written off bank premises, $16,257.23, leaving a balance of $78,089.87 to be carried forward. The Rest now stands at $1,200,000.

The statement should be extremely gratifying to the friends and Shareholders of the bank. As the President in his address puts it: "The net profits have enabled the directors to pay the usual dividends at the rate of nine per cent. per annum, to add sufficient to the Rest Account to bring that account up to $1,200,000, to apply the sum of $16,257.23 in reduction of bank premises account, and to carry forward at the credit of profit and loss account $24,696.69 in excess of amount brought forward from the previous year."

The policy of the Imperial has albeen upward and onward, and with this end in view it has extended its sphere of usefulness by establishing a branch in Montreal, which no doubt will strengthen the bank's standing and business facilities throughout the Dominion.

A feature of not a little interest is the large proportion of the assets of the Imperial Bank invested in securities. Out of a total of $16,525,986 of assets no less a sum than $1,642,539 is in coin and Dominion notes, and $3,077,690 in Dominion, Provincial, municipal and other debentures and home and foreign securities. This, together with the money loaned on the security of debentures and stocks and balances due from other banks and agencies, makes a total of $7,815,728 held in easily realizable assets, as compared with $8,132,002 in the form of discounts and current loans.

Mr. Wilkie, the General Manager, has shown remarkable prudence in the disposition and employment of the bank's resources, and the splendid position attained by the bank is mainly due to the careful and judicious investments made.

The report not only conveys information of interest to friends and stockholders of the bank, but will be read by thousands who look upon the standing of our great financial institutions as indicative of prospects ahead.

Formerly there were two Napoleons on the continent of America, but now, since the fall of Joe Leiter, J. W. Gar—we mean J. P. Whitney—will be overjoyed to reflect that he has the entire field to himself.

THE MERCHANTS' BANK

General Mgr. Hague's Address at the Annual Meeting

VERY INTERESTING REPORT

The Causes Which Led to the Reduction of the Bank's Rest Account from $3,000 000 to $2,000,000—The Great Financial Concern in Splendid Shape

Montreal, June 16.—There was an unusually large attendance at the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Merchants' Bank yesterday in view of the announcement that it had been found necessary, after the inspection of Mr. Fyshe, the new joint General Manager, to take $400,000 from the rest account to meet certain losses. Mr. Geo. Hague, the General Manager, made the following explanation: "The statement presented to you to-day is one of a kind that has not been put before you for the last 21 years. The circumstances of that time are, I dare say, fresh in the memory of some here present, and I only recall them to remind you that since the reorganization of 1877 a fairly uninterrupted course of prosperity has attended the bank. During this time the rest increased from $400,000 to the figure at which it stood last year, viz., $3,000,000. Another element of calculation has now been introduced into the bank in the shape of a coadjutor to the General Manager, whose conclusions are somewhat different from those that prevailed up to last year and have resulted in the appropriations such as have been laid before you, necessitating, I regret to say, a cutting down of the rest to $2,600,000. This reduction and the appropriations have arisen from a review of the bank's business extending back for a number of years. Now, when adverse conditions are operating year after year, as has been the case for four of five years past, over such an immense areas as that in which the business of the bank is carried on, it can easily be seen that a difference of a few hundred thousand dollars may arise in the judgment formed by one person or by another in reviewing it. This is precisely what has taken place. I am not sure, personally, if the contingencies of the future have not been too liberally discounted. At any rate, I should not be willing that my record as a banker or that of our managers (for they are equally concerned in it) should by finally judged by these appropriations. But whatever my private opinion may have been I have acquiesced in the general desire felt by the board to rather err, if they did err at all, in the direction of making large allowances and taking the benefit of doubts. The directors have expressed a hope that there may be recoveries. Time only will show whether this is a well founded hope or not. One thing is clearly evident from the balance sheet, viz., that the bank is financially in a very strong position, having immediately available assets equal to nearly 50 per cent. of its whole liabilities, and being in a position to largely increase its commercial business whenever sound and reliable accounts are offered to us. Its strength also will enable it to support its customers in a time of difficulty if they need support and are worthy of it. This has always been the policy of the bank and doubtless always will be." There was very little discussion. The annual report, which has already been printed, has been adopted and the old Board of Directors re-elected.

Dandruff is Dangerous

When dandruff appears it is usually regarded as an annoyance. It should be regarded as a disease. Its presence indicates an unhealthy condition of the scalp, which, if neglected, leads to baldness. Dandruff should be cured at once. The most effective means for the cure is found in AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It promotes the growth of the hair, restores it when gray or faded to its original color, and keeps the scalp clean and healthy.

"For more than eight years I was greatly troubled with dandruff, and though a young man, my hair was fast turning gray and falling out. Baldness seemed inevitable until I began to use

Ayer's Hair Vigor

The dandruff has been entirely removed and my hair is now soft, smooth and glossy and fast regaining its original color."

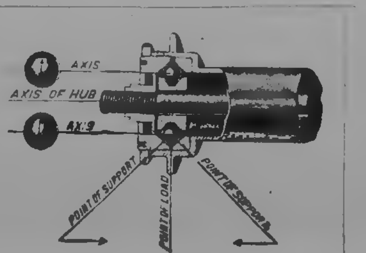
"JUST AS GOOD"
Means Taking Chances!

Can you afford to do this? We think not. If sick you take no chances by risking your life with a quack physician. You seek a doctor with a reputation and ability. This idea holds good in business matters also. When buying a Bicycle it is always the wisest move to take no chances. Buy the wheel having a good reputation and honest value.

THE E. & D. BICYCLE



Four Point Bearing!

Oiled and Cleaned but Once a Year

has a reputation for strength, quality, finish and reliability that puts it beyond the "Just as Good" class of wheels. It will meet your every requirement. Its bearings are unique as well as practical. Get a Catalogue and read about this wheel.

AN EVIDENCE OF DURABILITY.

What the distinguished pastor the Rev. S. J. Shorey, of George St. Methodist Church, Peterboro', says of the Newcombe Piano:

"I have been more then satisfied with the piano purchased nearly fifteen years ago from Messrs. Newcombe & Co. After all these years of constant use. The piano is still in first class condition."

The Rev. M. T. Campbell, Ex-President of the Bay of Quinte Conference says. "I had a Newcombe Piano in my home for ten years—and when my daughter was married and wanted a piano it was the Newcombe I purchased for her.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

"Of course I do."

"But, Edith, I am not engaged."

"Well, no, I suppose not."

"Then how can I be happy?"

"Oh, nonsense," laughed Edith, sadly confused and blushing. "Plenty of people are happy without being engaged."

"Not if they love some one dearly, Edith."

"No, I suppose not."

"Then, Edith, if you wish me to be very happy, you must make me so. I love you very dearly, so to be happy we must be engaged at once. Shall we, darling?"

His arm stole lovingly around her waist. Edith's reply to his question not audible, but Harry was content.

CHAPTER XX.

Walter Derwent kept his word; he did inquire about Stella's history; and as he knew no one else who knew anything about her, he asked Stella herself.

"My parents are both dead," she said, "and I have always been under the impression that I had no living living relatives; but recently Judge Orlin has been introduced to me, and he thinks I am the daughter of his only sister. He showed me a portrait of a lady which resembled my mother, though her face had changed on account of ill-health."

"Judge Orlin!"

Walter would have been more than surprised if Stella proved to be the niece of Judge Orlin.

"Yes; he is coming back from the East shortly, and then we are to have some further conversation."

Stella said nothing on the subject of the missing letters and portraits; she felt no doubt that they were in the possession of Croft, and saw no reason why he should restore them to her.

"He is a splendid gentleman, and will be anxious to do justice. He is, I believe, almost the last living member of a noble Scottish family, and I have heard that valuable estates in Scotland were his."

"Then I suppose the fortune he spoke of would be my mother's if she were living."

"No doubt."
